Administration and general costs for the defence and defence production departments were each up by more than $2,000,000.

The government's contribution to the armed forces' pension fund increased by $15,500,000 to $54,000,000 because of pay boosts for the services.

Expenditures toward the mutual aid program for Canada's European allies in NATO dropped $4,400,000 to $10,200,000, the lowest figure since NATO was formed.

payments will need 35 and over is handled separately.

Pension payments in 1961-62 rose $20,000,000 to $625,000,000, with about $20,000,000 of the rise due to the $30 boost in pension from last Feb. 1. The pension fund's collection of taxes earmarked for this purpose rose $68,000,000 to $648,000,000 and the fund ended the year with a $24,000,000 surplus.

Counting these figures, government spending hit a total $7,186,400,000 and revenues totalled $6,421,000,000.

Though Mr. Fleming underestimated his budgetary deficit, his budget speech last June greatly over-estimated the cash deficit—a figure which reflects the government's overall cash needs.

Last June Mr. Fleming forecast the cash deficit at around $1,000,000,000 to be paid for by Drought - affected farmers earned less but sales of previous years' harvests helped improve their cash situation.

Consumer spending increased by about 3¼ per cent in the last nine months with the biggest gains recorded in purchase of cars. Spending by all governments was up in 1961 by seven per cent.

The consumer continued to borrow heavily from finance companies, retail stores and chartered banks but credit eased in 1960. The biggest increase was in dollar exchange rate. In addition, the unemployment insurance fund repaid $67,000,000 instead of requiring $170,000,000 as Mr. Fleming had forecast. As CMHC deficit and lending by the CMHC were both less than expected.

In all, the government collected $312,400,000 from these non-budgetary sources, which more received another $880,300,000 from the net increase in its borrowings.

CASH ON HAND UP

Thus, after financing the budgetary deficit, the government ended the year with an increase of $401,500,000 in its cash on hand.

The government's gross debt rose by $1,754,000,65) to $22,856,890,000. This is partly offset, by various net other debt movements and the net debt increase was $791,400,000 on the amount of the budgetary deficit — $13,238,500,000 last March 31.

The white paper's review of the economy in 1961 showed an improving picture after the recession's low point during the first quarter was passed.

The seven-per-cent rise in the rate of gross national product from the first to fourth quarters, it said, compared favorably with the 8½ upswing in the early phases of previous economic recoveries.

It pointed to a relatively small increase in prices of less than one per cent, and showed an improvement in the job situation.

Employment last December was 180,000 higher than a year earlier, and the rate of unemployment, adjusted to offset seasonal factors, fell to 6.1 per cent of the labor force in December compared with 7.8 per cent the previous January.

ECONOMY IMPROVES

The report said that during the year the economy responded to new economic policies. Interest turned downward at mid-year; the spread in interest rates between Canada and the United States narrowed; the inflow of foreign capital declined,

Net National Debt Stands at 13 Billion

The pre-budget white paper, tabled in the Commons today, put the estimated net debt on that date at $12,228,500,000. The population then was approximately 18,500,000.

A year earlier the net debt was $11,437,100,000—about $650 per capita.

The net debt, which increased $791,400,000 during the year, is calculated by subtracting the value of all assets from total liabilities.

In the 1961-62 fiscal year ended March 31, assets are estimated to have climbed to $9,-628,390,000 from $8,165,700,000 the previous year. Total liabilities rose to $22,986,800,000 from $21,020,800,000.

Cost of carrying the public debt—mainly interest payments —rose to $830,700,000 at March 31 from $797,600,000 a year earlier. Debt charges comprised 12.8 per cent of annual government expenditures.

Jobless Insurance Fund Runs $126,000,000 Deficit

OTTAWA (CP) — The unemployment insurance fund was down to $71,000,000 at March 31 after running a $126,000,000 deficit in the last fiscal year, the Commons was told today.

The budget white paper showed its fund's balance declined $193,100,000 from $264,-300,000 at the start of the 1961-62 fiscal year. Last year's drop in the deficit but to repayment of a $67,500,000 government loan.

The fund has been under study by a special committee of inquiry headed by Ernest C. Gill, Toronto insurance executive, which is seeking ways of putting the fund on a sound basis and eliminating abuses.

The fund has been dwindling since 1956, when it held its peak assets of $628,700,000.

The white paper showed that during the 1961-62 fiscal year payments of insurance benefits totalled $486,000,000 while revenues were $360,000,000. The $126,000,000 deficit compared with a deficit of $181,000,000 in 1960-61.

Brilliant Hall Sparks Hawks' 2-0 Win

Meet Leafs In Final

Hall, the most durable net-minder in the game showed why Sunday night. He turned in a splendid 41-stop performance that led the Black Hawks to a 2-0 win over Montreal Canadiens for a berth in the 1962 Stanley Cup finals.

By winning, the Hawks completed one of hockey's great it comebacks of recent seasons. They dropped the first two games of the best-of-seven semi-final series to Canadiens, then stormed back to win the next four.

They now advance to the best-of-seven finals against Toronto Maple Leafs in the first game of the series to be played in Toronto Tuesday night.

Both coaches—Rudy Pilous of the Hawks and Toe Blake of the Canadiens—agreed Hall's fantastic save on a goal attempt by Montreal's Dickie Moore in the second period was the turning point of Sunday night's game before 16,666.

KICKS SHOT OUT

The Hawks were leading 1-0 when Moore dropped in alone on Hall, faked twice and then shot from a couple of feet out-side the crease. Hall, off-balance, lunged with his left foot and kicked it out.

"I guess that may have been my biggest save of the season," said Hall after the game. "You could see that it picked up the rest of the puck and that's what made it important."

Ab McDonald scored Chicago's first goal in the first period and Ken Wharram banged in the other in the second.

Stan Mikita, playing with a minor groin injury picked up in the semi-finals, was a tireless worker and, coach-born centre is points—three goals and 10 assists—for the series, the only way player.

It is the second straight year the Hawks have eliminated Montreal in the semi - finals. Last spring they also won 4-2 in games as Hall posted two shut-outs in the fifth and sixth contests.

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs left winger Dick Duff said Saturday night New York Rangers "had no reason to protest" his second-period goal that put the Leafs on their way to a 7-1 Stanley Cup semi-final victory. The win gave Toronto the best-of-seven set 4-2.

"The puck bounced in off the back of my glove and I made no move to push it in," he said in the dressing room after the game. "I don't see why it shouldn't be allowed. Thousand of goals go in like that. They bounce off legs, arms and other parts."

The Rangers held that Duff, standing just outside the New York goal crease, had pushed defenceman Allap Stanley's shot from the point into the net with his glove.

"They had me scared silly at times during the series," he said. "This is the first time we have relaxed."

HAS NO CHOICE

Asked whether he would prefer to meet the Chicago Black Hawks or Montreal Canadiens in the final, Imlach said: "I don't care who we meet as long as I'm there."

Defenceman Tim Horton, who got three assists Saturday and tied the series' point-getters with four goals and nine assists, said "there were other guys who did a lot better than I did."

"Points are funny. Either they're going for you or they're not. When they're going for you, you get a lot."

Reds Take On Phillies

Detroit, Senators Open Season

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

There wasn't a pessemistic manager in sight as major league baseball prepared to open the 1962 season on two fronts today.

The American League was to stage its inaugural in Washington, D. C., where the Senators move into 43,500-capacity District of Columbia Stadium. Detroit Tigers were the opposition.

Another capacity crowd was expected to attend the National League's opener at Cincinnati's Crosley Field, where the defending champion Reds take on Philadelphia Phillies. Joey Jay was scheduled to pitch for the Reds against the Phillies' Art Mahaffey.

The other clubs swing into action Tuesday.

Today's schedule:

National League — Philadelphia (Mahaffey 11-19) at Cincinnati (Jay 16-15), 1 p.m. EST.

American League — Detroit (Mossi 15-7) at Washington (Daniels 13-11), 2 p.m. EST.

HAVE NIGHT GAMES

For the first time since 1890, the National League will field 10 teams, with the Houston entrant in an expansion program that eventually may be stepped up to either two 12-team leagues or three eight-team leagues.

During the season, two performances stood out in a rain-shortened exhibition baseball schedule.

Rookie Bob Sadowski blasted three home runs and a single and drove in five runs for Cincinnati while Jack Sanford, ex-Earl Battey of Minnesota Twins drove in four runs on a homer, two doubles and a single.

Chicago lost 8-6 to Cincinnati Reds at Indianola in spite of Sadowski's inspired hitting.

Buttey, Minnesota's regular catcher, did his hitting at the expense of Kansas City Athletics at Jacksonville, Fla., and led the Twins to an 8-4 windup victory.

Meets Player, Finsterwald

Palmer Playoff Favorite

By MERCER BAILEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, who again has proved to be the game's greatest pressure player, was favored over Gary Player and Dow Finsterwald in today's 18-hold playoff for the 26th Masters golf championship.

Said Player, the little defending champion from South Africa: "Personally, I feel that on this course, his distance off the tee gives Arnie an advantage. He can reach the par-five holes easier. Dow and I can't."

Palmer, leading Finsterwald by two shots and Player by four going into Sunday's fourth round, made the playoff only by staging another of the fantastic finishes for which he is famous.

At Balding of Toronto came back from a rough Saturday round of 78 to card a 72 Sunday. His operating round was a 75 and he posted a round a fine 68, giving him a total after Sunday's play of 289.

Palmer, after straying tee shots and a balky putter temporarily had knocked him out of the running, rallied spectacularly on the last three holes. He chipped in for a birdie-deuce at No. 16, then hit his second shots on 17 stroked in an eight-foot beauty for another birdie, and parred the 18th.

Finsterwald already was in at this time with a 73 and 207.

FIRST THREE-WAY TIE

Palmer's 75 and Player's 71 for the Masters into its first three-way playoff.

Neither Palmer, Player or Finsterwald has a very impressive playoff record. In 18-hole playoffs, Palmer has won four and lost two. He has won five and lost one sudden-death affairs. Player never has been in an 18-hole match, but lost all four of his sudden-death playoffs. Finsterwald won his only previous playoff, a three hole sudden - death battles against one victory.

The 1962 Masters carried a record purse of $100,100. The playoff will determine who gets the $20,000 top prize, second money of $12,000 and third prize of $8,000. Littler got $6,000 for fourth place. Every professional who attended the tournament got $400 and those who survived the cut and completed 72 holes got a minimum of $500.

Behind the top four, there was a four-way tie for fifth at 287—Jimmy Demaret (3), Ralph Bassetcron (6) Billy Maxwell and Mike Souchak.

Pender Verdicts Downes

BOSTON (AP) — It appears artistic Paul Pender, 31, and bull-like Gene Fullmer will finally resolve their world middleweight title dispute in late spring or early summer.

Only the site seems to be in dispute now that Pender, a former fireman, has doused the title flame in the heart of Britain's Terry Downes.

Pender, the old guy who was supposed to fade in the late rounds, came in like a whirlwind to butcher and befuddle defender Downes and regain a share of the world middleweight title. The 15-round decision was unanimous. Each weighed 159.

Off to a slow start, Pender rallied to chop up the game 25-year-old Briton and win back the piece of the title he lost to Downes in London last July 11. At that time Pender quit on his stool after the ninth round.

EACH STUMBLES

There were no knockdowns in the rough, brawl in which though each was tumbled once to the canvas by the pushing of his rival.

Pender looked scared and weak through the first three rounds as the strong, aggressive Londoner, bulled him around the ring and lashed him with thumping rights and lefts to the head and body.

But in the fourth, the veteran boxing master began to show some life and in the sixth decided he took charge with his sharp combination punches to the head.

He caught the incoming Briton with right - hand leads and followed with fast lefts. He rattled Terry with clusters of two, three, four and five punches at a clip as the younger man did the fading.

STARTS TO BLEED

Downes started to bleed from a cut on his eb-repaired nose in the sixth round. In the 13th, Pender's sharp punches tore open a wide gash over Downes' left eye.

Pender was cut over the left eye in the sixth round and again over the same eye in the ninth.

"Gene wants to fight in May or June and is perfectly willing to meet Pender there in the site and terms can be worked out," said Marv Jenson from West Jordan, Utah.

Rothschild, who stages most of Fullmer's fights, said he is ready to offer both claimants a large chunk of moneyborne fight.

"It's going to take at least $125,000 each for Pender and Fullmer to close this," he said. "I'm ready with that kind of bidding."

Pender is recognized as champion in Europe, Massachusetts and New York. The National Boxing Association proclaims Fullmer as king of the 160-pounders.

In the Dressing Rooms

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—"It wasn't luck, we just were a better hockey team than Montreal."

Thus spoke coach Rudy Pilous above the roar in the victorious Chicago dressing room after the Black Hawks bounced Montreal Canadiens out of the Stanley Cup quarter-finals with a fourth straight victory, 2-0.

"It there was a turning point in this deciding game, it was Glenn Hall's great, one-handed save on Dick Moore's wide open shot in the second period," said Pilous.

The Hawks were in front 1-0 when Moore swooped down completely naked twice, faked and then tried to blow the puck past Hall. The Hawks goalie played with each fake and then stuck out his left skate and hand to stop the shot.

BEST OF SEASON

"I guess that may have been my biggest save of the season," said Hall after the game. "I could see that it picked up the rest of the team and that's what made it important."

The Hawks will be raring to start the final against Maple Leafs at Toronto Tuesday, Pilous said, unless this series took too much out of us."

"You know this was a terrific series," he continued, "and we had to play championship hockey to beat a team like Montreal.

"We beat them at whatever game they wanted to play. I'm sick and tired of hearing about our tomahawk tactics. We skated with them, we checked with them and we outplayed them all the way."

HAWKS TOOK RECORD

Pilous reminded interviewers the Hawks won only one of seven regular season games at Toronto. "But we have a hell of a good chance to take it all again this year," he said. "... We're rolling now, after a slow start in the regular season."

In Montreal's dressing room, coach Toe Blake said: "They got the breaks and we didn't. They took advantage of their chances and we didn't. We played every bit as well as they. But don't get me wrong, they didn't fluke it. They played well and you have to give them credit.

"Both goalies were very good. But Hall was great in the clutch. After all he got a shutout and he picked a helluva time for it."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Meaford will throw open its hockey garage doors tonight and auburn is here at guaranteed. Charles down this way, with all cylinders ready to click and not a flat tire in the fleet.

The Cherries from the home town of the old Black Knights baseball team (Shades of Warpy Phillips) have just emerged from a nine-game rally with the Collingwood Shipbuilders who won't launch a victory craft this year.

It seems the Cherries got a bit fed up playing the same team night after night up to the point where the scorekeepers were writing first names only in the summaries, and decided it was time for a change of faces and scenery and a glimpse of parts of Ontario's Banana Belt.

The Cherries and the Shipbuilders locked horns in one of the hardest-fought series in intermediate "A" history. They were as evenly matched as a Siamese twin-ensemble and the fortunes of victory swung first one way and then the other with a layout of nine nailbiting say edge.

Their best-of-seven joustings for the right to meet the Belleville Pepsis ended up in a tie, both clubs winning a pair and sharing points in three games.

They abided by an OHA edict to play a best-of-three series in the first tilt giving Jo Moreland in Collingwood's arena. The second and deciding game also went to the Cherries by a 1-0 score.

The series had the faithful of both Meaford and Collingwood in a hockey tizzy. The local newspapers and district radio stations took up the respective cudgels. The fans dun-pached arenas in both communities to rather capacity.

Evidence of interest in the Belleville-Meaford series is seen in the fact radio stations of Barrie and Owen Sound will broadcast all games of the series.

Speaking with the sports editor of the Collingwood newspaper after the first game of the final series which Collingwood lost, I asked him about the attendance. "We've been getting about 2,900 in playoff games," he said, "but it fell off last night. All we had was 2,500."

Must could be something in Meaford's favor. The Pepsis could suffer from stagefright should they play before crowds of that size.

The first game of the best-of-seven series will be played in Meaford next Saturday night with a possibility of the Pepsis staying over and playing the third game next Sunday. The next two games were slated for Belleville.

Reports from the other camps have it that the Pepsis will most foemen worthy of their steel. The Cherries are composed of veteran players bolstered with fast-starting youngsters who should force the Belleville crew to its best efforts.

Here at home Coach Lanmyr Lamirande has been putting the Pepsis through stiff practice grinds. Other teams have played here with their potential strength blown a mile high above their real ability. But the records show that Meaford will not be a force to be reckoned with and Lamirande is looking for a tough series.

The Pepsis are healthy and will be at full strength. True they have had a somewhat lengthy layoff but they have had "time" with the ice.

Tonight's game gets under way at 8.30 and it is hoped the largest crowd of the season to see an interpredictate result will be on hand. It should be a thriller.

Joyces Defeat Booths 6-4

Joyces Real Estate won their second straight victory of the Industrial Hockey League finals here yesterday, defeating Booths TV by a 6-4 score.

The Real Estaters lead the best-of-five series 2-0, the next slated for next weekend.

The winners downed Booths a 2-1 first period lead but took over in the second frame on three fast goals against a single return. They outscored Booths 3-1 in the final heat.

Doug Murray put Booths in front early in the first period with Jim Sheridan tying the score minutes later. Kay Elliott put the losers in front before period end.

Sheridan topped the Joyce sweepin to 5-3 early in the final frame with Jack Hughes getting it back with four minutes to go. Hyrie Bryant scored for the winners just before the final whistle.

The game was rugged at times with Doug Murray and Hyrie Bryant getting chared for fighting in the third period. Sheridan, Joyce goalie, got heaved for roughing in the first frame.

Booths drew nine penalties. Joyces five.

Sheridan's three goals paced the winners with Bryant, Elliott and Gord Green getting singles. Doug Morrow and Elliott each had two assists, Sheridan and Faulkner one each.

Murray, Elliott, Pukanecki and Hughes were the Booth snipers, Hughes and Elliott drawing assists.

Leafs Blast Blues In 7-1 Victory

By BILL McDOUGALL

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs, the second-place club who some observers say are the most powerful team in the National Hockey League when they play at their top clip, finally exploded and blew New York Rangers out of the Stanley Cup picture.

The Leafs clobbered the Rangers 7-1 Saturday night to take the best-of-seven semi-final and advance into the best-of-seven cup final against Chicago Black Hawks opening here Tuesday night.

The fourth place Rangers, rated at the start of the series as easy pickings for the Leafs, confused the experts by putting up a solid battle in losing the first two games 4-2 and 3-1 and winding up the next two 3-1 and 4-2.

And when the Leafs finally started to roll in the fifth game Thursday night, Rangers goalie Gump Worsley put on a fantastic show before Toronto won 3-2 in the second overtime period.

GET REVENGE

Saturday night, the line of centre Dave Keon, left winger Dick Duff and right winger George Armstrong avenged themselves to the full for the way Toronto had slopped them previously. Keon and Duff got two goals apiece and Armstrong one.

Andy Bathgate, star right winger who was unable to get a goal in the first five games of the series, scored for New York's counter on a partially screened shot at 18:21 of the first period.

It was obvious early to both teams and crowd of 14,711 that it was curtains for the Rangers. Toronto built up a 3-0 lead by 3:31, of the first session.

Bathgate scored a half minute after but Duff was credited with the backbreaking goal — protested by the Rangers — early in the second period. The Leafs never headed another two in the second and one in the third.

JINX CONTINUES

The Rangers went home owners of a nine-game streak. They haven't won in Toronto since Oct. 8, 1960. That's 17 straight games here with only one tie to their credit. The tie was Dec. 18, 1961, since then New York has lost 13 times in Toronto.

Toronto coach Punch Imlach slapped into a chair after the game and took hands on sundry well-wishers as reporters Docked around him.

"The goal it's over," he said. "They had me scared silly at times during the last."

Toronto defenceman Carl Brewer started the play for Leafs' first goal with a high blooping shot he said he has been practising all year at Worsley, who was drawn almost 30 feet out of his net to stop it and Keon passed the rebound to Armstrong who scored at 8:36 before Worsley could get back into the nets.

Three minutes and seven seconds later Pulford scored on a 35-foot knee-high drive. Keon made it 3-0 at 17:39 on a passout from defenceman Tim Horton, who got three assists — MORE THAN TWICE AS MANY Duff got his first goal when defenceman Allan Stanley's shot from the blue line went off the winger's glove at 3:17 of the second period. New York protested hotly to referee Frank Udvari that Duff had shoved the puck in the net with his glove; but the goal was allowed.

That goal appeared to end the steam out of the Rangers. Mahovlich made it 5-1 at 5:01.

Horton had to pluck out the right side and Mahovlich was on the left side when they scored. Horton — and just about everyone else in Maple Leaf Gardens — heard the left winger shriek "Here Timmy!" and Mahovlich was away. New York defenceman Larry Cahan was in front of him at the blue line and in an instant behind him. The Leafs player's stickhandling acrobatics in front of the New York net had Worsley jumping and when the goaltender finally hit the ice Mahovlich calmly flicked the puck into the net.

The Rangers were shorthanded on Leafs' two goals. Duff got his second at 17:06 in the second period while rookie Rod Gilbert was off for tripping and Keon ended it at 9:53 of the third period while Cahan was in the penalty box.

Coach Punch Imlach cuffed Doug Harvey told reporters after the game he hasn't made up his mind about his plan for next season and two theories started circulating in Toronto. One was that the veteran defenceman, who went to the Rangers this season from Montreal, would quit playing and devote all his efforts to coaching. The other was that he would try to duck out of his three-year contract reported to pay $25,000 a year. Harvey wasn't happy with the idea of transplanting his wife and three school-aged children to New York.

Worsley stopped 40 shots and Leafs' Johnny Bower 26, some of them hot ones in the first period before New York's goalie fouled out. Udvari called nine penalties, five to the Rangers.

Hull-Ottawa Shades Beavers

HULL, Que. (CP) — The hot stove league had no trouble deciding a winner Saturday night as hosting Ottawa Canadiens professional Hockey League semi-final here.

Hull-Ottawa Canadiens' defenceman Jean Gauthier scored the goal that gave Canadiens a 3-2 win over Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers in a sudden-death overtime period.

He contributed another climactic moment in the third period when he stopped a two-on-one Kitchener scoring chance with a diving, goal-saving, glehadeddly. And he scored the game.

The win was Canadiens' first in their best-of-seven series with Beavers, who have two victories. The fourth encounter of the series will be a Kitchener home game at Ottawa tonight.

Gauthier made his third-period save as Jean Ratelle and Bronco Horvath teamed into the Hull-Ottawa zone on a breakaway. Gauthier fell on the puck as Ratelle tried to pass to Pearson, who was skating in on goal.

The game was even all the way. Each had 26 shots on the regulation time was 3-2. Referee Bert McCaffrey handed out seven penalties to Canadiens and eight to Beavers, and Kitch. ener goalie Gerry McCormick made 26 saves compared with Cesare Maniago's 25 for Canadiens.

Beavers' goals, both in the second period, were scored by Mel Pearson and Jim Neilson.

Kid Paret Buried At Miami

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Benny (Kid) Paret, who died Tuesday from brain injuries suffered in his welterweight title boxing championship, was buried Saturday in the shadow of refugees from his native Cuba.

Buried with the Kid may have been certain concepts of modern-day boxing. A countrywide drive to safeguards against future ring death has gone up since Paret's death from the beating he took in his bout with Emile Griffith in Stern York March 24.

Americans and Cubans were among the 800 who attended requiem high mass for Paret at the Corpus Christi Roman Catholic church.

Paret's manager, Manny Alfaro, was a pallbearer.

Paret's mother, Mrs. Maxima Crespo of Santa Clara, Cuba, was unable to attend. The casket was being carried to the hearse. She grabbed a handle and followed it into the church.

The teams meet again in Hamilton Wednesday night.

Indians Nip Barons, Bears Out

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Springfield Indians came from behind three times to tie the score, then beat Cleveland Barons 4-3 on Claude Olson's overtime goal Sunday night to give them the Eastern League best-of-seven semi-final series for the American Hockey League championship.

The victory came after the Indians had downed Barons 3-1 Saturday night to even the series.

In a quarter-final game, Claude Maclaren scored on a 15-foot shot at 4:27 of sudden-death overtime Saturday night in Hershey Bears beat Providence Reds 3-2 to win the best-of-seven series 4-1.

FIRES HIT

Olson's goal, from directly in front of the net, was his second of the game. The Indians tied the game 3-3 at 19:23 of the third period after pulling out goalie Marcel Paille to give them an extra skater. Jimmy Dougan and Maclaren drilled home the equalizer.

Other Cleveland goals were by Cal Stearns, Aldo Guidolin and Bill Glover. The Springfield marksmen besides Olson and Douglas was Bob Kabel.

READY TO GO

Bears had a 2-0 lead on a second-period goal by Al Johnson and a third-period goal by Mike Nykoluk. The Reds came back with goals by Orland Kurtenbach and Bob Beckett to tie the score in the third period.

Rides Three Winners In Opener

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Hugo Dittfach of Calgary, Canada's leading jockey in 1961, rode three winners in the 1961 Canadian racing season opened Saturday at the Fort Erie Jockey Club track.

Dittfach guided First Minister owned by the Lexon Farm of Toronto, to victory in the feature race after he captured both ends of an $84.80 daily in riding Blue Giacomin and Beauty Strip to first-place finishes in the first two races.

First Minister gave a brilliant performance as he ran five furlongs in the 3-5 seconds over a muddy track which absorbed nine hours of light rain. He was given fifths of a second behind Neartic's track record.

The crowd of 18,353 was the second largest in the history of the Fort Erie track despite the fact that the day-long rain was accompanied by fog which made it difficult to see the horses on the back stretch. The crowd wagered $609,780 on the eight races.

WORSLEY HONORED

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers goalie Gump Worsley got some good news Monday night from the 7-1 pasting he took from Toronto Maple Leafs in the Stanley Cup semi-final Saturday night. Worsley was named by the Hockey Writers Association as the most valuable Rangers player during the series.

Boxer Could Go Either Way

BLUEFIELD, W. Va. (AP) — Heavyweight boxer Tunney Hunsaker could go with and kissed her twice as he was returned to his hospital room Sunday night after a second operation for a brain injury suffered in a fight with Beckley Friday night.

Hunsaker had been in critical condition since being knocked out in the bout.

Dr. R. L. Gage, a brain surgeon who performed both Sunday night's operation and one early Saturday, could not be reached immediately for comment.

Gage termed the latter operation as "exploratory surgery." Dr. Gage said the 30-year-old Hunsaker's blood pressure and temperature were up and he felt a second operation was necessary.

Earlier, Gage described Hunsaker as "a man on a tightrope—he could go either way."

OASA Re-Elects Don Lee

HAMILTON (CP) — The Ontario government is ready, to take action to stimulate physical fitness among the youth of the province, the Ontario Amateur Softball Association was told Saturday.

D. A. Garvie of the community programs branch of the Ontario department of education told delegates to the 40th annual OASA meeting that the government is willing to spend money for fitness.

He said Ontario is anxious to develop the youth of the province and said if the association seeks aid in setting up coaching clinics, the government will help with all available resources.

Delegates approved an amendment to Senior A rules governing the distance from home plate to both the pitcher's box and between bases and a regulation covering the moment a runner can leave the base.

The new rulings will allow the pitcher's box to be placed 43 feet from home plate and a 60-foot distance between each base. Runners will be allowed to leave a base with the pitch, instead of having to wait for the ball to cross home plate.

Kapuskasing Ousts Bulldogs

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Kapuskasing GMs, sparked by the hot-and-cold show of rookie centre Marcel Tessier, defeated Windsor Bulldogs 5-3 Sunday to take the Ontario Eastern Canada Cup semi-final 3-1.

It is the first victory of such importance from an entry in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association since Kirkland Lake won the Allan Cup in 1940. The Kaps have many Montreal Olympics in a best-of-seven Eastern Canada final.

A crowd of 3,000 saw the Kaps take a 3-0 lead in the first period before the Bulldogs tied it with three in the second.

Jerry Labelle scored twice for the Kaps and Mike Rukavina got the other one. Bob Brown, Lou Benko and Tommy Wilson scored for the Ontario Hockey Association titlists.

FEATHER WITH FLYERS

Tessier, a slick youngster one year removed from junior ranks with Niagara Falls Flyers, scored twice in the first period and added two more in the third.

After the game, the W. A. Hewitt Trophy, emblematic of the all-Ontario title, was presented to Kap captain Russ Sellivan.

Goaltender Al Burns was a major cog in the victory, especially in the second period when Windsor put on its most dazzling offensive show.

The opening period saw a flurry of action. Labelle's tap-in from it Walter Pawlyshyn of Windsor and Ted McCaskill of the Bulldogs drew match penalties and an automatic suspension until their cases are heard.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (CP) — Jockey Willie Shoemaker rode Jaipur through fog and slop Saturday for a convincing victory in the $58,500 Gotham Stakes at Aqueduct. Sunrise County was second, followed by Sidlucky.

Jaipur earned $38,025 and boosted his total winnings to $232,684. He paid $4.30, $3.10 and $2.60. Sunrise County returned $4.70 and $3.50 and Sidluck $3.10.

At Laurel, Md., Bronze Babu rallied in the stretch to defeat Tolliver by a neck in the $25,000 Wilwyn Handicap. Ashla, was third.

Bronze Babu paid $12.20, $6.80 and $4.60. Tolliwa returned $13.80 and $7 and Ashlar $6.80.

Astrological Forecast

For April 10
By SIDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): You have more backing for projects today than you might imagine. It is not on the surface or in plain view. But if you persist, you can win.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Good lay for spreading beliefs, winning friends. Not so good for climbing "high ladders." Think. Come down to earth and be practical.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Emphasis on income, budget. Make plans. Take care to check details. Investment in own talent can pay off. Best to stick to "tried and true" and "not gamble.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Straightforward attitude best today. Cycle is up. Take advantage of it by being independent, following original view. Copying others could prove costly.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Being too sure of yourself could annoy those you most want to influence. Allow modesty to shine through; it will pay dividends. Permit record to speak for itself.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23): Aim for middle course. Don't deceive. Your perceptive mind can interpret what this means. And today it applies quite strongly. Trust intuition.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Explosive emotions. If controlled, can benefit you, and your associates. The key is control. You can shake yourself out of a rut and come up with excellent actions; answers.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Give your attention to one who asks advice. Half listening can be insulting, can lose you a friend. Integrity is the key. If not interested, say so at the beginning.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Pressure applied to get you to "make up your mind." If this means investing blindly, you are right to hesitate. Take all the time you need.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you surround yourself with the familiar, you will not go off the road. Be close to loved ones, home. Don't go out on a limb. Consider before signing agreements. Read fine print.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb 19): Stick to job today and avoid gossip, office politics. Those in authority may be keeping tabs in efforts to cut down expenses. Listen and thus avoid being "cut out."

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Favorable lunar aspect today means ideals can be realized. Express warm, sympathetic nature. But do not let unscrupulous person "push" you. Stand up for right, but be charming!

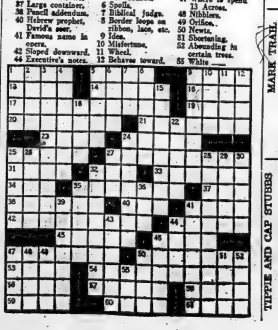
If your birthday is today — much change, opportunity for advancement, emotional fulfillment indicated during '62. You will find natural cycle favors travel and romance.



* * *

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Gemini, Cancer, Leo. Special word to Capricorn: There is really no need to brood. Help yourself by being cheerful. Security is highlighted. If you try to sell anything "flimsy" you may not succeed. But the "solid" product is well received.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, very striking "improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observation.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinkage) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where other treatments were continued over a period of many months.

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very large variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute, Alrosky. Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing ailments on all parts of the body.

The new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H. Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

PLANTS FOR FLORAL DISPLAYS — John Astle and parks superintendent Gordon "Nick" Nicholson are seen at work in the Belleville Parks Board greenhouse on Catherine Street, preparing plants for transplanting in city parks this summer. Up to 50,000 tropical and annual plants are wintered in the greenhouse and next summer will help brighten the city's parks.

Married Man Proposes

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—For the past year and a half I have been going out with a man who has been separated from his wife for at least four years. We have grown quite close and he has asked me to marry him when his divorce becomes final.

Would it be in order to accept a ring before it does? I have no reason to doubt his sincerity. However, since he has taken up this matter with a lawyer ten months ago (this I know for sure) there seems to have been no progress in the proceedings. I am beginning to wonder if and when it will come about.

Now, with laws as they are in Canada, I know in his case a divorce is not possible without adultery. As neither this nor a meeting between him and his ex-wife has taken place for the purpose of signing any vital papers, do you think the lawyer is actually doing his part or will it turn out to be a long drawn-out affair without any rewarding results.—WORRIED AND NERVE WRACKED.

DEAR WORRIED:—No ring, thank you. No commitments.

I'd believe that divorce when I saw it, and not before. If he tells you to trust him, don't. It's an old story.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I want to get a job because I would like money to buy clothes, books, etc., and also for spending money. I will be 18 in June. I wouldn't mind hard work as long as it isn't extreme like ditch digging.

If you don't know of any jobs available, could you please tell me where I could apply or do you know of any summer jobs I could apply for? Right now I could work after school or in the evenings, except Wednesday night or on Saturdays.

I do babysitting but it isn't too regular and you don't get too much money.—MARY.

DEAR MARY:—After school and Saturday jobs include store deliveries, stock keeping or other store work; a paper route; care of children. Your National Employment Service may have other ideas for you.

I'm glad you intend to stop short of ditch digging!

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Art critics of sick people, vulnerable months in the womb, and decreasing death rates from appendicitis.

THE BEDSIDE CRITIC

So you're sick in bed, and they show you 30 paintings and ask you which you'd like to hang in your hospital room.

A jury of patients in hospital at the University of Michigan were asked just that. They turned thumbs down on most of the candidates from the modern art field, and chose instead quiet, sentimental paintings of landscapes, seascapes, and wildlife.

Most popular was Roy Mason's Three Mallards. Runnerup was Winslow Homer's sea action Breezing Up. Third was Claude Monet's The Bridge at Argenteuil.

TIME OF DANGER

The first three months in the womb—the time of rapid development from a few cells to an embryo — are among the most critical for the unborn. Researchers know that deformities often occur when the mother is hit by virus diseases like measles during this period.

Now comes word that the early stages of pregnancy are the time that unborn animals are most susceptible to death or damage from x-rays and other ionizing radiation as is as well.

So far it has not been proved that radiation damages human embryos, Dr. Robert Rugh of Columbia University reported to the American Radium Society. But, he warned, radiation can harm, even kill, embryo rats — and that these findings indicate that care should be taken in using x-rays on newly-pregnant women.

2,700,000 DAYS IN BED

Fewer people are dying from appendicitis, thanks to antibiotics to control infections, and better surgery and diagnosis. The death rat, has fallen to one per 100,000 in the United States.

But it doesn't mean that fewer people are getting appendicitis. In one year alone, 417,000 Americans fell ill to the disease. Ninety per cent underwent operations. In all, these appendicitis victims spent 2,700,000 days in hospitals, say statistitians from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

'Nick' Nicholson, Helpers Get Floral Displays Ready For Showings in City Parks

The taxpayer and general public are possibly aware of only the summer time activities, but the work of the city parks department is a year round effort.

For instance where do the plants for next summer's colorful floral displays come from, and how do benches and tables turn up in good state of repair in the city's parks each spring.

This is made possible by off-season work on the part of the city parks superintendent, Gordon "Nick" Nicholson and his group of helpers.

During the summer the parks board has as many as seven or eight employees cutting grass and keeping flower beds and city parks in trim. During the winter months about three are kept on to do off-season maintenance.

"We should actually have more help but lack of finances makes it impossible," Mr. Nicholson says.

GETTING BUSY

With the outdoor transplanting season now little more than a month away, things are beginning to get busy at the city parks hoisy greenhouse.

Here between 40,000 and 50,000 tropical and annual plants are wintered in readiness for setting out in floral displays as soon as all danger of frost is passed. This is normally anytime after May 20th with the tropical plant not being set out until a week or so later.

Each year the parks department has at least four floral displays in different parts of the city with plants are also supplied for other private displays.

The parks department greenhouse came into being about 11 years ago shortly after Mr. Nicholson came to the city as parks superintendent. The greenhouse is 20 by 100 feet with steam heat maintaining an even temperature throughout the winter months.

In addition to the main greenhouse there is an addition ing "cold frame" section where plants not requiring heat are kept.

EXPERT GARDENERS SCARCE

Biggest lack with the local parks department is expert gardeners who are said to be very scarce. Special courses for gardeners are held at Guelph and the local board tries to send one or two men each year.

Parks board employees are now putting the finishing touches on 60 new park picnic tables, bringing the total number owned by the board to 140.

This is about the same number as was owned last year by the board but the sixty benches were required to replace those destroyed by fire late last fall when a section of the fairground canlie barns burned.

We expected to have over 200 tables to put out this year, but the fire set us back," noted Mr. Nicholson.

Employees are now painting and varnishing the new tables in readiness for placing them in city parks.

And just for the record, the Belleville Parks Board has 107 acres of parks in 13 different locations.

RESIDENTIAL TAX CUT TENTH OF MIL

PRIME MINISTER GIVES ELECTORAL REFORM PLAN

Busiest, Rowdiest Day of Session

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker sketched for the Commons Monday night a new scientifically- and impartially-drawn map of Canada's electoral boundaries to rid the country of "gerrymandering."

He proposed the new maps should be charted by an independent non-partisan commission whose findings, based on the 1962 census figure, would be subject to parliamentary approval.

The prime minister's resolution seeking to remove the present distribution for the Commons' 265 seats from the realm of party politics climaxed the longest, busiest and rowdiest day of the current session.

With thoughts of a general election uppermost in many members' minds, it was a tautology House—quick to angry and with cat-calls.

PARRIES THRUSTS

Amid noisy shouts of "election, election" the government parried opposition thrusts designed to find out how long the 24th Parliament is likely to live.

Opposition Leader Pearson asked Mr. Diefenbaker if there would be a "full", opportunity for budget discussion.

Mr. Diefenbaker replied he had read newspaper reports of Mr. Pearson's calling for an election but "now we find him running for cover."

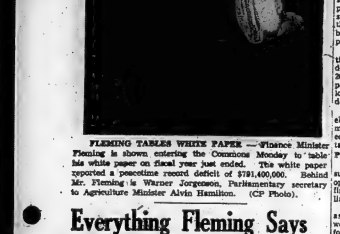
Mr. Diefenbaker said if the opposition wants extra time to study the budget speech it can have it. If not, it makes its own decision.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's electoral re-mapping proposal was introduced as a resolution, prior to bringing in a formal bill.

It is a serious endeavor, he said, to "eliminate the abuses that have come to make the House of Commons truly representative."

The commission would be expected to recommend necessary changes "without serious disruption resulting for any one province."



GAINS FOR ONTARIO

Taking into account population changes, the indications that a redistribution for the present House might mean gains of seats for Ontario, two for Alberta and one for British Columbia, and losses of four seats for Saskatchewan and one each for Manitoba and Nova Scotia.

The prime minister's proposal was accepted in principle by the Liberal opposition.

However, J. W. Pickersgill for Bonaventure — Twillingate and Sgt.-Maj. S. F. S. Duchesneau.

FLEMING TABLES WHITE PAPER — Finance Minister Fleming is shown entering the Commons Monday to table his white paper on fiscal year just ended. The white paper reported a deficiency of $225 million against a surplus forecast. Mr. Fleming is Warner Jorgenson, Parliamentary secretary to Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton. (CP Photo).

Everything Fleming Says Will Be Weighed in Terms Of Election Soon to Come

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming will be shadowed by the impending election campaign when he walks into the Commons tonight to deliver his long-awaited budget speech.

Politically inevitably, will be weighing almost everything he says in terms of its impact on the approaching election battle. It's generally assumed Parliament will be dissolved before Easter for a mid-June vote.

Canadians will know about 6 p.m. EST whether the 56-year-old minister has been able to square any tax cuts out of a budget which is virtually certain to show a sizable deficit, which would be the sixth in a row.

Barring interruptions, Mr. Fleming will start reading the closely-guarded secrets in his budget speech shortly after 3 p.m. About one hour later he will reach the heart of the matter—the government's tax policy for the coming year.

Whatever tax benefits he may announce, it say, will be a big factor in determining the size of his budget deficit for the 1962-63 fiscal year which began April 1.

Monday Mr. Fleming announced there was a peacetime record deficit of $91,400,000 last fiscal year. Government spending plans for the new year indicate a new peak in expenditures.

This will be the seventh budget presented by the Conservatives counting the "baby budget" in December, 1957, after the progressive Conservatives took office. The government calls that one a "financial statement" and not a budget. There was another baby budget in December, 1960.

Though public interest centres on tax-change aspects of the budget, it is also an important economic document which sets out the government's views on how the economy is likely to shape up in the coming year. MAY BE ELECTION

On this score, Mr. Fleming likely will be able to paint a fairly rosy picture. Independent assessments indicate national output may rise between six and seven per cent in 1962.

Whatever tax changes he may announce, the minister likely will be pointing to an income

Today's Chuckle

If the postal rate goes any higher, it will be cheaper for him to marry the girl as to write to her every day.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Pressures are expected to rise gradually throughout the Great Lakes area during the next 24 hours and there is likely to be little significant change in the weather picture.

This comes about as a result of the new federal-provincial tax arrangements which began this year, instead of levying all the personal income taxes in nine provinces—all but Quebec —and handing over a share to the provinces as in the past, Ottawa is requiring the provinces to levy their own share of taxes.

This year the share is 16 per cent of total tax liability. The amount of an individual's tax payment going to Ottawa will be 16 per cent, but the 16 per cent will be added on again as a provincial tax.

In all provinces but Quebec Ottawa is continuing as the central collection agency so there will be only one tax return form to be filled out a year from now on 1962 income taxes.

New York Taxi Driver Crashes Party to Give Hope an Oscar

Stan Berman, 36, New York Taxi driver gifted with more nerve than a Marine, wowed the sensation of an otherwise dull Academy Awards show Monday night. He came out of nowhere to out-quit quip-king Bob Hope—in the middle of host Oscar telecast.

Sizzling authoritatively on-stage as Shelly Winters and Jimmy Stewart-Edwards were presenting cinematography awards, he announced coolly:

Berman says he has made the acquaintance of three U.S. presidents—Roosevelt, Truman and President Harry S. Truman.

What's his next big gate-crashing effort?

Speaker Rules Out Debate On Gen. McNaughton Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Angry exchanges crackled through an election-tense Commons Monday over a fruitless opposition bid to debate criticism by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton that Canada was "sold out" on the Columbia River treaty.

During the long procedural duel government supporters gave most of their attention to the charge by the 75-year-old general that he was fired as a "dictator" — inferring Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Age and no other reason is the cause for the general's April 15 retirement as Canada's chairman of the International Joint Commission, External Affairs Minister Green said.

The 1st hour McNaughton history reflected the hairtrigger political temper in a chamber poised for a running election campaign start any day now.

Liberal Leader Pearson raised the "sell-out" claim as a matter of urgent public importance. Speaker Roland Michener refused to grant a debate. Immediate debate on grounds the Columbia treaty signed in January, 1961, won't be ratified before it has been discussed by the Commons.

There will be an opportunity to examine Gen. McNaughton's charges, he said.

Gen. McNaughton has requested a chance to appear before a parliamentary committee.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker in a Jan. 19 statement reservedly Monday by Mr. Pearson —said there is no intention to bring the treaty before a committee.

Monday night, answering a question, Mr. Green said Mr. Diefenbaker had given an assurance that the treaty would be brought before the external affairs committee and it was his expectation that Gen. McNaughton then could appear to give what information he desired.

The Speaker, also rejected a Liberal proposal that would have had the Commons return immediately to discussion of the final supplementary spending estimates for the last fiscal year.

An estimates item still to be cleared—and used Friday for a general debate—is one for Gen. McNaughton's views — then would have been an opening to debate on the Canada-United States treaty.

"We have nothing to hide," said Mr. Diefenbaker. The Liberal tactics were obstructionist tactics rather than pitching in to pass legislation required before the general election.

Mr. Pearson argued that the circumstances paralleled the West Side Story, Schell And Loren Oscar Winners

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sophia Loren, Maximilian Schell's "West Side Story go into the record book as top winners of the 34th annual Academy Awards.

Italy's Miss Loren is best actress for "Two Women." Schell, actor, Hollywood's West Side Story co-star, picked up a key of a near-record 10 Oscars.

The handsome Schell won for his role as a fun-loving gangster who is criminals in Judgment at Nuremberg — reaching the top despite the handicap of appearing in the shadow of his famous sister, Maria Schell.

The voluptuous Miss Loren won her Oscar in absentia for playing the role of a peasant girl in the Italian production. Two Oscars for the evening's rags - to - riches tale that began as a story of Rome. Hers is the first Oscar for a role played in a language other than English.

West Side Story, a musical version of Romeo and Juliet set among the seen - aged street gangs of New York, fell just one Oscar short of equalling the record of 11 set by Ben Hur in 1959. Others included best directing awards for George Chakiris and Rita Moreno, costume designing, film editing, sound and scoring.

Miss Loren didn't come for the awards, saying she was "too tired and too scared I might win."

Later she said in Rome: "It's like a merry-go-round. "It can't tell you how happy I am."

Her husband, producer Carlo Ponti, had earlier supported her rise to fame, was at her side. Both had waited through

Senate Reform Method Criticized by Opposition

OTTAWA (CP)—The opposition party Monday criticized the Senate actively, his objection way the government is going about to reform the Senate, though prime minister introduced his he supported the principle behind effect of the government's new proposal.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker introduced his long-awaited bill to reform the Senate in the House of Commons Monday. It provides for the British North America Act to be changed to Canada's constitution.

It calls for all senators to retire at the age of 75—including those now in the upper house who were appointed for life terms. The provision would not take effect until after the next general election.

The Senate itself must approve the measure before it can become law.

A resolution leading to a bill to vary existing practice of election on their retirement was to be published in today's Commons journals.

When Mr. Diefenbaker introduced his bill, Liberal Senator Men Democratic Party House Leader J. W. Herridge objected and forced a debate on the government's motion carried 133 to 7, with Conservatives voting solidly.

Opposition Leader Pearson said in a speech there months ago the Conservative party principle with retiring senators at 75 and not to appoint any for a year term on appointments But Monday he said the provinces have an interest in the Senate's role as protector of provincial rights, and should be consulted in any change.

Mr. Diefenbaker has not mentioned consultation with provinces in connection with his new bill. Mr. Pearson said that Mr. Diefenbaker earlier had promised to call a conference on Senate reform.

BALCER TO GET NEW DEMANDS FROM PILOTS

Union Refuses to Release Empress

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Balcer was due to get a new set of demands, said to contain "major concessions," from striking St. Lawrence River pilots today.

His verdict on them could be the key to an early end to the pilots' walkout which has tied up most of the shipping in the St. Lawrence since last Friday.

The transport minister emerged from a meeting with pilots' representatives of the striking Corporation of St. Lawrence River pilots, and of the shipping companies.

Mr. Balcer, who described the walkout to reporters as an "illegal strike," said he has asked the pilots to return to work. They did not comply.

He said the shipping companies had remained adamant in refusing to meet the pilots with the pilots should be held until they returned to their duties.

PRESENTS PROPOSALS

Andre Bedard, federation president, presented the new proposals in a meeting Sunday Monday night with Capt. F. S. Bowden, chief of the transport department's nautical division, and Capt. D. D. Jones, superintendent of pilots for Canada.

Mr. Bedard described as "major concessions," the federation's agreement to modify some of its demands in connection with payments sought for additional pilots in the Montreal and Quebec districts. The pilots also would freeze their fee structure for the next three years if their amended demands were accepted.

"We went as far as we could go in making concessions," he said in an interview. The details were to be given to Mr. Balcer today.

Should an agreement be reached, the pilots would be back at work within three hours.

Mr. Bedard said he was "optimistic" as far as the transport minister was concerned, for he was the first person who had shown himself willing to help seek a settlement.

CTS STARTS FLIGHTS

Mr. Balcer told reporters he is officially ready to release the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, initially scheduled to sail last Friday from Montreal for Liverpool. Chartered by CTS, the ship's flying scene of the 900 passengers who were booked aboard.

The pilots' spokesman said the Empress of Britain would be released as soon as their demands were met.

Mr. Balcer said he hoped the walkout would not lead to a general tie-up of Canadian shipping with ships arriving at seaports by other pilots.

Selwyn Lloyd's 'Lollipop Budget' Pain in Sweet Tooth to Britons

Angry and bewildered newspaper readers, travellers and even the Exchequer Selwyn Lloyd's purchase tax levy is 15-per-cent candy and soft drinks.

Only a few wrong-papers The Daily Mirror and Daily Herald, call it a "sucker" budget. The headline typifies descriptions as "lollipop budget," "sweetie budget" and "Selwyn's so bitter sweet."

Lloyd anticipated in his budget speech many Britons find the new tax would be unpopular with children. It is hardly likely to go down well with the population as a whole. Britons dislike their "sweets" intensely and the country has the highest per capita sugar consumption in the world.

The Mirror says the budget is both "cowardly and futile" because it slaps a tax on candy but does nothing about the price of cigarettes. The possible direct link between smoking and lung cancer, says the Mirror, "is the biggest human problem in British today."

Most of the newspapers are critical of Lloyd's proposal to tilt taxes toward Britain's economic recovery. Instead, they say, it provide incentives for exports, and the lack of a full-blooded capital gains tax.

There is grudging approval for some of Lloyd's measures particularly the new tax on manufacturing profits and the attempt to level out seasonal rates.

But there is little enthusiasm for the treasury chief's insistence that consumer spending must be kept down if the increases in income must be carefully regulated.

Both The Times and The Financial Times call it a "neutral budget." The Conservative Daily Telegraph says that while most of the next tax payments are "well devised," this is a moment at which a more constructive lead was needed."

Industrial Rate Up 2.7 Mills, Grants Higher

$48,000 Rise in Aid Holds Home Tax Line

Despite increased costs in several of the city departments and principally in the high school budget, city council has been able to virtually hold the tax line on the 1962 millrate.

Monday evening following a nearly four-hour session, city council approved the 1962 budget and set the residential and farm rate at 59.3 mills and the commercial rate at 69.6 mills.

This is a one-tenth mill reduction from last year in the residential millrate and an increase of 2.7 mills in the commercial rate.

The one-tenth of a mill reduction in the residential tax rate will make but very little difference to the average home owner.

For instance, for a family owning a home assessed at $3,000, the tax reduction will be exactly 30 cents.

THREE INSTALLMENTS

Due dates for payment of tax installments this year will be May 31st, July 1st, and October 1st. The business tax due on June 30th with no discount.

Final approval of the year's budget and tax rate came shortly before eleven o'clock after council had adopted the 1962 budget through his estimates dealing with expenditures for the aged and relief cheques.

New Democratic Party Leader Donald C. Macdonald alleged that the Rideau-Caribe finance committee, were able to reduce estimates by approximately $18,000.

Last year's city residential tax rate was 60.4 and the commercial rate was 67.3 mills.

Of the total revenue required this will receive just under $300,000 from water. $303,000 will be received from recoverable debt charges; $885,000 will come from grants and subsidies (up from $808,000 last year); $19,800 from grants and in lieu of mills, $24,000 from interest and tax penalties, and $129,364 other revenue and $73,901 from last year's surplus.

SCHOOL SAW-OFF

Biggest increase in city expenditures this year was in the high school budget which is up for an increase of 3.1 mills. The high school budget will be 19.4 mills as compared with 15.3 last year.

On the other hand, due in part to increased provincial grants which help pay for city elementary schools, the public and separate school rate is down slightly over last year to 21.9 mills as compared with 22.1 mills.

RACING CLUB USES AGED MAN AS FRONT, CLAIM

NDP Party Leader Sparks Debate

TORONTO (CP) — NDP charges that aged men were being used as fronts to form an Ottawa Valley racing club sparked debate in the legislature Monday.

The government replied that there was nothing unusual about the Ottawa Valley Thoroughbred Racing Club's operation under a similar charter.

Donald C. Macdonald alleged that the Rideau-Carleton Raceways Company had resuscitated aged and creaking club charters dating as far back as 1892 in order to enter the "lucrative betting business."

He said the company went scouting for survivors of seven old clubs from Eastern and Western Ontario and "dug up" a 90-year-old man, Mr. Wilson Sutherland of Grimsby. They used his office as president to resuscitate the club's charter and then dropped him.

Each of the seven clubs was entitled to a couple of weeks racing. Ridean-Carleton Raceways formed itself into a holding company of these charters, and then together, have ended up with 70 days racing on the Ottawa track.

ACCUSES COMPANY

Mr. MacDonald accused the company of using subterfuge—"albeit legal."

CARELESS DRIVING CHARGE BRINGS FINE OF $50

A Havelock man, James Edward Davidson, was fined $50 and costs in court here this morning after pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving.

Evidence was that Mr. Davidson, who was proceeding south on Front Street, struck a pedestrian who was crossing in the crosswalk.

Inspector C. Hayes told the court that Mr. Davidson was travelling in the centre lane and another car was proceeding in the right lane to make a right-hand turn in the light. The inspector said when the light turned green the car in the right lane waited for the pedestrian to cross but Mr. Davidson pulled out and struck the pedestrian.

The magistrate said it was possible that the standing car interfered with Mr. Davidson's view.

Two Belleville youths, Milton Nelson Bell and Richard William Rose, appeared before magistrate T. J. Wills here this morning on charges of car theft.

The two were remanded in $500 cash bail or $1,000 property to Friday, April 13, for further investigation.

Belleville to Pay $192,975 Of Cost of County Building

The city of Belleville will pay $192,975 per cent, of $192,-975.75 per cent of the new county of Hastings court and administration building if it has been agreed by council.

That price is adjustment at last night's regular meeting of city council Aldermen. Ross Carter, chairman of finance, introduced the motion covering the breakdown of costs for the county building.

He said the city's share now recommended was slightly higher than the figure which the city had pressed for but that the difference was not worth going to arbitration.

It was noted that the county of Hastings submitted a new proposal based on the 1961 census which had reduced the city's share by $15,815.30.

At the same time council voted to request the county of Hastings to have debentures for the city's share of the cost brought forward and the debentures will be for ten years. Retirement of the debentures will be on the basis of an annual payment of $25,601.84.

NO AIR CONDITIONING

Council however turned down a request for air conditioning which would have approved the installation of air conditioning throughout the new courthouse building.

At the present time only the main court room and the county council chambers are air conditioned and provision has been installed at the time of construction for the future air conditioning of the balance of the building.

Alderman Bailey said the large expanse of glass in the county building would be uncomfotably high temperatures during the summer months, or even early and late in the season when the sun was shining.

Estimated cost of installing the air conditioning equipment in the remainder of the offices was given at $30,000, of which the city's share would be $7,725.

"I won't go for that," interjected Alderman Jack Jeffery. "Let's put air conditioning in when we have to agree to it for the county building."

Ontario Hydro Subject of Talk To Rotarians

Yesterday, local Rotarians were given an outline of the organization, facilities and future plans of the Ontario Hydro by Rotarian Carl Ingimundson, regional manager of the east central Ontario division of Ontario Hydro, who was giving his classification talk.

Mr. Ingimundson's talk was highlighted by a slide presentation as he outlined the various functions of the 15,000,000,-000 publicly -owned utility which serves an area of 250,000 square miles. Established in 1906 to provide and deliver electric power, the Ontario Hydro is today one of the largest utilities in the western world and serves the largest area.

A review of the hydro-electric generating plants situated throughout Ontario was given as well as of the new steam generating plants now planned. The Hydro's plans for atomic -powered generating plants were also discussed by the speaker and slides were shown of the present pilot plant and of a model of the proposed initial commercial generating plant.

The speaker was introduced and thanked by Ernie Garnett and Dewey Gale respectively.

Bruce Jarvis, prime minister of the students' parliament at Quinte Secondary School and president of the radio club there, spoke on the activities of the radio club, which was initiated by station CJBQ, and the valuable vocational role which it played in assisting some students in determining their goal prior to leaving secondary school.

Present also was a special guest of the crippled children's committee, Roger Anderson, who is one of a number of local children who are receiving assistance through the club's Easter Seal campaign.

The meeting, which was conducted by president Virgil Fenner, saw a new member, Phil Hendrickson, introduced by Newt Thompson. The birthdays of T. V. Wills, Bruce Hannan, Jack Ireland and Grant Proctor were observed by their fellow members.

Cottage Burns With Loss Of $5,000

The city fire department was called to the property of Mike Lucas Monday afternoon, when fire was destroyed in a cottage at the rear of the service station, about three miles east of the city.

Three trucks were sent to the scene and within minutes had the blaze confined to the cottage. Loss is estimated at $5,000. Origin of the fire is unknown.

It is believed the fire had been burning for sometime before it was discovered. Although the fire was in the kitchen, centre of the cottage, the intense heat is said to have "cooked" everything else in the house. The home was occupied by Mr. Lucas and his family.

Contents of the home were completely ruined and because of the terrific smoke the family was forced to seek habitation elsewhere. Smoke rolled from every possible passage as firemen poured water into the cottage for nearly an hour.

No one was injured.

Napanee Expects Pickerel Run In Few Days

Department of Lands and Forests officials believe the annual pickerel run will get under way in district waters, especially Napanee, in the next few days.

Water temperature readings have been taken by conservation officer Everett Ferguson and he reports that the water is "just right" for spawning.

Conservation authorities can predict the start of the run within a 24-hour period by means of water temperatures.

Thousands of pickerel come to the Napanee river from Lake Ontario each year to spawn. Lands and Forests officials will be augmented by staffs of northern offices to assist in putting the brakes on poachers.

Convictions for poaching brings a $25 fine and confiscation of cars and all equipment.

Open season for pickerel in the Bay of Quinte is April 16 in inland waters, such as rivers emptying into the bay and will be pickerel-fished legally until May 15th.

Other pickerel runs take place at Hay Bay, the Salmon River, the Moira River and the Trent River. - All points will be patrolled by Lands and Forests officials.

The Napanee Falls is a mecca for the curious when the pickerel starts to move. Can line up along the shores and people come from miles to watch the run and the round-the-clock catch-and-release battle between official and poacher.

The run is expected to be earlier this year than in previous seasons.

Youth Stabbed With Dagger, Brother Held

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — Ronald E. Anderson, 17, R.R. 4, Campbellford, is in fair condition in Campbellford hospital following a scuffle in which he was stabbed early Sunday morning. His older brother, Russell Anderson, 18, was charged with assault causing bodily harm and released on $2,000 bail to appear in court on Thursday.

Both boys insist that it was a friendly scuffle and no ill feeling was apparent. The youth was stabbed on the left side of the chest with a dagger.

It is understood the two boys were ordered out of a Trenton dance at Wreck-Town earlier on Saturday night and after they got back to Campbellford, the altercation and scuffle took place in a parking lot. The police are not disclosing any details until the case comes to court.

Accused Given Four Months

A 20-year-old Montreal man, Gregory Sjolander, was sentenced to four months in jail this morning when he appeared here in city court.

Sjolander was tried in a special court on Monday and was remanded until today for sentence. He pleaded guilty to a charge of being in possession of an offensive weapon.

Mr. Sjolander's companion, Leslie Lee, of Montreal, also charged with being in possession of an offensive weapon and further of being in possession of counterfeit money, elected trial by judge and jury. He will appear in Supreme Court some time in June.

The magistrate said he had given the case some serious thought as to what to do with him, as the offence in itself was a serious one.

Three Members Twp. Council Are Unseated

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont. (CP)—County court Judge Douglas Thomas returned control of township council to 5-year-round residents Monday when he unseated three summer cottagers. Judge Thomas declared invalid their election Dec. 2 which gave summer cottagers a majority on the council of the eight townships of Medora and Wood in Muskoka district.—W. J. Bushnell, R. C. Dogson and J. G. Brown, all of the 7th onto area—were elected when 500 fellow summer cottagers turned up at Muskoka playground to swamp the local vote.

The permanent residents won only two seats.

Judge Thomas ruled the cottagers were not residents under the Municipal Act although summer residence at the March hearing showed they outnumbered permanent residents about four to one and owned 74.84 of the assessed property in the township. Mr. Brown councillor defeated in the December election, originated the motion to oust outsiders.

Last night, Mrs. Vi Kennedy, Miss Marion Baker and Miss Lucy Baker, all members of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club, attended a meeting of the Trenton Board of Education and Mrs. Kennedy presented a gavel to honor Mrs. L. G. Phinney. A few years ago, the B & P club made a similar presentation to Mayor James MacDonald.

Proposed Building Project Will Not Pay Education Way Declares Member

TRENTON — "Malsonettes" are in the news again!

First it was the word that two members of the recently-formed Committee of Adjustment, Gerald Weaver and Wilbert Steenburg, tendered their resignations to Harold Blakely, committee chairman over the weekend and that one of the reasons given for their withdrawal from the body was that the committee had not been consulted about the proposed development.

At last night's meeting of the Trenton Board of Education, the question of the malsonettes was brought up by grounds and buildings chairman T. S. Ketcheson.

"I'm not too sure about council's stand on this", said Mr. Ketcheson. "I don't know whether the by-law to permit this development, I'm told that the second or third reading. But it appears to me that council means to approve the proposed development. I'm told that the town expects to get $200 to $300 in taxes on each unit in the malsonettes. If we get one to ten from a unit we're $175 a year to educate him. Two children would cost $350. Our high school child costs $300 a year to educate.

"This development wouldn't even pay its way as far as education is concerned. If this development goes in, we could get as many as 100 additional students from it. That means we'd need four more rooms on Prince Charles school. With an extension, we'd need six rooms on the school. I'm all for the town expanding, but I'm also for developing schemes paying their own way".

DISCOURAGE BUILDING

"The Board of Health has tried to discourage the development, said board member Dr. E. D Topping, who is also a member of the health board. "It's our contention that the place would be a slum area in ten years. They haven't the proper sewage facilities there. All raw sewage from the Dufferin area empties into the bay now. It would cost $225,000 to install sanitary sewers leading into the sewage treatment plant from that area."

It was decided that board secretary Eva Baker would write "in carefully worded letter" to the town, pointing out that the board members feel that the proposed development would not pay education costs and making it clear, on the other hand, that the board had no other objections to the malsonettes being built in close proximity to Prince Charles school.

Mr. Ketcheson said too that he was concerned about the problem the board would face should annexation of parts of Murray township take place. The board had written to the town, asking for an estimate of the number of students concerned in the proposed annexation.

Last night a letter from clerk-comptroller O. W. Carry was read to the board members. Mr. Carry said that he was unable to give the requested information, as the township of Murray is not yet sure what it is disposed to supply figures or to assist town authorities in any way in the matter of future school population. Mr. Larry suggested the board could make a personal appeal to the clerk of Murray township for the figures in the school population.

Mr. Reid suggested that annexation did take place "suddenly," the children in Murray township could stay in the schools they now attend until such time as the board could provide space for them.

WILL HAVE TO STAY

"Let's face it," said Mr. Reid, "you can't take blood out of a turnip. They'll have to stay where they are until we can provide room. You just can't put them in a room that doesn't exist. We can't be responsible for building additions to schools overnight."

Mr. Reid said it was difficult to get any information about the annexation." Mr Ketcheson observed.

Mr. Carswell pointed out that approximately 40 children come into town schools from Murray township now and that the schools could absorb a certain number of additional students at least temporarily, should annexation take place.

"Nevertheless," said Mr. Reid, "I think we should make council aware of the fact that we'd like to be kept informed of annexation developments." Board members agreed.

Meantime, school authorities at S.S. 11, Murray, have written to the board agreeing to the terms laid down for 30 pupils to attend Trenton high school from Trenton North school. Trustees of S.S. 11, Murray township and Murray will also supply furniture for the room.

BOARD APPOINTMENTS

Ted Snider, Trenton manager of radio station CJBQ, will be written to the board complimenting the members on their decision to re-introduce music program into the high school. The board has advertised for a music teacher who can also handle a number of academic subjects.

The recreation committee will not be able to conduct a summer playground on the high school grounds this year, because of building activity in town, Mr. Ketcheson said.

Playgrounds, Bells, Blinds Give Trouble

TRENTON — Principals of Trenton's elementary school are faced with a variety of problems at this time of year. Some of these problems were outlined to the members of the Trenton Board of Education at last night's board meeting by the supervising principal of schools, W. P. Carswell.

F. E. Bedford, principal at Queen Elizabeth School, has asked the board to consider acquiring more land for playground purposes, as more students will be attending this school in the fall, with the completion of the four-roomed addition. Mr. Bedford also asks that the outside drinking fountains be restored to use.

J. Ames Annis, principal at Prince Charles' School, wants more or stronger lights at the north and south ends of the school, as the students seem to be leaving earlier and bearing those now in use.

Mr. Annis, with Mr. Sherbert, has a use for some additional gravel. He'd like to have a quantity of gravel worked under the school's bicycle racks to overcome the mud problem.

MUD IS PROBLEM

Mud is something that all the schools are currently coping with at this time of year.

Tomorrow Senior school principal, A. S. Robson, has requested that the venetian blinds in the school be repaired and that latches, ratchets and bars on the windows be repaired or replaced so that the windows will open and close properly.

At College Street, where K. M. Hamilton is principal, some attention needs to be paid to the bell situation, it's felt. Blinds on the north side of the school were removed recently for repairs. Those which were repaired, do not work with bells, there are no blinds on the north side.

Mr. Carswell reported that starting next fall, student teachers from the Peterborough Teachers' College would spend a week in Dufferin and the Trenton Schools, teaching.

Great eight students will be given booklets entitled "After Grade Eight" to assist them in planning their post-graduation education.

Resignations have been received from teachers R. J. Bowen and Mrs. Nina Bowen in the public schools of Mrs. Joan Gagne, Miss Eleanor Hamilton and Mrs. Schmidt and Mrs. Edna Batchelor at the high school.

In connection with the new addition to the school.

The school nurse's report noted that there was a minimum of colds at the school the last month and 300 students were given vision tests.

After several weeks of negotiations, the management committee of the board, headed by Ronald Reid, have reached an agreement with Trenton high school teachers regarding their salary schedule.

Mr. Reid told the board last night that his committee had tried to get the teachers to sign a two-year contract but that they refused.

"We were very disappointed about that," said Mr. Reid.

The salary schedule, on a one-year basis, is as follows: Category 1, min., $4,600; max., $7,900. Category 2, min. $4,900; max., $8,300. Category 3, min. $5,300; max., $9,100. Category 4, min. $5,600; max. $9,400.

Fully experienced department heads receive a special maximum consideration as to additional salary and all other teachers will receive a $300 consideration for each year's experience up to 10 years' experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Elden Walt Happily Wed for 50 Years

TRENTON — On Saturday and Mrs. Elden Watt of North Lakeside, were "at home" to a large number of relatives and guests on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs Walt were married on April 8, 1912, by the Reverend A. E. Edmison. In the early '30s, Mr. Edmison served as minister at King Street United Church in Trenton.

Mrs. Walt was the former Grace Cunningham of Big Island. She taught school for four years before her marriage.

Mr. Walt taught school for a year after his marriage, then returned to his first love, farming. He has farmed the family homestead at North Lakeside on Consecon Lake, specializing in dairy farming.

The couple has two children, Howard Walt, also a farmer at North Lakeside, and Mrs. Cecil McConkey (Ruth), of Trenton.

The Watts have five grandchildren, Beverly Walt, a student attending BCI at Belleville; Glenn McConkey of Frankford; and Roger, Mary-Lynn and Lori McConkey of Trenton. A grandson, Monte Walt, died in the result of an accident in 1956. He was 15.

Kimberley and Kerry McConkey are great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs Walt have received a number of beautiful gifts, flowers and congratulatory telegrams and letter. Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and Clarence Milligan MP, both sent congratulatory messages.

Mrs. Walt's half sister, Mrs. W. B. Potts, lives at Stirling, and another half-sister, Mrs. Charles Waring, lives in Westlock, Alta.

No Smoking Rule May Be Put in Force

TRENTON — At last night's meeting of the Trenton Board of Education, board secretary Eva Baker read a letter from Trenton's fire chief, Cecil Ellis, in which the chief pointed out that during a recent inspection of the high school auditorium, his men had found a number of cigarette butts and evidence that a lighted cigarette had been dropped on the floor near a curtain. The chief commented that the auditorium seemed generally "a large ash tray," on the day of his visit. He suggested that the "no smoking" rule be enforced in the auditorium.

Board member S. Ketcheson asked the reporters present to note that it was not the students who were breaking the rule as the evidence of smoking was found usually the day after a local group had held a dress rehearsal for a play in the auditorium.

E. D. Topping suggested that any group using the auditorium be required to hire an offduty fireman to enforce the no smoking rule.

Such a move will be considered by the board.

Dr. Yohe and the Press

Dr. R. V. Yohe, the U.S.-born naturalized Canadian who has shown such a keen and energetic interest in the welfare of the adopted land since becoming president of D. F. Goodrich Canada Ltd., was busy beating a few more sacred cows, when he spoke to the Ottawa Board of Trade last week.

Amongst his targets was the press. "Journalistic vandalism," he charged, "has reached a point where it might be said that the profession may no longer deserve the rich heritage of respect and freedom that has been the rightful property of the press in the past."

His main charge is that Canadian newspapers are too often lured in trivialities and then excuse this by saying that they print what they think their readers want to read.

We should have taken this charge more seriously had Dr. Yohe not, a few sentences later, indicated the type of press of which he approves. It does not happen to be the type of press of which we approve, nor do we think it is the type of press of which the majority of Canadians approve and, in this instance at least, we think the majority of Canadians are right.

"The disappearance of competitive newspapers in many cities is a great loss," said Dr. Yohe. "When a newspaper has a virtual monopoly, its editorial content is either extremely dull, or it gives 'equal time' to controversial issues, either by straddling the fence or taking one side today and the other side tomorrow. This may be the smart thing to do, to offends no one, particularly advertisers, and thus does not inhibit the sale of papers, but it is a radical departure from old-time journalism of courage, controversy and raw individualism."

Now we will agree with Dr. Yohe that newspapers, and other enterprises, are best when they face competition, providing, of course, there is enough financial support to keep the competing papers in good health. Unfortunately, with rising costs, this is not possible in today's world in any but the bigger centres. The choice is between two anemic, struggling papers and one paper well enough financed to stand on feet. Dr. Yohe says that when a newspaper has no competition, its editorial content is either dull or equal time is given controversial issues. First we need to know what Dr. Yohe means by "editorial" comment. In the newspaper business, this term is frequently applied to everything which is not advertising. If Dr. Yohe uses the term in this sense, then why does he flay newspapers for devoting so much space to Bernie Geoffrion's goal-scoring, the home-run hitting of Roger Maris, the bust dimensions of Jayne Mansfield and the latest trade news? All of these items may be trivial, but we fail to see that any of them are dull. If Dr. Yohe uses "editorial comment" to mean editorials and the writings of columnists, why does he criticize them for giving "equal time" to controversial issues? Surely where there is only one newspaper it becomes doubly important that that paper should present all sides of the issue. Indeed, we would prefer a newspaper with such an approach even in a city where there were several. Why should any reader have to buy two or more newspapers to be able to judge from for himself, on the basis of knowledge of the known facts and arguments? Dr. Yohe refers to the "old-time journalism of courage, controversy and raw individualism." That old-time editors were courageous we will not deny—but individualism was not the only thing that was raw about many of them. They were often grossly unfair to political and other opponents, and very, very prejudiced.

As for taking one side of an issue today and the other side tomorrow, we will go that one better. Right now we are firmly on both sides of the fence as far as Dr. Yohe is concerned, and we think Canada is fortunate to have a busy industrialist who is willing and able to speak out as he does on controversial questions and we also think that sometimes what he says does not make much sense.

Had the attitude of the West, and especially of Britain, toward nationalism been basically wrong, had Britain shown contempt for Asia and African national feelings and aspirations, then India, Pakistan, Malaya, Nigeria, Tanganyika, Ghana and Sierra Leone would have turned away from the Commonwealth with bitterness and hatred. The existence of the Commonwealth is no proof that British policy was free from mistakes, but it shows that the British have mastered the art of co-existence with people of most varied historical and cultural backgrounds.—Walter Kolars, author of "Myths and Realities in Eastern Europe," "Russia and Her Colonies" and other works, in a talk on "Co-Existence and Nationalism."

The P.M. and Pearson Differ In Talks to Young People

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — You should see both Prime Minister and Liberal Leader Pearson making their pre-election pitches in separate days to young people who go overseas to vote.

As a parent, you would be pleased.

And if, by chance, you are a teacher, you would be pleasantly surprised to discover how genuinely concerned is the Canadian's political leaders about the future of Young Canada and its preparations to grasp its opportunities.

This, perhaps, might not be surprising in the case of L. B. Pearson, because before he became a diplomat and a politician, he was a teacher with a keen insight into and an understanding of the young student mind.

But with the Prime Minister, you ordinarily might expect it to be slightly different.

In his years before politics, he was a successful criminal lawyer, having little, if anything, to do with young people . . . never, indeed, being the children of his own.

He didn't know just how to approach them, and so, many of them were afraid of the "Chief."

A CONSUMING CONCERN

Both men, of political necessity, since becoming leaders of their parties, have had to meet literally thousands of children . . . for children do, in varying degrees, influence the political thinking of their parents, if only their attitude towards the personalities involved in politics.

For teacher Pearson it has been easy.

He has always been relaxed and comfortable with young people, chatting casually with them about the problems of the international events of their fast-changing world. He even pays them the compliment of submitting them as to what suggestions, views, ideas and approaches they might have to cope with public problems.

But in those past few years he has got over his earlier uneasiness with young people, and if he still is not quite as relaxed and comfortable at home with them as Mike Pearson, he is perhaps by his own modesty, and his compelling concern more effective.

He speaks to young people as the Prime Minister, a man apart, by virtue of the nature of the exalted office, from other men. His conversation with adolescents can be quite an emotional experience for all concerned, but the young people, unlike many others in his audience and the press gallery, love it.

THIS ABOVE ALL:

Nothing, he told a group of young people visiting Parliament the other day, can be quite as important to them, their future and their country, even the world at large as the quality of their work now in preparation for the obligations and responsibilities of citizenship in a free democracy.

It was essential to their own future happiness and perhaps to their lives, and essential to the well-being and progress of their country that the quality of their work of preparation . . . their education . . . be unsurpassed.

He suggested that the indispensable minimum in education for the technological world of today was Grade Twelve standing. Without at least that, they might run the risk of being left behind in their station being the sense.

He might have gone into detail to his history, for without a good, sound working knowledge of what had gone before, they could have no understanding of the present no comprehending prepared for great events! What about their schooling? What about their jobs? What about their companions? Forty, fifty, or sixty years from now the world may be standing in awe of that little urchin who at this precise moment is playing tag on the front lawn or riding his first bicycle. Destiny, destiny. How solemn it is. You do not inaugurate it, but under God's hand and providence the life providences we give to direction. Willingness are our responsibility. Their future is being made by what we say, do, and think.

Regard these children with awe. The future of the world for better or for worse rests with them. In fact, they are the future. Our duty to prepare their welfare we cause ourselves to be in and we in the world's life and influence.

Planes Fail To Do Jobs Of Trains

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking about the future, as I was yesterday, reminded me that I am not still a boy, and from evolving a public transportation system that is reliable fast and efficient.

The speed of the modern airplane is the main limitation to a fact. The time spent in the air is only part of the story — as my little friend Jimmy Higgins found out on a recent trip to central Wisconsin last week.

The plane itself theoretically flies the 350 miles to the second-half hours, with four stops for refueling and one for passenger addition. In addition, it took me 45 minutes to get to the airport, a 15-minute wait for the shuttle bus in the parking lot, another 10 minutes to reach the plane and then a 15-minute delay before we took off.

Arriving at 1:30 (not an hour late), it was another half-hour before I reached my hotel. Doubling this ground time for the trip back, I calculated that I had spent more than 13 hours drive the 800-mile round trip in little more than 12 hours.

Figuring another way, I could fly from Chicago to San Francisco and back in the same time, or less; and from Chicago to Europe in a few hours.

What is wrong, then, in terms of modern transportation, is that the trains have eliminated a reduction of service to the smaller communities, and the airlines have not yet begun to fill the slack. Long flights between important cities are fast and thrifty simple; short, local airline trips on the "feeder" lines are burdensome and expensive.

I do considerable lecturing in smaller communities throughout the United States, and usually takes less than an hour — but it is often a 6-hour journey to utilize planes that will take me there and get me back anywhere near in time for my lectured it.

Hundreds of smaller communities throughout the country are more isolated now than they were 20 years ago, because a private automobile is almost the only way to reach them since they have been deserted by the railroads, ignored by the airlines and forced to use poor bus buses to accommodate them.

There are too many private autos on the highways at enormous expense of road building, parking and traffic problems — simply because we have not developed a sufficient, low-cost means of travelling with some comfort and dependability. The real economic threat to the airlines as well as to the railroads is the increase in automobile travel each year.

It is more than a matter of fare reductions, champagne flights or better baggage handling; what we need is to change the order and sense out of anarchy, indifference and plain asininity.

Housewives may be able to grace next Sunday's dinner table with a steak, but it would be just as well to confine the dinner to the immediate family, according to local butchers. Meat prices have soared and choice cuts will be as scarce over the week-end as prohibitive bel-h teeth. Carcasses are harder to get at the present time than fires for the family piano.

One violation of the Game and Fishery laws that the department frowns upon in general and refuses to tolerate, is the practice of "jack-lighting", a common phrase for spearing fish that at night with the aid of a light and during the spawning season. At Trenton two men were convicted of taking pike or pickerel from the Trent River during the closing season with lights and spears.

The T.O.B.A. No. 350 held their 21st birthday party on March 30th. About 75 members and friends were present together to make this one of the best ever held. The lodge took the honor of having ten charter members present.

The month of March saw another record in the number of births at the Belleville General Hospital, 47 were during the morning by hospital officials. During the month, there were 79 births, including one set of twins. Boys were far in the lead, there being 43 male births to 37 girls.

The average weekly percentage of pupils in the Belleville public schools who made deposits during the months of January and February of this year in the Penny Bank which is conducted in the schools, was 47 pc. and 47 pc. cent. Following is the percentage for each public school in this city: King Edward, 70 per cent; Queen Mary School, 67 per cent; Queen Victoria School, 43 per cent; Queen Alexander School, 34 per cent. Total amount on deposit at th end of February this year was $610.32. This is an increase over last year when the deposits totalled $6,500.50.

The city council has made a grant of $1,000 to the Belleville Citizen's Band, and the band is to give concerts public concerts during the summer and early fall. What Repels Mosquitoes?

Monreal Star

Down north, they tell a story of a mosquito which landed on Whitehorse airport and had 900 gallons of gasoline put into it before the ground crew realized what it was doing. This may be an exaggeration, but the outsize and horribly assiduous mosquito is one of the banes of Canada's northern reaches; beside it, the mosquito of more settled latitudes is a sheer gnat.

This gives point to some fundamental experiments being carried out with great gallantry at the Fairview Lake of Alberta into mosquito repellents — gallantry because the only way you can test a repellent is to put your arm into a cage of mosquitoes and see what happens.

Science knows that only the female mosquito feeds and gets man blood. (The male limits himself to the nectar of wild flowers, and is a law-abiding citizen but because his mouth is a different shape.) Science has also discovered by trial and error that certain chemicals are repulsive to this harridan. What it does not know is why. Until it does, it cannot devise the total repellent which will, so to speak, draw the lady's fangs once and for all.

We wish the Edmonton researchers quick success — then they can take the black fly in the very substance of your own kitchen.

The lover never sees defects in the beloved. He endows them with some tipt of beauty. No matter where he looks, no matter how he feels toward an object or person, therein he plants his seed of love, and hopes for the growth of some flower of goodness, nurtured in the soil of the soul.

Boy Thirteen Loses Hair, Has Only a Little Fuzz

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: We have a 13-year-old son. Three years ago he had all his hair. We did it happen and what can we do for him? We have gone from doctor to doctor, and tried treatment after treatment. He only has a little fuzz. — Mrs. A.W.

This is a serious problem for a boy of his age, and it will have to be handled carefully by you as parents, as well as by the doctor.

There are different types of baldness. Some are patchy spots on the scalp. Sometimes the head becomes entirely bald. And then there is complete loss of hair, body as well as head.

Exactly what causes the hair losses is not always clear, especially in the third type. In patchy loss, local disease or injury of the scalp is the more likely cause, but when complete loss of hair occurs, one must consider glandular, nutritional, and even psychological factors. This last is more common than is generally realized. The psychic way it operates isn't clear, but emotional upsets have come from long experience that psychological disturbance, even of a temporary nature, affects health.

The 13-year-old is going through the period when the hair should be related to the hair loss, even though such a reaction is not common. On the basis, you only allitee the components however, it is not impossible while to search for a glandular defect.

In addition, the boy's own nervousness or embarrassment may be upsetting him emotionally, thus possibly creating a vicious circle. The presence of his local fuzz may mean that the follicles are still active and that his hair may grow as it normally in time. However, sometimes baldness has to be accepted as a permanent. It seems wise to me to reassure the boy subtly and quietly that loss of his hair isn't a major tragedy. It has happened to many and the present important period of his development.

Dear Dr. Molner: I think I am overweight. I am 5 feet 10½, weigh 180 pounds and am 35 years old. I've had a good appetite all my life, but am developing 10 cents and a unstamped, self-addressed envelope for my booklet, "Reducing." — F.L.B.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is total temperature a more helpful guide than oral? If so, which reading should one go by? What length of time is required to take the temperature? — Mrs. W.B.

Yes, rectal temperature is a degree higher than temperature taken by mouth (and axillary temperature, taken in the armpit, is about a degree lower than oral).

One can "go by" any of the readings, keeping in mind the normal differences, but rectal temperature is most frequently used, and that is what is meant unless one of the others is specified. It takes about two minutes to get a correct temperature reading.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 136, Dundee, Ill., for my booklet, "Ear Noises, Their Causes and Cures," enclosing with your request 10c in coin and a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope to cover handling and postage.

Cupid Plans Blitzkreig

Sherbrooke Record

A former Second World War fighter is at work in Winnipeg on the map in a way which the residents of the Manitoba capital never find fitting.

He plans to hold the first Canadian International Festival of Romance in the city during the week of June. The idea is to mix, match or make the unwed of North America.

It may sound like a way out idea, but the Cupid of the West is sure the festival will be a huge success. Last year, 1,200 people received some publicity in the newspapers, but would never of Stonewall where the matchmaker lives.

Instead, requests for blocks of rooms that would have changed hands by the festival planner is quoted as saying, "and a thing like this would probably run 50,000 people or more".

As a stirring climax to the festival's attendance fest, the planner intends to hold a mass wedding in Winnipeg on July 4, the largest in the history of North America.

This may not strike all participants as the happiest ending to a romantic binge.

IF YOU ARE A LOVER

There are only two kinds of people in this world — those who are in love and those who are not.

Lovers, indeed, are the luckiest lovers, not of themselves, but of others — of Nature, of Books, of Art, of the Universe in all forms.

Not to love in some way is to give up every possibility of being happy and useful.

Nothing lifts one like love. Love in your work takes away every iliti of dullness and puts in its place interest and enthusiasm.

To love another man or woman is to create another self within you, vibrant with life and joy.

All that you give, of love and loyalty comes back to you again

LEADERS OF THE FUTURE

Before me as I write is the picture of twelve children taken from forty to sixty years ago. Today they are outstanding leaders into world's affairs. Probably no one at the time that picture was taken suspected that the children clinging to their mothers' skirts or running about their neighborhood playing were the coming leaders of the world. An unselfish teacher used to touch his hat in reverence as he entered his classroom because before him, he said, were seated the leaders, perhaps prime ministers, outstanding military men, and scholars he would someday lead the world.

The realization that these children are the hope of the future puts upon us the necessity of taking their problems seriously. Are they really be-

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We have had three-decker sandwiches in Canada for many years. But as the result of a recent safety drive in the depth and across part of the width of the United States, it is my experience that the three-decker in that republic is at least half as high again as our Canadian counterpart. And this leads me to suspect that the three-decker of the origin down there. And it leads, too, to the interesting proposition that the mouth of our average American cousin is larger than those of us up here in the cooler latitudes.

A three-decker in the central states is a staggering presentation. It consists of large, tough slices of bread supporting, interspersing and topping huge quantities of lettuce, ham, chicken and other viands, liberally sloshed with dressing. A northerner, tackled with such a problem, resorts instinctively to knife and fork. But these three-decker sandwiches are not devised to the task. If you attempt it, you only slop the components all over the plate and napkin.

No. You are supposed to face up to it, lean forward, spread your elbows wide, and pick up the section nearest you: and open wide. Two hands are better than one. But have only the one mouth.

On watch a practised citizen of the republic, of either sex, demolish a three-decker, is a lesson in logistics.

well - connected and one can't escape the conclusion that there was collusion between them and the provincial secretary's department," he said.

The three key men in the company he named as follows: James W. Baskin, Conservative MP for Renfrew South, Warren Armstrong, until last week secretary of the National Energy Board, and Donald MacNeil, a reader solicitor in the provincial secretary's department until 1958.

Mr. MacDonald claimed Provincial Secretary Yaremko had signed a revised charter for at least one of the old clubs.

"Surely the department must have found it strange when a club that had been defunct for 45 years suddenly got back to annual dues," he said.

R. E. Fashon, vice-president of the Peel Liberal Association, recently took over as president of the company.

"This suggests that one of the original directors was fronting for him, or else Mr. Fashon recognized a bonanza and is moving in hopefully in a big way," he said.

APPROACH 'DEVIOUS'

Mr. MacDonald accused these men of resorting to the "devious approach of reviving old racing charters, instead of seeking charters, directly by act of Parliament, which is the only way legal betting on racetracks can be contained under the Criminal Code since 1912."

Mr. Allan replied that he could not get excited about the charges.

"Horsemen throughout the province want more race tracks . . . the circuit was needed," he said.

All were agreed that the use of seven charters was legal.

There is nothing unusual, nothing peculiar about this . . . the Caledonia Jockey Club exists also under a similar charter," he said.

C. E. Janes (PC — Lambton East) said formation of the company is one of the finest moves made for racing in Ontario. It was formed by a few group of men.

SEES RECORD SPENDING

Public Welfare Minister Cecile, who pushed through his department's estimates in less than four hours, predicted the province's welfare bill this year will be a record $95,500,000. Ontario will have to provide about $67,000,000 of this amount.

Mr. Cecile said public welfare paid out almost $30,000,000 in direct relief last year, an increase of 35 per cent over the previous year.

He injected one bright note: 5,000 orphans found homes during the year and "there is no need for any child to go homeless."

The night session dealt with Treasurer Allan's estimates, $1.1 mer Sophs (L — Sudbury) demanded the government set a limit on its public spending.

He was referring to what he called the frightening figure of $82,000,000 provided in the estimates for interest repayments.

"This government is getting into debt at the rate of $150,000,000 a year," he charged.

CALL OFF SEARCH

SOUTH BENTLEET, England (AP) — Police called off today their search for Terence Adams, 19, a trainee scientist at the Atomic research establishment at Harwell. They said they were satisfied he is on a holiday in France. Adams was reported missing by his parents more than a week ago. He had no access to secret information.

PRIME MINISTER

said the government's delay in introducing it would mean the no redistribution of parliamentary seats was likely for another two years.

He added that redistribution must not be taken out of the Commons to be placed in the hands of the cabinet. The commission's report should be presented unchanged to the House in the form of a representation bill.

"We are certainly not going to approve any measure that sets up a commission comparable in any way to the Board of Broadcast Governors. We have had enough of that kind of impartiality in the last few years."

SPEAKER RULES

emergency debate staged last June to discuss the case of enemy governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada.

Diefenbaker had made statements that contradicted those of the government and which took on national importance, particularly when a man of stature said that "Canada was sold out and that the Columbia River treaty amounts to servitude in perpetuity of our vital rights and resources."

"These statements have rocked the country and they are rocking it. This question," he added, R. W. Kenaidge, House leader for the CCF-New Democratic Party.

Gen. McNaughton has headed the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, which handles Canada - U.S. boundary water problems since 1950. He directed preliminary studies for a solution to Columbia development problems and was a government adviser at Geneva leading up to the 60-year treaty.

CLAIMS DICTATORIAL

In Washington Thursday and Ottawa Friday he said he was removed from office on a decision "arbitrarily made by a dictator," claimed the U.S. ambassador to Canada and said he associated himself right at the start from the treaty and was gratified in Canada because of differences between the federal and British Columbia governments.

Mr. Green Monday cast some fresh government views on the subject—in a statement pouring cold on opposition objection that he was trespassing on provincial rights. Diefenbaker had denied Mr. Pearson.

He said the general, wartime commissioner of the army overseas until his recall in 1942 and later a wartime Liberal defence minister, had had his term extended every year since his 65th birthday.

His retirement had "nothing whatever to do with the Columbia River issue or with any other issue before the commission," he said.

The ministry said another commission member had retired last year at age 75. The general had received a two-year extension in February, his birthday month—to let him attend the 50th anniversary meeting of the commission in Washington last week.

WHAT WOULD MEAN

Further, said Mr. Green, if a debate was granted now on the general's allegations, it would mean debating a "statement made in another country . . . by a public servant who is still a public servant, in which that public servant, a former Liberal minister, attacked his own government."

What would open the way for any Canadian public servant to go out in any country and attack his government "and then have his friends in the House of Commons fire politics purposes rise and ask . . . to spend a day discussing the statement."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the matter could be discussed if the opposition undertook to clear away legislation on the Commons agenda and other measures that might follow.

The $1,205,467 is the biggest single item of city expenditures.

Also helping to lower this year's tax rate in line was the $73,961 surplus carried forward from last year, and the increased assessment which accounts for the major portion of increased costs.

Other big expenditure items in the original estimates with last year's actual figures in brackets are as follows; protection to persons and property, including police and fire departments $744,451 ($661,602); debt charges and special items $329,654 ($327,413); government $237,413 ($227,146); sanitation and waste removal, $154,000 (153,102) and conservation of health $92,300 ($87,000).

The breakdown of costs for protection of persons and property shows the fire department costs estimating at $297,730 up from $265,497 last year; police department $305,504, up from $236,617 last year; traffic and lights $102,200, up from $87,227; and county court $49,000 almost the same as last year.

Of the total fire department budget, approximately $10,000 of the increase over last year will go for added salary costs, while just over $20,000 of the increased police department costs will be earmarked for the same purpose.

In all city departments at this early budgets are up slightly, due in most cases to salary increases provided for in the schedule.

Street lighting will cost an estimated $45,000, while school grants will cost $10,000.

This item of expenditure drew a comment from Ald. Jack Ireland, who argued the number of school guards required was "getting out of hand and should be reduced."

However, he said he would not like to be the one to suggest that they be reduced merely for the purpose of economy. He suggested that a policy of senior students acting as guards might cut down the number of guards, but noted this idea had been shot down by council some years ago.

Garbage disposal will cost $71,900 sewer repairs and cleaning $61,000 and street and pavement cleaning $11,000 in each instance.

Increased salaries for the health department nurses drew a minor protest from council, but Aldermen Eugene Harrison and Mayor A. M. Haig declared the increases had been necessary to secure sufficient staff.

Mayor Haig said it had been necessary to bring in nurses to meet the Hall requirement. He said the whole matter had been gone into very carefully, noting that the scarcity of nurses and the pay scale in other areas made the increases necessary.

Alderman William Jarvah questioning the high school education cost of $560,750, up $100,000 from last year, while at the same time public and separate school costs were about the same as ever.

Mayor Haig said additional provincial grants this year applied only to elementary schools while Alderman Ross Bailey said the lower requirement for high school this year resulted partly because of a double payment of their share of costs by Frankford and Sidney, which joined the high school area last year.

Alderman Jack Ellis made a strong plea for an item in this year's budget to provide for paying the city's share of local improvements from current revenue.

Mayor Haig replied the idea to pay as you go was not a new one but with continued increases in the mill rate he felt this was a wrong principle and unsound policy.

He agreed that by debenturing such costs now, future generations would have to pay more, but stated that they in the meantime would get the benefits.

He complimented the city manager and city treasurer on their work in preparing the budget and seconded the estimates on motion of Alderman Bailey for adoption of the 1962 millrate.

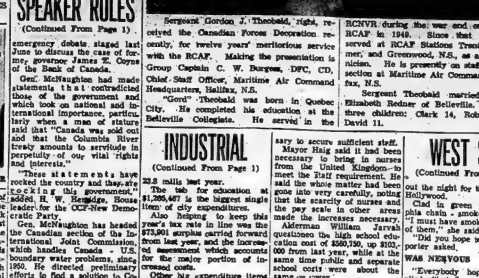
Jamaica Holds Torrid Election

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — Jamaicans voted today after the hottest election campaign since the Second World War. They will choose a government that will be the island's first as an independent country.



Leading contenders were the ruling People's National Party — known as the PNP — of Premier Norman Manley, and the Jamaica Labor Party, led by Manley's cousin, 57-year-old Alexander Bustamante.

Bustamante, referred to as "Busta" by Jamaicans, swamped Manley in the British island's first general election in 1944 and more or less stayed there.

In a referendum last year on whether Jamaica would remain in the West Indies federation, Bustamante led a successful fight for secession. Manley wanted the island to stay inside the federation.

Grants to Be Scrutinized Before Next Budget Time

City grants to local organizations will undoubtedly come in for close scrutiny before budget time for next year rolls around.

Monday evening during the discussion on the 1962 budget, Alderman Stuart Robb raised the question of certain local organizations receiving grants from the city when at the same time they were members of the local United Appeal.

He noted also that several organizations which had declined to join the United Appeal were receiving city grants, the city thus apparently working to defeat the purpose for which the United Appeal was instituted.

Total such grants, including a $31,660 item for re-debenture at the hospital, was given in the budget as $47,833.

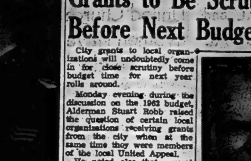
Ald. Robb made special mention of the $300 grant to the Sea Cadets; $2,000 to the YMCA; $700 to the CNIB; $675 to the Kiwanis Club and $2,500 to the Kinsmen Swimming Pool.

SOME REFUSE TO JOIN

Some of these organizations he said were members of the United Appeal, while another organization, the Association for Retarded Children with a city grant of $500, had been a member of the United appeal but had consistently refused to join.

He said he could not see why council should support a body against the United Appeal and suggested all such grants should be channelled through the United Appeal.

Mayor A. M. Haig and Ald. Jack Ireland suggested that several of the grants mentioned were actually grants in lieu of taxes.



Council voted to reduce the city grant to the Belleville swimming pool from $3,500 to $2,500.

Alderman Ross Bailey suggested it was a bit late now to change the grant system but suggested a special committee might be set up to go into the matter thoroughly before budget time next year.

Ald. Robb asked for any private pool? quizzed Alderman Joseph Raycroft. "We had about 900 kids at our pool all last summer for free."

More Women Students Being Accepted by Medical Schools

TORONTO (CP)—Despite the problems they face, an increasing number of women students are being accepted by medical schools in North America.

Figures for 1960 to 1980 show that although the number of applicants each year was usually about 1,000, the percentage of acceptances has risen progressively from 31.5 per cent in 1960 to 53 per cent in 1980, Dr. Wilder Penfield, dean of Canadian medical students are told.

The special problems of women medical students are discussed in the latest issue of the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association by Katharine B. Boucot, clinical professor of medicine, Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania.

MENTIONS FIRST PROBLEM

Dr. Boucot says the first problem is that of being accepted by a medical school.

"There is a widespread feeling that women medical students do not make as good use of their medical training as do men, because of marriage and child-bearing," she says.

"This feeling makes standards for acceptance of women more rigorous than for men.

"Having succeeded in entering medical school, women are still at a disadvantage, the article says.

They tend to be anxious and perfectionist and have difficulty in grasping broad implications, it adds. They feel that mediocre performance reflects on their sex and this causes some of them to take undue emphasis on grades rather than on learning.

But the physical problems of women do not often present any handicap.

Women's Activities

JOHNSTOWN U.C.W.

JOHNSTOWN — The U.C.W. of Johnstown Mid-day Circle met for their meeting on April 4, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Vandervoort with a good attendance.

The service opened with a hymn and prayer by the president, Mrs. Earl Sickle. The lesson was read by Mrs. Kenneth Hall and the Scripture by Mrs. Harold Russell. Mrs. Gere presided at the piano for the service. Prayer by Mrs. Russell ended the devotional period.

Mrs. Sickle thanked Mrs. Vandervoort for the use of her home.

At the business session, it was learned that the minister will be taking his holidays in the last two weeks of July and the first two weeks in August, when he will be attending Queen's University. It was arranged that the U.C.W. take one of the five services while he is away.

It was decided that the UCW cater at the wedding of one of the church girls on July 9th. The May meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Meyers with Mrs. Clayton Davis and Mrs. Meyers in charge of the devotional period.

Invitations were received from the Ivanhoe U.C.W. for April 25, and Alnwick U.C.W. on May 2, to join them on those days.

The executive meeting is to be held at Mount Pleasant on April 9th, to get ready for the U.C.W. Rally Day.

Mrs. Alec Vandervoort, as program convener, took over the meeting with a talk on "Family Life" — the factors that are threatening it and what part the church plays in strengthening it.

An interesting discussion was held, taking in: crime rate of today, Irresponsible parents, planned births, and delinquency, with the conclusion being that though the families of olden times seemed to be closer, by playing games together and worshipping together; many families of today worship together and on television, with all its faults, is a help in keeping the family together. The trouble is at this time there are so many clubs and what not, to which children and adults belong, that it takes them away from the family.

Lunch and a social half hour were enjoyed.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

- Gail O. — Dad's retired but I wish he'd get a part time job.

Mr. A.R. — My part-time job is to be a good grandpa to Gail's kids.

• • •

Gail O. — For years both my parents and I looked forward to Dad's retirement. I'm their only child and the plan was for them to move to this city where I live with my husband and three young children.

But things haven't turned out the way I imagined they would. We live a 10-minute drive apart so Daddy accepts no excuse for me for not stopping in every day. Although both my parents are healthy Mother is the active one. She keeps busy and happy. Dad just mopes around their apartment, complaining of my lack of attention.

He fills in some of his time watching my children and their friends play in our back yard after school. But he isn't satisfied. He wants me to keep him company. I can't spare the time. I wish he'd get a part-time job so time wouldn't hang so heavy on him.

• • •

Mr. A.R. — Now that we're living in the same city as Gail, I find that it is not giving me the pleasure I anticipated. We left the community we'd been living in for 30 years and moved halfway across the country to be near our little girl. Is it asking too much for her to show her face once a day? We're very near.

My wife keeps on the go, running the apartment, shopping, sewing and visiting some of the women Gail introduced her to. But I seem to get in every-body's way so I stick around the kids whenever I can. They like having me around. I cheer for their team and I break up the fights.

I know that Gail has her home as well as her music to attend to. She's a professional cellist and must attend rehearsals. But now that I'm at leisure, she should brighten my days, too.

• • •

The Council: Mr. R. sounds spoiled and a bit selfish. He seems to regard his daughter as some sort of mechanical toy that he wound up and waits to see "play." He is not getting the "pleasure" he anticipated from "pleasure" he anticipated from his daughter. Perhaps he's not what pleasure he expects!

He has the privilege of seeing her fill a mature niche in the world, as a successful wife, mother and citizen. He has the pleasure of watching her musically blend Scottish. Would he call it pleasure if she were helpless, idle, bored and depended upon him to keep her spirits up? His insistence upon beholding her as a child only borders on the neurotic.

But Gail, as well as her mother, must take a little time out to smooth Mr. R.'s passage from full-time worker, a man with no special interests or hobbies, to gentleman at-large. He is going through a painful period where the old satisfactions have died and the new pursuits aren't satisfying.

Before waiting until he is bored (and bored) enough to turn to the Help Wanted ads again, Mr. R. should seek to include him more generously and patiently in their own activities. Can he have a fixed responsibility in Gail's home, so that he does't have to just hover around hopefully? Are there a few afternoons a week Daddy is free to spend with the kids, a movie, on a visit to the sick or elderly relatives? His period of idleness can thus be useful, while plans for new ventures are being formed.

New ventures? These can range from part-time job Gail recommends to volunteer services, the development of a hobby he never optioned which involve giving rather than receiving. Real treasure for Mr. R. must sprout from within, from the useful, interesting life he will find for himself.

The move toward Gail will mean goodbye for all one's stress, when her dad realizes he must make his days bright for himself and for others can then make them brighter.

SHOOT FROM CAR

BRANTFORD (CP) — Air-rifle pellets shot from a moving car hit eight city pedestrians during the weekend, police said Monday. Injuries were slight. Assault charges have been laid against two Hamilton youths and two Brantford youths.

The Ontario Diocesan Women's Auxiliary held their April meeting at St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, where a warm welcome was extended by Mrs. Richard Hill, president of the branch. Mrs. W. F. H. Mitchell was presided and the opening prayers were said by Rev. Douglas Burns.

Canon Cuy Marshall, Rector of St. Stephen's, and chaplain to the Mission to Seamen in Toronto, was the guest speaker, and chose as his topic the vastly different life of the seaman to that of a person earning a livelihood on land. Because of this, and the lack of a normal homelife, a special ministry with a different approach is required. As recently as 1938 conditions aboard freighters were poor indeed, quarters being cramped, and with the same conditions day after day life at sea was and, often still is, extremely monotonous and frustrating. Ports also present difficulties as languages differ and there often amenities are lacking.

The Mission to Seamen have been invaluable in assisting sea personnel, and John Ashley, their representative, first mission in Bristol, England, has proved a true friend to many a seaman. Gifts may be found relaxation and entertainment as well as a true appreciation of the Christian faith. Sometimes this appreciation is slow in coming; others take it more quickly. Every race is welcome at the missions where "The Flying Angel" flies. This flag, consisting of a white angel holding a cross on a blue background, was designed by two sailors in 1856. They used as their inspiration the sixth verse of the 14th chapter of the Book of Revelations, "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting Gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people."

Mrs. John Flindister thanked Canon Marshall and Mrs. T. H. Parker thanked the members of St. Thomas' for their hospitality. Canon Marshall closed the meeting with a special prayer for seamen.

OSC SUNSET RESORT

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The president of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation said Monday the CBC must completely revise the trend to make "popularity" and "quality" synonymous in programming. Addressing the Windsor Rotary Club, Alphonse Ouimet said many of the serious defects in the North American system of broadcasting is its reaction to ratings.

Seeking Legal Advice About Bigamy

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I have a chum who has a problem she is afraid to ask anybody about. She married a man in the States and lived with him six months. Then she came back to Canada. She met a man and had a child by him.

She married him, knowing she was committing bigamy, but he never knew about the other man. She still lives with him and has another child by him.

Now she has received her divorce from the man in the States. Tell me, is she still a bigamist? Is her American divorce legal here?

Should she tell the man she is living with about all this or keep quiet about it for the sake of the children?—CONFUSED.

• • •

DEAR CONFUSED:—The second marriage was void from the start. No subsequent divorce could change that.

Was the first husband domiciled in the States at the time of divorce? That is, did he live there and mean to stay there? (As contrasted with going there just to get an American divorce). If so, the divorce would be recognized in Canada.

But she must marry her present mate again to legitimate the children. She'll never straighten things out without making a clean breast of it with him and having a proper ceremony.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I have two brothers. One is 17 and the other is 6. All we do is argue. I try to get along, and so does my older brother, but my younger brother tries to get me in trouble. He gets his programs he wants to see, including one which is about a clown.

He's supposed to go to bed at 7.30, but usually he stalls and doesn't get to bed until about 8.15. At noon I have two programs I like to watch, but he usually gets to watch the one he wants.

I know he should watch programs suited to his age, but he gets all he wants and most of them are ridiculous. — TROUBLED.

• • •

DEAR TROUBLED—And Junior thinks yours are for the birds!

Are you about 15? And he is six. Then get whatever good you can from having to share. Years from now you'll start enjoying this troublesome brother of yours. Right now you can show you are growing up by using some of that lunch hour to help mother.

Then when the arguments get too heated, and you ask for a break, mother will see the point.

• • •

TO ASKING AND WONDERING—I know the letter you mean, but I don't know what you want. "If you are trying to identify the writer, this cannot be done. How would you like it if you wrote me privately and I told everybody who you were?

If you want something else about it, please write again and say what it is. Be sure to enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

BRING YOUR MANNERS TO THE DANCE FLOOR

Dancing is always fun, and is especially so when participants bring their manners and don't step on any toes in the process.

Gymnastics and other forms of exhibitionism are out of place on the dance floor, unless, of course, the band strikes up a Twist. Then anyone game enough can properly give in to his latent instincts.

Ordinarily, though, dancing is a more sedate pastime, and there are a few rules of proper behavior that help keep things moving smoothly, with minimum danger to life and limb.

It must be remembered that the average dance floor usually is fairly small and filled to capacity. To navigate it with any degree of grace a couple is almost obliged to make itself as small a target as possible. Good posture is a step in the right direction.

Partners should hold themselves easily erect, and the man literally should be on his toes to steer a non-bumpy course around other couples. He should hold his partner's hand in such a manner that both their elbows are slightly bent. Arms should not be stretched out like a windmill to bodyslap other dancers. For her part, the girl should rest her left hand on her partner's shoulder, so she won't interfere with the encircling arm which is supposed to lead her into the dance steps and out of trouble.

Keeping time to the music also is an exercise in good dance floor manners. Couples who jog along in double time usually knock others off balance. Those who want to practice fancy steps properly should confine their twirling to the rim of the floor, or a quiet corner, and leave the center of the floor to the more pedantic two-steppers.

If, despite all precautions, a one couple should bump into another, the offending gentleman properly should say "excuse me," or "sorry," and his partner should smile her apologies.

At all times, dancers should be aware of what they're doing, so they don't interfere with the fun of others. A couple should never get into such a deep discussion that they plow unbridgedly into fellow terpsichoreans. Light conversation certainly fits into the dancing mood as long as it doesn't force either partner to shout above the music.

Conversation with other couples also should be limited on the dance floor. It's pleasant and permissible to greet friends, but it's inconsiderate to stage a grand reunion in the middle of the floor and force others to dance around a gay, but impenetrable, backslapping group.

To keep traffic moving at a steady clip, it's also more courteous to dance past the band stand instead of standing stock still and ogling the singers or the instrumentalists. Uncommunity, many couples often do just this, and create such a jam that dancers are left with barely enough space to shuffle their feet.

Dancers who don't know what they're doing also have a habit of stepping on the toes of those who do. Couples who don't know the steps to a particular dance often decide to try to do something to the music, anyway, and only create confusion on the floor. Those who are unfamiliar with a dance should courteously leave the floor to the experts.

Fashionable Footsteps

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

New shoe news includes such useful items as the sneaker shown here in black leather, smooth and sleek. Eyelets and lining are white, as is the rubber sole.

Lobster and Oyster Bisque For The Likes of Us

by Mary Moore

Sneakily yesterday I mentioned a lobster and oyster bisque to what your appetites (or the pot) dish. It really is not that posh. The flavor is but the cost is medium-high. To serve four you need one 4-oz. can of lobster and one 8-oz. can of oysters. I bought Japanese-packed oysters for 31 cents and hope no one will give me a blast. You also should have half cup 18% cream but it isn't necessary.

If you make this recipe to serve eight, you will have enough soup to serve with a flair from your soup tureen.

Are you still with me?

LOBSTER AND OYSTER—BISQUE (serves 4)

2 tablespoons butter; 2 tablespoons flour; 1 cup 18% cream; 2½ cups milk; 2 tablespoons chopped celery or 1 tablespoon dried celery flakes; 2 tablespoons chopped onion or 1 tablespoon dried onion flakes; ½ teaspoon salt; 4-oz. can lobster, broken up; 8-oz. can oysters; ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce (optional)

Gently saute, in top of double boiler, onions and celery in butter until limp but not one bit brown. Stir in flour until blended. Stir in cream and milk until thick. Add salt and Worcestershire sauce, if used. Put over boiling water in bottom of double boiler. Break up can of lobster, saving any bone, and add to soup. Add the can of oysters, including liquid. Heat through long enough to cook the onions and celery. A puff of whipped cream on top stops the show.

UCW Meetings

CANNIFTON U.C.W.

The Cannifton U.C.W. met in the Sunday School rooms on April 4th. The 16 members were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Douglas Bennison.

Cannifton U.C.W. is invited to Aiken's Church on May 3rd; this being the day of the regular meeting.

Mrs. Willis Brenton read a paper on "Relief work of our church", More clothing is needed for overseas relief, chiefly men's and children's clothing. Blankets, quilts and baby clothing are badly needed, too. The president urged all members to save clothing for sending overseas.

Mrs. T. Howard led the worship service, in keeping with the Lenten season, and also read a poem on "Easter".

Mrs. C. Dowson gave a talk on "Easter" and said in part: Through the Lenten season, we should take thought and remember the risen Christ. That He is always with us, for He lives within our hearts. He has peace for our souls and work for our hands and like the disciples hurried to tell of the risen Lord, so should we hasten to proclaim Him as Redeemer to all nations".

Things Columnist Might Never Know If He Didn't Open Mail

By HAL BOYLE

Eastern Digest: Must be the world's worst place to get a toothache . . . it has only five dentists among 20,000 people.

Sounds reasonable: The subway in Athens, Greece, has special cars for smokers — and now a group is demanding a special car be added for Greeks who insist on munching garlic.

Frigid consolation: No matter how much lower the mercury falls than 40 below zero, you don't feel any colder . . . it is the point at which your skin nerves stop distinguishing differences in temperature.

Our quotable notables: A woman will sometimes confess her sins, but I never knew one to confess her faults." — Josh Billings.

Bet you didn't know this: The cherry, peach, strawberry, apple, blackberry, apricot, plum, raspberry and pear all are members of the rose family.

ONLY STANDARD TIME

The Catholic Digest reports this sign in a Minneapolis car wash: "Special today. Car wash $1. Carwax dipped and towel-dried, 50 cents."

Odd legislation: In Nebraska a law was passed under which you could be fined if your clock showed anything but Standard Time.

Life in la belle France: When a French child is born, papa gets a three-day vacation and an $80 government bonus . . . what does mama get? . . . she gets $8,000 pesos.

Medical note: There is still no wonder cure for one of the world's worst epidemic diseases, —bubonic plague, also called "the black death."

In the year 262 it killed 5,000 persons a day in Rome . . . during the 14th century it wiped out one-fourth of Europe's population — about 25,000,000 people.

Nature was kind to the money . . . she gave it a double head, one to each end of the body, the other to control the tail.

DRIVER FINED

ST. THOMAS (CP)—A driver who forced three constables to jump to safety during an erratic run through city streets April 2, Monday was fined $60 or 10 days on a charge of careless driving. Court was told Robert Thorpe, 21, ignored police signals to halt and failed to stop until a warning shot was fired into the air.

Herridge Says Two NCOs Asked to Resign

OTTAWA (CP)—H. W. Herridge, CCF - New Democratic Party House Leader, protested Monday that two non-commissioned officers in a British Columbia militia unit were ordered to resign from membership in the NDP or leave the militia.

He also told the Commons that Captain Rev. W. B. Metcalf, NDP candidate in Kootenay East in the coming federal election, had resigned as chaplain of the unit in protest against the action of his unit's commanding officer.

Defence Minister Harkness said he would investigate the matter.

Mr. Herridge said a Lt.-Col. Reynolds, officer commanding the 11th Field Squadron of the 5th Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Engineers at Trail, demanded that two NCOs resign as members of the NDP and furnish proof of their resignations in writing. The two men are members of the NDP club at Creston, B.C.

Mr. Harkness said no instructions have been given to militia units concerning membership in the NDP or on any other matter pertaining to this political group. Members of the regular forces were forbidden from taking part in political activity, but no such prohibition applied for members of militia units. Neither officers nor men of the militia or regular forces were permitted to carry on political activities in government armor less or in other military establishments.

Mr. Harkness said that if Col. Reynolds had asked the man to resign from the NDP he would think it would have been made because political activity was thought to be out of the armories or in the unit company to organize it.

Outside the Commons, Mr. Herridge said Capt. Mundy had written him stating that Lt.-Col. Reynolds had intercepted orders applying to the regiment forces as though they covered militia members.

Capt. Mundy's letter said that one man in submitting his resignation said he had been attending "a shotgun wedding."

In Creston, B.C., Sgt. Wm. McSeveny, 32, and Cpl. Michael Nicholl, 23, said the Creston NDP Club but plan to rejoin in six weeks' time when their army commitments are over.

They would help Mr. Mundy in his campaign. Mr. Mundy is Anglican rector of Creston and Kootenay Lakes.

Sgt. McSeveny was chairman of the NDP club.

Meanwhile, Maj. R. G. Lyle, unit commander, said he gave the politics-or-army ultimatum with the full backing of Lt.-Col. Reynolds and Maj. C. A. Lane, commander of No. 2 Survival Training Unit, Lethbridge, Alta.

He said under militia rules soldiers cannot practise politics.

"Ours is a militia unit but these people are called out for regular army duty for 1½ months. Any such duty has the effect in the regular army for that period of time."

He said there was no pressure on the chaplain to resign.

The NCOs said they decided to resign from the club so they could maintain their position in the militia. As instructors they received regular army pay.

Bob Hope Bright Master Of Ceremonies to End

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Hollywood's annual big moon-and-spoon Motion Picture Academy Awards are considered along for more than two hours Monday night before the television audience — finally learned the names of its best picture, best actor, best actress and best supporting players.

There were many other awards that it aimed, but came monotonous.

I wouldn't miss watching this annual show for each year I wonder why Hollywood can't manage to honor itself with a shorter, more interesting program, and also why a great industry can't produce a host who must have its big event of the season. Obviously this year by a manufacturer of home permanent waves and a tooth paste.

Sponsors — who make cigarettes, household paper products, soap and food—won no part of the April 28 episode of NBC's Defenders on the touchy subject of illegal operations. The network is apparently afraid it is going ahead with the filmed show and is wanting the other sponsors to pick up the tab.

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Walter Aseltine (PC—Saskatchewan) said Monday that a law should be in the upper house, and 28 other senators now are aged 75 or more, would be a good idea if the government's new Senate retirement bill.

'The Counterfeit Traitor' View of Wartime Europe

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The full panorama of wartime Europe is captured in "The Counterfeit Traitor," a well-made new film that follows the adventure patterns of "The Guns of Navarone."

Paramount devoutly hopes that its new film will follow the same money-making pattern. Since Navarone was the most profitable film of 1961.

"The Counterfeit Traitor" is very capably exciting wartime heroics, but with an added factor that Navarone lacked: Credibility.

No doubt dramatic license is applied. But the basic facts of The Counterfeit Traitor are patterned after the real-life adventures of Eric Erickson. He is an American-born Swedish businessman who did business with the Nazis while rescuing oil targets for allied bombers.

USE ACTORS WISELY

Producer William Perlberg and director-writer George Seaton have done a marvelous job in recreating the look and sound of Germany, Sweden and Denmark during the war. They wisely cast actors in the countries where they filmed; William Holden, Lilli Palmer and Hugh Griffith are the only players recognizable to the public.

Season embroiders episode on episode until the audience is completely involved in the pattern of espionage. The film starts slowly and sometimes clings to coincidence. But once it starts rolling there is no escape from the tension of suspense.

It is hard to imagine any actor doing as good a job as Holden in the role of Erickson. He assumes the work as spy relentlessly; circumstances later bring his total involvement.

The Holden art has perhaps never been fully appreciated. He won his Oscar for playing a heel in Stalag 17—typical of the academy's perversity in rewarding off beat casting.

When he was filming final scenes in Stockholm last summer, Holden told me that he preferred making films abroad because he feels his most successful roles are those that place him in international situations. That pattern of his career is likely to continue.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The man thumped a stubby forefinger on the sports desk to emphasize a point. "So the experts pick the New York Yankees and the Los Angeles Dodgers for the world series," he said with a slight curl of a lip.

The finger tamped again. "I do not know which club will win the American League—on paper it should be the Yankees—but I have a pretty good idea who will flutter the National League pennant come October 1st."

The press guessed. The Redlegs? The Giants?. The Milwaukee Braves? All wrong in the man's book.

"Quickly," he said. "What club had the best wond-and-lost record in the National League the last three months of the 1961 season?"

He had to answer his own question. The St. Louis Cards under the leadership of Johnny Keane.

"After Keane succeeded Solly Hemus in the managerial seat on July 8th," he said, "the Cardinals won 67 games and lost 33. The Redbirds had a pair of eight-game winning streaks."

The records prove the man was right. And Manager Keane believes the Cards will pick up where they left off last September. He says he sees no reason why they shouldn't. The boys hustled last year and they're still hustling.

Keane said the Cardinals started off the spring training season with two problems, shortstop and behind the plate. But he told a press conference the other day that he believes he has solved both of them.

He said he likes Gene Oliver, a young catcher who hit 40 home runs last year—36 with Portland and four after he joined the Cardinals. Julio Gotay he believes, "will be able to do the job at shortstop."

The Cardinals, it appears, have had trouble with the shortstop spot since Marty Marion stepped out of the territory. The range, stylish Marty was a master, but those who followed fell short of his standard. Hemus, Eddie Kasko, Alex Grammas—a number have tried—and now there is Gotay. He is a tall, slender Porto Rican shouldering quite a job.

Keane is figuring heavily on Minnie Minoso. He still has an explosive bat, he says, "and will add some much-needed power to our batting order. I'll play him with Stan Musial and Curt Flood in the outfield."

The Cards are all set in other positions with Bill White at first, Julian Javier at second and the capable Ken Boyer at third base. Boyer had a .319 batting average last year plus 24 homers and 95 RBI's.

As for pitching, Keane thinks Ray Washburn, the organized ball only a little over a year, could move into his starting four. Bob Duliba is moving up very fast.

The backbone of the Cards' hurling corps figures to be much more as Ray Sadecki, Curt Simmons, Larry Jackson, Bob Gibson, Ernie Broglio and relief ace Lindy McDaniel. Keane also likes Ed Bauta who got in 13 games last season.

"There are three or four clubs you just cannot separate," he says. "Any one of them could win. I don't ever like to knock anybody but Cincinnati could have trouble with Gene Freese injured. Losing a man like that can knock you back three or four spots."

Mr Pilous Disagrees

By BILL MacDOUGALL

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Rudy Pilous of Chicago Black Hawks, says his club take on Toronto Maple Leafs on any terms and best them in the Stanley Cup final.

"We can take them on in the back alley, their front yard or back yard and still get the job done," said Pilous Monday night, after the Hawks arrived here for tonight's first game of the final.

"We'll win the last one," he said, declining to predict whether the best-of-seven series will go the limit.

The Leafs, are 8-to-7 favorites, the edge being given to Toronto largely on the strength of the extra game here if the series goes the limit.

Pilous admitted that the Hawks "will be at a disadvantage" if the series goes seven games. The Leafs are noted for their strength on home ice, where the Hawks beat them only once and tied twice this season.

DON'T NEED REST

The Chicago coach was saying that Leafs, playing the same Hawks didn't have a long rest between their semi-final series with Montreal Canadiens, won four games to two by Chicago, and the final.

"Our club is mentally up, healthy and ready," he said.

Pilous said the Hawks will adapt themselves to the type of game the Leafs play, the same thing Toronto coach Punch Imlach said earlier Monday. He derided hints that Chicago might play a rough series and said his players have "class."

"We have a fair idea how six, tied four and lost four.

Coach Imlach of Chicago Black Hawks, says he's going to play it, but we're not saying what our plans are.

Pilous said that beside, such a prolific scorer as left winger Bobby Hull "we've got the finest defence and the finest goaltender in the business."

HALL PRAISED

Imlach, whose Leafs eliminated New York Rangers four games to two in the other semi-final, indicated he might do some lineup switching for the night's game, but it would only be minor. Three Leafs have been on the sidelines — left winger Bert Olmstead, right winger Eddie Shack and defenceman Larry Hillman.

"I may make some changes but I'm not saying until game time what they'll be," he said after watching the Leafs through a workout.

It's highly unlikely he'll use Hillman, since the defenceman's corps is again at full strength with Carl Brewer doing a commendable job after recuperating from a leg injury.

Olmstead has been out with a cracked ankle bone suffered late in the season and the likelihood is that if he doesn't be taken off the idle list it will be Shack, who probably would replace either Kelly Leibrandt or MacMillan. Shack was benched during the last two games of the semi-final.

In the 14 meetings this year between Chicago, the Leafs won six, tied four and lost four.

Pepsi's Defeat Meaford

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Three quick goals in five minutes in the second period gave the Belleville Pepsi's roaring down the victory trail here last night.

They never looked back and went on to defeat the Meaford Chevies 10-3 in the first game of their OHA intermediate "A" best-of-seven semi-finals.

The second and probably the third game will be played in Meaford and Barrie next Saturday and Sunday.

The Pepsi's looked woodenlegged and stymied in the first period when the big red-and-white team from Meaford ripped their two goals before the city squad struck back.

The Chevies hit quickly in the second frame to give a 3-1 lead before the Pepsi's showed signs of scoring life. They rearned some their tric then turned on the power in the third frame to fire home six unanswered goals for the win.

It was a rugged hard-hitting game with both sides using the bodies. Referees Art Casterton and B. Harrison of Kingston however dished out but six penalties, the teams splitting the sentences.

It was fast hockey with both sides flashing speed and hard shooting. A sparse crowd saw the game, and the Pepsi's come up with the best teamwork of the season in the latter periods.

Former National Leaguer Gordon "Red" Henry was on the Meaford nets making some sensational looking bid on the last two Pepsi goals. He kicked out 28 shots as against 31 for Turk Bentley at the other end.

Smith and MacDonald gave Meaford a two-goal lead after 14 minutes of the first frame. "Wiener" Brown who was the big all night got one back before period end.

The Chevies made it 3-1 by Brainard after 1.11 of the second heat then the Pepsi's came to life. Hull, Brown and Bottle scored in eight minutes to grab a 4-3 lead that was the hockey game.

The Pepsis zeroed around the Meaford goal in the third frame, hitting twice in 42 seconds by Jones and Baker, with Marineau adding another at 5.26.

Jones scored at 17.19, then Marineau slapshot a beauty past Henry at 22 seconds later. Taylor blasted the final goal.

Davy Jones with two goals and three assists paced the Pepsi victory with "Wiener" Brown potting a pair and two assis'. Eddie Marineau was also good for a pair of markers. Baker got one and two; Hull one and one, Taylor one and two; Solly Bolly a goal, Goegan had three assists and Doran, Goyer and Crawford one each.

The lineups:

Meaford: Henry, Meek, Wheeler, Smith, Brainard, Bergeron, Parker, Graham, C. MacDonald, J. MacDonald, McCall ham, Walsmley, Fetzer, Loosaenen, Abbott.

In the meantime, $250,000 will be split among the provinces to help finance the planning and organization of programs designed to develop fitness and amateur sport.

Mr. Monteith also announced an additional $142,800 in grants from the 1961-62 budget to 11 national sports organizations. This will bring total grants from this year's $5,000,000 fund to $472,085.

CALGARY (CP)—Centre Len Lunde, 23, ace Rogger Debard both scored twice Monday night as Edmonton Flyers beat Calgary Stampeders 5-2 before 4,725 fans to take a 3-1 lead in the Western Hockey League's Northern Division finals.

Fifth game of the best-of-seven series will be played in Edmonton Wednesday night.

Billy McNeill tallied the other Edmonton goal and Jim Moro counted both for Calgary.

Makes Brilliant Comeback

Palmer Wins Masters Playoff

By MERCER BAILEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Golf is in its "Palmer era."

Once it was the Jones and Hagen era.

Then it was the Snead and Hogan era.

Now it is the Palmer era. And it's Arnold Palmer's all alone. No one shares it with him.

In any major tournament today, Arnold Palmer, the cocksure steelworker from Latrobe, Pa., must be given the favorite's role because of his tenacity, aggressiveness and refusal to concede defeat.

STARTS COMEBACK

Then, that characteristic Palmer comeback began unfolding. He birdied No. 10 with a 30-foot putt. Player went one over par on No. 12, Palmer got a birdie deuce with a tee shot 3½ feet from the cup.

Again Player went one over and, on the 16th hole, Palmer was ahead by one shot.

Palmer collected two more birdies on the next two holes and now it was just a question of how big his victory margin would be. He had birdied five out of seven holes in his run. Player wound up with a four-under-par 68, Player had a 71 and Finsterwald, who never got started, a 77. They had finished the 72-hole route deadlocked at 280.

Palmer's $20,000 first - prize cheque vaulted him ahead of Doug Ford and Cary Middlecoff to the top of the PGA official money winning list for the last 15 years. Palmer has collected $286,736 in official PGA purses. Ford $287,027 and Middlecoff $285,282 although Arnold has been a pro only since November, 1954.

Player, who failed to his bid to become the first Masters champion to defend his title successfully won $12,000 second money and Finsterwald pocketed $8,000.

Senators Whip Tigers 4-1 In Opener

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Staff Writer

Whitey Ford is scheduled to fire his first pitch of the 1962 baseball season today as the world champion New York Yankees start their campaign for a third consecutive American League pennant.

President Kennedy opened the baseball season Monday, throwing the first ball at Washington where the Senators whipped Detroit Tigers 4-1 behind Bennie Daniels' five-hitter.

Cincinnati Reds raised the National League curtain for the 76th time at home Monday and were drubbed 12-4 by Philadelphia Phillies.

Now the defending champs will invade Los Angeles and both the Dodgers get under way before an expected sellout crowd of 56,000 in the new $18,000,000 Dodger Stadium.

Milwaukee Braves are at San Francisco against the Giants and Philadelphia is at Pittsburgh against the Pirates in the other openers in the league-wide 10-club circuit playing a 154-game schedule for the first time in history. The league had stood pat with eight clubs since 1900.

DANIELS GOES ROUTE

In the American League, Washington and Detroit take the day off while the remainder of the league raises the curtain with Baltimore Orioles at New York, Cleveland Indians against the Red Sox at Boston, Los Angeles Angels against the White Sox at Chicago and Minnesota Twins against the Athletics at Kansas City. All are day games.

Daniels went the distance before a crowd of 44,383 at the Senators' new $20,000,000 District of Columbia Stadium. It was the largest crowd ever to see a baseball game in Washington.

Daniels responded with his five-hitter, striking out seven man and walking only two while driving in one of the Senators' runs. The Tigers scored when Al Kaline hit into a forced play following singles by Jake Wood and Bill Bruton. Bob Johnson led a 13-hit attack with a two-runner homer in the fourth inning off Don Mossi that put the Senators ahead for good.

Ford, the southpaw who won the Cy Young award as the outstanding pitcher in the major leagues last season after compiling a 25-4 won-lost record, will be backed by the powerful Yankee attack that numbers Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle among its homer hammerers. Left handy Billy Hoeft (7-4) will start for the Orioles.

The Reds sent 21-game winner Joey Jay against the Phillies Monday and the ace of the staff lasted 2 1-3 innings before leaving with the score 5-0.

The 25-year-old right hander was pummelled quickly for five hits, including a home run by Clay Dalrymple in the second. Don Demeter hit a two - run homer in the fourth for the Phils. Backed by the 12-hit attack, burley Art Mahaffey went the distance for Philadelphia, spacing nine hits.

The Reds are expected to come back today with left hander Jim O'Toole, 19-9 last season, as Cincinnati won its first National League pennant in 20 years. Southpaw Johnny Podres, 18-5 last year, will oppose him for the Dodgers.

Wants Beavers To Stay In Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP) — City council voted Monday night to write Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers of the Eastern Professional Hockey League asking the team to stay in Kitchener next season.

Mayor Joseph Meisinger said the team hasn't been a financial success despite high calibre hockey—the team finished near the top of the six-team league this season and is in the league playoffs.

The mayor said the city has had an enviable reputation for hockey and "we don't want to be without a hockey team next year."

Red Kelly To Mix Them

Pucks Now, Politics Later

By Bill macDOUGALL

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey star Red Kelly starts soon into a new game, and he doesn't expect to have any more butterflies in his stomach when he speaks in Parliament—if he gets elected—than before a National Hockey League game.

When he quits shooting at Chicago Black Hawk goaltender Glenn Hall, Leonard Patrick Kelly will face off for the next federal election. But, he hints, that doesn't necessarily mean he won't be on the ice again next season.

To the genial, mannered, soft-speaking farm boy speaking in the House of Commons would be somewhat like playing a hockey game.

"You can compare it to hockey. Before the game starts, you're a bit jittery, but when you get the feel of the puck for the first time you forget all about it."

All the blue line is the nomination meeting as Red seeks to carry the Liberal standard in York West riding in the next federal election.

The Leafs veteran with Detroit, Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs is expected to be a shoo-in at the nomination meeting. The date hasn't been set but it's expected soon after Leafs' Stanley Cup final series against Chicago opening tonight.

The goal in Red's new game is the seat held since a 1954 by-election by Progressive Conservative John B. Hamilton.

The defencemen - turned-centre's tactics are still in the blackboard stage.

"My platform will come out after the nomination, if I get it," he said. "I haven't looked into it completely yet."

Kelly, owner of a bowling alley and a tobacco farm adjacent to his father's in the Sincoe, Ont., area, passed up a chance to get his politics a few years ago.

The Liberals, waffled him to run for the Ontario legislature "but I felt I wasn't ready to do so yet." He's been interested in politics for about 10 years, has attended a few meetings and rallies, and this time when the Liberals approached him he agreed to stand.

Asked what he would press for in Parliament, especially pertaining to the field of sports, Red said "nothing definite."

"I have a few ideas about young kids in hockey, especially with the growing emphasis on education, but before I say or do anything I'd have to study the situation thoroughly. I like to know all aspects of a situation before deciding anything. Then, too, I'll only be one member of the party and what the others think will have to be considered."

Why did he decide to enter politics?

"Well, we are living in a democracy, and I think you have to have an interest in it if you're letting your country down.

"A man who speaks proudly of his 18-month-old daughter, Kelly is married to Andra McLaughlin, a figure skating star.

Red refused to be drawn out bluntly on what his future hockey plans are, but he hinted he's not ready to hang up his skates yet.

President Tossed Tricky Curve

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy opened the 1962 major league baseball season today with what looked like a fancy curve.

Kennedy got off a throw that at least a half-dozen other players let go through their hands before Harty Kutyna, catcher, got the ball on the first base line safely ahead of reaching down and picking it up.

The season - opener, against Detroit Tigers, was the first game for the American League's Washington Senators in their new $24,000,000 stadium.

Normally, a president makes two throws, but Kennedy, possibly because he's still nursing an ailing back, made only one. Kutyna followed custom and tossed the ball to the president for an autograph.

Gaudette Leaves Terriers

Gaudette said he and the executive have disagreed on policy matters for the last year or so.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Crossing, a three-year-old colt which was claimed for $15,000 by Jerry Jacobs of Buffalo during the Fort Erie Jockey Club track meeting.

Crossing was the second winner of the day for Jacobs and his trainer, Jack Mooney. They had captured the fourth race with their consistent gelding, Have Gun.

Crossing, ridden by John Damien, defeated Wind Kin by a neck and paid $18.10, $8.30 and $5.40. Bala Roman finished third.

The crowd of 4,976 wagered 2286,561, an increase of 10 per cent over the corresponding day at the 1961 meeting.

There will be no racing today at the jockey club. This will be the first of three "dark" days during Fort Erie's spring meeting.

The other days will be Tuesday, April 17 and Tuesday, April 24.

The three "dark" days result from the desire of the Jockey Club to keep the Canadian thoroughbred racing season end on a Saturday. The Jockey Club is entitled to stage 196 days of racing in Ontario each year.

TRENTON, (CP) — New Jersey Monday adopted new experimental boxing rules to prevent the occurrence of any serious injuries or deaths in the ring.

The rules were announced after a meeting between Governor Richard Hughes and Joseph Walker, state athletic commissioner, and will take effect in 30 days.

The rules change provide:

1. Ten-ounce gloves will be used in all bouts. Previously eight-ounce gloves were used in ordinary bouts and six-ounce gloves in championship fights.

2. The rest period between rounds will be increased to 90 seconds from one minute.

3. Each boxer will be examined between rounds. Present practice is for a doctor to examine a fighter only when the need is apparent or when the referee requests it.

Wednesday, April 11

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) — Treat professional associates like relatives. "You catch more flies with honey today". "Roughhouse" tactics will not work. Use diplomatic approach.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) — Avoid scattering forces. Intentions in social affairs could pose problem. Try to strike balance between work and play. Take "big talk" offered by others with grain of salt.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Best to extend influence as much as possible. Do this through conversation on high level, written word, "wangling" on personal abilities, hunches. Not time to hold back. Excessive timidity counterplay.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) — Day when judgment can be trusted. Act on opinions, don't merely vacillate. How much you make this a red-letter day depends upon faith in yourself. Remember, your cycle is up!

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Fatigue your greatest adversary. If you can conserve energy you will feel better, perform tasks better. Thus you'll live a better per-sonal life. No excuses!

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Romantic highlights could punctuate evening. Try to get hous- in order, for there may be plenty of activity later. Be grateful for your friends. Display gratitude today!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — You could take practical steps up the ladder by accepting challenges, not running away or attempting to skirt duties. Day is fine for ball steamed ahead.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Harmony is key to a rewarding day. So stay out of fights. Turn other cheek if you have to. Follow this advice and you will be going with your cycle. Maybe you walk away from foolish disputes, you gain.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — If you try to use sledge-hammer methods you will turn many away from you. If you prove today that you really are concerned over welfare of those close to you, your stock will soar.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — You may find yourself receiving advice from all quarters. But remember that you arrive at correct answer better by being alone with problem. Take time to decide.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Accept favors, gifts graciously. Sometimes tougher to be a good guest than a good host. This could be a day when you get pleasure by receiving instead of giving.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — Favorable lunar aspect in chart dealing with love, creative endeavors, with intense efforts to give of yourself. Personal generosity, sense of adventure and justice to rule.

If today is your birthday ... within yourself you are aware of abilities, potential. Avoid being too impatient. Your time will come. This November could be that time.

General Tendencies: Opposites attract today. You may not immediately understand mergers, either business or personal. Just accept them! Special word to Cancer. Your cycle is up, but if you walk away from a challenge you could lose prestige.

Victoria B.C. Celebrating Its Centennial Still Retains Unmistakable World Charm

By JOHN MATTERS

VICTORIA (CP) — Victoria was born into the British tradition and named for a queen—a colonial trading fort that grew into a city 100 years ago.

Today as it celebrates its centennial, Victoria is proud of that tradition. Even as a modern city it retains an unmistakable Old World charm which exudes from its beautiful gardens, giant oaks, stately homes and a four-o'clock-tea atmosphere.

In the rough - and - ready pioneer days as Fort Victoria it was concerned mainly with the fur trade and gold rushes. Now its business eye is on the tourist dollar, biggest single source of income. For this it nurtures the "little bit of old England" environment of old book shops, tweeds, fine china and other things British. In Victoria cricket and soccer will outdraw baseball and hockey almost anytime. Even the fog when it comes is like London's.

Life is generally slow-paced compared with big, bustling metropolitan Vancouver 80 miles across the Gulf on the mainland. But it wasn't always so.

TARTED AS FORT

Actually Victoria's history is longer than the 100 years it celebrates this year. It goes back to 1843 when it was laid out and built as a pioneer trading fort for the Hudson's Bay Company by company factor Sir James Douglas on what was then called Camosun Harbor on Vancouver Island's southern tip. It grew so fast it was incorporated only 19 years later.

Sir James, who picked the site for the stockaded fort, was later to become a dominant figure in the early history of British Columbia as its first colonial governor. He died in 1877 and is buried here in a historic cemetery that also holds many other early pioneers.

A cairn marks the spot where his house once stood, but the only remaining physical evidence of the old fort establishment is two iron rings set into a steep waterside rock. They were used for winching ships to a cant so their bottoms could be cleaned in the days when the fort was a trading centre but had no slipways. Ships came there from around the Horn.

The early ships brought not only supplies but brides from England. One of the early weddings was that of Emmaline Tod whose wedding ring had to be hammered from an American gold piece because no other was available. The gold circlet is on view at the provincial archives to which she donated it on her death.

CHOSEN AS CAPITAL

Many descendants of the early families still live in the Victoria area. They can recount second or third hand how the fort was once attacked by Indians who were scared off by the power of the six-pounder guns behind the stockade. Not a drop of blood was spilled.

In 1858 Fort Victoria came in for a quick change. Some 30,000 goldseekers came on their way to the Fraser and the Cariboo. The trading post soon became a city of tents and shacks populated by thousands of bearded miners awaiting transportation. Orientals arrived by the ship load and many stayed or returned. Victoria's Chinatown today takes up a colorful several blocks and offers all kinds of Oriental cuisine and curios.

Time brought a tearing down of the fort palisades to make way for more permanent buildings along laid-out streets and Victoria was incorporated as a city in 1862. In 1866 it replaced New Westminster as capital of the colony of British Columbia formed by the union of Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland. The new colony joined Confederation in 1871 and thus Victoria became the capital of the new province.

Victoria saw a lot of its business and industry gradually go to the mainland when Vancouver became the Pacific terminus of the newly completed Canadian Pacific Railway.

There were other booms in the 1870-1890 period when as a port of entry for the Klondike gold fields and the fur sealing fields and the fur sealing grounds of the Bering Sea, the city saw an influx of thousands of adventurers.

In the years that followed Victoria was to produce a number of colorful figures flitting across the political scene.

One was William Alexander Smith, a Maritimer who came and took the name of Amor DeCosmos — which translated from the Latin means "lover of the world." As editor of the British Colonist, forerunner of the present Daily Colonist, he was a controversial figure described by his opponents as a "splenetic, vitriolic gadfly who takes every opportunity to rouse his readers."

DeCosmos wrote: "I would not object to a little revolution now and again in B.C. I am one of those who believes that political hatreds attest to the vitality of the ass."

He won enough support to be elected as British Columbia's second premier — 1872-1874 — and later represented Victoria in the House of Commons for several years.

In more modern times shipbuilding has been the city's mainstay industry, adding to the nautical flavor long provided by the big naval base at nearby Esquimalt. Sailors are a familiar sight on Victoria streets.

But in the main Victoria's 150,000 people—including those in the surrounding municipalities of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt — are—white-collar workers. There are many retired persons, some wealthy, some tilled, who came to settle, apparently attracted by the balmy climate which Victoria boasts is the best in the province. Roses sometimes bloom in December.

In Victoria the visitor can have the four-o'clock tea which has become a tradition in the lounge of the city's big Tudor-like Empress Hotel, he can visit verdant woodlands and a world-famous botanical garden with plants and flowers from around the world. He can see lush fruit and vegetable - growing lands in the surrounding countryside where Christmas holly growing has been a year-round business.

Victorians have long appeared to outsiders as preoccupied with such local issues as preservation of the city's old - fashioned cluster street lamps. City council now has decided to make just a small token concession to the modern—the clusters are to be fitted with plastic globes.

WANT TOURISTS

Squabbles involving such organizations as the Cat Protection League or the merits of bird - watching fill the correspondence columns of the newspapers. Gulls that swarm around the ferries appear in almost every cartoon about Victoria.

Businessmen are plumping for the tourist business that has become Victoria's biggest industry. The spruce - up for the centennial year is to include a start on establishing a recreation of the Sherwood Forest of Robin Hood and his merry men.

The $800,000 development will stretch along the Gorge, an inland waterway from the harbor. It will feature drawbridges and moats, dungeons, a village square, Nottingham Castle, a millhouse and pond, a deer park and zoo and barbecue pits for the do-it-yourself picnic cooker.

Tourist promoters are elated with the idea. They hope it will help bring even more tourists than the number who spent an estimated $7,500,000 on Vancouver Island last year — and particularly attract Americans whose land lies just across the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

FAMILY MAN GETS BREAK IN BUDGET

Budget Designed To Aid Business And Reap Votes

Fleming Had No Chance To Cut Taxes Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — Two main objectives stand out in the budget speech Finance Minister Fleming delivered Tuesday night.

One is to give new incentives to Canada business to expand, create new jobs, spend more prosperity, and work harder to meet foreign competition.

The other is to give Conservative party campaigners a handy pocket - sized summary of five years of Conservative rule in a form suitable for use in the election expected in June.

It is generally conceded among politicians that an election this year is no time to increase taxes.

Mr. Fleming did not increase domestic taxes, but at the same time, he had little elbow room in his pre-election budget to reduce the tax load appreciably.

Altogether, the cost of the measures of Mr. Fleming's budget of tax changes added up to $130,000,000. He expects part of this to be recovered through new revenues resulting from his forecast of a 5 per cent increase in gross national product during the next year. The net effect was to increase the expected deficit by $60,000,000 to, $745,000,000.

TO HELP ALL

His problem was to spread tax concessions around so they would have the most impact.

He chose incentives to business and a modest increase in personal income tax exemptions for dependents.

Repeatedly through his speech Mr. Fleming referred to the government's desire to stimulate Canadian enterprise in new effort and new peaks of achievement.

With last year's deficit of $791,400,000, the government has accumulated deficits in the last five years of $2,136,400,000.

In the same period, Mr. Fleming emphasized, the government has made substantial contributions to provincial treasuries and payments to various institutions in the provinces have amounted to $6,286,300,000.

The "enormous" increase in assistance to the provinces had helped them meet their municipalities. The cumulative increase in these federal contributions to the provinces in the last five years had "given rise to several budgetary deficits" and had, in fact, been greater than the total budget deficits by $276,000,000.

The pickets were kept away from the arrival area, so that the Shah and the empress did not see them or their signs, which read "corruption in Iran breeds communism," and "free elections for Iran."

The Shah said he and his wife are looking forward to meeting the president, and Mrs. Kennedy.

PICTON TENOR HELD FOR FRAUD IN NEW YORK

Charles Kingsley Faces Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — The district-attorney's office accused a Canadian tenor Tuesday of swindling his singing teacher of $2,500 and trying to swindle Metropolitan Opera Basso Cesare Siepi of $3,200.

The Canadian, Charles Kingsley, 34, was booked on charges of grand larceny and attempted grand larceny. Police said he came here from Picton, Ont.

Assistant District Attorney Herbert Stern said Kingsley promised to give his singing teacher, Mary Ludington, $250-a week if she would help him get $2,500 in cash.

Kingsley also promised to give the voice coach $50,000 for the same reasons, Stern added. Kingsley then was arrested after he was temporarily short of cash and needed $2,500 to pay the gift tax on the $50,000.

Kingsley, who is living in Kingsley also promised to give $50,000 to Miss Ann Rankin and her husband, Dr. Hugh Davidson, just because they were nice persons and he had so much money.

GETS ANOTHER CHEQUE

Again Stern said Kingsley was temporarily short of cash and asked Miss Rankin for $3,200 to cover the gift tax on her $105,000. She wrote him a cheque for $3,200 last Friday, Stern added.

The detention board stood in the same day and stopped payment of the cheque, then sent the district-attorney's office.

Kingsley was picked up Monday night by detectives and was arrested this morning. He had a ticket to fly to Brazil tonight, Stern said.

Stern said Kingsley told his friends he was heir to a $300,000,000 fortune that he would get next June. He also claimed he owned extensive holdings in Spain, a huge ranch in Arizona worth $10,000 and several other two large office buildings in downtown Manhattan, the district attorney said.

Atomic Furnace in Canada's First Nuclear Power Station Operating

ROLPHTON, Ont. (CP)—The atomic furnace in Canada's first nuclear power station went into operation here several days today, culminating seven years of research and development by Canadian scientists and engineers.

The successful start up of the nuclear reactor does not mean, however, that the $65,000,000 experimental station is producing electricity. The plant is expected, one of the final stages in the commissioning of the station, before being connected to produce its first electricity within the next few months.

The station, known as Nuclear Power Demonstration, is about one-half mile from the south shore of the Ontario side of the Ottawa River, 110 miles northeast of Ottawa and 70 miles upstream from the Crown-owned Chalk River research centre of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited.

The plant, only one of its kind in the world, was built as a co - operative project by Atomic Energy of Canada, Ontario Hydro and the Canadian General Electric Company Limited.

The atomic furnace in the station began "burning" uranium and generating heat for the first time at 2:40 a.m. The event was witnessed by 30 officials of the three companies involved in construction of the project.

A variety of commissioning tests will be conducted during the next few months before the reactor is brought up to its full heat capacity. At that time steam created by this heat will be fed from a steam generator into a turbine-generator unit to produce electricity.

NEW will become an electrical output of 20,000 kilowatts but will not produce electricity economically. However, information obtained through operation of the station will help make it possible to build large scale economic plants.

The plant uses natural uranium as a fuel. Heavy water is used to slow down neutrons and the atomic fission process possible and to transfer heat from the reactor to the steam.

Canada is banking on this method of production of large blocks of economic nuclear power. A number of countries — including India, Britain and the United States—are expressing a growing interest in the Canadian system.

The station will be operated by the Hydro - Electric Power Commission of Ontario which will pay Atomic Energy of Canada for the steam fed to the turbine.

Concessions Are Welcomed In Reaction to Budget

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tax concessions to encourage Canadian production and research were widely welcomed in initial reaction to Tuesday night's budget.

While political opponents grn erally condemned the budget as inadequate, most business spokesmen appeared unlikely to say "thanks" for what they got.

But some were disappointed in labor. Non-election heard about the same day and stopped payment of the cheque, then sent the district-attorney's office.

Kingsley was picked up Monday night by detectives and was arrested this morning. He had a ticket to fly to Brazil tonight, Stern said.

Pilot Strike May Spread To East and West Coasts

MONTREAL (CP) — A meeting of river pilots in Trois-Rivieres, Que., today is expected to decide whether a work stoppage, which already has cut up almost all shipping on the lower stretch of the St. Lawrence river, will be extended to ports on the two coasts.

Andre Bedard, president of the Federation of St. Lawrence River Pilots, said Tuesday he has been asked by the Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC) that it is willing to join the 278 Quebec pilots in a series of general meetings.

Mr. Bedard said he would recommend the inclusion of the Montreal pilots in the meetings if he could get a favorable answer to what he described as "major concessions" sought during a meeting with Transport Minister Balcer in Ottawa Monday.

He said these concessions included the offer of a three-year freeze on pilots' tariffs and several other matters dealing with work conditions and revenues. Revenues are the main point of dispute. The pilots earn an estimated $12,000 a year.

However, Mr. Balcer told the house Tuesday the pilots had made no move to modify their "excessive" demands and had rejected his request for an end to the work stoppage.

He called for "a general inquiry into the whole question of pilotage matters."

Mr. Bedard called a remark by Mr. Balcer that the shipping companies would continue to move their vessels with or without pilots "a dangerous attitude."

Mr. Balcer said the shippers had told him they were prepared to accept a prolonged work stoppage in "in their own long-range interests."

He said the shippers had also told him they were willing to collect negotiators until the men return to work. "I urged them not to take this obdurate attitude."

Mr. Chevrier, a former transport minister, commented that the pilots seek higher rates because of the increased tonnage of the ships they handle.

The minister replied that the pilots' demands have been increased as in the last three years.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) said an investigation should be made into pilotage operations in the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes waterway system as far as the Lakehead.

He urged Mr. Balcer to get the help of the Canada labor relations board, even in an unofficial way, to settle the current dispute even if it is not a legal strike.

Reduces Rate On Profits Of Business $130 Million; Income Taxes Stay Same

Pearson Describes New Budget As 'Vote Now and Pay Later'

OTTAWA (CP)—A blue-pain special for the go-go business community served up Tuesday night by Finance Minister Fleming in a pre-election budget speech lasting an hour and 45 minutes.

Main feature of a budget forecasting a 1962-63 deficit of $745,000,000 and reducing the tax take by $130,000,000 was a rebate as high as 50 per cent on taxes due on profits from increased sales by manufacturing and processing firms.

Personal and corporate income tax rates remain unchanged.

If the budget was designed as a vote-gatherer in advance of the general election expected in June, it wasn't blazingly apparent.

Mr. Fleming made a modest bow in the direction of the individual taxpayer by boosting $350,000,000 from revenue in the personal income tax field.

RAISES DEDUCTIONS

He accomplished this by raising deductions from taxable income for dependents by $50 to $300 for children 16 and under and by $550 for other dependents, whether children or adults.

Opposition Leader Pearson, referring to the sixth deficit in a row since the Conservatives took office, said Mr. Fleming's deficits now totalled nearly $3,000,000,000.

He said the budget could be described as "vote now, pay later."

Mr. Fleming said the tax incentive for increasing sales should result in cancellation of at least $50,000,000 in taxes in a full year. This is about four per cent of all corporation income taxes which will be paid this year.

The business man's budget also provided for another $35,000,000 worth of incentives to the petroleum industry and companies increasing investment in scientific research for industrial purposes.

Mr. Fleming forecast a seven-per-cent increase in the gross national product — compared with last year's five-cent rise — and said the central purpose of the budget was "the encouragement of economic growth."

SPUR TO PRODUCE

The tax incentives were designed to spur increased production and employment.

In brief, these features are:

1. Cancellation of 50 per cent of the tax on the first $50,000 of taxable income arising from increased sales by manufacturing and processing companies in excess of 25 per cent of the tax on any additional income arising from increased sales. The increased sales will be calculated on the dollar volume of gross sales this year against those in 1961.

2. Deduction of 150 per cent of increased expenditures on scientific research for industrial purposes when computing income for tax purposes.

3. Petroleum companies may deduct all pre-production expenses, including costs of rights, exploration and drilling, in computing taxable income.

Mr. Fleming said the increases will result in revenues of about $22,000,000 in the 1962-63 fiscal year which began April 1 and $65,000,000 in a full year. Sales tax reductions would

OF from AP-Reuters

PARIS — Edmond Jouhaud, who quit as French air force chief of staff to become a leader of the terrorist Secret Army in Algeria, went on trial for his life today depicting himself as a patriot.

Charged with taking part in the abortive putsch in April, 1961, and of being a leader of the Secret Army, the former general said he could not deny that he was in revolt against the French government.

In a calm, dispassionate address, Jouhaud sought to justify his conduct on the grounds that he was following the same policies that he had always defended and that many French governments and political leaders had espoused.

When the putsch collapsed, Jouhaud said he went underground because many of his friends and colleagues in the operation were forced to do the same thing and he insisted that "where the fate of my compatriots is."

He said his whole aim was to keep Algeria under French control.

Referring to the charge that the Secret Army was in open revolt against the government, he said "they might reproach me for being in revolt." But added: "We were abandoned, betrayed."

The high military court sentenced Jouhaud to death in absentia last July for his part in the putsch. He was captured in Oran, Algeria, March 26.

Kingston Will Operate Own Bus System

KINGSTON (CP) — Kingston may soon have a municipally-operated bus system.

City council Tuesday night rejected the last offer from private enterprise to operate a bus system and has slated a meeting for Monday night with the Public Utilities Commission to discuss the possible takeover by the existing bus system to the city.

The commission earlier agreed to take over the buses if it is given a clear mandate by city council and if the PUC has complete control of the system.

Colonial Coach Lines, currently operating the bus system, said it would require an annual management fee of $30,000 or it would require the city to pay all operating and maintenance costs.

The proposal was rejected by the city.

Prime Minister Agrees to Give A Run-Down

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker agreed Tuesday the opposition suggestions that he give the Commons a run-down of the urgent legislation Parliament must complete before the Eastern recess. He didn't say when this would be done.

Opposition Leader Pearson said it was normal for the prime minister to do so at this time of year. Parliament normally adjourns the Wednesday before Easter and remains in recess for the week following.

When H. W. Herridge (CCF — Kootenay West) asked when the Easter recess would begin this year, Mr. Diefenbaker said: "Some days in advance of Good Friday."

Neither Mr. Pearson nor Mr. Herridge was confident expectation of a general election. It has been assumed that Parliament will be dissolved about the time it normally would recess for Easter, and a June election would follow.

Angling History Outlined at Kiwanis Club

Local Kiwanians were treated to a treatise on the history of angling by Ontario Lands and Forest biologist Frank Oseelis of Tweed at the club's weekly dinner meeting in Memorial Centre yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Oseelis noted that history of fishing goes back into the mists of antiquity and the origin of fishing methods, especially those pertaining to angling, are in some instances unknown. The use of the Red Hackle artificial fly dates back at least to the third century A.D. when its use to catch "speckled fish" on the river Astreous in ancient Macedonia was recorded, he advised. There is also a record of the ancient Greeks having used dry flies.

The speaker gave an interesting history of ice fish hook and its development from a gorge, which is simple enough device made of stone, wood or bone, which later was developed through various stages of development as new materials, such as bronze and copper, became available to man and the barbed hook came into being.

The development of leaders, lines, poles, reels and lures was also discussed by the Lands and Forest's representative. It was noted that the steel rod was in use in England as early as 1848, a replacement for the heavy greenheart rod which was widely used in England and sturdy enough to be used for a boat's mast, Mr. Esherman advised rowing and wished to sail.

The single action reel is dying, it is unknown but was in popular use in England during the 1880's, Mr. Oseelis advised. The automatic fly reel appeared in 1905 with the stationary spool reel being a product of the current century and having its origin in Europe.

Whatever might be the decision there can be no doubt man in the way of lures today there exists a very good possibility that the modern device was used, if not by primitive tribes, at least by the ancient Romans, Egyptians or Chinese, Mr. Oseelis concluded.

A question and answer session following his address but the speaker declined from entering any discussion centering on whether the type, size of equipment would catch the most fish.

The speaker was introduced and thanked by Kiwanian Bob Freestone. Lorne McDougall respectively. President George Hume conducted the meeting.

Diary Shows Why Raleigh Lost Favor

LONDON - (AP) - An old diary hidden for three centuries discloses that Sir Walter Raleigh fell from the favor of Good Queen Bess because he got a girl in the family way.

That was the beginning of the end of the dashing, picturesque courtier and adventurer of his day.

The diary makes it clear he was forced into a secret marriage that led to disgrace and, eventually, to a "wondrous" with the executioner's axe.

Dr. A. L. Rowse of Oxford University, called a significant scoop in a book disclosing the contents of the diary, found in a storeroom at Longbertony Cadgebural.

Historians had been unaware that Raleigh fathered a child although his secret marriage was well known.

CHILD DIED

The girl he had to wed was Bess Throckmorton, maid of honor to Queen Elizabeth I. Their child, it is believed to have died in infancy.

The 370-year-old diary was written by Thomas Throckmorton, brother of Raleigh's bride. It paints a brilliant picture of courtly intrigue when Raleigh, at 37, was at the peak of his career.

He had led ships against the Spanish Armada and against the Irish. His privateering ventures brought money to the government.

With his handsome face and bold manner, he was a favorite of the "virgin queen," a peahen woman then 56.

It was in 1589 that Raleigh committed his fatal mistake. He got a girl in trouble and married her secretly. Then, after she became pregnant, he married her in secret.

Elizabeth became furious when she learned of the marriage. Raleigh and the girl were clapped into dungeons. He was freed after five weeks but four months later he had gone and the road led downhill. Bess Throckmorton was held four months.

Raleigh was condemned by James I after the queen's death and was beheaded in 1618.

White Cane Club Holds Joint Meeting

A joint business and recreation meeting of the Belleville Club was held at the Kiwanis Centre on Monday night.

A business discussion took place regarding the club problems. Presentation of bandages for the leprosariums, with several members deciding to participate in the Belleville endeavor.

Pat Baverstock gave a report on the bowling tournament held in Kingston last Saturday for which the Rotarians provided transportation. Cornwall, Kingston and Belleville bowlers took part with Kingston being the winner. All had a most enjoyable time.

Mrs. Betty Colden entertained with two readings, "Friday, Bargain Day," by Jessie Alexander Smith, and "Grandma Mozzy Drummond's "De Steve Flop Hoss," which Vi Walls expressed the appreciation of the club.

The members played three games, "The Coutie Game," won by Ieaki Lake, "Newspaper" game won by Charlie Dolan.

The story of "How Hot Cross Buns Were Started" was read by Maude Rollins. Today, Hot Cross Buns are associated with Lent, Good Friday and Easter. They have a religious significance. Crosses on the fresh dough is a sign of the Christian faith, the bread, itself, being a traditional symbol of religious celebration and observance of special occasions.

This is a fascinating story, starting with the gradual evolution of "Moonsibus" to the sweet spicy buns of today, which Christian people all over the world continue to eat during the Lenten period.

Subsequently, a comparison will be made of Tiros IV's photographs and the actual cloud pictures observed from the ground at Trenton.

Earlier this year Air Transport Command's No. 426 (Reconnaissance) Squadron Lancasters photographed areas of the St. Lawrence Seaway for comparison with Tiros IV's photos of the same area.

Information received from the satellite will be of value to weather forecasters throughout the world, the data is passed on to the International Meteorological Organization.

Daniel Crosby Pleads Guilty To Four Charges

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at the town hall yesterday Daniel Crosby, 22, Shuter St., Trenton, pleaded guilty to two charges of breaking and entering with intent and two charges of breaking, entering and theft. He was sentenced to 18 months in the Ontario Reformatory to be run concurrently with a 12 months sentence at the same institution imposed by Magistrate R. B. Baxter for offences in Northumberland county.

Provincial Police Constable S. Vickers testified that Crosby had admitted breaking and entering the Trenton Motors premises on December 31, with a companion, whom he named as Dennis Assistine, also of Trenton. Crosby said that he and Assistine had entered the plant by removing a large plate glass window which was placed loosely over the window opening. He said that they had replaced the glass before proceeding into the main showroom of the plant but that a burglar alarm had gone off and that the glass had been broken when they made a hasty retreat through the same window.

Constable Vickers stated that Crosby had also admitted breaking into the CNR high school on December 8 and that entry had been gained by a door broken into the CNR tool shed and taken a lining bar, which was used to break into the Skill Tool plant the same night. He said that a cheque for $3.89 was taken from the office in the Skill Tool plant.

Asked for an opinion, Crown Attorney John A. Bristow said that in view of Crosby's past record, he thought a fair sentence for penitentiary was called for, but Magistrate T. Y. Wills said that he had to consider the course of corrective action taken by Magistrate Baxter and imposed the reformatory sentence.

Dennis Assistine, charged in connection with the breaking and entering of the Moreton-Parker plant, was remanded for trial when he appeared in a "preliminary" hearing. Magistrate Wills committed him for trial.

Belleville barrister William Angus argued that the charge had not been involved until police told Crosby that Assistine is trying to put the finger on you."

Daniel Crosby testified that he had been told that Assistine was trying to involve Crosby in the Canoma and Canoma had also been involved in the Assistine, Crosby, the Morton-Parker plant and had no part in the break.

Trustee Wants French Taught In Public Schools

TRENTON — The feasibility of introducing the possibility of the Trenton Board of Education carrying out the experiment advanced by Mrs. Gabrielle Griffiths, education chairman with the hope that French can be taught in Grades Seven and Eight of the town's elementary schools, will be considered by the board as a whole over a period of time, it was decided.

Board members and supervising principal H. P. Cornwell found merit in the suggestion, "I favor a second language", said the Rev. Ronald Reid), but a number of problems present themselves in considering the introduction of such a undertaking. First and foremost is the problem of securing qualified teachers. Then too, there is the problem of dropping some other subject from the curriculum to make way for French and this problem must be thought will be given to making French an optional subject, taught after four o'clock.

SCHOOL PRAISED

In a written report to the Trenton Board of Education public school inspector C. E. McMullen had this to say about the Trenton Public School system:

"I have attended each public school's reliable and effective teaching staff.

He said that the attitude of the younger students towards their teachers could be summed up by quoting from one youngster's composition.

"Thanks to the teacher, the young lad said . . .

"All the things to make you mad.

But I love you anyway".

Gardeners Starting Their Spring Chores

TRENTON — Mrs. S. L. Clindinin, Henry Street, reports that she noticed the first sequel of snow-drops from her garden last Sunday.

Those who believe that lawns should be given the first cut of the year are raking and those who think they shouldn't be are not. (For new-cut emerging crab grass) aren't.

Parks' gardener Bart Boersma reports that he started his spring program in the town parks.

C of C Plans Fishing Derby For Opening

PICTON (special)—The Bay of Quinte waters, which surround the greater part of Prince Edward County in which this tourist town is located, are the first to be opened for pickerel fishing in 1962. The season opens on Saturday, April 14 and many visitors, opening season is May 12. The early opening, following close to the great spawning migration of thousands of big pickerel, from Lake Ontario, is expected to attract a great many fishing enthusiasts.

Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce plans to make the visit of Pickerel fishermen an extra rewarding one on the first two open days. Prizes valued at one thousand dollars are being offered for the largest pickerel caught on April 28 and 29. Included are a 5-1-2 horse power motor for the biggest, 3 h.p. motor for second largest, rod and reel for third, and a host of other prizes. These prizes are to be presented on the Sunday afternoon at Prince Edward Yacht Club.

Registrations are required in advance off fishing and headquarters will be at Hepburn's Picton Bay Marina located at the head of Picton Bay in the heart of the town. All night service is being arranged for registration, distribution of free maps showing best fishing areas, providing accommodation under Chamber of Commerce direction, with licenses available for United States visitors.

Walleye is expected most, most fishermen will bring their own boats, a number of outboard motors are being provided, along with two large fishing boats for parties.

The Bay of Quinte, scene of the famed Harmsworth races, and the inland waters of Prince Edward County, have always been top fishing grounds for all types of game fish, but this is the first time a fishing derby has been held and plans are being made to provide every necessary service for those who come to participate on April 28 and 29.

Parking Meter Revenue $12,000 More Than Budget

Parking meters in the city returned considerably more revenue during the past year than had been anticipated by the local parking authority.

According to the Authority audit presented to Council Monday evening, parking meter revenue for the year totalled $47,-291.50, approximately $12,000 more than had been expected for at the beginning of the year.

Total receipts for the year including a surplus of $15,052 from the previous year, amounted to $62,343.50.

Expenditures included $9,734 for debenture debt charges; $17,830 for purchase of new meters; $10,097 in salaries, and $4,000 for reserve fund contribution. Surplus at the year end was $12,681.

The Authority balance sheet showed assets of $181,307, including $103,993 in land and $72,463 in equipment. The Authority has a debenture debt of $67,056.

After expenditures are pair, revenue from parking meters is placed in a special fund to be used for the purchase of additional on-street parking accommodation.

Negotiations are currently underway for expropriation of further Front Street property to be used for off street parking.

Annual Smelt Run Not Started

The annual run of smelt up rivers and bays on Lake Ontario has not started yet, according to Lands and Forests conservation officers.

However, commercial fishermen are getting large catches out of Lake Ontario, hauling the "silver dinners" from between 150 and 190 feet of water.

Herbert McCabe of the Bay of Quinte Fisheries says the hauls are good and the fish excellent.

Hoop net fishermen are not having too well and conservation officers are busy examining catches to make certain all game fish species are released.

CONCESSIONS

meeting chiefly on budget provisions for reduction in taxes on profits from increased sales; a one-year extension of the program-allowing double depreciation for new manufacturing investment in depressed areas or for new-product manufacturing and for deduction from taxable income of 150 per cent of increased expenditures in research for research.

While the research concession was widely greeted, some firms that already have big research programs gave it a wry look. This is because they won't get concessions on their already large programs, except to the extent that they may increase them; while newcomers to research will benefit.

On the whole, however, the concession was regarded as one that may stimulate Canadian firms to more research, encourage foreign firms to do more research through their Canadian subsidiaries, and help keep Canadian research talent at home.

Hugh Monigomery, president of the Canadian Construction Association, said extention of sales tax exemptions to all sewer and drainage pipe will help lower the cost of housing.

A long-felt grievance in the oil industry was at least partially met as Canadian companies have complained that they are in a position of disadvantage in comparison to American, wholly-owned companies operating in Canada, because of many, favorable American tax laws. Under the budget provision, companies and individuals will be allowed for tax purposes to deduct exploration costs from income for oil or gas production. H. H. Somerville, Alberta's deputy mines minister, said this will be a help to the industry.

A provision under which Ontario and British Columbia logging companies will get a tax break on logging roads and special provincial taxes will save D. J. and A. Logging firms about $900,000 a year, Ontario Treasurer James Allan said.

BETTER than "MONEY IN THE BANK"

Inflation makes the dollar crumble. But it increases property values.

Thus buying a good home is a sound investment, apart from the comforts and pleasures it will give your family.

Years hence, you may get far more than you paid for your home. That is the reason why a BETTER "use" than money in the bank" does it and let us show you a few "winners".

Reports Heard On Delhi, India, Conference

A post-Delhi regional conference for the Bay of Quinte district was held yesterday afternoon and evening at the St. Thomas' Church Hall under the sponsorship of the Belleville Ministerial Association. Bishop H. R. Hunt, the Rev. Dr. Emlyn Davies of Toronto, delegates to the recent assembly of the World Council of Churches in New Delhi, India, were guest speakers.

Both lecture and discussion groups were held. Covered during the course of the conference were such topics as "Implications for Local Church Life," the work of the International Missionary Council, "The Church and Society Humanity" and "Objectives in Unity."

Amongst the reports on what took place at the New Delhi assembly was the assembly's appeal to all governments and peoples for concrete action to overcome complete and total disarmament, calling for mutual confidence between nations and the elimination of barriers of communication so that freedom of human contact, information and cultural exchange could take place.

The appeal called on governments to "remember that they are the servants of their citizens and respect the worth of each individual human being." "The supreme achievement, for a government is to explain the dignity of man, and free him for the creative exercise of his higher powers," this document states.

Both district clergy and laymen were present for the conference. About 100 were in attendance for the afternoon and evening session. A dinner was held for those in attendance at Tabernacle United Church.

Nearly All Ice Gone From Bay West of Bridge

With the complete break-up appearing imminent, for the past week, practically the last of the ice covered out of the Bay of Quinte west of the Bay Bridge yesterday.

For the past week the ice field has been gradually mowing down the bay, but until yesterday had been stopped in the vicinity of the Graham farm, about three miles west of the city.

Then the field began to move before the stiff west wind and mouth of the remaining ice west of the bridge was rapidly broken up and floated through the bridge spans.

This morning a small field along the north shore, stretching up to about the D.S.D., is all that remains of the winter's ice.

But last night's chilly temperature again put a thin skim of ice along the shores and in the coves.

Rabbits Kill Many Trees During Winter

At least orchards in the area and even shrubbery took a beating from the bunnies as bark was stripped away in many instances killing the trees.

Otho Herrington, Rosemore orchardist, reports that approximately 40 young apple trees set out a few years ago were killed by the rabbits while the larger trees were also attacked and were saved only by wrapping the trunks in tar paper.

The rabbits even took a liking to young shrubs and evergreens with the needles in many instances being stripped from the limbs.

4-H Sweet Corn Club Lists Officers

Organizational meeting for the 4-H Sweet Corn Club for South Hastings was held at the Tabernacle Camera in Foxboro.

Meeting was brought to order by Mr. Gibson Patterson, assistant Agricultural Representative, who explained the 4-H project for the coming season.

Mr. Morley Phillips, club leader, led in the election of officers.

President, Harold Bateman; vice-president, Larry Jones; secretary, Dorothy Brooks; press reporter, Kirk Carleton.

Dr. J. F. McCorquodale, sub-district veterinarian, Belleville, has revealed that a skunk, diagnosed as being infected with rabies, was shot recently by Charles Thorne, Belleville Animal Control Service, in the Overlea Elbow region on West Dundas St. A dog and a cat, suspected of having contact with the skunk have been disposed of by the owners.

Dr. McCorquodale suggests that pet owners should watch their pets very closely for any unusual signs of illness and to seek the advice of their local veterinarian in cases that appear to be acting strangely.

He also urges that owners refrain from allowing their pets to roam at large and recommends that pet owners have their dogs and cats vaccinated against rabies by their local veterinarian.

A Pleasant Surprise

Most Belleville taxpayers, we suspect, were pleasantly surprised to discover that the residential tax rate has been stabilized, for this year, at least.

A reduction of a mere tenth of a mill is in itself insignificant, but because increasing mill rates have become commonplace this small relief will be received with much thanks.

Credit for this achievement should doubtless be shared between members of the Council, City Manager J. R. Reynolds, Treasurer Terence Bender, the heads of the various city departments and the various boards and commissions which share in the revenue collected by taxes.

At the same time, the increase of 2.7 mills in the industrial and commercial rate provides ample warning, if any were needed, that there is no reason for complacency regarding the financing of our municipal needs and that not only the council, but boards and commissions, too, ought to weigh the cost of every penny to forego minor repairs at the expense of major outlays later. Sufficient unto tomorrow will be the expense thereof, without loading the future with the proper expenditures of the present.

Indeed, just as one must often spend money to make money, spending money today frequently is the best, or even only, way to save money tomorrow. For this reason, the suggestion of Ald. Jack Ellis that the city adopt a "pay-as-you-go" policy towards the city's share of local improvements has a particular appeal to us. Mayor A. M. Haig was probably correct in arguing that this is not the year in which to adopt such a policy—would inevitably have ruined the admirable efforts to hold the tax line—but it is certainly a policy which should be embraced at the earliest feasible opportunity.

It seems to us, however, that even more desirable than this "pay-as-you-go" policy on local improvements would be a determined effort to reduce such expenditure to the minimum. For several years past the city has required subdividers to install streets, water mains and sewers. Other services which purchasers of property in these sub-divisions may later desire are curbs and gutters, storm sewers and sidewalks. Knocks where spring flooding may be a problem, curbs and gutters do not seem essential. The cost of storm sewers is at present met entirely out of general funds, nothing being charged to local improvements. Whether this policy should remain unchanged is a matter on which sides have good arguments. Surely, though, there can be little doubt but that sidewalks ought to be installed in at least some portions of new sub-divisions.

There is, for instance, a crying need for sidewalks on Bridge Street East, Victoria Avenue, past the Harry J. Clarke Public School, and along Farley Avenue, leading to Moira Secondary School. Even when Victoria Avenue is paved, like Farley Avenue, there will remain a serious danger of accidents as long as children, walking to schools in opposite directions, are forced to share the road with motorists. Normally the city pays no share of the cost of sidewalks. However, where the sidewalks are made wider than normal, because of heavy pedestrian traffic, the city helps to shoulder the burden. The same rule would appear applicable in the event of sidewalks being installed on certain streets of new sub-divisions, because of the proximity of these streets to schools, while other streets are permitted to remain without sidewalks.

Nothing can be done about the situation where these conditions already exist—but in future might the council not consider requiring sub-dividers to install sidewalks, as well as streets, water mains and sewers?

Every man hath in his own life sins enough, in his own mind trouble enough; so that curiostie after the affairs of others cannot be without envy and an evil minde. What is it to us if my neighbour's grandfather were a Syrian, or his grandmother Hagitimate, or that another is indebted five thousand pounds, or whether his wife be expensive?—Jeremy Taylor.

We All Make Our Own Luck

Cleveland Plain Dealer

Luck, says the dictionary, is "that which happens to a person . . . as if by chance, in the course of events." This is scarcely the definition Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. placed on the word when he appeared to testify before the House Space Committee, the first of three astronauts to do so.

He had made a flight, apparently, he said, "Where do you get your luck?"

"We make our own luck", Shepard told the members of the committee, "by careful attention to details and design and qualification tests."

There is a lesson here for all of us. A first rate mechanic, for example, is a rule. Why? Because the boss thinks he is handsome? He gets a raise because he has paid attention to detail and knows what makes him a good mechanic, hence eligible for a raise.

We, in America, are accused of doing almost all our work in pretty sloppy fashion and when one finds missing parts in the body of a brand new automobile, it certainly seems so. It is true in many fields. The point is not to copy the attention to detail we should pay, and we are much too inclined to think that anyone who is moving ahead is lucky.

Luck, in the opinion of Cmdr. Shepard, is not something which happens by chance, but something we make happen. If luck is a good thing it simply indicates one has been methodically doing the things he should have done, and done them well. And bad luck happens, not by chance, but because one has not been on the job or has not done the things he should have done.

If that point of view could become widespread throughout the nation, the result of Cmdr. Shepard's testimony, he would have contributed fully as much to the country's moral and brighter future as he did when he was whirled through space in suborbital flight.

Letter To The Editor

High Praise Given Men at City Dump

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I would like to pay tribute to those men who work at the city dump. It is not the most pleasant of jobs, but it has to be done.

As I live in the country, I bring my garbage into the city dump once a week. I have found the men who work there most courteous. One day it was very muddy and when I stepped from my car I found myself up to my ankles in mud. Over at the dump office was a man on a bulldozer, pushing garbage into a ditch. He saw my plight and told me to just stay where I was. He drove over to me and offered the scoop attached to the bulldozer and told me to put my garbage into it. I was then offered my thanks and drove away. No doubt in the future I could have been more gallant than that often on the bulldozer.

Similar gestures of kindness have been afforded me on many different occasions, and I feel that those people who do not make personal trips to the city dump should be aware of the fine men who work there.

Strictly Personal

In Main Man Master of His Own Fate

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

David was playing with one of those little plastic clowns the other morning and noticed that it heavily weighted at the bottom, so that no matter how often you push it over, it returns to a standing position.

The principle is quite simple, of course — the clown's centre of gravity is low, and is well based; if it were weighted on top, the slightest breeze could knock it over.

As I left the house, it occurred to me that perhaps the chief difference between neurotic and non-neurotic personalities lies in what we might call their centre of gravity.

In the non-neurotic the weight is down at the bottom, firmly rooted in the earth, while the neurotic it is all up in the head, so that the least touch from the outside topples it to the ground.

And this, of course, is why troubled personalities respond so excessively to outside influences — a kind word, a pat on the fatten them out for a day, and a compliment inflates them almost to the point of bursting point. Such personalities can have no inner equilibrium, for they are too dependent upon the chance winds of social contacts, blowing from all directions.

What they need to learn — and how hard a lesson it is for some! — is that other people do not affect us as much as we think, either for good or for ill. We are not made worse by a knock, nor better by a word of encouragement; we remain just as we were.

Except for catastrophes — which can come equally to all, and which no one can anticipate or avoid — the only harm that can come to us is the harm we do to ourselves, and the only benefit that can come to us is the benefit we bring to ourselves.

The over-estimation of other people's influence, both positively and negatively, is the result of a lack of inner self-assurance, repose and inner security. It is a damaging remnant of our childhood's belief that grownups have immense power to punish us or to injure us.

They do, when we are little; but they lose this power as we grow older. Maturity means learning to lower our centre of psychic gravity so that, if touched or even pushed, we, like the plastic clown, will right ourselves.

Resiliency and flexibility are the marks of an adult, as distinct from children, who are so easily wounded and so easily killed.

What others do to us, for us or against us is infinitely less important than what we do to, for or against ourselves. Too many people are living little bitter cry, "I am mine own executioner."

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

THAT ULTIMATE SERENITY

It is interesting to ponder the fact that we live in a universe in which the atoms which make it up are continually in furious movement. The chair on which you happen to be sitting seems to be a solid piece of furniture. As a matter of fact, it is an inconceivable number of atoms revolving on orbits at almost immeasurable speed.

Furthermore, we are being hurled about the axis of the earth at eighteen miles a minute and around the orbit of the earth at eighteen miles a second. Astronomers tell us that the whole galaxy of which we are a part seems to be in tremendous flight from here to somewhere.

Can we be serene in such a world? Is not the nature of the world such that we must necessarily be at all times in a state of agitation? Not at all. We are not conscious of the movement of the earth about its axis or around its orbit. We have no consciousness of the terrific movement of atoms in the objects about us. We live in our own bodies. But we are led to believe that in the realm where God abides there is peace and absolute serenity.

It is not so much one statement of the Bible but the whole teaching of the Bible which seems to indicate this. We can be serene because we live in a universe in which there is such serenity presumably reigns.

"Peace," said Zeus, "I leave with you."

To Your Good Health

The Human Body Requires Only a Trace of Iodine

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Sir: Will four drops of iodine daily in a glass of water be good for health, or do harm?—Mrs. J.P.

I'm sure you're referring to tincture of iodine, the ordinary kind that is an antiseptic. Except a mild irritation in instances there is no danger in that amount. For one thing, it isn't much iodine. Pure iodine is a solid, and the tincture is only the amount that is dissolved in alcohol.

To prevent goiter, most of us habitually use iodized salt — the table variety that has a trace of potassium iodide in it. This is so generally used that most of us buy that kind of salt without thinking about it, and we might have to do some shopping around, in fact, to find salt that isn't iodized.

However, the amount of iodine we need is very small. Some body has described it as what you could cover on a pinhead the cork of an iodine bottle once a day. What we need is only a "trace."

Occasionally potassium iodide is used as a medicine, but that is a far cry from saying that it, or iodine, is a "medicine" or "good for health" in general. On the other hand, there are some individuals who have thyroid disorders who have to avoid iodine entirely. But only a few drops a day would be too much, and some of them even avoid iodized salt.

For the great majority of us, a little more or a little less than we have the necessary "trace," doesn't make any difference, a fact which has given rise to a sort of folklore grew up about iodine at one time. Some people even even made money by selling pills containing a small amount of it. I suppose that's why I continue to receive letters asking for a daily ration of "iodine," or a few drops of tincture of iodine in water. Well, it just does no harm, and it doesn't help and it usually doesn't hurt, except your pocketbook.

Tincture of iodine is a good disinfectant. One drop in a quart of water, allowed to stand for 15 minutes, will make it safe for drinking for most human purposes. In fact, that's a method the army has often used to treat drinking water in the field and they aren't sure whether water is safe to drink.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a man's shoulders to have worms and why must they pass through so large and long? Do you know of a medicine that will cut them up so they cannot be seen? They drive me nearly crazy. — Mrs. A.

If you will just get your thinking straightened out, you will realize that the important thing is to have them eliminated and to get rid of the parasites. So take them to your doctor and leave your nerves under the good for health. — Dr. Molner.

DON'T LOOK BACK

I once read in my newspaper of a very successful man who was much beloved by those who knew him. The story was of his death and of the grief that was honest. But the dishonesty of a single man was not condemned, but who had betrayed this trust, evidently preyed upon his mind.

Any man who looks back too much is sure to add to his worries, and perhaps wreck an otherwise happy and useful life.

Yet it is quite often the case that the strong make the most mistakes since the direction of the strong is usually one that is not behind.

If you have ever driven a car over rough or dangerous roads, you will recall that your eyes were ahead of you, not behind.

The most serious job in this world is the piloting of a human soul. Danger. Discouragement. Failure. All along the way you meet obstacles. But there are lovely, smooth roads for long distances, too. And it is these that you must look for and appreciate life and she strong reason that the things of combered, but who had betrayed this trust, evidently preyed upon his mind.

Navy Judges Men by Wives

Detroit Free Press

The navy is now going to toss the social attributes of air officers into the discard when it weighs him for assignment or promotion.

John Paul Jones, Oliver Hazard Perry, David Farragut and Admiral Dewey fought old navies are doubtless spinning in their graves at a rate to shame an industrial guidance engineer's gyroscope.

However if a crack sales manager loses out because his wife is unpopular at parties in the cocktail circuit, only the stockholders and the boss suffer.

It's considerably different in the case of a military service. The national interest doesn't lie in whether an admiral's wife makes a hit playing bridge or smoking nickel cigars at the officers' club.

What matters here is how the admiral can handle a task force and has the stuff in what it takes when the guns begin to shoot.

We are realists enough to know that a good deal of preference and promotion goes to officers' wives. But we don't think political influence in a military establishment should be formalized.

Lithuanian Girl Will Not Return To United States

MOSCOW (AP) — A young Lithuanian girl who returned to her Communist homeland from Chicago to marry a childhood sweetheart was quoted in a Soviet newspaper, Tuesday as saying she will never return to the United States.

Regina Leonis, 22, appeared to have changed her plans since her return to the Lithuanian capital of Vilnius last March to marry a young music instructor, Stasis Sikiulcia.

Before leaving the United States she indicated she planned to try to bring her husband back if Soviet authorities permitted. The youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda quoted the girl as saying: "I will not go back there again."

Miss Leonas is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pecilus Leonas of Chicago. They were separated from their daughter during the Second World War and reunited in 1960.

In Chicago, the girl's father said Tuesday the Russians are using his daughter "to further their dirty propaganda."

Leonas, a real estate man said he and his wife received word from their daughter and her sweetheart a few days ago saying they would come to the U.S. if they are permitted to leave Lithuania.

"She has no choice about leaving," he added. "She is virtually a prisoner."

New Publication By Toronto Star Coming Out

TORONTO (CP)—William J. Campbell, vice - president of Toronto Star Limited, announced Tuesday that a new mass - circulation publication, Canadian Weekly, will be started in early June.

The Saturday magazine will be distributed across Canada as an added section of the Toronto Star Weekly and as a Saturday supplement in the daily Toronto Star.

Initial circulation will be 1,-200,000 Campbell told a group of advertising executives.

(Star Weekly circulation is about 850,000 and Daily Star circulation is about 350,000 on Saturdays. There is some overlapping).

CAN BUY ADVERTISING

He said advertisers will be able to buy Canadian Weekly advertising in combination with advertising in Montreal La Presse, which has a weekend rotogravure supplement.

The combined circulation — English language in The Star Weekly and Daily Star and French-language in La Presse — will reach the homes of 1,400,-000 families, Campbell said, and the Star-La Presse package offers advertisers significant discounts for national bilingual coverage.

Campbell said other Canadian dailies may want to distribute Canadian Weekly "and we may well let them have it—but our big package now is 1,400,000 with dominance in Toronto and Montreal."

Rossmore Woman's Lemon Tree Now Bearing Fruit

You don't necessarily have to live in the banana belt to grow a few lemons.

At least that is the experience of Mrs. Otho Herrington of Rossmore, who has a dwarf lemon tree that is currently bearing four giant sized lemons.

Another four or five lemons are developing and if all goes well will ripen next year. And blossoms currently in bloom give evidence of more fruit to come.

Mrs. Herrington, a part time nurse at Belleville General Hospital, bought her lemon tree from a nursery about eight years ago and for the past seven years has harvested a crop of lemons. So far the biggest crop had been four lemons.

But if anything is lacking in quantity, the tree makes up in the size of the fruit. One of the lemons, 11½ inches in circumstance, is the size of a grapefruit, another is only slightly smaller and the "baby" of the crop is a large sized lemon. When ripe, the fruit is usable the same as with regular lemons.

The lemon tree requires warmth in the winter, but in the summer stands on the owner's back porch.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. government researcher said Tuesday's records study shows that women who smoke during pregnancy are more likely to have smaller babies whose health is impaired.

Dr. Richard Masland, head of the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness, told the Senate appropriations subcommittee about the results. He was supporting his agency's request for $71,206,000 in appropriations.

He conceded that some persons have questioned whether smoking is the cause but said the study shows that "the woman who smokes is more likely to have a small baby to the extent that the health of the baby is impaired."

He said a study of 7,500 pregnancies this year—part of a long-term study of 30,000 expected mothers and their babies—"has linked premature-ity to smoking during pregnancy." Prematuring, which long been recognized as an important factor in prenatal problems, is usually defined in terms of birth weight.

APPLAUSE INTERRUPTS

Mr. Fleming was frequently interrupted by applause from his supporters, especially when he referred to such things as "substantial and healthy expansion," "rising prosperity" and "increased employment."

Mr. Pearson made the most of the 11 minutes at his disposal and jabbed away at the $42,000,000 deficit.

Mr. Fleming had been wrong every year in predicting the increase in the gross national product, Mr. Pearson said.

By their votes, Mr. Pearson said, Canadians would soon condemn the government. The deficit in the 1961-62 fiscal year was $761,400,000, a peacetime record.

Mr. Fleming said his forecast 1963-63 deficit "will provide a sound degree of economic stimulus and at the same time will not endanger the price level during the coming year."

Employment had been "rising rapidly" and unemployment falling "but we still have more unemployment than is consistent with out national objectives."

Capital investment was picking up sharply "but we are still more."

"It is important, therefore, not to apply any fiscal brakes at this time by abruptly closing the gap between revenues and expenditures."

Encouragement and incentive were being given to private industry to increase efficiency, expand employment, improve Canada's competitive position and to keep abreast of the most advanced scientific methods.

The budget did not implement the tax cut and tariff measures which Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced last February. However, such measures do not necessarily lie ahead. As produced by means of a budget, the further action was taken on the royal commission inquiries of Professor Vincent Bladen for tariff changes on auto parts. They required further examination, Mr. Fleming said to reporters. Paul Martin (L—Essex East), whose riding includes the automotive centre city of Windsor.

Mr. Fleming forecast budget outlays of $6,525,000,000 in 1962-63 or $38,000,000 less than last year. Estimates for 1961-62 were at $5,780,000,000 or $6,000,000 more than in 1961-62.

However, termination of the federal-provincial tax - rental agreements would mean the addition of $279,300,000 in expenditures and of $307,000,000 in revenues.

COMPARES WITH 1957

Mr. Fleming was at pains to compare the present budget position now with what it was in 1957.

For instance, he said that six out of seven individual taxpayers are better off under the present tax rates than they were five years ago.

Such references left little doubt—if there were any to begin with — that the Premier's speech was the prelude to Parliament's dissolution, probably before Easter, for a general election.

Princess Will Foot Bill On Renovations

LONDON (AP)—The government told the House of Commons Tuesday night that Princess Margaret will foot the bill for the Clarence House, and its equipment as well as meet the costs of kitchen furniture and other equipment for her new home at Kensington Palace.

Chancellor Reginald Maudling, in Parliament last January when Works Minister Hope told the House that Margaret would pay the ancient palace would need a refit costing Britain some £85,000.

However Margaret's sister, Princess Elizabeth, has agreed to contribute some £20,000 towards the cost. About £85,000 remained to be paid from public funds.

Hope works minister told Labor MPs then that Margaret would be asked to make a private contribution if spending was dictated by needs apart from dry rot and the Queen's Silver Jubilee. The specific amount Margaret to contribute was not disclosed by Hope.

Hope, whose ministry looks after all the royal palaces in England and Wales, also gave details of their maintenance.

It costs £46,380 to run Buckingham Palace, Queen Elizabeth's London home, and £30,000 to run Sandringham House, Queen Elizabeth's Norfolk home.

Hampton Court Palace, where Henry VIII used to spend the summer, costs £20,000 a year, and St. James' Palace, the former London residence of Queen Elizabeth's father, King George VI, £16,000.

Arnold Heeney New Chairman Of IJC

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced in the Commons today the appointment of Arnold D. P. Heeney, Canada's ambassador to the United States, as Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission.

Heeney, 60-year-old native of Montreal, succeeds Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, 75, whose term as Canadian was ended out in the signing of the Columbia River Canada and that the removal from the post was "arbitrarily made by, a dictator," raised a furore in the Commons Monday.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Heeney's appointment is effective April 1, and that Mr. McNaughton will be appointed Washington by Charles S. A. Ritchie, Canada's ambassador representative at the United Nations.

Liberal Leader Pearson welcomed the appointment but said Heeney was clearly excellent.

HEENEY RECOMMENDED

The leader of the CCF-New Democratic Party group said:

"I must frankly say that while we in this group recognize the record in the department of external affairs, as an ambassador, and in other posts of the gentleman who has been appointed, we say most emphatically that this position requires a man of at least equal quality with respect to scientific and engineering knowledge, and as an administrator, to Gen. McNaughton and we are not of the opinion that Mr. Heeney fulfills those qualifications."

Both Mr. Herridge and Mr. Pearson poured tribute on Gen. McNaughton.

Mr. Pearson said Gen. McNaughton's integrity, honesty and honor were above reproach and recognized on all sides.

Algerian Success Will Strengthen de Gaulle's Hand

By JOSEPH McGWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

French President de Gaulle's success in dealing with the Algerian war is expected to strengthen his already - firm ideas on European and global strategy.

While the French army was heavily engaged in Algeria, de Gaulle perhaps felt some restraint in dealing with his NATO and European allies, since he was facing a problem not only embarrassing but perilous to his regime.

But the Algerian cease-fire he engineered now has received overwhelming approval of the French electorate and observers believe de Gaulle will be encouraged to speak out even more forcefully on other matters.

This has been reflected in reports from Bonn and elsewhere following top - level meetings last week.

West German Chancellor Adenauer said Tuesday he hopes the first step toward a political union among the Common Market countries will be completed in July.

Adenauer said he based his hopes on his talks last week with Italian Premier Fanfani, who earlier in the week met with de Gaulle.

Sources say the three agreed that the economic policy of the existing European communities — the Common Market, coal-steel pool 'and Euratom—should not be affected by a political union.

The sources also say there was agreement that the three first political action should not affect political relations between them-selves and with NATO and the NATO military structure.

West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg have in the past urged a supra - national organization related to NATO and the existing communities.

De Gaulle, however, has opposed any supra-national activity because he wants to play a free hand in advancing French interests.

Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg have long been rejected his idea for a loose confederation of the six nations. They fear anything other than their idea of a union would lead to blocs developing with in NATO.

CHANGING SYSTEM

CALGARY (CP)—Home loe deliveries here have melted into the past. The Alberta Dairy Company and associated dealers recently delivered the last block of ice for use in a home ice-box, leaving confirmed ice-box users only with the alternative of getting ice from vending machines.

Prices Raised By U.S. Steel

The price raise, announced Tuesday, a few hours before it took effect, added an average of $6 to the cost of a ton of steel, which has been selling for a little more than $150.

What effect it will have on the prices of other steel firms was not immediately determined. But U.S. Steel, biggest producer, customarily sets the price pattern for the rest of the industry.

Steel prices, of course, have an effect on prices in the auto, construction and appliance industries, all big steel users.

The increase came less than a week after, U.S. Steel and 10 other big firms signed new two-year labor contracts with the United Steelworkers to take effect July 1.

House Makes Fleming Race Through Speech

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming raced at a reeling 100 words a minute through his budget last Thursday night to beat a deadline. He made it with 14 minutes to spare.

The deadline: To complete the 18,000-word text before the 10 p.m. adjournment hours at the Commons.

Even so the Commons was unable to reach agreement for a proposed extension beyond 10 p.m.

Mr. Fleming, dressed in a dark blue suit with white shirt and striped tie, achieved his feat in one hour and 45 minutes. They fear anything other than their idea of a union would lead to blocs developing with in NATO.

Brazilian Missionary Tells Of Child Evangelism There

The April meeting of the Parkdale Baptist L.M.F. was held last Thursday evening in the church. This was a special meeting in which the ladies were privileged to have Mrs. Manfred Johnson, a missionary from Brazil, as guest speaker.

The president of the L.M.F., Mrs. R. Snyder, opened the meeting with words of welcome to Mrs. Johnson, and also to other guests, who are teachers in the Child Evangelism Fellowship of surrounding communities. A selection of hymns was then sung and Scripture reading was 1st Thessalonians 1: 1-10. A solo, by Miss Muriel Enderby, accompanied on the piano, by Mrs. Snyder, was much enjoyed by the ladies.

GUEST SPEAKER

Miss Josephine Francis introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Manfred Johnson, who is home on furlough from Brazil where she has served for the past 12 years. She is a director of the Child Evangelism Fellowship in that country and is responsible for the training of men, women and girls who wish to be teachers in the Home Bible Clubs for Child Evangelism.

These men and women go out to find the children wherever they can, in homes, schools, churches, yards and even in the streets. They go all over the city, armed with the Bible and a flannel board graph to illustrate the Bible stories to boys and girls who have never heard of Jesus Christ.

Mrs. Johnson, during her most interesting talk, illustrated by beautiful slides of Brazil, told of one little girl, eight years old, who was fascinated by the stories that she kept coming back to hear more, even though at times, she was the only listener, and at the close of the club was the means of her whole family of 7 turning to Christ through the Child Evangelism Bible Club.

Thousands of Brazilian children have been led to learn about Christ by these earnest workers, comprised of many races, colors and of many denominational creeds. It is good to see how much is being accomplished by these Christian teachers in obedience to Christ's command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel."

Mrs. Johnson will be returning to Brazil in a few months' time. The president closed the meeting with a word of appreciation to Mrs. Johnson for her most interesting talk and slides.

Lunch was served by the social convenors and a time of fellowship followed.

The May meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Charles Brenton, Belleville.

Mrs. Donald Ernst was the pianist for the worship service.

Building for Eternity Topic At Holy Rosary Breakfast

Holy Rosary Catholic Women's League held its annual Communion Breakfast on May day morning with 60 members present in the Vega Motel.

Following breakfast, Mrs. Derlington welcomed one and all.

Rev. Hay introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. Sister Mary Fleurette, Belleville.

Sister's opening words were lines from the poem, "Building for Eternity," and from the architect, we, as Catholic mothers, are God's helpers.

"Have you not fashioned from your own flesh and blood a far more beautiful and wonderful temple than that dreamed by the architect? When you first cradled in your arms that newly baptized baby of yours, surely you realized that you held a temple wherein the Triune God had taken up His abode. How precious is this tiny citizen in the sight of God."

This mother's many duties are to assist your husband in governing, sanctifying and teaching this new member in the church and family. From babyhood, mother must teach the child about God, pray for him, and teach him his prayers before starting to school.

"Make your home a truly Catholic home; let the children take turns reciting grace before and after meals; say the rosary; make shrines in the rooms for October, May and June, and the CWL at Christmas. Every home should have a crucifix and religious pictures in evidence on the walls.

"Parents must safeguard the growing minds of their children and keep an unending vigilance over their companions, their reading, their pleasures and their studies. Remember, Catholic parents, your three duties before God are to govern, to sanctify an to teach, your children."

GOOD HABITS

"Good habits should be instilled in children; a sense of good order and discipline, these are habits to be formed and then when the child commences school take on his responsibilities of the classroom".

Sister urged parents to invite confidence in the child so that they will feel free to talk and tell their worries. Reminding, no baby sitter can take mother's place at bedtime.

"What makes a house into a home? Love and care and guidance of a firm, prudent, kind father and patient self-sacrificing daily love and tenderness of a mother for her children. The father is the head of the family, just as the Holy Father acting for Christ is the head of the church.

"Father Walter La Beau says 'show me a family where the father knows himself to be the visible representative of Christ and the children also know it, and I will show you a disciplined family. Show me a family where members understand how important it is to their family life that they all remain in the state of sanctifying grace and I will show you a good family, for how else can you have a good family? If the family is not disciplined and prayerful, good works will be produced even though Christ never remains its invisible head".

In conclusion Sister urged all to remember that parenthood was a glorious vocation—that they are architects for eternity; daily, year in, and out, parents must keep building up fine traits of character and keep moulding the hearts, minds and souls of these temples confided to their care by God.

The bodies of their children must be built with good food, healthy home life, loving care, and supervision. Their minds must be trained by education for eternity," and the building is life; those things that will last them onward, upward and Godward.

Sister concluded with the poem, "Three Little Boys Talked Together."

Mrs. D. Eves thanked the speaker for her most inspiring address.

Father Ives, the director, gave a short talk and urged all to think well over the Sister's words as they indeed gave much food for thought.

Mother's Helper

Nine Paintings Sold on First Night

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A one-man art show put on by the wife of the Canadian ambassador to Mexico was a success on opening night. Nine paintings were sold, one to the German ambassador.

And they're still selling.

The painter is Patricia Kathleen Irwin, wife of Ambassador W. Arthur Irving. She has been an artist for only two or three years.

Before that she gained fame as a poet, first under the name of P. K. Page, her maiden name. She won the Governor-General's Award for her book The Metal and the Flower and later the Oscar Blumenthal Award for a group of poems which appeared in Poetry Chicago.

She started with 36 paintings, sold nine the opening night, and is still selling.

FESTIVAL PLANS

SCHEVENINGEN, The Netherlands (AP)—This seaside resort is planning big goings next summer for its four-week Holland Festival. Highlights will be theatre performances by Britain's Old Vic and the Piraikon Theatre of Athens.

Over 450 Attend Loblaw's Free Cooking School

Well over 400 were in attendance when Mrs. Elsie Clay Rogers conducted the second session of Loblaw's free cooking school in the Park Theatre yesterday afternoon, sponsored jointly by Loblaws and David's Electric. Belleville dealers in well known electric appliances.

The classes, being held every day this week up to and including Friday, are conducted by Mrs. Elsie Clay Rogers, internationally known home economist and former dietitian at a New England medical center who has studied foods all over the world which enables her to be such an outstanding expert in the field of homecooking.

Prior to the homecooking session, Mrs. Rogers spoke briefly to the large audience in a most humorous and relaxed manner, dealing particularly with the art of living and economically stressed the importance of happiness in a world full of tensions.

COOKING APPLIANCES

The stage of the theatre was fitte4rounded with a various assortment of Loblaws' products and in the background were the electric appliances in use for the homecooking demonstrations. Mrs. Rogers, with her two assistants, methodically prepared the many and varied appetizing dishes.

New and different dishes were prepared each day and some of those prepared yesterday were: lemon nut bread, caramel pie, crispy salads, chicken loaf, pickel rolls, prune cake, California bread and one of the delicious desserts was a lemon berry pudding, with the following recipe: 24 Graham wafers, 1 package lemon chiffon pie filling mix, 1 teaspoon of grated lemon rind, 4 cups strawberries, sliced, 1 pint heavy cream, whipped and 1-4 cup confectioners' sugar.

METHOD

Arrange 12 wafers on the bottom of a 2 by 9 by 2-inch pan. Prepare chiffon pie filling as directed on packages and when filling stands in firm peaks add grated lemon rind. Spread half of this filling over wafers, top with wafers, chiffon filling and berries and repeat these layers. Chill at least 3 hours after which frost sides and top with whipped cream into which is beaten confectioners sugar. Refrigerate until ready to serve. This is most suitable for the large family, or when one has company, as this amount will serve nine portions.

DAILY PRIZE

The daily prize of an electric appliance was drawn by the manager of David's Electric, Mr. Douglas Shaw, who was introduced by the enthusiastic Westinghouse representative from Hamilton, Mr. J. M. Berrier. The lucky winner, who chose an electric fry pan, was Mrs. A. J. Readshaw of R. R. 1, Cottyville; The grand prize, a choice of one of the six larger appliances, with tickets to be deposited at David's Electric Limited, 312 Front Street will be given away on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Rogers drew the tickets for the winners of the double bags of Loblaw groceries as well as for the various prepared dishes which were distributed following the cooking demonstration.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

POLITENESS IS A WINNER IN SPORTS

Whether you win or lose in any competition, it's always courteous to be a good sport about it.

It's always easy to spot a poor loser by the way he sulks over defeat and is generally downcast about playing second fiddle to anybody.

A poor winner is not as readily singled out, but he does show definite symptoms. He goes around gloating about his victory and needling others before the poor competition they put up. Flushed with success, he challenges all comers to take him on and better his mark.

The arrival of warm weather always brings out the sporting instinct in man and woman. Boats are taken out of dry dock, fishing lines unreeled, tennis rackets dusted off and golf clubs dug out of closets. There's a spirit of competition in the air. Naturally, everyone wants to be a winner. How to win or lose graciously should be part of regular Spring training.

The winner that everyone is happy to beat is one who can accept a slap on the back without having it go to his head. It always gives one a feeling of accomplishment to win over a field of competitors, even if it's just in a mild game of croquet.

A real champ is one who loves the sport, and participates for the fun of it. Whether or not he comes out on top is not his main concern. If he does win, naturally he's proud but he doesn't go around crowing about it. He accepts congratulations gracefully and compliments others, in turn, on the good game they played.

A good loser is just as gracious in defeat and exhibits good sportsmanship by congratulating the winner immediately. He is full of praise instead of sour grapes.

Instead of trying to alibi, a courteous runner-up shrugs off the loss and vows privately to do better next time. He doesn't complain that a "sore ankle" threw him off stride, or grumble that someone coughed just as he was about to make a crucial putt.

Most important, he doesn't try to downgrade the winner's victory by chalking it up to "luck." He not only proves he's a good sport by such an ungracious remark, but also implies that the other fellow won only because the competition wasn't strong.

Carmel Guides Invest O.P. Cadets in Colorful Ceremony

On Wednesday last the Carmel Guides held a colorful ceremony and invested the first Ontario Provincial Cadets in this area.

The Corbyville Brownie Pack with their Brown Owl, Mrs. Belstedt, joined with the Guides for the ceremony.

The color parties for the occasion were: Union Jack (bearer) Jane Graham, escorts, Lois Geen, Gene Fredirks; world flag (bearer) Sally Farquharson, escorts Virginia Fedirka and Gail Stratton.

Following the opening ceremony ten of the Guides lighted a candle for each of the ten laws, and the promise. The girls each reciting a law were as follows: Cynthia Howes, Marilyn Burt, Gale Dawson, Nancy Huffman, Elizabeth Howes, Aileen Latendre, Anna Demeczyna, Cheryl Stoliker, Gloria Stratton, Carol Flagler.

GUIDES INVESTED

Linda Piperni recited the Guide Promise. Hence in this flickering candlelight, and the glow of a mock camp fire, Commissioner Mrs. R. Settle invested Linda Dawson and Shirley Dafoe as Provincial Cadets, both having completed five years as Guides and now are training for further service in the Guide movement. The cadets were each congratulated by the Commissioners present, Area Commissioner, Mrs. A. M. Haig, Division Commissioner, Mrs. D. Stewart; District Commissioner, Mrs. Bannon.

As Mrs. R. Settle is now retiring as Commissioner, a presentation was made by the Captain, Mrs. Harold Howes, to Comm. Settle, of a locket, suitably engraved, as a reminder through the years of her association with 1st Carmel Guides. Mrs. Settle expressed thanks to the Company.

Camp-fire followed the marching-off of the colors. Mrs. Crone, Lieut. of the Company, was congratulated by all on the birth of her baby daughter, Elizabeth Rae, on March 22nd; a future Brownie.

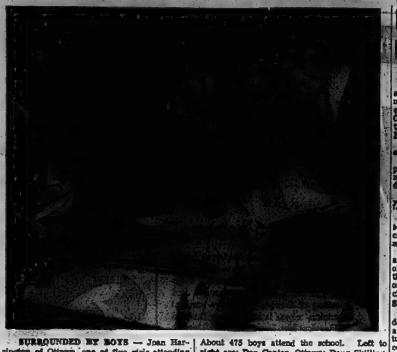
Area Commissioner Mrs. Haig gave the Guides a short talk on looking upward, not downward. In other words, to "pitch your wagon to a star" — using the words of the Chief Scout, Lord Baden Powell, "turn to the right and keep straight on," and she urged us to work hard and thus attain the worthwhileness in Guiding.

The patrol leaders from a distance.

Refreshments were served by the appointed tea table which was convened by Mrs. Ralph Plumton of Corbyville.

Mrs. Melle of Canniffon donated Brownie motto, "Lend A Hand." and a beautiful cake bearing the



A short chat over the tea cups brought a most enjoyable and long-to-be-remembered evening to a close.

Door-to-Door Salesmen Ready for Open Season

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP)—This is the season for door-to-door salesmen and they're likely to include some phonys, says George S. Piers, manager of the Ottawa and Hull Better Business Bureau.

He offers some suggestions on what to watch out for:

1. The good salesman who promises grass that will grow no more than 1½ inches and doesn't need cutting.

2. The tree salesman who tells you he can save your trees for all time.

3. Repair man who points out some minor damage to your chimney and warns you that it will fall down unless fixed.

"They make up quite a story and scare the daylights out of old people," Mr. Piers said of the chimney repair men. Most often they did a partial job and charged outrageous prices.

SELL PHOTOS

Then there was the door-to-door photographer who insisted a child was a "Hollywood natural." He might be handy with compliments but less skilled in his work, Mr. Piers said. Mothers often took advantage of the photographer's visit to save themselves a trip downtown and found later they were disappointed with the quality of the pictures.

Mr. Piers advises against buying any goods unless you know either the merchandise or the salesman.

"And remember, a guarantee is not one bit better than the company that gives it to you."

He emphasizes the importance of reading all the fine print in a contract.

"A great many people don't realize the importance of their signature."

PUBLIC MUST BEWARE

Claude Root, general manager of the Montreal bureau, told a service club that many people look only at low prices tag and neglect such things as service and maintenance.

"Sharp practices" could not be wholly eradicated either by government or the business community as long as the public didn't protect itself.

"Advertising is the outward demonstration of a firm's selling policy and if a merchant lies in his advertising he will mislead a customer right through the whole transaction," Mr. Root said.

Mr. Piers said it's important to check with a Better Business Bureau before — not after — goods are purchased and contracts signed. Bureaus exist in Halifax, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Girls Outnumbered 79 to 1 But Making Presence Felt At Institute of Technology

By ED TREPIAK

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics suggest that if a girl wants to meet a boy she should go west. Canada's biggest male surplus is there.

Dawna Little would find that hard to believe. She has been surrounded by boys since coming east to Ottawa two years ago from Three Hills, Alta.

She says she had no idea that the Eastern Ontario Institute of Technology, the school she came here to attend, had had only male students since its establishment three years before.

The revelation "came as a bit of a shock."

"I almost climbed back on the train when I found I'd be almost the only girl student," said Dawna, "I heard about the Institute from my aunt, who lives in Ottawa, but she didn't tell me I'd probably be the only girl in the school."

GOT USED TO IT

When she arrived, the boys—473 of them—were everywhere. The only woman in sight was the school secretary.

"She told me to hang my coat with hers, adding that the other girl who would be along here hadn't arrived yet."

The other girl was Carol Bailey of Montreal, who says she knew the school was all male, but "my parents told me I'd get used to it, and I did."

A third girl, Joan Harrington of Ottawa, enrolled later.

Dawna and Carol now are in the second year of a chemistry course at the institute—a sister school of Toronto's Ryerson Institute of Technology. Both hope to do research work after they graduate next spring.

Dawna wants to work in the western oil industry. Carol, who already has a summer job with a Montreal paper company, thinks she might like to stay in Quebec.

Joan, along with three other Ottawa girls who came to the Institute at the beginning of the school year, is enrolled in the business administration course.

PLAY ACTIVE PART

The girls, boys outnumber them 79 to 1, the six girls are making their presence felt.

Jean is secretary of the Student Council and Karen Garland, one of the first-year students, is president of the Rod and Gun Club.

The girls also have participated in Motor Club rallies and some of them are cuties.

Some of the comments: "They're courteous; they're very considerate"; . . . "They don't carry our books, but they open doors for us". . . . "As far as being gentlemen is concerned, they're very good."

Only one thing bothers the girls. "There's that dead silence that prevails when we pass a group of them during a story-telling session."

When the girls want to hold a heart-to-heart discussion they repair to their "only area of seclusion—the washroom."

Montreal Woman Heads Hadassah Second Year

By JANET WILSON

MONTREAL (CP)—On pitching wee of Israel, Miss Fried Cohen of Sydney, N.S., was re-elected by acclamation to a second term as president of the 18,000-member Canadian Hadassah-WIZO.

Interviewed on her return to Canada, Mrs. Cohen recalled the confusion in terms of faces and furniture advancing and receding with each roll of the motorcade. Molotov and animal reports being read between hosts of assistances by officers of the group who had to be propped up on either side.

Nevertheless, the spirit of the 450 delegates was "tremendous," she said. "Would you believe it—the meeting even ended on time!"

The election of officers was part of the group's 18th Biennial convention which began Feb. 1 when the delegates, many of them accompanied by their husbands, left Canada by air for Rome. From there they went by train to Naples to board a chartered ship for Haifa.

SIXTH HOLY LAND VISIT

Since it was the first trip to Israel for most of the couples, convention arrangements included a two-week tour of the country and the various projects there of the Canadian Hadassah-WIZO.

The Hadassah is a fund-raising organization that sponsors schools, hospitals and other projects in Israel. WIZO stands for Woman's International Zionist Organization.

For Mrs. Cohen, a Hadassah-WIZO member for more than 30 years, it was the sixth visit to the Holy Land.

Posts she has held in other organizations include that of president of the Cape Breton council of the Canadian Cancer Society, vice-president of the Nova Scotia Provincewide Foundation and vice-president of the Cape Breton Community Concert Association.

Recipient of the Red Cross Service Medal for work during the Second World War, in which she lost a brother with the Black Watch regiment, Mrs. Cohen was chairman of radio publicity for Victory Loans, Keeper of the War Record of the Canadian Legion Women's Auxiliary, Congress for Cape Breton and head of Cape Breton's War Orphans Placement.

ADOPTED TWO BOYS

Not ones to preach what they didn't practise, Mrs. Cohen and her husband have themselves adopted two Polish brothers at the war's end. She tells the story of their selection with characteristic humor:

"I was reluctant to choose our new son from the data submitted in advance, as I was responsible for placement. So when one boat load disembarked in Halifax, I announced through their interpreter that I would like to adopt a boy—any boy—and—would choose him by recognizing the first hand I saw," she related.

The first hand raised belonged to blonde, blue-eyed Joseph Gruber. Asked by the interpreter why he needed it, he answered Mrs. Cohen's call for volunteers, he replied: "I noticed that she seemed to be in charge and I wanted to go home with the boss."

Joseph's older brother Sigmund was brought from Europe a short time later and both now are successful businessmen in Montreal. Since Montreal is also the home of Mrs. Cohen's own son Stuart, and the headquarters of the Canadian Hadassah-WIZO, Mrs. Cohen and her husband, now retired, divide their year between this city and Sydney.

A graduate of Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., Mrs. Cohen credits her childhood in Glace Bay, N.S., with sparking her interest in community work.

"In a small mining town," she said, "a disaster that happens to one, happens to all. And I believe we ARE our brother's keeper."

HEADS JEWISH GROUP

Miss Fried Cohen of Sydney, N.S., has been re-elected to a second term as president of the 18,000-member Canadian Hadassah-WIZO. Her election was held aboard ship off the coast of Israel at the group's 14th biennial convention. (CP Photo).

Set For Spring

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The good, all-around outfit with the plus of its own jacket has become an indispensable costume.

This one, ready for spring, is of lightweight woolen in gray and white or beige and white plaid.

The dress has short, set-in sleeves and curved pockets worked into seaming at the hips. A short, cropped jacket just covers the leather belt of the dress.

WANTS GREATER CONTACT — As West Germany's new cultural attache in Canada, Countess Finckovon Finckenstein arranges cultural exchanges between students and teachers. She would like to see a greater contact between housewives, workers and children. The countess, mother of seven children, fled with her family from East Prussia in 1945. She was elected to the West German parliament in 1953. (CP Photo).

Germany's New Cultural Attache at Ottawa Will Show Country's Real Face

By EDNA McAKELY

OTTAWA (CP) — Countess Finck von Finckenstein, West Germany's new cultural attache here, says her mission is especially important because of Germany's political past.

"We have caused so much unhappiness in the world I hope to give others something beautiful."

She would like to show Canadians another face of her country — its scientists, artists, authors and poets.

Much of her work will involve the exchange of students and professors between Canadian and German universities. The contact between intellectuals was good but should be encouraged at all levels. The best way to learn about a country was to visit it and the countess would like to see housewives, workers and school children involved in exchange programs.

"We must enlarge the system that enlarges comprehension."

The countess joined German's diplomatic service in 1957 and served as an executive officer in the Bonn foreign office for three years before being posted to Valparaiso, Chile. She spent two years mastering Spanish, then came to Canada earlier this year. She had learned English as a schoolgirl in Berlin.

Her husband, Count Ottofried von Finckenstein, is an author and translator. Marie, 18, and Adenauer, 16, the youngest of their seven children, are in Ottawa with them.

The countess moved to Bonn-matic work from politics. After fleeing from East Prussia with her family in 1945, she became a political writer in Bonn.

"We were just a few among 12,000 refugees," she said. Because she was pregnant, she was taken to north Germany in a military car but many people walked.

She joined the Refugee Party and was elected to a four-year term to the German parliament for her first political bid in 1953. Her main interests were welfare and the unification of Europe and she continued to work for unification when she joined the diplomatic corps.

She says she is "absolutely persuaded" that it is possible. Economical unification already existed and the "political must follow."

In Chile the countess was concerned about "those poor, poor people who could not read or write and had no chance to help themselves." She "had a certain 'success' in encouraging society women to drop their bridge parties and teas in order to help with adult education programs.

VACCINE FOR TEETH?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The possibility that vaccines may be developed to prevent dental cavities was advanced Tuesday by the director of the U.S. National Institute of Dental Research. Dr. Fraglis Arnold told a reporter that experiments with rats and hamsters have definitely established that cavities can be caused by specific organisms which can be transmitted from parent to offspring.

Plans to Marry Pen Pal

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I have had a pen friend in the British Isles for the past year. I plan on going over there this summer to visit her, and was wondering if you could tell me how long I would have to stay there in order to be able to marry my girl.

She is of the Catholic religion. My religion is the same. Also we are the same age.—PETER.

DEAR PETER — If you're in a hurry, a licence may be issued by the Superintendent's Registrar one clear day after one of you has resided in his district 15 days.

For marriage by certificate, both must have been living in his district seven days. You give notice then; and 21 days later he issues the certificate.

But what's the rush? A pen pal may make a poor marriage mate, in spite of flowery phrases. Arrange a longer leave and camp at the site until you fall in love—if ever!

* * * *

DEAR DORIS:—Last month mother gave birth to a baby girl. Since I am 18, and this was her second child, we were all overjoyed with this "blessing from heaven." But our happiness soon came to an end. A week after her birth, little Dona Lori, our little angel, was taken away from us.

You can just imagine, Doris, what a terrible blow this was to us; I still find it so very hard to accept.

But to all the teen-agers who complain about their noisy younger brothers and sisters, I can only say this: "Be glad and thankful they're around." Nothing is so delightful as a child's sweet voice and innocent charm.

I'd give anything to hold Dona Lori in my arms again. —HEARTBROKEN SISTER.

DEAR HEARTBROKEN SISTER — I'm sorry. I think there is nothing quite so sad as the loss of a baby or young person.

Families where there are several brothers and sisters have it all over the lonely "only child" families. Large families are likely to be noisy, but there is certainly a "heap o' living" done where there are several children.

And I can't say they all complain all the time, although brothers and sisters appreciate each other a good deal more after they are grown up, as a rule.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO E. M.—To me this sounds like the Real Thing. Your past has made you afraid; that and your father's lack of confidence in you.

If you feel too uncertain, start going to the Young People's group at your church and be friendly with others. This will help you to make comparisons—and I think you will go back to your good friend. Love can grow from common interests, kisses and a good family companionship. But I think you must tell him about the past before you decide on marriage.

There is a big adjustment from city to farm life—some city girls think it's all for the better!

* * *

TO A WORRIED SISTER AND AUNT:—If you will write again, enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will send you the name of the organizations which helped Shy Type.

* * *

TO FRECKLED M.:—Please write again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

(Doris cannot begin to reply to all letters in the column. Remember that stamped envelope.)

U.C.W. Meetings

FRONT ROAD U.C.W.

The U.C.W. of Front Road United Church was held at the home of Mrs. George McMillon with ten members present.

The president, Mrs. Clifford Reid opened the meeting with a poem.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Walter Taylor, who used "Easter" as her theme.

Scripture, I Corinthians 1, was read by Mrs. C. Reid and Mrs. Taylor read a paper on "If Christ Had Not Risen," followed by a reading, "Spring in the Heart," by Mrs. Charles Grass. A talk, "Look To Bless All Nations," was put on by Mary Preston, Phyllis McKillop, Audrey Taylor and Grace McMullen. The first scene was that of Biblical times and the second scene that of modern times, which proved most interesting.

Mrs. Taylor closed this portion of the meeting.

PIE SOCIAL

The business period followed with some discussion on the pie social to be held the last Wednesday in April. Members were asked to attend the regional meeting in Maple on May 29. The fall bazaar was discussed and it was decided to hold it in October.

The next meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. Audrey Taylor.

The hostess served a delicious lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Cindy O. — I feel like a slave at home.

Mrs. J.G. — She has only one chore — the baby.

* * *

Cindy O. — It seems to me I spend my life being a slave to my own home. I'm 14 and have two younger brothers and a 6-month-old baby sister. My job is the baby, which means getting up at 6 A.M. to change her and give her the first bottle, so my mother can sleep late.

Getting up so early, I'm too tired after dinner at night to get my homework done right. And over the weekend I'm the official babysitter for the other three. So I get stuck two ways. First, I have to miss parties my friends give. Second, I miss not sitting for neighbors who'd pay me for the work. Mom doesn't.

It's no use trying to reason with my mother. She says these things are my duty. Well, how about my fun? And my schoolwork?

* * *

Mrs. J.G. Cindy sounds like a lawyer building up a case. It's not as bad as she says. In fact, the minute she saw her little sister she said, "Oh, I'll take care of her!" Well, that morning job is the only house chore I expect of her. I let her off with dishes and dusting. But with three youngsters to take care of, I really need that extra hour of sleep in the morning to get through my day.

As for the baby-sitting, she exaggerates. Cindy does get to some of the parties her crowd gives, and she's had them at our house, too. But Saturday nights my husband and I want to go out and, with a 14-year-old daughter, why should we hire a sitter? Cindy gets a fair allowance and the money side shouldn't even be discussed by her.

* * *

The Council: With her present occupation over an infant and her schoolage sons, Mrs. G. may not realize that her little girl has special mothering needs now, too. She needs more than the flattery of responsibility. She needs time for lighthearted-ness. Cindy's teens have crept up on you, Mrs. G. While you make new demands because of them, they make new demands on you in Cindy's behalf. You must pause to listen.

Cindy isn't much past the age when she needed baby-sitters to sit with her. Certainly there should be a more gradual transformation from the role of baby to that of sitter! Despite Cindy's effusive offer to care for th, saw baby, Mrs. G. shouldn't hold her to it literally. It was just a way — an affectionate, natural way — of speaking.

Because, however, this is an intramural issue in a home of basic goodwill and good intent, an easement should be readily available through a compromise arrangement. Mrs. G. will agree that the present days, with Cindy simmering in a slow-boil and the baby getting grudging care, calls for adjustment.

How about some such swap as this? A Saturday night out for Cindy when there's something special afoot for her, alternate early-rise days (Mom to fill in) so she can stay awake, more easily for homework, less baby-tending and more dish-washing. In other words, instead of making Cindy conform to a child program, Mrs. G. might ask the program bend a bit around Cindy's just requests. Helping Cindy get her homework done properly is as important a responsibility of her mother's in the care of the baby. While the spectacle now and a 6 A.M. rising is for Mrs. G., we wonder whether she can sneak in an afternoon nap along with the baby's) on those long, long days.

It would be cheering to Cindy too, to receive a small fee for sitting, or a chance to earn a big one from neighbors. By variations like these, the entire family will benefit. Cindy will wind up a less resentful, more tender, baby-tender.

Municipalities Now in Control Of Closing Hours

TORONTO (CP) — A legislative committee approved amendments to the Municipal Act Monday giving municipal councils the final control over store closing hours, despite protests from several board of trade groups.

A group of downtown Ottawa merchants presented the firmest protest, arguing that the whole question should be put over for a year so municipal councils and groups of merchants would have more time to study it.

Under the revised act, municipal council will have the power to set closing hours for every group of merchants except service station operators and without necessarily referring to the merchants themselves. Previously, 5 per cent of a particular type of merchants could petition council for the setting of uniform closing hours.

Deputy Municipal Affairs Minister Lorne Cumming said municipal councils are in the best position to know local requirements and can best face the various pressures which arise when closing hours are discussed.

MERCHANTS PROTEST

D. E. Diplock, representing the Ottawa merchants, said there could be "drastic effects" on merchants if present store-closing hours are repealed by municipal council. The merchants themselves, as the ones most closely affected, should be consulted before any such changes are made, he said.

Committee Chairman James Auld (PC—Leeds) read into the record a telegram from the Cornwall Board of Trade, protesting the changes. Maurice Belanger (L — Windsor-Sandwich) read a similar protest from a group of Windsor area merchants.

In the end, a motion by Ken Bryden (NDP — Toronto-Woodbine) to defer the question for another year was roundly beaten and the bill was sent to legislature for passage into law.

Deseronto

DESERONTO — Mr. and Mrs. Earl Parker of Letroy were weekend guests of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Colley. During the weekend the two couples journeyed to Watertown, N.Y., to concerts by the 11th N.Y. Upper State annual bowling tournament.

Can You Remember When?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Let's take a look back at the "good old days" some people like to recall and others can't forget.

You're entitled to membership in the Society of Backward Glancers if you can remember when:

The best form of social security was a rich relative.

Anybody who made a visit to Florida in the winter automatically became a recognized community leader.

One of your greatest thrills at Christmas was finding a fresh orange in your stocking. The only other time you tasted orange was when you took castor oil.

INHERITED CLOTHING

The youngest child in a large family never got any new clothing until he was old enough to go away to college. Until then he inherited everything he wore.

Women felt a bit daring when they used a stand-up bathing shower.

The leading neighborhood delinquent was the kid who smoked cigarettes.

A man who let his wife hold a job outside the home was regarded as a failure in life.

When you went to the store with your mother, the grocer didn't give stamps. He gave you a big dripping slice of pickle.

Everybody had to be quiet as a mouse on Sunday afternoons after dinner, because that was when Father took his big nap of the week.

It was a thrill to go to a Chinese restaurant, because the waiters looked inscrutably sinister—and you were sure that at least one of the doors led to a hidden opium den.

You could tell a family had days.

"Remember?

"Will you stop phoning for a taxi when I say I'm going to leave you."

Fleming Presents 'Expansionist' Budget To House

Big Tax-Incentive Carrot Offered to Boost Research And Processing Activities

OTTAWA (CP) — Two big tax-dangling carrots to spur industry toward increased sales and scientific research have been held out by Finance Minister Fleming.

The goals: A major increase in production and employment and a switch by foreign-controlled companies from heavy dependence on foreign research efforts.

The new approach was outlined Tuesday night in Mr. Fleming's budget speech, which told the Commons that the declining unemployment rate must be pushed "much further" and the slack in idle productive capacity taken up.

The budget's main come-on is in the form of tax rebates of up to 50 per cent on profits resulting from increased sales by manufacturing and processing firms — the industrial areas where employment now is — would be most effective.

The second is what Mr. Fleming called "a new and powerful incentive" to increased industrial research efforts: deduction from taxable income of 150 per cent of increased spending by industry on scientific research. As a starter, this program will run five years.

Mr. Fleming also announced a one-year extension to the end of 1963, for another incentive program begun Jan. 1, 1960—the income tax provision allowing double depreciation on new manufacturing investment spent in producing products new to Canada or for new plants in depressed areas.

And, expressing concern that oil and gas exploration should keep up with growing markets, he provided new incentives that will allow oil companies and others to write off exploration costs against taxable income from oil and gas production.

There will be cancellation of 50 per cent of the income tax on the first $50,000 of taxable profits resulting from increased sales, with a rebate of 25 per cent of taxes on profits gathering $50,000 that are generated by higher sales.

Mr. Fleming said companies with taxable incomes as high as $500,000 could have a 10-per-cent sales gain and still get the 50-per-cent rebate.

The proportion of taxable income benefiting from the new relief will decline as the proportion by which sales rise.

The new plan applies to sales increases after last April 1. In the first year, sales increases will be reckoned by comparison with the preceding year. In the second year, the comparison will be with average sales in the previous two years. After that, the comparison will be with average sales in the three preceding years.

Mr. Fleming said the new incentives won't apply to unincorporated businesses or to companies whose principal business is shipbuilding, oil or gas wells or mines which benefit from income tax depletion allowances. Nor, the plan will cover, companies whose principal business is processing ore, refining petroleum or freezing and canning foods.

The incentive to industrial research is in line with frequent speeches by Mr. Fleming criticizing the relatively small amount of this research done in Canada, especially by foreign-controlled subsidiaries.

The 150-per-cent deduction for industrial expenses will apply to increases above those from one base year—a company's tax return which ended on any day night.

The relief will cover both capital and current spending on research, including payments to universities and other research institutions which would carry out research for the corporation. It won't include sales promotion costs such as market research and styling changes.

Dealing with oil and gas industries, he said the government's aim is:

"There is growing concern, which I share, about indications that the pace of exploration for new petroleum reserves does not maintain reserves of oil adequate to meet anticipated demands.

Individuals and companies, including those engaged in mining petroleum and mining fields, would be able to deduct as taxable expenses all prospecting costs of exploration and drilling from their taxable income on oil and gas production.

Another change would permit oil and gas drilling and production rights and leases to oil and gas to be written off as tax-free expenses.

STEADY GROWTH

Population of East Nigeria, a province of the independent Federation of Nigeria, now is 8,000,000 and increasing about 160,000 annually.

ANOTHER DEFICIT — Finance Minister Fleming estimated a $745,000,000 deficit in his 1962-63 budget presented to Parliament last night. This compares with a deficit of $791,400,000 in the last fiscal year ended March 31. Mr. Fleming estimated 1962-63 expenditures at $6,536,000,000 and revenues at $5,580,000,000. Graph shows total revenues and expenditures for selected fiscal years. (CP Newsmap.)

No New Action Planned on Car Industry Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — Minor tariff changes—all reductions or extensions of free-entry provisions—are done to expire shortly are contained in the budget delivered Tuesday night by Finance Minister Fleming.

Mr. Fleming also said no further action is planned at this time on the royal commission into the automotive industry, released in June, 1961. The next step taken then was the elimination of the 7½-per-cent excise tax on autos.

He said two new tariff board examinations are planned—for wire and wire fencing machinery and equipment used by the Canadian printing industry. This includes presses, engraving machines, book-binding machines and printing plates of all kinds.

REPEERS TO TEXTILES

He noted that the tariff board had made recommendations on tariff revision in coated and impregnated fabrics, miscellaneous textiles and hats and coats, implementation of which depends on agreements within the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

These were in progress and, if completed before Parliament approved the budget, the recommendations would be dealt with immediately.

Mr. Fleming said he received an extensive response to his invitation for comment on the far-reaching recommendations of Dean Vincent Bladen of the University of Toronto who conducted the royal commission on the auto industry.

He also included proposals to permit duty-free imports of motor car parts for companies expanding exports of cars, vehicles or parts, with the objective of strengthening the Canadian industry with the industry abroad. However, a number of practical problems had been exposed and these would require study.

Heavy water, uranium in the form of oxides, ceramic bricks for lighting forest fires, and hospital boots have duty-free status, while a wide variety of small farm equipment and farm use only—retains duty-free status, while a smaller assortment is duty-free regardless of where it is used.

Financial Review Highlights

Budget policy to continue "expansionist."

Gross national product in 1961 forecast to rise seven per cent—compared to last year's 2.5 per cent gain—given" normal crops.

Continued stimulus required for economic growth, with specific measures to encourage industrial output.

Five-year increase in federal government tax abatements to the provinces said to exceed five-year total of federal budget deficits.

Old age pension fund forecast to run $64,000,000 deficit in 1962-63 fiscal year.

Government prepared to use "substantial volume" of cash through Foreign Exchange Fund to prevent sudden movements in Canadian dollar exchange rate.

Full effect of lower exchange value of dollar on trade balance and other international transactions still to be felt.

Advance retirement of federal bond debt through purchase fund to continue.

Incentives for Canada, even under best safeguards, should Britain enter European Common Market.

No Move to Peg Dollar At a Fixed Exchange Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's determination to use "a substantial volume of funds" to prevent sudden changes in the Canadian dollar's exchange value was voiced Tuesday night by Finance Minister Fleming.

He also indicated, in his budget speech to the Commons, that prospects aren't bright for any move to peg the dollar at a fixed, exchange rate.

The International Monetary Fund, at its last meeting, again expressed hope that countries "might find it practicable" to peg the rate, Mr. Fleming said.

But the IMF "has not been disposed to press us into any hasty action which might prove to be premature or impossible to maintain."

Mr. Fleming made his statement on the government's exchange policy against the background of recent developments which have seen foreign exchange reserves, held in the exchange fund, drop by $401,000,000 in the first seven months to $1,700,600,000 March 31.

$625,145 U.S. DOLLARS

The government has been selling U.S. dollars from the fund to moderate downward pressures on the Canadian dollar—now worth 95¼ cents in U.S. funds.

"The government has not hesitated, and will not hesitate in the future, to deploy a substantial volume of funds, on one side of the market or the other, in order to prevent sudden or erratic movements in our exchange rate," he said.

Mr. Fleming noted that the exchange fund made "substantial purchases" of U.S. dollars last fall as well as substantial sales this year.

"There may well be similar movements in the future; there is time to time our cumulative purchases will no doubt not substantially exceed our cumulative sales, and vice versa."

Ever since a post-war attempt to peg the dollar's rate had been abandoned in 1950 the exchange fund had operated to "restrain and smooth out" rapid movements in the dollar value. It had never been used aggressively to move the exchange rate against market forces.

Mr. Fleming said his policy statement in the last budget June 20 had been misinterpreted in some quarters to mean Canada was embarking on an aggressive policy to drive the exchange rate down.

(In the June budget he said it might be appropriate for the Canadian dollar to move to "a significant discount" and that would be government policy to facilitate such a movement. Accordingly, the exchange fund would be prepared, when necessary, to buy substantial amounts of U.S. dollars on the exchange market.)

Mr. Fleming said he explained last year that the "essential means" of reducing the exchange value was through reducing upward pressures exerted by inflows of certain types of foreign capital.

The dollar's exchange value dropped after the June budget "as a result of the removal of excessive pressures."

At the same time, the Canada cost of living had remained "remarkably stable."

Exemptions For Children Increased $50

OTTAWA (CP) — A $50 increase in taxable income deductions for dependents was announced Tuesday night in the budget.

Deductions for children under 18 receiving family allowances will be increased to $300 from $250 and for other dependents, such as children over 18 attending school or university, to $550 from $500.

Finance Minister Fleming said the increase, effective next year in filing 1962 tax returns, will free about 80,000 taxpayers from paying income tax.

The changes mean that a married man with a $5,000 income and two children on family allowances will pay approximately $401 less income tax for 1962, compared with $380 for 1961.

A married man supporting two over-16 high school or university students on a $5,000 income would pay $309 compared with $326.

The changes are expected to cost the national treasury $30,000,000 for 1962-63 and $40,000,000 for the 1963-64 government spending year.

"We Must Not Be Complacent" Says Finance Minister in Review

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming presented an "expansionist" budget Tuesday night and said economic recovery needs continued stimulus.

He forecast in the document a seven-per-cent rise in gross national product in 1962 which would push national output to $39,400,000,000 from last year's $36,844,000,000.

Canada now has rising prosperity, more jobs, greater opportunities and solid economic growth, Mr. Fleming said in framing his pre-election budget speech.

"But we must not be complacent."

Industry still had unused capacity. The task is unemployment rates "must be carried much further." The interrelated goals "require a pay-as-you-go policy financed by specially earmarked taxes," he said.

'EXPANSIONIST' BUDGET

The minister sounded an early keynote in his budget policy "will continue to be expansionist." Later, he added:

"We must be careful to avoid a premature dampening down of the upswing which is under way.

"Fiscal policy must continue to provide substantial stimulus to economy and further specific measures must be introduced to improve the quality of our industrial output, thereby stimulating exports and import substitution."

He also announced measures to stimulate technological research and development.

Mr. Fleming's forecast of gain in gross national product was based on the assumption that this year's farm harvests will be normal — a question which hinges on whether last year's drought will continue.

The predicted seven-per-cent rise in GNP would be equivalent to the increase in rate of output during the last six months of 1961. Last year's record-all gain was 2.5 per cent, only 2.3 per cent.

REVIEWS EXPANSION

The pro-election flavor of the budget speech was heightened by a lengthy review of the economic expansion which has occurred and of government measures carried out in recent years.

"The object of the expansion that has occurred is due in no small measure to the blend of fiscal policies we have introduced," he said.

The government had made significant shifts in taxation from consumer demand and had given welfare payments to individuals and transfer payments to provinces and municipalities.

Mr. Fleming spoke to individuals had risen to $2,014,000,000 in 1961 from $1,524,000,000 in 1956.

The value of total federal payments and tax abatements to the provinces would be an estimated $1,165,000,000 in the 1962-63 fiscal year—more than double the 1956-57 total to $560,000,000.

Mr. Fleming said these contributions had substantially offset results in federal budgetary deficits. The cumulative total for the budgets in the five years exceeded by $376,000,000 the $1,282,400,000 total budget deficits in the five years.

PENSION DEFICIT SEEN

He forecast that the recent $10 boost in old age pension payments to $60 a month will produce a $64,000,000 deficit in the pension fund in the new 1962-63 fiscal year, compared with the $24,000,000 surplus last year.

Mr. Fleming said the government will give the question further study in the light of the discussions with the provinces on a constitutional amendment that would permit a federal plan of contributory pensions.

Dealing with the exchange rate on the Canadian dollar—now worth 95¼ cents in U.S. funds—Mr. Fleming said policy statements in his last budget June 20 did not mean the government had adopted an aggressive policy to drive down the exchange rate.

The rate had fallen as a result of the removal of excessive pressures.

However, he said the government will not hesitate to employ "a substantial volume of funds — under-lined — through its exchange fund—either buying or selling U.S. dollars—in order to prevent sudden or erratic movements in our exchange rate."

HELPED BOOST SALES

The reduced exchange rate had inhibited import buying and helped boost export sales.

Unquestionably, the full effect of the lower dollar rate had not yet been felt, Canada's trade balance, tourist expenditures and other international transactions.

Mr. Fleming said the international current account deficit still is larger than it ought to be.

He said last year's merchandise trade surplus was $179,000,000—an upward revision from the original estimate of $37,000,000. The improvement from the 1960 trade deficit had more than offset a rise in the deficit on non-merchandise transactions and the balance-of-payments deficit had been cut to $286,000,000.

Reporting on his management of the public debt, Mr. Fleming said there had been "very beneficial" results in the economy from the fact that operations in interest yields of bonds in the market had been moderate, interest rates had declined over the year and the spread between short and long rates had narrowed.

He noted that his budget pledge last June to limit federal borrowing of long-term issues had been carried out and said the government will continue "to do its part to promote a sound and orderly capital market and investor confidence."

TO CONTINUE FUND

The purchase fund, used for the advance retirement of $165,000,000 worth of federal bonds maturing in subsequent years, will continue.

Net national debt now stands at $13,200,000,000—equal to $712 for every Canadian compared with $707 a year ago. The interest cost of the net debt was 3.77 per cent in the last year compared with 3.80 the previous year and 4.10 two years ago.

On trade policy, Mr. Fleming said that until Britain concludes negotiations for entry into the European Common Market, "we shall unavoidably continue to be faced with uncertainty."

The Canadian government did not for a moment underestimate Britain's promised determination to try to get necessary safeguards

LOAD INCREASES — Canada's net debt, calculated for every man, woman and child, increased to $712 in the last fiscal year as a result of the government's record peacetime deficit of $791,400,000. The per capita net debt was $684.55 in 1961 and $678.48 in 1960. Graph shows changes in net debt for each person in every fifth year since 1930. (CP Newsmap)

Budget Fails to Implement O'Leary Magazine Report

OTTAWA (CP)—No provision was made in Tuesday night's budget for the government's announced plan to divert Canadian advertising dollars from United States publications printed here to Canadian publications.

It was a major surprise of the speech delivered by Finance Minister Fleming.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced Jan. 31 in the Commons that tax and tariff measures were contemplated "in due course" on two fronts:

- Main target of the steps forecast are Time and Reader's Digest, whose Canadian editions have collared 40 per cent of Canadian magazine advertising.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government had accepted the recommendations of the royal commission on publications that would ban magazines printed in other countries from Canada if they contained advertising directed specifically to the Canadian market.

He said the government also accepted—without an important modification — the commission's other major recommendation to eliminate the present 100-per-cent income tax deduction allowed Canadian advertisers on their cost of advertising in foreign - owned periodicals printed in Canada. The modification was that in the case of Time and Reader's Digest, established in Canada, 50-per-cent deductibility would be allowed.

Move to Remedy Double Tax on Logging Firms

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will go two-thirds of the way toward removing double corporation income tax on Ontario and British Columbia logging firms, Finance Minister Fleming said Tuesday night.

He invited the two provinces to go the rest of the way.

The federal step—a tax credit of two-thirds of provincial tax on logging income, up to a maximum tax rate of 10 per cent—was effective conditionally last year.

It depended then on B.C. and Ontario granting the other third.

Companies in the two provinces have been the only ones subjected both to the federal and provincial corporation income taxes and a provincial tax on logging income.

Fleming said the "unique" federal concession may total about $2,000,000 in the new year and perhaps $1,500,000 in the current fiscal year.

He reviewed the background of the situation and efforts to reach a solution. He had tried earlier this year to arrange a meeting among the three governments and the industry but "owing to the position taken by B.C. it was not possible to choose a date . . . satisfactory to all the parties concerned."

The double-taxation situation became possible first in 1947 under the federal-provincial tax-sharing agreements. While Ontario and B.C. logging firms could claim their provincial tax as an expense in calculating federal income tax, they still carried a heavier tax load than other industries.

Mr. Fleming said the federal step "will go a long way toward removing the existing tax discrimination of forestry industry corporations, irrespective of any action which the provinces may take.

"Moreover, if the provinces imposing a logging tax supplement our tax credit with a credit of their own, as it is to be hoped they will, the discrimination will be removed completely."

He said the reason he proposes a two-thirds tax credit is that the federal corporation income tax is about twice as large as the provincial logging and mining taxes combined in Ontario and B.C.

for Commonwealth trade interests.

But even at best, Canada and other Commonwealth countries would have to face some trade adjustment, should Britain decide to join the six-nation Common Market.

Conference Ends With Plea For Countries' Aims on Use And Conservation of Water

TORONTO (CP) — The fifth conference on the Great Lakes ended yesterday with a plea for co-operation among the United States and Canada and the United States on the use and conservation of the inland water system.

Martin Fay of the Great Lakes Commissioner, Ann Arbor, Mich., said the governments must work out "a sound and wise public policy" that will establish realistic priorities among conflicting claims on the lakes resources.

A new policy was essential also to reconcile regulations governing water use and to target scope for the diffuse policies of current conservation and research projects.

Mr. Fay said some 200 U.S. and Canadian scientists and technicians attending the two-day conference last the last comprehensive policy statement of the Great Lakes was laid down in a 1909 treaty signed by the two countries.

Priorities for use of the waters laid down more than 50 years ago fail to recognize the expanded demands on Great Lakes resources today, he said.

SET UP PRIORITY

The treaty gave first priority to domestic and sanitary services. Navigation came second and power and irrigation last.

The treaty does not recognize major modern demands on Great Lakes resources by industry, shore-line developers, fish and wildlife, recreation and distance communities seeking diversion of the waters.

Chicago and some northeastern Illinois communities want to divert more water from Lake Michigan and some other states are fighting them in the courts. Mr. Fay suggested such disputes could be avoided if the governments take steps to clear-cut policy and regulations.

Mr. Fay also called for more research into specific problems on the lakes. He suggested valuable priories could be directed to technical improvements in the treatment of industrial waste and the disposal of ship garbage, both of which now cause pollution headaches. His emphasis on specific research projects followed presentation of more than 30 reports, many of which were technical accounts of methods used in collecting scientific data. Few conclusions were drawn and few attempts were made to relate findings directly to pressing problems such as pollution.

Delegates stressed that most research programs have been too limited to permit definite conclusions now.

The sixth conference, in June, 1963, will be held in Ann Arbor, site of the first four conferences.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Miss Bobbe Huntress, the former music teacher from Conneaut, N.Y., who was a surprisingly successful harness - horse driver at Old Woodbine last season, resumed her winning ways in the current 16-night spring meeting, night in her first start Tuesday night in her first start meeting.

Miss Huntress, who drives trotters for owner George McLean, piloted the veteran gelding Irish Mick to a tight victory over Vital Victory, driven by Harold McKinley, the 1961 driving champion, in Tuesday night's seventh race.

Miss Huntress, a favorite with the fans in her infrequent starts, showed a remarkable percentage of victories last summer in winning 21 races of 51 starts with McLean's trotters. She returned a handy $9.70 this time with the 11 - year - old trotter which was in the money 23 times in 37 starts in 1961, winning six. This was Irish Mick's first start of 1962.

Driver Almer Holmes scored the young meeting's first double, winning the second and fifth races for owner Max Weber of Brantford. Holmes brought down Full Swing for a $16.50 return in the second, and was worth $35.10 in the fifth with the pacing mare Lynden Anne. Both were the year's firsts for the Webster pacers.

Western Hockey

SPOKANE (AP) — Spokane Comets boomed back into contention in the Western Hockey League's Southern Division final Tuesday night with a heads-up 4-1 victory over Portland Buckaroos.

The win tied the best-of-seven series 3-3.

Dale Rolfe scored for the losers.

Hamilton Wins Hoop Tilt

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hamilton CYO moved to within one game of clinching the Canadian junior men's basketball championship Tuesday night with a 72-65 victory over Vancouver YMCA.

The win was Hamilton's second straight in the best-of-seven playoff which resumes tonight.

Car Rally Rolls West

WINNIPEG (CP) — Drivers got their first prolonged break of fine weather Tuesday as the 4,000-mile Canadian auto rally emerged from a Northern Ontario snowstorm and rolled westward under brilliant sunshine.

After a 18-hour tour of the Trans - Canada Highway from Sault Ste. Marie, the 39 remaining cars pulled into a suburban shopping plaza for a driving skill test. Then, dog-tired, they bedded down for the night without waiting for the official compilation of the day's results.

Forty-two cars left Montreal Saturday night for the week-long test.

An official correction during the day restored the leadership, not counting today's run, to Peter Ryan and Mike Kerry. They had been rated ninth when they left the Sault after holding down second place on the Montreal-Toronto section.

Rally officials rechecking the complex scoring cards discovered a one-hour error had crept into a punch clock at a time control, giving 120 unwarranted penalty points to the Ryan-Kerry car. After the deduction they moved up to only nine points and undisputed possession of first place as at the start from the Sault.

Ryan, a Mount Tremblant, Que., and Kerry, of Toronto, were told of their new status when their tiny Austin-Cooper pulled into a safety check at Port Arthur.

Only four points back at 13 were Tyrant Jarman of Rochester, Mich., and Don Hamby of Oshawa in a Chevy II.

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP)—A public address announcer at the Sydney Forum during the 1948 hockey playoffs asked that John MacDonald report to the box office for an urgent message.

There were fifteen from the 4,100-odd in the stands for reasons a red-faced PA man found out in a hurry. Twenty - four John MacDonalds struggled through the jam-packed arena to the phone.

It proved that it's advisable to be armed with more specific data such as middle names and nicknames when seeking a John MacDonald in these parts.

John Donald MacDonald won't narrow the field much. But John Donald (Brother) MacDonald will get the proper directions from any athletically inclined Nova Scotian.

In Pictou County just about everyone knows Brother—physical training director for New Glasgow schools, minor hockey, rugby, basketball, baseball and track coach, referee and umpire, little league baseball commissioner, radio sportscaster and raconteur.

PREACHES FITNESS

MacDonald, 40, has been wrapped up in sports since toddling days in his native Sydney Mines, N.S. Sandlot baseball and frequent late arrivals for supper led to his nickname. To distinguish him from other John MacDonalds his sisters would call from the doorstep, "Brunotherr!" The name stuck.

He's not, as some think, a member of a religious order. But he does preach. His gospel on physical fitness and athletic technique is imparted to more than 2,000 youngsters in the New Glasgow area and is backed up by his own record in sports.

As a first baseman he outshone the American imports in leading the semi - pro Colliery Baseball League for three years. He also played with Halifax Arrows and Stellarton Albions of the professional Halifax and District League.

In college he starred on the football field, in track and field and hockey. While attending St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish, N.S. before the war he played hockey with New Glasgow Bombers. He was also physical training instructor at Petawawa military camp in Ontario in the Second World War and in 1948 got his physical education diploma from McGill.

STARTED MINOR LEAGUE

He was appointed physical director of New Glasgow schools that year. In 1951 he got a service club to finance a minor hockey association. Now Brother as director and coach, it started with 15 boys in two leagues and has grown to eight leagues with 350 participants. Two of the teams have won Nova Scotia and Maritime minor hockey titles since 1956.

His New Glasgow High School rugby teams have won seven provincial championships in 14 years and were runners-up the other seven. Track teams have been consistent provincial winners and the girls have won one provincial soccer and one basketball championship.

Besides the five-day-a-week gym schedule, after - school coaching and refereeing, MacDonald gives three sportscasts daily on weekdays and one on Sunday over radio station CKEC.

He has no official ties with pro hockey clubs but his proteges lean toward Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins. Lowell MacDonald (no kin) topped this season's Ontario Junior A league in scoring with Hamilton Red Wings. He's a top Detroit prospect.

James Irvine, another product, was with the Hamilton junior B club and five others rated tryouts with Ontario junior teams sponsored by Detroit and Boston this season.

The job of moulding good athletes is getting tougher, Brother says. "There are too many other attractions. They have television and cars."

He feels most schools now have adequate facilities but "we need the kids to make full use of them."

He says the federal $5,000,000 allocation for physical fitness is "fine" but "we'll have to be careful we don't just get winning teams for the price."

AIR CHIEF PROMOTED

Viewing the Waterfowl Scene

Gradually this year's crop is coming in giving the results of the annual waterfowl census conducted by Fish and Wildlife Service. Actually this study is a large operative effort in which Fish and Wildlife, the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, State fish and game departments, and the Armed Services take part. The number of individuals participating totals well over a thousand. Boats, cars, airplanes and helicopters are used and miles travelled added up to somewhere around 150,000. Directing the survey and tabulating the results is indeed a monumental job.

Generally the outlook is not encouraging. In the Atlantic Flyway the overall total showed a decline of 7 per cent in ducks and from 23 per cent to 50 per cent in geese, depending upon the species. Goose species of which have shown marked improvement in recent years, are reduced drastically in numbers. Only about half the number of brant are in evidence, with few young birds; even the Canada honker is down about 25 per cent.

The Mississippi Flyway shows a decrease of 34 per cent in all species — 15 per cent fewer geese, 19 per cent fewer geese and more, and 8 per cent more ducks.

The Pacific Flyway, like the Atlantic Flyway, showed an overall reduction of 7 per cent, compared with a year ago.

The probabilities are that our 1962 gunning season will be another unhappy one, with bag limits down close to the vanishing point. Still, it cannot yet be accepted philosophically. After all, we are fortunate that a limiting factor with waterfowl always has been. And if you haven't got 'em, you can't shoot 'em.

A WELL-DESERVED AWARD

The Department of the Interior has announced a Superior Performance Award, which carries with it a $750 bonus, to Mr. Anthony M. Stefano of Wallingford, Virginia. Mr. Stefano is employed as a criminal investigator in the Fish and Wildlife Service's Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife. He it was who broke the case leading to the arrest of 161 persons in 1961 for market hunting activities.

For two and a half years Mr. Stefano carried out undercover operations in the southeastern United States, gathering evidence by purchasing over 8,000 wild ducks and geese for "evidence" while posing as a peanut salesman. During this time he and members of his immediate family lived under assumed names.

Stefano says, when you undertake to bring about the arrest and conviction of waterfowl market hunters, you do a very great personal risk in pursuit of your "criminals". But, in the country, I came to know we Americans like to hunt. Human life means all too little to most of them. My association with them, with casual o n e s, convinced me of the wisdom in keeping my identity and casual.

Stefano evidently lived with them and came to know them well, as he did, in fact, personal identification at their trials during which he was present. During these years, Stefano was an extremely poor insurance risk.

The hops raid, taking in the States of Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia, Louisiana and Arkansas, was staged on May 3, 1961. Forty-five federal agents, and State conservation officers from the States involved, took part in the activities which began at dawn. It was quite an affair.

But this is not the only raid for which Stefano was responsible. In 1956 he was responsible for breaking up a market hunting ring in California and in 1956 he played the same part in a mass arrest of 60 waterfowl hunters in the Houston-Galveston section of Texas, having spent three years in gathering evidence.

In his day and age, market hunting of waterfowl is a vicious and destructive thing. The men involved are professionals a great deal more than sportsmen like the law is allowed to give them. But what about the people who make market hunting possible? In the cases who buy this illegal game? Surely they are equally responsible and should share the same fate as the hunters.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor Income Tax Dept.

Each year there are thousands of taxpayers who have their returns delayed, due to their not having given complete information as requested on the return and of course they always blame the Income Tax Department for the delay.

As the blank returns are always received by the taxpayer in duplicate, it is of the utmost importance that the person files a return, by an exact duplicate for future reference. If a refund, unless applicable, is not received in a few weeks after the return is filed, the taxpayer should not attach his duplicate copy to see if all the questions were properly answered, before he writes, to inquire as to the delay. Those taxpayers who file their returns direct to Ottawa, should make their inquirer, not to Ottawa, but to their local tax office, as any incomplete return is sent to the Deslis Gower Studio before it is given to the Income Tax Department and that's all I'm going to tell you.

Q. Why?

A. Because people read you. And I don't want someone else to grab the idea and get it on the air before we come on in fall.

Q. Is it true that you are going to be a widow?

A. Why—my Gary (Morton) going to die?

Q. No. Aren't you going to play a widow in the series?

A. That's possible. But I'm not going to tell you any more.

Q. Do you really want to work part time?

A. I'm not sure. But I'm usually happy when I'm working.

Q. What is this series going to do to your marriage?

A. Nothing — I hope. Gary and I work well — and I will work. We have our own careers, and Gary is adult about it. His work is mostly out of town. But he'll be home some of the time, too.

TELLS OF MOVIE

That's as far as we got with the new television show, but Lucille was more voluble about the movie she is making. It's called Critic's Choice and it's yet another look into the lives of Walter and Jean Kerr—fiction, of course.

Last time out it was Please Don't Eat the Daisies with David Niven and Doris Day as the drama critic and wife who lived with their brood of boys in an ancient mansion.

This time it is Lucille and Bob Hope as the play-writing wife and the drama critic who is faced with reviewing her show.

This is their first film together since the highly successful Facts of Life.

"I hope we do as well as that one," said Lucille, "This one is funny, but it's about upper - middle - class people in whom the audience may not be so much excited. Anyway, We'll see how it comes out."

Vivian Vance to Be Back With Lucille in Series

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Playing cat and mouse with Lucille Ball:

Q. Is it true you are going to do another television series?

A. That's right.

Q. Tell me all about it.

A. Well, it's a comedy and I will have Vivian Vance back with me and the same writers who did I Love Lucy and Desi (Arnaz) will be the executive producer, and we'll shoot it at the Desilu Gower Studio before a live audience if we can get permission from the fire department and that's all I'm going to tell you.

Q. Why?

A. Because people read you. And I don't want someone else to grab the idea and get it on the air before we come on in fall.

No Slackening of Viewers Since Jack Paar Abdicated

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A funny thing happened to NBC's Tonight Show after Jack Paar announced he was quitting. Audience remained just about the same as it was during Paar's long reign.

According to estimates of the American Research Bureau, a rating service, the Tonight Show last week, its first under sole custody of Art Linkletter, a native of Moose Jaw, rang up a score almost identical to the weekly ratings Paar achieved—under quiet conditions.

Paar's rating during the last week he was on the program was a couple of points higher than his normal average. But that was because the viewing of his final show were almost double the usual number. This, of course, increased the average for the week.

That Linkletter has been able to keep a large number of the

AT THE PARK — Out-of-This-World Romance — Space explorer John Agar finds romance in the lovely person of Greta Thyssen on the mysterious far-off planet Uranus in scene from American International's science fiction thriller, "Journey to the 7th Planet". population awake—or at least has kept a lot of TV sets turned on into the midnight hours—perhaps will come as a great disappointment to the rabid Paar fans, and to Paar himself.

My own explanation is that audience is still watching purely from habit. Over the years, Tonight has become a part of the Paar show and now find that it's impossible to turn off the set and go to bed after the late news.

Then, the genuine creatures of habit the large numbers of feminine viewers who have made Linkletter a successful daytime performer over the years, and the result is a surprising audience.

'Most Disappointing Year'

Blake Wants Another Try

MONTREAL (CP)—The man who in seven years as coach of Montreal Canadiens has always led them to either the National Hockey League title or the Stanley Cup — and frequently both—said Tuesday he wants another chance to make good.

Licking the wounds of a scalping by Chicago Black-Hawks in this year's cup semi-finals, Toe Blake told newspaper men he has been my hardest year as a coach, my most disappointing year."

But I'm not giving up. I want to insist on another chance, hoping to ask for a one-year contract."

Blake finishes a two-year contract with the Canadiens this season. Speculation about his future has been rife in Montreal since the Hawks eliminated the Canadiens in Chicago Sunday night.

General manager Frank Selke also has refused to have lincup changes in mind.

"Our veterans disappointed us in the series," he said. "Our rookies didn't produce. Next year, we hope that our veterans will be back healthy and ready to play. Our rookies will be more mature."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

They were a trifle short of wind and endurance, there was an audible creaking of joints and whispering protest of muscles, but they had lots of fire and spirit.

"Tosie" Holway's juniors of the mid-forties, now somewhat paunchy, some sparsely thatched, others with a touch of grey held their 10th Annual Reunion and recalled in word, if not in deed, some of their under-fire action.

True they donned the skates and pads and played themselves a game of hockey abet: was somewhat shortlived, but they showed they had not forgotten what to do with the puck and to manipulate a stick.

They called it off before anything look its toll and adjourned to the home of the team's captain, Doug Green, for a delectable buffet-luncheon. And they highlighted the affair by presenting the popular skipper with a plaque of appreciation. It could not have been given to a better fellow.

Coach "Toots" Holway looked over his puck brood of some sixteen years ago with fondness in his eyes. Executive member Jack Doran, now teaching in Marmora and formerly of St. Michael's Academy was there as was "Musty" Reid. Referee and now OASA president Don Lee arrived back from convention in Hamilton in time to take in the festivities.

A lot of them came in pairs. There were Doug and Bobby Green, Al and Bernie Meagher, Jackie and Harry Wardhaugh, "Toots" and son Bill Holway, "Moe" Rollins, Johnny Semark, Doug Day, Jerry Mohair, Bruce Bishop and Don "Bow-tie" Barrett.

Coach Holway was more in a reminiscent mood than his official capacity of some 16 years ago. He talked of the days when the youngsters were in their prime. He drew some of the facts of his own fine hockey career, a highlight of which was helping the Montreal Maroons win the Stanley Cup back in the 1925-26 season.

And he admitted to playing with, as that bearded sportswriting old Methuselah down Stratford way remarked the other day, the Stratford Indians in the Can. Am pro league.

"Toots" had a long and honorable hockey career both amateur and professional. He was born in Toronto but moved here at an early age, playing his first junior hockey in a Belleville uniform.

He moved to Brockville and played intermediate hockey there, turning pro in the 1923-24 season with the Toronto St. Pats. He was a defenceman, standing six-foot-two and weighing 165 pounds.

"In those days," Toots said, "we were paid $2,500 for a 44-game series with a bonus of $500 if we won the cup."

He joined the Montreal Maroons in the 1925-26 series under the tutelage of manager-coach Eddie Gerard. On the Maroon team of that season were Clint Benedict, Reg Noble, Frank Carson, Dunc Munro, Nels Stewart, Harry Broadbent, Babe Siebert, Dinny Dinsmore, Bill Phillips, Hoble Kitchen, Sammy Rothschild, Frank Lowery and Shorty Green.

The Maroons won the Stanley Cup that year, defeating Lester Patrick's Victoria Cougars in three games in a best-of-five series. The series of the spring of 1926 ended the annual playoffs between the east and west. The west coast circuit disbanded, selling its players to Chicago, Detroit and New York.

"Toots" left the National Hockey League in the 1928-29 season, going to the London Tecumseths of the International League where he stayed for the next six years. Later he played for the Cleveland Barons for a year and a half, finishing his pro career with the Seattle club in the 1936 season.

Leafs Shoot Hawks Down In Opener

Second Line Standout

By BILL MacDOUGALL

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Rudy Pilous said shortly after arriving in Toronto that his Chicago Black Hawks could beat Toronto Maple Leafs in the "back alley, their front yard or back yard."

He changed his tune Tuesday night, sobered by the fact that the Leafs took Hawks on in Toronto's own "yard"—Maple Leaf Gardens — and won the first game of the Stanley Cup final 4-1.

He made excuse for Chicago's performance—"we gave them three of the goals . . . because we were more tired"—and the Hawks had enough lapses that they needed some one to go to bat for them.

Toronto started off slowly, sluggishly and sloppily, gave up a goal in the first period, then whipped back to take full command with two goals in each of the second and third periods.

It was an inauspicious start for the giant-killing Hawks, who knocked off first-place Montreal Canadiens in four games to win the semi-final, the same margin by which Toronto banished New York Rangers.

PREDICTS REBOUND

Pilous said the extra day of rest Toronto got between the semi-final and the final made the difference. Leafs were through their semi-final action Saturday night and the Hawks Sunday night.

And, he predicted, Chicago will rebound.

"But he couldn't wash away the fine performance of Leafs' "second" line, which took care of three of Toronto's four goals.

Left winger Frank Mahovlich got the other Toronto goal. Red Kelly and Ron Stewart assisting.

The man he singled out for special mention was Duff. Although Duff had no goals, "he was really going at it" before the puck. He sure was going hard."

HAWKS TAKE LEAD

Leafs were down a goal in the first period on a goal by Bobby Hull, the Hawk right winger who this season tied the record of 50 goals in a season. It was set up by Stan Mikita, who boosted his record to 14 points in seven playoff games this season.

Mikita grabbed the puck at the point, faked a shot and passed to Hull, standing 15 feet in front of the Toronto goal. He rifled the puck past Toronto goaltender Johnny Bower on a sliding shot at 2:35.

Imlach said he thought it was a "soft kind of goal." Horton was in the penalty box for holding at the time.

Keon tied it up at 1:32 of the second period on a picture performance by Armstrong. The right winger hauled the puck into the Chicago zone, with Keon and Duff trailing. He dispy-doodled around just inside the blue while his linemates caught up and then, with two Hawks all but clutching him, he laid the pass on Duff's stick. Duff fired to Keon, who was moving fast, and Chicago goaltender Glenn Hall didn't have a chance.

Chicago right winger Eric Nesterenko got the blame for the second Toronto goal. He and Leaf defenceman Carl Brewer, who had been feuding on and off, tangled and the Hawk got the puck for scoring at 12:43. Eleven seconds later Stewart passed from the corner to Mahovlich who drilled it past Hall.

Pilous said after the game Nesterenko's penalty was stupid.

"He (Nesterenko) was off side and had no business going after the puck. It cost us a goal although our defence helped by giving Toronto the puck."

GETS PUCK FIRST

Nesterenko got three penalties, one of them for high-sticking Brewer less than a minute after Mahovlich's goal.

The Black Hawk defence also looked bad on Leafs' third goal, at 5:03 of the final period by Armstrong. Elmer (Moose) Vasko laid a pass on Duff's skate attempting to clear and the left winger flipped a pass to Armstrong. The Leaf captain lifted a high one over Hall who had sprawled to the ice.

The Chicago Hawks had of a sudden rejuvenation ended at 14:32 of the third period when Horton slapped a bot one from the blue line that went under Hall's outstretched leg.

Second game of the best-of-seven series is here tomorrow night. The third and fourth games are in Chicago Sunday and Tuesday.

Hawks are resting today, with no practice scheduled until tomorrow when the club will go for a light skate. Leafs called a practice for this morning.

Imlach said that left winger Bert Olmstead, who suffered a cracked shoulder bone late in the season and has been out since, will definitely be dressed for Sunday's game.

How much action he'll see is uncertain, Imlach said, but "we'll work him in as time goes on and as we need him."

Kapuskasing Hockey Mad

$3 For Standing Room, No Seats

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP)—Two teams with formidable won-lost records clash here tonight in the opener of a best-of-seven series for the Eastern Canada senior hockey championship.

Representing Kaps, Northern Ontario Hockey Association champions, are contending for a berth in the Allan Cup final of the strength of a resounding victory over Windsor Bulldogs the Ontario Hockey Association representatives, whom they ousted in a best-of-five series by three games to one.

Montreal Olympics, winners of their four - team league, dropped only one game in ousting Amherst Ramblers in a best-of-five series, and knocked off Buckingham Aces, in three straight games.

The Olympics, whose lineup includes Claude Charbonneau, younger brother of Maurice and Henri of the National League's Canadiens, will go into the series with a record of 21 victories in 23 games.

The Kaps, 23 points ahead in their four-team group when the season ended, defeated the Bulldogs their two worst home defeats of the season, 7-3 and 7-3, in wrapping up their eastern semi-final after splitting their two game, at Kapuskasing.

With the exception of centre Marcel Marois, former Niagara Falls junior, and captain Russ Belliveau and winger Leo Gaudet, imported from New Brunswick, the Kap roster is composed entirely of Northern Ontario residents.

Only three of the Kaps have played in leagues of higher classification than the NOHA. Greig Hicks, played in the American and Eastern Professional League. Nickie Rukavina was in the U.S. Air Force League and Joe Howes spent a season in the International League.

This paper town of 7,000 stayed off a bid by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to move the series from its 1,500-capacity arena, to Abitibi, which can accommodate 4,000, by raising ticket prices to $3 each, good for standing room only since the arena boasts no seats.

The fans responded by buying up the supply for both tonight's and Friday night's games.

The remainder of the series will be played in Montreal.

Palmer Eyes Big Four

Seeks Golf's Grand Slam

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, winner of his third Masters golf crown in five years, said Tuesday he is determined to score a professional grand slam paralleling the 1930 amateur feat of Bob Jones.

"As long as I'm playing golf, I'll be shooting for it," the rugged young professional from Latrobe, Pa., said. "It's foremost in my mind."

The professional slam to which Palmer refers consists of the Masters, the U.S. and British opens, and the U.S. PGA. No man has ever won all four although Ben Hogan won the first three in 1953, skipping the PGA.

Jones's grand slam in 1930 consisted of the U.S. amateur and open championships and the British amateur and open championships.

The next leg of the professional slam is the U.S. Open at Oakmont, Pa., June 14-16. The British Open, in which Palmer is the defending champion, is at Troon, Scotland, July 9-14. The PGA is set for July 19-22 at Newtown Square, Pa., near Philadelphia.

'Moose' May Be Yanks Third Big M

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Moose may be ready to add another M to New York Yankees' M and M power trademark.

The Moose is Bill Skowron, burly first baseman for the Yankees who played the key role Tuesday as the world champions began their campaign for a third consecutive American League pennant with a 7-6 opening-day triumph over Baltimore Orioles.

Skowron opened the Yankees' scoring with a two-run blast into the-park homer in the fourth inning, watched Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle keep New York close with homers, then stroked a single that snapped a 6-6 tie in the eighth to wrap things up.

Plagued by back trouble throughout an eight-year career, Skowron spent the winter strengthening his muscles with special exercises. He hit 23 homers last season and could join Maris and Mantle in a triumvirate of terror.

Maris tagged home run No. 1 in the 1962 campaign, a three-run shot in the fifth inning off Billy Hoeft.

Dick Donovan got Cleveland Indians off swinging with a five-hitter that blanked Boston Red Sox 4-0, Chicago White Sox edged Los Angeles Angels 5-4 and Kansas City Athletics defeated Minnesota Twins 4-2. Detroit Tigers and Washington Senators were idle.

DRIVES HOWARD IN

Ralph Terry picked up the victory, taking the mound when Whitey Ford, a 25-game winner last season, left after giving up eight hits and four runs in six innings. Relief specialist Luis Arroyo came on to get the last three outs for the Yanks when Johnny Temple singled to open the ninth.

Donovan, 34, acquired by the Indians in a trade last season, limited Boston to Washington, made Mel McGaha's managerial debut a success with his standout performance. While Donovan was throwing blanks, Woody Held drove in two runs and John Romano and Chuck Essegian each scored twice to hand Red Sox starter Don Schwall the loss.

Sherm Lollar, 37, Chicago catcher, hit a two-out single in the ninth inning off reliever Joe Nuxhall to drive in the deciding run. It was his fourth hit of the day. Juan Pizarro got the victory, going the distance and limiting the Angeles to five hits.

Gino Cimili hit a three - run homer in the fourth inning that capped a four - run uprising against Twins' starter Jack Kralick after he had retired the first 19 Kansas City batters. It also gave Ed Rakow all the runs he needed as he went the distance and scattered seven hits.

In the Dressing Rooms

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs said Tuesday night Chicago Black Hawks have found "they can't push us around" in the Stanley Cup final.

Surrounded by a cluster of reporters in Leafs' dressing room after they beat Chicago 4-1 in the first game of the best - of - seven series, Imlach said he wasn't as worried about Thursday night's game as the semi-final games' against New York Rangers.

He was obviously pleased over his club's performance—"they did a pretty good checking job."

"And that (Stick) Duff, he was really going in after the puck. He sure wins going hard."

CREDITS OTHERS

Duff didn't get a goal, but his line figured on three of them. The wiry left winger shrugged off questions, giving credit to centre Dave Keon and right winger George Armstrong.

On Keon's lone goal, Armstrong "made the big play. He had two guys on him and still put the puck on my stick. All I had to do was give it to Davey."

Armstrong, Leafs' captain, said it was his linemates' show all the way.

"Those two little boys were really going. . . . And if you've got two guys on your line playing that well, you just have to play well too."

REST MADE DIFFERENCE

Chicago coach Rudy Pilous figured the fact that Toronto had a day's more rest than his Hawks was the determining factor Tuesday night.

"We gave them three of the goals," said Pilous. "And we gave them those goals because we were more tired. We had a tougher series against Montreal Canadiens than the Leafs did against New York Rangers."

Pilous didn't think the loss would hurt his club. Digging at the Leafs, he said:

"We won't need two games to a good club (Montreal) and we won. Being a game-down on the Leafs doesn't mean a thing. From adversities come good."

GET DAY OFF

None of the Hawks suffered any injuries and Pilous said the club won't work out at all today, in fact the only practice it will have before Thursday's second game looks like a light skate Thursday morning.

Most of the Hawks agreed that the Leafs checked harder than the Canadiens but they also said they were tired after only two days rest.

Stan Mikita, the little centre who is leading the playoff scorers with three goals and 11 assists, figured the Leafs grab and hold more than the Canadiens. "And they get away with, too," he added.

Griffith Gets Threat Letters

NEW YORK (AP) — Welterweight champion Emile Griffith has received letters from crank, threatening to shoot him if he gets into a ring, one of his co, managers said Tuesday.

That was one of the reasons why Griffith gave to his native Virgin Islands Monday, co-manager Gil Clancy said in an interview. Another is that he still is emotionally unstrung by the death of Benny (Kid) Paret.

Paret, a Cuban native, died 10 days after he was battered senseless by Griffith in the 12th round of their welterweight title fight, March 24.

Clancy believes it might be better for Griffith to get back into ring action soon to test his reactions. He said he would like to arrange a non-title bout out of New York, if Griffith can overcome the mental hurdle. Clancy hopes to have him make a title defence in September against Luis Rogas, No. 1 contender, from New Orleans.

Referring to the non ... title bout, Clancy said "because of the animosity and even hate expressed in threatening letters, we are not going to put him in with a Latin opponent."

Bears Edge Bisons 3-2 In Overtime

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Winger Gerry McKenzie's close-in goal early in the second sudden-death overtime game of their best-of-five American Hockey League semi-final.

McKenzie scored at 5:44 after the clubs had skated through 53 minutes and a pretty good, scoreless hockey.

The second game will be here Thursday night.

The Bisons outclassed Hershey for nearly three-quarters of the long contest. They outshot the Bears 44-26.

Hershey went out front at 6:10 of the second period when Willie Marshall's shot hit Lee Duff's skate and flipped into the net. Buffalo tied it at 7:44 when Brian Cullen stole the puck from Marc Reaume and beat Bears net to beat Perreault from three feet.

Pete Conacher put the Bears in front 10 seconds later on a 25-foot shot but the Bisons tied it again on a tally by Barry Cullen.

Macs Play Woodbridge Here Tonight

The Belleville InterFriends will be battling for top spot in the OBA Junior "B" round-robin playdowns here tonight when they take on the Woodbridge Dodgers in an 8:30 fixture.

This will be the final game in the three-team round-robin series. The two top teams will then clash in a best-of-seven, all - Ontario semi-finals.

Right now, Waterloo Siskins are one point ahead of the Macs and if they finish tied, will get the odd game in the semi-finals series, that makes tonight's game an important one for the Macs.

In their two meetings to date, the Siskins have won on their home ice and the Macs took the nod here in the Belleville Arena. The odd game in the semi-finals could make the difference and Gordie Bell's boys will be going all out to grab first place.

Woodbridge on the other hand has nothing to lose and can play the "spoiler" role by whipping the Macs tonight. The Dodgers are no pushovers. Despite their round-robin record. They beat Waterloo right in Waterloo and during the regular scheduled ied the Metro Junior "B" loop with 28 wins and only four defeats.

The following is the team standing in the round-robin series, including all games played to date. If the Macs can win tonight they may open the semi-finals against Waterloo on Friday night.

	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Waterloo	2	1	1	15	11	5
Belleville	2	1	0	13	11	4
Woodbridge	0	2	1	9	14	1

Palmer Tops Pro Golf Loot List

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, who proved in his Masters victory his ability to scrap back from almost certain defeat to win, leads professional golfing's money winning list with $35,000.

Gene Littler, who won $6,000 for his fourth - place Masters finish, continues in second place with total winning of $21,667.

Bill Casper Jr., who won $1,160 in his eighth-place tie, dropped from first to third with a total of $17,306. In fourth with a total $15,615 is Phil Rodgers, who won $400 at Augusta.

Shantz, Mejias Stars

Houston Colts Whip Cubs

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Paul Richards, who dipped into the National League draft bag for Houston's new entry, apparently pulled out two stars pitching Bobby Shantz and outfielder Roman Mejias.

Plucked by general manager Richards from Pittsburgh Pirates roster at last year's special draft to stock the new league clubs, Shantz and Mejias reigned as Houston's first heroes after leading the Colts to an 11-4 victory over Chicago Cubs, in their debut Tuesday.

Shantz, 36, pitched a strong game against the Cubs, checking them on five hits and keeping them away from the plate until he tired in the late innings. Meanwhile, the Colts were building a 5-0 edge.

Mejias, 29, connected twice for the Colts, blasting a three-run shot off Don Cardwell in the third inning and smacking another with two men on off reliever Al Lary in the eighth.

METS RAYDEN OUT?

New York Mets, the other new entry were rained out in their scheduled opener at St. Louis in a night game. They'll try to get under way tonight, sending Roger Craig against Larry Jackson of the Cardinals.

San Francisco Giants opened with a 6-0 triumph over Milwaukee Braves, behind Juan Marichal's three - hit pitching. Cincinnati Reds ruined Los Angeles Dodgers, home opener before 53,566 fans with a 8-3 victory and Pittsburgh, Bob Friend four out Philadelphia Phillies, 6-0 on five hits.

Shantz was virtually untouchable until the 29th home of Ernie Banks' career, Jim McKnight's triple and a sacrifice fly by Lou Brock gave the Cubs single runs in the seventh and eighth. Inning at Hat Smith backed Mejias' efforts with another homer for the Colts.

Marichal, 24, gave up a single, a rookie, Nicolo Bedell in the third inning, before he held the Braves hitless until Tommy Aaron, with Frank Bolling singled in the ninth.

STRIKES OUT 16

He struck out 16 men and contributed to the Giants' attack against Warren Spahn with two runs batted in on a double and single, Spahn left after 2 2-3 innings.

With two men out in the seventh inning, the score tied 2-2 and one on, the Dodgers elected to walk Frank Robinson and pitch to Wally Post. Post tagged the first pitch from Johnny Podres for a homer to

Farm Industry Given Help By Minister

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government moved Tuesday to put a rein on chemical integration in the farm industry.

Agriculture Minister Stewart introduced a trio of amendments to the Farm Products Marketing Act in the legislature and indicated further changes would be made if necessary.

The amendments aim to bring the processors of food products within the ambit of the province's farm marketing scheme and to control the contracts which bind the farmer and food producer with large canner or processor.

The key amendment introduced Tuesday and given first reading provides processors must furnish reports to the Farm Products Marketing Board about the food they have produced, and to pay licence fees in the same manner as do farmers and other producers.

A second amendment was designed, said Mr. Stewart, to "overcome discrimination against a grower who raises a problem in connection with his contract with the processor and the next year found himself without a contract."

The amendment forbids either grower or processor to terminate a contract "without just cause."

The third amendment gives the Farm Products Marketing Board power to regulate agreements between growers and producers "and the prohibition of any provision or clause in such agreements."

Redistribution Proposal Is Bottled Up

By JACK BEBY
OTTAWA (CP)—The government's proposal for an electoral boundaries commission has remained bottled up at resolution stage Tuesday in a last and quarrelsome Commons.

Towards the end of an often-fiery debate, Prime Minister Diefenbaker made what amounted to a plea for passage of the resolution, so that the legislation itself could be introduced and given first reading.

If we are not going to be able to pass the resolution and get the legislation before us then, of course, the responsibility is not that of the government," he said.

This touched off a lengthy wrangle involving the prime minister, the Liberal Opposition and the chair—a wrangle that continued well past the 5 p.m. time for starting private members' business.

FIX BOUNDARIES

The government resolution—first debated Monday and still awaiting approval—calls for an independent commission to take and make the job of redrawing constituency boundaries in line with population change, shown by the 1961 census.

Boundaries are fixed according to the distribution of population as shown in the general census held every 10 years. Previously a Commons committee handled this redistribution.

The regular business of the house was cut short by two hours—the length of the night sitting — by Finance Minister Fleming's budget speech.

Mr. Gelber on the electoral resolution ended with Paul Martin (Essex East) totally trying to establish a point of principle arising out of the prime minister's remarks.

U.S. Govt. Reacting Slowly To Castro's Money Demands

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Premier Fidel Castro's demand of $62,000,000 as ransom for the 1,179 Cuban invaders is seen in U.S. diplomatic quarters as an attempt by the financially-crippled Cuban regime to check the impact of the U.S. trade embargo against Cuba.

Under this reason, the U.S. government is reacting with unusual slowness to the ransom demand. Callers are showing sympathy with the invaders who face long prison terms if the money isn't paid but it doesn't want to ask Congress to OK the release of the rebels captured in the invasion fiasco a year ago.

Indeed, one U.S. diplomatic source suggested Congress may not be asked to approve the cash for such funds, especially when it is known Castro has confiscated hundreds of other Cubans for political reasons.

Where is the United States to draw the line? If it is prepared to bail out the invaders, why shouldn't it be prepared also to bail out the hundreds of other political prisoners?

BAD U.S. SUPPORT

While this line of reasoning is offered as argument why the United States should move slowly and perhaps eventually refuse to meet Castro's demands for ransom, an element that diplomatic quarters seem to ignore is that the U.S. supported and encouraged the invasion attempt and therefore, it may be reasoned, should bear responsibility for their fate.

Published reports by Cubans who were associated with the invasion ever suggest the U.S. kept vital information from the rebel leaders. Some of the rebels—such as the last-minute removal of promised U.S. air support—had that poor military planning on the part of U.S. Central Intelligence Agency may have led directly to the invasion disaster.

Last year when Castro offered to trade the prisoners for $500 million worth of government aid, association itself with a citizens committee to collect the necessary funds, estimated at $17,000,000. The U.S. offer was withdrawn when Castro demanded heavy tractors instead of light ones, increasing the cost.

NEW GROUP ACTS

Now another U.S. group, made up of families and friends of the Cuban invaders, says it is ready to negotiate with the help of Castro's terms of $25,000 each for the rank and file prisoners and up to $500,000 each for the leaders. This group may have money for some of the rebels but certainly not for all of them.

Undoubtedly the group would be prepared to launch a campaign for funds which might have a better chance of success if it had the government behind it.

Again the government may be slow to act. U.S. officials reason that Castro is in financial trouble. A food shortage has brought rationing to Cuba. Castro's popularity may decline thereby increasing prospects of an internal uprising. That is what the U.S. administration wants.

Leader of Cuban Rebels Holds Parley With Kennedy

Intelligence Agency into an abandoned Florida home, there to remain in isolation until the outcome of the fight.

Dr. Cardona did not know the U.S. government, in an 11th-hour revision, had withdrawn its pledge of air support for the rebels.

Later in New York he had to issue a denial of published reports that he had approved the plan. "I have known nothing about it, he said.

Dr. Cardona walled in the auditorium Tuesday while Kennedy held talks with Mr. Justice W. D. Roach of Toronto on ways of strengthening Canada-U.S. measures to fight organized crime.

When Mr. Justice Roach came out, Dr. Cardona went in. His name had not been mentioned on the attorney - general's published list of appointments. An aide to Kennedy said the U.S. government had no plans for any new invasion. Dr. Cardona's visit had nothing to do with invasion plans. He was here on other business.

Nevertheless, said the aide, the less said about the visit the better.

Prophet Freed

ERIE, Kan. (AP)—Kenneth L. Beeney, 39, self - styled prophet of doom for Erie, was released from jail Thursday after completing a 30-d sentence for causing truancy of his two younger children.

His 46-year-old wife will join him at a similar sentence Friday.

Last month the Beeneys, their six children and Mrs. Beeney's mother packed their belongings in two cars. They said God told them to leave Erie because he was going to destroy Erie in one of 1,200 persons.

Beneficiaries Questioning Administration of Fund Set Up for Deserving Indians

WHITEHORSE, Yukon (CP) — Skookum Jim, co-discoverer of the gold that set off the Klondike stampede of 1898, provided in his will a trust fund for "assisting needy and deserving Indians in the Yukon Territory."

The $32,000 trust, managed by a trust company since Skookum Jim's death in 1916, swelled to 365,000 by 1961 and the trustees—the commissioners of the Yukon and the Anglican bishop of the Yukon — had barely touched it.

There are many "needy and deserving Indians" among the 2,000 or more in the territory, about 600 in Whitehorse. Last year the trustees decided that this, first major benefit of Skookum Jim's bequest should be applied to three Whitehorse residents — Tlingits, Lowell Bean and other Indian groups.

With $25,000 a community hall was built and an advisory board was appointed to make suggestions for its use.

STIRRED CONTROVERSY

Named the Skookum Jim Memorial Hall, it has not yet been officially opened but already has started a controversy.

At the annual meeting here of the Yukon Indian Advancement Association, Indian David Hammond asked why no natives were on the advisory board.

"If Skookum Jim was smart enough to discover gold in the Klondike — and to leave that much money, why accept Ottawa or his (race) smart enough to have it say in it?"

On the advisory board are Mr. Justice John Parker of the Yukon Territorial Court; Frank DeLaute, executive assistant to Commissioner F. H. Collins; Whitehorse Mayor Ed Jacobs; Warren Rosgove, a teacher; W. K. Grant, Indian agency superintendent; Territorial Councillor Ken McKinnon and School Superintendent Barry Thompson.

Mr. Grant told the meeting at least one person of Indian ancestry should be on the board. He said Indians should have some voice in the operation of the hall.

IGNORED IN PLANNING

Others at the meeting agreed, some suggesting two Indian board members, one male and one female.

Dr. Otto Schaefer of the public health department's Indian and northern health services branch said criticism had been involved by Indians and whites concerning the lack of consultation with persons of Indian ancestry during planning of the hall.

He later said he was opposed to the commissioner's view that the hall should mainly be for white people.

The commissioner, who has not yet announced the opening date for the hall, did not attend the meeting. The other trusteeship was temporarily vacant after Bishop Isaac Stringer died. H. H. Marsh, who has been rector of St. Timothy's Anglican Church in Toronto.

STAKED FOUR CLAIMS

Although he was using the name Jules Mason when he died, Skookum Jim—A Tlingit was the real name of the man who, with Tagish Charley and George Carmack, first found gold nuggets in the Klondike.

In the summer of 1896, in two and a half days along the Yukon River and its tributaries, the men were prospecting. Gold they found in fine grain, not nuggets.

But on the edge of Rabbit Creek—later named Bonanza—was found the first glittering nugget. Skookum Jim later said he found it after shooting a moose. George Carmack said he found it while examining a strip of bedrock.

The first sample of the claim they penned yielded $4 in gold, the largest amount taken in one pan in the Yukon up to that very day in the Yukon.

Kennedy Bitter About Increase In Steel Prices

Three Inquiries Planned Boost Called 'Ruthless'

WASHINGTON (CP) — For the first time since his administration took office 15 months ago, President Kennedy is involved in a bitter battle with a major segment of U.S. industry—big steel.

The president threw himself into the fight with a charge that the steel industry "ruthless disregard" of the public by raising prices.

Kennedy launched the attack Wednesday at a press conference in which he announced U.S. Steel Corporation, the major producer, and other steel companies that raised prices averaging $6 a ton, with the strongest language he has levelled at anyone in public since becoming president.

His action today, his forefinger poking for emphasis, Kennedy said steel producers have displayed "utter contempt for the interests of 185,000,000 Americans." He said their "irresponsible power and profit record" lacks sense of public responsibility."

Kennedy also announced that, barring unforeseen deterioration in the international situation, the 148,000 reservists and National Guardsmen called to active duty last year will be allowed to return home next April.

UNION HOLDS LINE

Kennedy said the Steelworkers union, which signed a contract he thought would hold prices in line, abided by its responsibilities and this government also has responsibilities which we intend to meet."

Congressional committees will inquire into the need for new laws, he said.

But his moves will take time to complete. And Kennedy is uncertainly how effective his battle will be in this congressional election year. Some price increases which the industry announced Wednesday are in effect and Kennedy now fears they will spread and pyramid to force the government to face higher prices for homes, automobiles, tractors, home appliances, household equipment and the thousands of other goods based on the use of steel.

MAY HIT EXPORTS

Of greater concern is his fear that the price rise, first in four years, will make the U.S. less competitive in world markets—that exports to Canada and other big markets may decline, worsening U.S. payments balance and quickening the shrinkage of the vital American gold stockpile.

His big plans for reducing in-

Defence Minister Hellyer announced a program to buy eight frigates and three submarines, the sube to be built in Britain.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said the government intends to introduce legislation soon based on proposals of the royal commission on publications.

Transport Minister Balcer said he hopes the strike of St. Lawrence River pilots can be settled "before long."

Mr. Diefenbaker gave notice of legislation to provide present senators with a $4,000 pension if they are forced to retire at 75.

Opposition Leader Pearson made a fruitless bid to find out if the session will continue after the Easter recess.

BILL TO SPEED SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES

Will Implement Goldenberg Report

TORONTO (CP)—Legislation implement recommendations in the Goldenberg report on the construction industry, came before the legislature Wednesday.

Labor Minister Warrender introduced the bill to speed-up conciliation services for the construction industry and other measures advocated by Montreal labor consultant H. Carl Goldenberg.

The bill—an amendment to the Labor Relations Act—contains provisions to speed up settlement of disputes and grievances.

When a business is sold, leased or transferred—a common occurrence among small contractors—a union can apply to the Ontario Labor Relations Board to have the new owner bound by the previous collective agreement.

TO MEET COMPLAINTS

A fourth provision allows for a separate division of the Labor Relations Board to deal specifically with the construction industry. It is presumably aimed at speeding up procedure in the board big such a backlog of other work that it cannot act on complaints in the construction industry complaints.

Another provision would protect any individual from discrimination of intimidation as the result of any action he might take under the Labor Relations Act. The amendment apparently follows complaints that immigrant workers are too afraid of losing their jobs to act against unfair or unsafe working conditions.

Another major amendment allows the board to define a bargaining unit by geographical areas rather than by a specific project one of the chief suggestions of Goldenberg.

Another proposal commission on the construction industry has been hotly occupied the attention of the House and ended with a division bell ringing.

Ken Bryden (NDP — Woodbine) and P. D. McAndrew (Conservative — Peterborough) a number of fatal accidents.

He said it would have been a good idea to include in the bill a modified form of the national safety code developed by the National Safety Council.

MINISTER ANSWERS

Mr. Warrender replied the bill would be blown up 200 pages" if it included a safety code. It would be necessary to call the legislature into session every time a change in the code.

This would not be necessary if the bill could tell as it provided for safety regulations which could be changed to meet any situation.

A combined opposition attack on the minister for drop the bill was defeated by 19 votes to 46.

Michigan Plan for Rocket Base Alarms Folks in Lakehead Region

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Mayor Sol Laskin said Wednesday Michigan legislators had better look at a map before they start lobbing rockets over the Lakehead. "The vast, uninhabited area to the north—

Mayor William d'Arcy of Fort William said: "We're inhabited — that's for certain."

He suggested there are also "a few" in Kakabeka Falls, farther along the range who might have a complaint.

William O'Neill, mayor of Nipigon near the north shore of Lake Superior, said it is hardly a wilderness. We have communities all along the lakeshore for about 120 miles inland."

The practical reason for the launching site included in the resolution are the fact the Michigan area abounds in caves and abandoned mines, good for storage, and the lake, would provide rapid, transportation of giant rockets.

Mayor Laskin's reservations on the other side of the lake, about 50 miles away, are not so sure they aren't going to get singed.

"Nonsense," protested Mayor E. J. Bray of Nipigon.

"This isn't uninhabited area as the Lakehead is concerned."

He suggested there are also "a few" in Kakabeka Falls.

EMPHASIS — President Kennedy, his fist clenched, emphasizes a remark at a point in his news conference in Washington. Much of the discussion concerned a new round of price increases in the steel industry which he termed a "chilling and irresponsible defiance of the nation's interest." —(AP Wirephoto).

Canada to Buy 8 Frigates, 3 Conventional Submarines

OTTAWA (CP)—A new ship building program for the Canadian navy costing a minimum of $270,000,000—eight Canadian-built frigates and three British conventional submarines — was announced in the Commons Wednesday by Defence Minister Hellyer.

The submarines will cost at least $10,000,000 each and will be purchased under a project for production of the non-nuclear Oberon class.

Britain is expected "to buy defence equipment of approximately equivalent value in Canada. Two possibilities are the de Havilland of Canada Caribou transport plane and the General Dynamics Canadair CL-44 long-range transport.

Mr. Hellyer said the submarine purchase is "subject to satisfactory completion of negotiations with the British government." Officials said these negotiations concern British defence purchases in Canada.

The eight frigates, slightly larger than the present St. Laurent, Restigouche and Mackenzie class destroyers, will have a beam of 45 feet, 6 inches each.

Mr. Harkness said the first frigate will be laid down in late 1963.

Outside the Commons, officials indicated construction will be distributed among the major shipyards in Canada.

The frigates will carry two missile systems, one a medium range anti-aircraft missile and the other a short-range anti-aircraft and anti-missile system.

They will carry helicopters and will be fitted with a fallout filtration system and a stabilization system to cut down the roll of the ships caused by heavy seas. They will have a limited troop transport capability and will carry heavy guns for ship-to-ship or ship-to-shore fire.

Vice-Admiral Harry DeWolf, former chief of naval staff, has said that the RCN has an immediate need for at least 13 submarines.

The navy hopes to retain the services of the three submarines it now has on loan from the Royal and United Kingdom navies.

Officials said the purchase by RCN may obtain the first Oberon submarine only one year after the date of the order. The Oberon displaces 2,410 tons submerged, and carries a crew of 68 and eight 21-inch tubes for launching torpedoes.

Mr. Harkness said the three sub, will make a "significant contribution" to the training of the RCN's and RCAF's anti-submarine forces. Moreover, the effectiveness of a submarine as an anti-submarine weapon had been "greatly enhanced" in recent years.

The minister said nuclear subs were ruled out because of the high cost and time required for construction. It might be practicable in the future, however, to undertake submarine construction in Canada.

Shipowners Plan to Resume Navigation Without Pilots

OTTAWA (CP)—Some uncertainty developed Wednesday on whether the St. Lawrence Seaway will open for regular business at the normal time this year.

A key factor is the effect of a strike continuing St. Lawrence River pilots, employed on the international waterway.

So far the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, which usually resumes operations about April 15, has made no definite announcement of the 1962 opening. It is understood that the installation of navigation aids is proceeding according to schedule.

If the Seaway does open shortly, there remains the possibility that few or no foreign ships may be waiting at the Montreal entrance for entry through the Seaway to the Great Lakes.

Since Friday no foreign ships have succeeded in reaching Montreal up the St. Lawrence from the Atlantic—for lack of pilots.

In Montreal today, shipowners said they planned to resume navigation without pilots when the St. Lawrence River is free of ice.

Informants here indicated that normal opening of the Seaway with some customers ready to use it—may depend on one or more of the following conditions:

1. Settlement of the pilots' work stoppage.

2. Willingness of shipowners to navigate the Seaway without pilots.

3. Whether Seaway lockworkers take any action because of their concern about possible hazards arising from unpiloted ships.

Some of the Seaway pilots belong to the striking Federation of St. Lawrence River Pilots, it is thought they will stay away from work if there has been no definite indication of the Seaway opening.

Canadian pilots on the Welland Canal and other Great Lakes sections belong to a different union. Early Wednesday it had been expressed that they may decline to handle shipping as a sympathy gesture.

Ships are not required to have a pilot on the Seaway between Montreal and Cornwall. However, ships may take on pilots if available foreign vessel normally would risk trying to bring their ship through without a pilot, especially since collection of pilotage fees is compulsory.

West of Cornwall, ships by law must have a licensed pilot. Officials indicated that although if no pilot was available, a ship would be free to proceed without one—at its own risk.

The Shipping Federation of Canada said Wednesday it hoped near-normal traffic could be maintained on the seaway without pilots, if necessary. On the international sections, American pilots might be prepared to work.

Concern over the possibility of unpiloted foreign ships entering the Seaway was voiced by W. J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC).

HOUSE TO WORK UNTIL TIME OF EASTER RECESS

June 11 Date for Election Is Out

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday he expects the Commons to work until April 19 before starting its traditional Eastern recess.

His statement to the House wiped out speculation of a June 11 election. Dissolution of Parliament would have to come this Saturday to allow sufficient time to set up a June 11 vote.

The next nearest possible election date now being talked about is June 18.

With an eye to the possibility that Parliament will be dissolved during the Easter recess Mr. Diefenbaker asked Liberal Leader Pearson, Opposition Leader Pearson asked, with a smile:

"Are you going to let him (the prime minister) when he expects the House to resume after the Easter recess?"

"Time will tell," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

REMAINS MUM

But while he remained mum on the election date, the prime minister gave MPs plenty to consider in the way of future business for the Commons.

He said two resolutions will be introduced to implement the government's decisions on the recommendations of the royal commission which investigated the effect of foreign magazines on Canadian periodicals.

He gave no indication of what the legislation would be nor did he indicate whether it would be introduced before the Easter recess.

The prime minister announced Jan. 22 that the government would implement two major recommendations of the commission. One is a ban on the entry of foreign magazines containing advertising directed primarily at the Canadian market.

The other would eliminate the present 100-per-cent tax deduction allowed Canadian advertisers on their cost of advertising in foreign-owned periodicals printed in Canada.

The legislation would permit a 50-per-cent deductibility in the case of Time and Reader's Digest, established in Canada.

GIVES PRIORITY

Mr. Diefenbaker said priority would also be given to bills authorizing security, at the age of 75, of members of the independent commission to reform the electoral boundaries map.

A resolution calling for a fifth parliamentary vote every four years for present senators affected by the present 75 - at - 75 measure was introduced.

At atlantic point he said "we have before the house a formidable list of legislative measures on the order paper." The list totals 16 items, including the interim debate on the budget presented early in March.

He said debate on the budget would cover such top priority items of Senate reform and redistribution and after the Commons, has passed the budget, the final supplementary appropriation bill for the fiscal year ended March 31.

RETIRED EXECUTIVE DIES

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa (AP)—William M. Brownlee, 82, retired executive vice president of Coca-Cola bottling company, died Wednesday. Brownlee retired 12 years ago as the head of five U.S. parent bottling companies of the soft drink firm. He also was president of Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Canada.

Victoria Girl Has Decided To Retain Title for Time Being

VICTORIA (CP) — Fast organizational footwork in Toronto resulted in a new company Wednesday and a decision by Miss Holden of Victoria to retain her title—at least for the time being.

Miss Holden, who said through her mother that she was "fed up" with lack of organization by beauty contest promoters and threatened to resign unless they lived up to their promises, found herself in a precarious position when the organization collapsed.

She contended that a promised trip to Europe has been cancelled.

In a telephone interview from Toronto, Miss Holden Wednesday night adopted a wait-and-see attitude to the promises handed out by the new company.

"It's got to the point where I was taking orders from everybody," she said. "One would tell me to do something and then one of the others would contradict me. I'm fed up. I'll hold the heck with it and fold them. I was going to quit."

The new organization, Miss Holden said, has promised to send her home to Victoria Saturday, pay her $50 a week in wages while she relaxes for two months, and then will help her look over the program planned for her.

Policeman Risks Death, Fatally Wounds Gunman

Victim Tried to Shoot Officer Three Times

TORONTO (CP)—A gunman, cursing at his jammed semi-automatic pistol, was shot down in a street Wednesday night by a policeman with at least four lives.

Constable Harold Midgley, 32, waited until the odds were too much against him before he fired a shot to end the back-alley chase in the city's west end.

He had been a point - blank target at least four times. But each time gunman Percy Allen Gee's weapon failed him.

Gee, 26, died in hospital three hours after Const. Midgley fatally shot him. Even as the revolver clattered to the ground it ripped into him he was struggling to get off a shot.

The gun had to be kicked from his hand.

The shooting followed a chase on foot from where Gee had attempted to hold up a motorist, 50-year-old Archie Archibald MacPherson.

The constable was on his motorcycle when MacPherson yelled to him that he was being held up and warned him to be careful, man in his car was armed.

Midgley left the left side of the car and took off on foot as Jaywalked across near busy shore Boulevard, the constable in pursuit.

As the constable chased the gunman through an alley, over a fence and along Close Avenue Gee twice turned and pulled the trigger of his .38-calibre automatic pistol, but misfired both times.

CONSTABLE FIRES

Gee took off again, but the third time he turned Const. Midgley drew his gun, shouted at Gee to drop his weapon and fired. two shots from about 50 feet.

Gee turned to face him, still trying to work the gun, and the constable fired a third shot at him about 20 feet.

Gee fell backward, pulled himself to a sitting position and again tried to fire.

Several persons witnessed the incident.

The gunman was trying to work the mechanism and pull the trigger at the same time, police said Harold Todd, 43. "It was an automatic and automatics don't work that way."

MacPherson said he met Gee on downtown street and had asked for a ride to the west end.

On the way out of the tavern, MacPherson a said Gee demanded money and ordered him the clip from the pistol to prove it was loaded.

Police and Gee was "not unknown" to them and was wanted for questioning about several matters.

WORK STOPPAGE OF RIVER PILOTS MAY END SOON

Fees and Working Conditions Cause

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiators on both sides of a dispute which has tied up most shipping on a major section of the St. Lawrence River since last Friday Wednesday forecast an early end to the troubles.

Some 276 members of the Federation of St. Lawrence River Pilots began a prolonged series of general meetings, in effect work stoppages, Friday to protest what they considered delays by the transport department and the Shipping Federation of Canada in negotiating pilots' fees and working conditions.

Transport Minister Leon Balcer said in the House of Commons Wednesday he has "good hopes" that the work stoppage would be ended "within a few days." He was discussing the matter with members of the Pilots' Federation earlier in the day.

PILOT HEAD HOPEFUL

Wednesday night, Andre Bedard, president of the Pilots' Federation, said at a meeting at Trois-Rivieres, Que., that he was hopeful the dispute would end quickly.

Balcer's "raising positive" had been agreed upon at the meetings with Mr. Balcer, he said, and the federation had been instructed to for the first time and the shippers had exercise proposed to make some concessions.

The Trois - Rivieres meeting looked more ominous Tuesday, when Mr. Bedard told he might use the opportunity of the annual meeting of the National Pilots Association of the Canadian Merchant Serv.

Legion 99 Prepares for Future Events

Branch 99 Loyal Canadian Legion met for their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening. The president, Lyle Digby was in the chair. Due no doubt, to the Stanley Cup playoff game being televised at the same time the turnout was not as large as usual.

Eighteen members were initiated by the president assisted by Dave Buchanan of Hockey Trimm and Red vice-president Ed Smith.

The big item of the evening was the report of the special project committee who came up with a proposed schedule of events for the remainder of the year. The major event is to be "Legion Week in Belleville". This will be a whole series of events during the week of June 17th to June 23rd when every activity will be run each day by either Branch 99 or the Ladies Auxiliary or the Col. Tye Wills Ex-service Women's Branch No. 567.

The week will start with a church parade on the Sunday and finish on the Saturday with the official opening of the new Legion Hall when it is hoped to have a reception and military in attendance. "Legion Week in Belleville" will be an opportunity for the whole local Legion to show something of what the Legion does for and also will let the public know more about the Canadian Legion.

Amongst other activities proposed are a millionaire's night, car wash, children's picnic, sports night, with some major prospects being announced next month.

It was also agreed that the branch would present a bursary to a student from each of the four high schools in the city. The bursaries would go to a child of a veteran who has completed grade 12 and registers for grade 13 next year or continue his education in some other institution of higher learning.

Sports chairman Mickey Trimm reported that a shuffleboard tournament would be held on Saturday afternoons commencing next Saturday.

The meeting approved the House Dert League using the hall for their annual banquet on Saturday, May 12th, and in view of this the regular Saturday night dance will be cancelled for that night.

Other forthcoming events were noted and members were invited to participate. Friday (tonight) Branch No. 567 dance; Saturday, May 4th Ladies Auxiliary dance; Sunday May 6th Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment mess dinner ceremony and Sunday June 26th district rifle match head service at Norwood.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served under the chairmanship of Ed Smith.

Marksmen Get Winter League Shoot Results

The weekly handgun shoot by the Quinte Marksmen in the armories Wednesday night for classification star proved very successful.

Henry Wah Yun with a score of 96 was the star in the expert class. Frank Allin, scoring 92 proves to be the best sharpshooter, while Curt Smith with 219 took the marksmen badge.

The results of the Belleville Quinte Winter League competition were given out at the meeting. Carl McCoy of the Trenton Handgun Club took the expert class, while Dave Buchanan of Northern Electric Handgun Club placed first in the sharpshooter class, while New Hill of the Quinte Marksmen headed the marksman class. In the unclassified division Orvil Berry of Trenton placed first and George Little of Trenton second.

The Quinte Marksmen are now working on the handgun and new rifle range at Redners-ville, and expect to be shooting outdoors, during the first week in May.

Quinte Student Takes First Dip of Season

Most people would agree that it was a little early in the season to be referring to the Bay of Quinte, but Tony Kennedy, 15-year-old son of Mrs. E. G. Kennedy and the late Dr. E. G. Kennedy, didn't think so.

Thursday was a bit chilly on the warm side, so Tony decided to take a "polar dip" and that he did. With some ice still remaining in the Bay, Tony remained in the water for one minute and a half. "My swimming trunks very nearly froze to me and the water was pretty cold," he said.

Anyone else feel like "cooling off?"

"A-a-a-choo!"

Fine Building Say Visitors

"The finest county council chambers we ever had the pleasure of seeing."

This was the feeling of Ian Sinclair of Fort Prescott and Russell counties council as well as they visited the local County administration building and courthouse this week.

Warden Harold Varty said the eastern counties were considering building a new county administration building and council chambers and were making a tour of some of the newer county buildings before deciding on plans.

Grass Fires Keeping Fire Dept. Busy

Grass fires in the Quinte district have been keeping the Belleville Fire Department busy for the past two weeks.

Yesterday afternoon at 1:30 alarms were answered, one at Shannonville, one at Cherry Point Road across the bay, R.R. 6, Belleville, and a marsh fire at Shannonville.

The fire department reported that both Shannonville fires were quite serious, as they endangered houses in vicinity.

At 4:30 the alarm was sounded at 410 Bleecker Avenue and last night, while Cecil Reid of Consecon was driving his motorcycle on North Park Gardens, it caught fire. The fire department arrived promptly and extinguished the blaze.

No damage was reported.

Spring Musicale Presented By BCIVS Concert Band

By EUGENE LANG

The B.C.I.V.S. Concert Band held their annual Spring Musicale" in the Collegiate auditorium, before a capacity audience of parents and fans of band music. This group of approximately 60 players, under the capable direction of Mr. C. R. Templer, A.T.C.M., is now in their fifth commendable season of their existence. Of the seventeen selections performed during the course of the evening, seven were marches.

A musical fare was the gamut from Sousa's Stars and Stripes Forever to Weber and Wagner to the novelty number of Leroy Anderson. In emotional contrast the range carried on from familiar but entertaining arrangements to descriptive Street Scene of Alfred Newman and splashed out into the darkness of Dixieland Jazz. In the majority of these selections the band demonstrated good balance of tone, with clear pointings up by the cornets and trumpets. When horns struck a mellow unison with the flutes and clarinets, the clarinets seemed weak and ineffectual against the blastings of the percussion and dulled them in their melodic moments.

John Templer was extremely good in his trombone solos, showing a pliable handling of his instrument with pleasing tones at all time. David Murphy managed the trumpet with ease and brought out the tones from his horn. There seem to be lads did fine work in their duet later.

Other group selections were: Jack Templer, Donald Cousins, Kenneth Smith, Murdock Mc-Kenzie and Margaret Hopkins (cornet) trumpet; Iris Hawkins, Peggy, James, Wade and Catherine Templer, Peggy Hopkins with accompaniment (William Meehan, Ann Meehan and Joan Woodley) on flute; Robert Rogers, organ; C. Templer, piano; Mrs. Ruth Templer, violin; sextet (J. White, B. Regenburg, W. Woodley, J. Tooth, D. Murphy and D. Templer), and horn quintet (David Templer, Peggy Cousins, Janet Wesse, Maureen Thompson and Brian LeGrow).

Some group has to come first, so we could say that the best showing by the youngest groups was attained by the Trumpet Trio. All others did creditable work in their respective numbers also. A few moments of humor were injected into the concert by the narration of Wayne Noble in his "More Little Pigs" skit with appropriate comments from the band as a whole in this satirical number.

Mr. Templer and his musical charges are to be highly praised for their fine efforts in this Spring Musicale" that we hope will be followed by another as fair. Mr. Templer himself supplied the pleasing arrangements to the smaller group and solo selections throughout the concert. Miss Jean Thompson during the numbers featuring the entire band — a good job done in both.

Deputy Reeve of Bancroft New Chairman LODA Zone

At the annual meeting of Zone Three of the Lake Ontario Development Association held at the Hotel Quinte on Wednesday evening, Deputy Reeve of Bancroft was the unanimous choice of the Nominating Committee for chairman in the coming year. Also elected were Vice-Chairmen, Reeve of Marmora as vice-president, Ald. Pick Tweed as treasurer, and Ex-reeve Harold Cleave of Wellington as secretary with Bert Dickinsonber as secretary-treasurer. The slate of officers was brought in by Reeve Jack Brown of Bancroft.

More than 50 members of the Association attended the meeting representing nearly every municipality in the zone. Chairman Ray Hall, Jr. delivered an interesting address by James R. Reynolds, City Manager of the LODA. The greetings of the zone were brought by Don Kingdon, general manager of the LODA. The greetings and address of welcome by Ald. Hastings Ward were extended by Warden Harold Varty. The meeting of the city has always lived up to its name "The Friendly City" and hoped that the meeting would be profitable and enjoyable. He stated that the membership did not realize the benefits of the LODA, stating that the zone was in size bigger than Belgium.

He advised the members and visitors to the city that the downtown path but he was alarmed at the "Keep Off the Grass" signs that were going up within the district. The beauty of the county was very close to opening another large park at Sandbanks Lake but it would be necessary to obtain right-of-way over a farmer's property and therefore every thing should be done to have better relations with our rural friends. A greeting of the city were expressed by Ald. Ray Ketcheson who was pleased with the large turnout and also for the addition of new members.

The meeting was chaired by Harold Cleave and in his farewell address as the zone chairman showed the progress made by the Zone since it was organized in 1956 with 50 members. He praised the work of Mr. Reynolds, Mr. Don Kingdon and also the work that has been done at Sportsmen's Shows in the United States with respect to bringing tourist dollars into the district.

OUTLINES WORK

For the new members of the Association, Mr. Kingdon outlined in detail the work of the Association and the assistance that is rendered by the general office in assisting the membership. He showed that pulp and paper was the leading industry, agriculture was second and the tourist trade in third place. He explained the steps necessary for a municipality to have an industrial survey of its district and hoped all would avail themselves of the facilities. He displayed a copy of the tourist magazine put out by the parent Association and the reception it had received. He also showed that 5,600 inquiries had been received from the three shows held this year and these will be distributed to members of the zone for their guidance. Mr. Kingdon exhorted the members to "sell" the Lake Ontario location with respect to facilities for industry with the general office.

Mr. Reynolds stated there were 5 municipalities now governed by a city manager and under the system unification of authority can be effected in administrative part of the system. He stated that Mr. Templer believes the members of council from this phase and they can direct their attention to the policy making, which can then be carried out by the manager. He stated that the council was the governing body and there should be no interference with them and reports but should not carry out the recommendations of the report. This is an act for the city manager.

TO COMPLY WITH POLICY

"The city manager," said Mr. Reynolds, "must comply with the policy set by council but he should not be afraid to ask the council to change the policy to be followed. Under the system, staff meetings are held at regular intervals and financial statements are reviewed for budgetary control." He explored the fact that such graduates are are seeking a career in the municipal field and have maintained it was a good field with satisfactory remuneration. The value of membership in the zone was an absolute necessity and it was also necessary to have a strong assessment department. He expressed thanks of being chosen for a trip to Britain and Northern Europe in September. The members of the four will study planning in those areas. Mr. Reynolds was introduced by Ald. Jack Ireland and the thanks of the meeting were tendered by Carl Bateman, clerk-treasurer of Sidney county. A question and answer period followed the conclusion of the address.

FREDERICK — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Frederick, who fell asleep with his Lord, April 13, 1961.

Dear husband, I often wonder,
One thing I'll have you do,
When I get to heaven long, long home,
Some day I'll follow you.

For some day down the road lonely
You'll hear me call your name,
Never your love and remembered by husband, Will.

NEAL — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Neal Richard, who passed away suddenly two years ago today.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Profit-taking hit the stock market during moderate morning trading today, after Wednesday's impressive rise.

In Banks, Montreal, Nova Scotia, Royal and Toronto-Dominion all slipped in a ¼ to ⅜ range. Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce declined ⅛.

Among the few gainers were Trans-Canada Pipe Line, up ⅛, Walker-Gooderham, up ¼, and Canada Packers B, ahead ⅛.

Steels were strongest in the main list, reacting to news the United States Steel Company will increase the metal's price. Steel Company of Canada and Atlas Steel both gained 1⅛. Slater climbed ½ and Dominion Foundries and Steel ⅝.

Speaking of the fallen comrades, Trenton branch padre, Rev. J. A. Payton, said: "They gave their best. Much more can we owe them."

"I will not tell you how much the town thinks of you Vimy Vets," said the mayor.

"This Vimy banquet is not a memorium," said branch president Ken Craddock, at the celebration. Behind him was a picture of Vimy as I see it."

Art Adams recalled that April 9th, 1917, Easter Monday morning, had dawned with the roar of 500 guns at Vimy Ridge.

He referred to the capture of the strategic ridge as "a glorious achievement, paid for at a great price."

"It was the greatest achievement in World War I," said the guest speaker. "This key engagement ultimately brought about victory for the allied forces. Canada came of age at Vimy Ridge."

The Lines of Commemoration were said by John Silver M.B.E., and "Reveille" was sounded by Sgt. Dave Street of the RCAF.

The toast to the ladies of the Trenton branch, who prepared the banquet, was proposed by second vice-president O. C. Rundle.

VIMY VETS ON HAND

Vimy Vets at the banquet were: Bert Carter, Bert Brewis, Ross Burtt, M.M.; Gordon Nokes, Mike Harrison, Earl Donaldson, Harry Cummings, William Keating, William Colterjohn, John Snider, Horgan Fulford and William Lascombe, Claude Wallis and Fred Legge, who joined the army from Belleville.

Earl Donaldson threw a challenge at the "youngsters" at the banquet, "Anything you can do, we can do better."

Vice-president Adams reminded the veterans that the Royal Canadian Legion had been founded on the "spirit of comradeship." He said that the Legion's record was unsurpassed in every field of endeavor and that through the efforts of the Legion, Canada had the best legislation for veterans of any country in the world. He outlined plans of the national body to provide low-rental housing for veterans and their families and spoke briefly of a Legion program to provide new careers for persons over 65 who have been forced to retire from industry.

Mr. Adams "was introduced to the veterans by Deputy Zone Commander William Lawson and thanked by Trenton branch first vice-president Robert Wright.

Liberals Elect Officers, Hear Talk by Candidate

TRENTON — "If you want to reduce unemployment at home and restore Canada's prestige abroad, come with us to Ottawa," challenged Robert Temple, Belleville barrister and Liberal candidate in the Hastings South, at last night's annual meeting of the Trenton Liberal Association.

"If you're tired and don't want to move — stay with Diefenbaker and the Conservatives," continued Mr. Temple.

Preceding Mr. Temple's address, an election of officers for the local association was held.

Robert Ransom was re-elected president and other officers elected were: Charles Hilton, 1st vice; Howard Axis, 2nd vice; Jack Goldberg, 3rd vice; Lee Axis, secretary, and Nick (D.R.) Fraser, treasurer.

The elections were conducted by Roy Sills, president of the South Hastings Liberal Association.

Mr. Sills had an interesting suggestion to offer. "I think we should have all the war bow ties until after the election," he said. "In that way, everyone will know we're Grits."

Mr. Sills told the party members at the meeting that the election would be decided by the "uncommitted" people with no party affiliations.

"The job before the party in the party of the "little people," said Mr. Sills. "It's just like when the Conservatives are in power, the rich get richer and the poor get poorer. The policies of the Liberal party haven't changed in the past 125 years. Only the mechanics of running the party have changed to keep up with the changing times."

"Mac" McGaughey, immediate past president of the South Hastings Liberal Association and "white horse of the party" in the area, introduced the candidate, Robert Temple.

WANTS TO DEBATE

"Mr. Diefenbaker says that his government stands on its record", and that it will "fight the election on its record," said Mr. Temple, "I accept the challenge. I want to debate the record with the Conservative leader of parliament, (Lee Grills, MP for South Hastings), I want to meet him face to face — on the radio, on television, on the platform. I want to debate the issues in public".

Mr. Temple claimed that Canada has experienced stagnation rather than progress under the Conservative administration.

He discussed the present government's policy, or lack of policy on national defence.

"When the present government scrapped the Arrow interceptor, 17,000 skilled workers were lost to Canada. They have found jobs in the States", Mr. Temple said. "Then we brought in the Bomarc. The Bomarc is very good — it's no good at all against guided missiles . . . it hasn't even got a warhead . . . but it's there. Now, the government says we're going to get the Iroquois Voodoo. The Voodoo won't do any better, if as good, a job as the Arrow could have done."

Mr. Temple had some comments about Mr. Diefenbaker's recent statement that the "gross national product had gone up two and a half per cent in 1961."

"One fifth of this increase is due to an increase in prices," said Mr. Temple, "Canada's population increased by well over two per cent in 1961. Judging by what the average individual Canadian has, the gross national product went down in 1961. The fact is that $72,000 more Canadians were without jobs in 1961. In 1958, the last full year of the Liberal administration, there was an increase of 18.7 per cent in the national gross product."

PENSION POLICY

Liberals are people who care about other people, the guest speaker, "We advocate contributory portable pensions for older people, under a system whereby workers would contribute to a pension fund; a pension that would move with the worker from job to job, (and such pensions wouldn't come from the general revenue.

"A married worker would receive $345 a month after he reached the age of $70."

Mr. Temple claimed that the present government's vocational education program "didn't go far enough." He said that the government should provide "free tuition "all the way," through University and advanced technical education. He said that the government should make available cash grants to all deserving and needy students. The students could repay the government this money at a nominal interest rate.

"I was glad to hear Mr. Diefenbaker say on television tonight that his government ternational tariffs also may be jeopardized for they are based in part on the expectancies that the U.S. can keep the price line in order to compete more successfully against the vibrant economies of Europe.

When not unleashing wrath on the steelmakers, Kennedy had this to say on other subjects:

Reserves — The forthcoming release of men called to duty at the height of the Berlin emergency does not reflect a change in the international situation "which continues to have many dangers and tensions." He said it's made possible by a buildup in permanent strength. After the release, the army will have 16 combat-ready divisions as against 11 a year ago.

Berlin—The return of Gen. Lucius D. Clay from a tour as Kennedy's personal representative in Berlin does not mean, as a reporter put it, the Berlin crisis now is negotiable. Clay will continue as a consultant. "So his service continues and the problem of Berlin continues."

Draft

He had put an end to discrimination in this country," said Mr. Temple.

"The Canadian Bill of Rights, created by the present government is a good thing. Yet the present government denied Mr. Coyne a hearing before the bar of the House of Commons last year. The articles contained in the Bill of Rights are sheer hypocrisy when you consider the government's actions in this matter."

"It will take a lot of effort on our part to return the Liberal party to its rightful place at Ottawa," said Mr. Temple, "but the truth of the matter is that the Liberal party is a vital force in Canada. Mr. Pearson will be our next Prime Minister."

An Honest Budget

There will be politicians, of all stripes, who in their secret hearts will consider that Donald Fleming's budget should earn him an "A"—for audacity.

If this is not that extraordinary phenomenon, an honest pre-election budget, it is perilously and praiseworthily close to that politically dangerous but economically desirable rarity.

Some Liberals may be recalling joyfully—and some Conservatives gloomily—that the last time an honest pre-election budget was sighted on the political horizon in Canada was when Hon. Walter E. Harris brought down the last budget of the St. Laurent regime.

It appears though that Mr. Fleming and his chief, Prime Minister Diefenbaker, are convinced that what happened to the Liberals in June of 1957 was not the result of this experiment with economic realism in an election year, but was the penalty for sins of omission and commission in other fields—notably the pipeline debate. If this is their thinking, we concur with it. They appear to believe that Canadians are politically mature enough to accept an honest pre-election budget, if not with joy then with equanimity, and to permit it to decide how they cast their ballots. It is sincerely to be hoped that they are correct in this belief, for the government should be judged on its record, and not condemned for its readiness to reflect this record in its financial arrangements for the coming year.

The will be those who will argue that a deficit of $791,000,000 in the fiscal year ending March 31 really gave Mr. Fleming little choice, and that if he has fathered an honest budget it may have been more from necessity than from choice. The record of past ingenuities by finance ministers, although suggests that a man of Mr. Fleming's high talents could have found some method of masking the disagreeable facts had he really desired to do so. Nor is there much to be said for the argument that Mr. Fleming did indeed make this attempt, in his increase in income tax exemptions for children and the institution of corporation tax exemptions for certain businesses which increase sales. The latter is an evident and badly-needed attempt to increase the manufacture and processing of our abundant raw materials. As for the former, any person who believes that a teen-age child can be fed, clothed, housed and educated on $500 a year is badly out of touch with the times. This relief was long overdue.

What prevents Mr. Fleming's budget from being completely realistic is the failure to increase other taxes substantially. He takes a rosy view of the economic climate, yet provides for a deficit of $745,000,000. Deficits like these cannot continue indefinitely. Some year soon, one of four things will have to happen—there will have to be a business boom of substantial proportions which will increase revenue without a corresponding increase in tax rates; or welfare benefits will have to be sliced heavily, a move of which there is absolutely no hint in the announced policies of any of the political parties; or defence costs will have to be pared to the bone, which could not be done without a truly agonizing re-appraisal of Canada's role in the present troubled international climate; or taxes will have to be increased.

Only a saint, though, would have increased taxes to raise an additional $745,000,000 in an election year. Mr. Fleming may be courageous, but not to the point of foolhardiness.

Double Bill

We have a choice of celebrating the seven days from April 8 to April 14 inclusive as National Wild Life Week or as Chamber of Commerce Week.

There may be some who will be torn between allegiances, but we would imagine their number would be as infinitesimal as "wild life" and the Chamber of Commerce do not seem to us to go together like sugar and spice, a fork and knife or Liz Taylor and the last man she kissed in the line of duty.

Seriously, though, this accidental juxtaposition might lead some persons to undertake a study of the relationship between the aims of the backers of National Wild Life Week and the Chamber of Commerce. Conservation is the theme of the Wild Life enthusiasts—an alternative name for the Week is Jack Miner Week, the period having been set aside by act of Parliament in 1947 so that it would always coincide with the birthday of that great naturalist. Chambers of Commerce are generally interested in wild life chiefly from the standpoint of an asset to the tourist industry. These objectives are not necessarily diametrically opposed, but neither can they both be achieved without some serious attempt at co-operation.

National Housekeeping Would Baffle Housewife

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — So Finance Minister Fleming has brought down his budget . . . and isn't this some way to do business!

How's that you say?

Well, just this . . . the Federal Government does its national housekeeping in the dining room to the commonsense, equally business-like way the chatty housewife runs her home, or the cautious merchant his store.

Federal administration, like all the others, tries to "live within its means" . . . back the nearly 100 years to Confederation, does its financing backwards.

It was six weeks ago, without knowing precisely where the money was coming from — or even how much—that the Finance Department said it was going to take a starting $7,012,-911,894 to keep the home fires burning.

That was the initial bill . . . and over the months to come, there will be additional accounts. Some, praise be, are where nearly as large as that opening $7 billion-plus.

That first account was tabulated by the Finance Minister in his estimates . . . estimates of what he and his moneymen calculated it was going to cost you to keep the nation in business.

* * *

ITEM BY ITEM

They set it all out, give or take a couple of hundred million or so, department by department, project by project, job by job, job, just what was going to be spent.

And now, having first presented his bill, National Housekeeper Fleming has now budged to put down the arithmetic with its plus and minus, of how he intends to pay it.

So that's the drill: figure out first how the money is to be spent . . . and then scrabble around for ways to raise it.

This is a way of doing things the national housekeeping that would drive any reasonably thrifty housewife straight up the wall.

For, penny-wise, she knows what the family income is, and roughly, what it's going to be. And she knows, to the worn dime, what part of it she'll have to count on for the running of her home.

So, sensibly, she budgets her spending within those limits.

Or tries to.

Governments go through this same process, but in the opposite direction . . . which probably provides as close a way as to why in 86 budgets since Confederation, the nation's housekeepers have had to curb the red ink times.

Only of late, quite apparently unusual occasions have the accounts been balanced.

And let a thrift-watching housewife knows, this is a nutty way of operating on a budget.

* * *

ROOM FOR REFORM

But then, over the years, not many housewives have run the Parliament . . . not enough anyway to do anything about changing the national housekeeping on a national pay-as-you-go basis.

At the Finance Department they defend the way it operates with the explanation that this is the way it has always been.

They say that they insist, and then to spend within those estimates . . . and make more sense to them than their efforts at spending first and then going on a budget . . . is how much money the taxpayer tells us that men are April when they woo and December when they wed . . . but it might be said with equal justice that women are kittens during courtship and tigresses afterwards.

It is fruitless to "blame" parents for the behavior of their offspring, unless you carry it a step forward and blame their parents for not rearing children who made better parents, and their parents and so on, on toward an infinite regress of recrimination.

Maybe something just a bit that perhaps their grandchildren won't be so impressed with.

Maybe so . . . but what this country could use too, is a few to straighten out the boys on more housewives in parliament their national pocket money.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SUCCESS AND FAILURE

Why do some people succeed and others appear invariably to fail?

Well, the problem of ability is primarily involved. But in the whole, those people succeed who deserve to succeed and those people fail who deserve to fail. But this is not always true. Sometimes when you enter the and spoil the picture, and the unfortunate is alone adequate to describe this catastrophe. Something happens over which the individual has no control. He slips out and the world does not know why. Or in spite of his deserved lack of ability, he forges ahead and circumstances put at the head of the line carrying the banner.

Let us never depend upon anything but our diligent efforts to make us successful. Knowing the right people may help a little now and then, but the so called right people will drop you first if you do not do your good. Special gifts are a help, but you may find yourself living in an age which does not place much value upon these special gifts. Then you will have to go back to hard work — sweat, blood, and tears — to nature pierced. Sometimes even these, for some strange reason, do not prove adequate. But we can be sure that they are the best factors for us to trust and use.

There is no substitute in life for diligence, character, and the honest desire to do and be the best we can.

"You're new here, aren't you?"

Letter To The Editor

Cheese Producers Express Thanks To Lee Grills, M.P.

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Through your paper, we would like to publicly thank Lee Grills, M.P., Hastings South, for the outstanding contribution he has made to the dairy industry of Canada and many of the friends in this area are not fully aware of the excellent work he is doing on their behalf. Last year he did much to help the dairy industry of this County and the Province of Ontario. Again, this past few months his untiring efforts have assisted the dairy industry of Hastings County and the surrounding district. The good people of this country owe him a debt of gratitude in helping to obtain legislation which will benefit them to a great extent.

Last year, with Mr. Grills' initiative and co-operation with the Ontario Cheese Producers, the Federal Government agreed to pay a four cent rebate on cheese exported to the United Kingdom, made on or after May 1st, 1961. This financial arrangement allowed the Commission to sell cheese to the United Kingdom at a price which we are well aware of, and that has been responsible for our sales over the next number of years. A similar rebate had not been made available for the export of cheese, milk prices in this country, have gone up and the year would have been considerably lower.

We are particularly happy to state at this time that the marketing situation in the Great Britain is very firm and our export orders are considerably in excess of those usually available. During the winter and spring the Ontario Cheese Producers have been forced to purchase product from the Canadian Dairy Commission for the United Kingdom but this source of supply has also been exhausted.

English importers have been showing more confidence in the Cheese Producers' Organization and their method of selling cheese. Since we have been given British buyers a continuity of supply and a guarantee of the product, interest in Ontario cheese by United Kingdom importers has increased beyond our greatest expectations.

We have been announced by the Federal Government that the support price for cheese will remain at last year's level of 32 cents per pound, plus the 4 cent per hundred weight subsidy payment. Similar producers will receive 36 cents per pound, if and when the Government will resell it at 32 cents so that the consumer will pay nineteen (19) cents.

Mr. Grills has always been particularly interested in our Ontario cheddar cheese. It is a product that can be exported at a premium price to a traditional markets in the United Kingdom and thus assist in disposing of surplus butterfat.

For the supporting work he did on our behalf, we would like again to express our deepest appreciation to Lee Grills.

One Should Lose Weight If Doctor Recommends It

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 59-year-old man, 5 feet, 7 inches tall, and weigh 198 pounds.

After a double exercise cardiogram, my doctor told me I have coronary insufficiency.

He believes that eliminating this condition if I reduce my weight to about 165 pounds, provided no hereditary factor is present.

Can you add anything to his instructions which may help? — J.G.

This question reminds me of the aspiring athlete who wanted to be a distance runner. The trouble was that he insisted on carrying two 10-pound bags of potatoes.

He went to a variety of coaches who advised him to stop carrying the potatoes around. One of the coaches shortened his stride, another lengthened it, and the third told him to wear several different kinds of track shoes. They all gave him instructions in breathing.

Nothing seemed to help very much, and he complained bitterly about their "ignorance," and by way they refused to try new various factors.

At this point a friend observed, "But you're still carrying those bags of potatoes."

"Aw, that!" said the frustrated runner. "That's just one of the things I'd be willing to do. I thought I'd get all the others straightened out first."

Do I make myself clear?

Don't ask me if I can add to your doctor's instructions unless you've done the one vitally important thing that he recommended.

Quit carrying around those bags of potatoes. Lose those 165 pounds. His advice sounds good to me. . . .

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: For 15 years my husband has had a cyst on his lung the size of an egg. X-rays show no further growth, but one physician suggests an operation. My husband refuses. What dangers, if any, are there in carrying a cyst? — Mrs. F.R.

The dangers are infection, hemorrhage or rupture into the pleural space, which is called bronchopleural fistula formation. This means that the lung collapses.

Your physician must have good reasons for recommending surgery.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My 16-year-old son has large breasts which are so conspicuous he refuses to appear in public in a swim suit. He has reduced his weight to normal. Why do his breasts remain so large? — R.R.

It may be that this area has not yet had time to shed the fat which accumulates profusely there. If sufficient time has elapsed, glandular problems, including mastitis, chronic irritation or glandular imbalance.

All of us are influenced by a mixture of androgen and estrogen (male and female hormones). We are all, both men and women, mixtures of the two. If these are not blended adequately, then a person will have some overdegree of characteristics of the opposite sex. This ordinarily can be corrected by medical means. Therefore, if the boy's condition does not improve, see a physician. Consult now that he is down to normal weight. I suggest that he be examined by an endocrinologist (gland specialist).

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If you suffer with fissures, fistulas, itching and other rectal problems, write, to Dr. Molner to receive a copy of his booklet, Sunshine, Dandelion, Pill, requesting a copy of my booklet, "The Real Cure For Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover handling and postage.

THE FLAME OF ENTHUSIASM

First — faith. Something that was placed in the soul when it touched the site of life. Then — Consolidation. Something that grew in every human being — a desire, now a bigger, more helpful, and noble, now a smaller, meaner thing.

The adventurer must have it. The inventor must know it as great acts have been done by builder, the writer, the orator, the artist — each must contrive his life in the mind, create the plan and give to it great proportion. Sometimes we are not those unable to light the little pilot flame within themselves, but it is not always the want of lighting it is others. They, too, are blest.

We do for ourselves when we do for others.

Where is the dream, the fine the resolve, the power the motive, the great thing the flame rise and make bright the world.

A Conservative provincial convention in Alberta has disappointed some of the party's own friends, who point out that it has failed to make a really big mash of an effort to organize effectively against the strongly entrenched Social Credit government. Provincially, the Conservatives are not of much account in British Columbia or Saskatchewan either. Only in Manitoba do they show strength. Yet they hold the great bulk of the federal seats in all four provinces. It seems doubtful that their federal sociation can be built without strong provincial organizations.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the hardest jobs in the world, next to keeping a wife happy is running a restaurant and getting a good cook. Chefs are traditionally temperamental and it must be difficult for the expensive to hold onto a good one for, say, a couple of years. They come and go! and so do the teams of assistants and kitchen help which are essential to the operation of a large dining room. With the labour force looming so large in the art and science of cooking, it surely ranks at a high art to maintain the standard of perfection most good restaurants shoot for.

But if, when travelling, you get a little tired of eating at the same old hotel grill, and dining rooms and eat for service with regard to a good restaurant in town, you are sent to one of three very posh and very expensive. The prices in under $5, and the bread waiter and napkins are all black, look like TV books. It is dim, furtive, quiet. And the food is so good that the dining should taste like what it is, but should taste like something else. If you choose a seafood dish, the lobster tail tastes like cheese, the grilled oysters taste like the green pickle that shares with them the shells, and shrimps taste of vanilla. This is called continental cooking. It is good to know that SEWAGE TREATMENT PLANT — First talked of nearly 30 years ago, Belleville is to have a sewage treatment plant by the year-end. Above view looking west shows workmen pouring concrete for treatment tanks. Up to eight feet of dirt and rubble had to be excavated to provide solid rock foundation for plant. Schwenger Construction of Burlington, has 45 men on the job, most of them local laborers.

Work Is Well Underway On Sewage Disposal Plant, Will Operate by Late Fall

A late fall target date is set by the Schwenger Construction Company of Burlington for the completion of the city's sewage disposal system now under construction in East Belleville on the Bay shore.

Schwenger employees have been on the job about one and a half months and since then 33,000 yards of earth have been moved from the plant site and work on the administration building foundations and disposal plant tanks is already well advanced.

The expected completion date for the plant is late October or early November and the plant is scheduled to begin operation before the year end.

The $736,000 general contract to Schwenger Construction for the sewage treatment plant is but one phase of the overall two and a half-million dollar project which will see three new trunk sanitary sewers lead into the plant from the West, East and North areas of the city.

SEWERS UNDERWAY

Beaver Construction Company of Montreal are well advanced with the three major sewer contracts.

The Montreal firm started work last fall on the trunk sanitary sewer lines running out Dundas Street West and east to the Bay sidecoad.

The same firm is also doing the Fahey Street sewer running from Dundas Street West at the foot of James Street, to the West College Street area through Coleman Flats.

A Belleville firm, Lightfoot Construction, is constructing the sewage pumping stations, one at Frisman's Park on the east side of the Moira River and the other on Dundas Street in West Belleville.

TWO MORE JOBS

Still to be awarded are contracts for the construction of a forced main from the Front Street pumping station to the sewage treatment plant, and the outfall into the Bay.

Ald. Jack Ellis, chairman of the special sewage disposal project committee, said these two tenders were called this week and will close May 3rd.

Schwenger Construction already has that section of the outfall main to the water's edge completed.

Although the sewage plant being constructed for Belleville is termed a partial treatment plan, resident engineer Ian Harvie, representing consulting engineers Gore and Storrie, gives assurance there will be no odor from the plant.

The plant is so designed that the secondary treatment phase, consisting of aeration tanks and final tanks, can be added at any time.

ARE SPECIALISTS

Widely recognized for its "knowhow" in the construction of sewage treatment plants which is its specialty, the Schwenger company has made rapid progress with its local contract which calls for conjunction of the administration building along with five sewage treatment tanks. These are the primary tank, the raw sludge tank, the screen and grit tank and two digest tanks.

Also included in the Schwenger contract is construction of the plant outfall to the water's edge, and a pumping station immediately to the east of the administration building, for pumping of sewage from the east end of the city into the plant.

Thirty two thousand cubic yards of top soil and rubble had to be moved from the site to provide a bedrock foundation for the sewage plant. The depth of top soil, rubble and rotted garbage ranged all the way from three to eight feet.

Actually the sewage plant is being erected on the site of a former city garbage dump. The garbage is now rotted, but the solid rubble characteristic of a garbage dump still remained.

A large percentage of the site was swampy land but does include a modern home on the southeast corner by the Houston family. The property is being expropriated and the house will be removed to make way for certain phases of plant construction.

Works superintendent for the Schwenger company, Mr. Roy Cornish, says his firm will have construction completed by the end of October.

Sewer gas coming from the treatment operation will be used to heat the administration building and the treatment tanks.

But there possibly will not be enough sewer gas to adequately heat the plant, for about six months after it goes into operation.

In the meantime standby oil burning equipment will be used for heating purposes.

The plant is expected to be in operation before the general contractor pulls out its equipment and moves on to still another sewage treatment plant job.

U.S. Air Force Uses Pep Pill In Crash Reducing Program

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The U.S. Air Force has come up with a crash reducing diet in the war against weight.

A doctor claims it's a surefire way of losing 30 pounds in 60 days.

And, the dietary dis-hards, he had these happy words—you don't feel hungry while doing it.

You consume the pill and 850 calories a day, explains Maj. Paul W. Musgrove.

The food prescribed gives enough proteins, vitamins, minerals and bulk to maintain health. The pill—ordinarily a 15-milligram capsule of dexedrine sulphate. — suppresses hunger.

TRIED ON VOLUNTEERS

Dr. Musgrave of the air force's school of Aero Space Medicine outlined the program Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Aero Space Medical Association. He said it was tried on volunteers at the school.

Here's what you eat:

For breakfast—One egg and and six ounces of skim milk.

For lunch—Toasted salad (100 grams) with vinegar, salt and pepper if you need some kind of dressing.

For dinner—Three ounces of lean meat and another toasted salad.

If you want it, you get one highball with water or soda before dinner, but no beer. And you can drink all the tea or coffee you want—without cream or sugar, of course.

Persons with a history of psychiatric disorders should not try it, the doctor said, but it's safe for anybody else—if it's done under a physician's direction.

Health Minister Asked to State Govt's. Position

OTTAWA (CP)—Paul Martin said Wednesday the royal commission on health services is "tired hearing" tossed out by the government to make the voters forget an election promise.

Mr. Martin, Liberal MP for Essex East and a former health minister, said the royal commission, now holding hearings in Montreal, is a technique to divert attention from an election promise of the Conservatives to provide a national health scheme.

Mr. Martin challenged Health Minister Monteith to state the government's position on a national health plan as the Commons considered a bill introduced by Lionel Maxwell (CCF—Timmins).

The bill calls for an amendment to the Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act to provide benefits for tuberculosis and mental patients and to include medical, dental and optical insurance.

The bill was talked out in the hour allotted to private MPs' measures and will not likely come up again this session.

DATE WON'T BE SET

Murdo Martin said the doctor-patient relationship wouldn't be hurt by introduction of a national medical scheme.

He said the 100 doctors in Toronto who handed over their bills to a collection agency hurt patient relationships more than such a plan would.

Another type of incident that could be avoided, he said, was the charging of doctors in connection with tax evasion. He cited the case of a doctor charged with not declaring $51,-891 in income for the years 1953-55.

Under a health plan, bills would be paid by a government commission and incidents such as this would be avoided.

The CCF member suggested that this was what doctors really feared. At one point Speaker Roland Michener told him not to bring in individual names into the debate as he listed other cases.

P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East), a medical doctor, said Canada has the highest standard of medicine in the world "and let's not horse-trade it away."

by the treasury would add an estimated $25,000,000 to steel profits. Another $100,000,000 to $125,000,000 in benefits would come steel's way if U.S. Congress passes an administration bill giving investment tax credits to firms that modernize.

Even friends of the tax credit agreed with Senator Harry F. Byrd that congress now will hesitate to give further benefits to industry, in view of the profit-boosting potential of the price advance.

Attorney - General Kennedy said the Justice Dept. is using several approaches on which the justice department is already at work.

Presumably he referred to the three charges, for the president Wednesday repeatedly emphasized the "simultaneous and identical" action of the industry's biggest companies.

He listed as ill is investigating, among other things, whether any companies have violated a big consent decree prohibiting steel price - fixing conspiracies.

If negotiations are permitted to proceed into the Seaway without government-licensed pilots," Mr. Smith said in a telegram to Transport Minister Balcer, there is a distinct possibility of serious injury or even death being caused to our members employed on the Seaway as well as damage to public property."

He urged Mr. Balcer to take "all possible steps" to reach a settlement, a matter of "immediate importance" for the lockworkers.

A CBRT spokesman said later that if the transport department permits "untrained persons" to negotiate the Seaway, "it would give rise to a dangerous situation in which members of our brotherhood could become involved."

Lines on Life

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Superstition is irrational behavior, dressed in a garb which gives it rational appearance, instead of exercising the divine gift of reason and intelligent insight we victimize ourselves by irrational thought.

It is sometimes easier and less taxing to blame our failure on "forces" outside of our power – we escape the torments of conscience with after all, is another way of defining conscience.

We falsely blame our lack of success upon the empty bottles we may have passed that day on the way to the office.

We feared, doubted, "escaped" from reality or shunned responsibility – and thus, failed. The empty bottles, however, are a more convenient "reason" for "explaining" the failure we refuse to face about or bear on our own shoulders.

To cut through much of our confusion, we must remember it is necessary about the difference between the rational, the irrational and the emotional activities of man.

Psychologists have found agreed with theologians that not all of man's behaviour is susceptible to reasoning and logic. If it were, there could be no love or compassion, for these are beyond reason. Man's rationality is efficient – they emerge, rather, from the non-rational realm of our being.

Man is more than a "reasonable animal" – he is a feeling as well as a thinking creature. Without the emotional dimension of life, we would not survive, for the prose of human existence must be blended with its poetry.

Pascal was profoundly right when he said, "The heart hath its reasons which Reason doth not know."

We must avoid confusing the non-rational, poetical aspects of human life with downright irrational behavior. Irrationality is not only the enemy of reason, it also perverts emotion.

Some people are literally "scared to death" – in their childhood – and death is an irrational case of good sentiment.

Those who pervert their emotions in ways which destroy and/or wreak disharmony can make nonsense out of what could be healthy and sound emotional feeling."

While perfectly willing to accept the non-rational as normal and useful, high religion is the enemy of irrationality. A true religion is neither unity and requires that men become sane and their own powers and exploit this awareness in the service of the good, the true and the beautiful.

To believe in God, therefore, cannot suggest belief in the utter powerlessness of man. To believe in God, men must dominate the powerlessness that torture operates according to plan.

To believe in God is to believe that the illusion of modern idolary that the world is populated by gigantic forces which or fates which act capriciously, controlling the universe in which we are susceptible is lies.

To believe in God is to say that we also have faith in man; that man is capable of enlarging his reasoning powers, increasing his understanding the laws by which the universe is governed, and "knowing" he may not always plumb its expanse secrets.

We may not be able to explain fully why we love those whom we do; always, a mystery enshrouds love and its final ultimate significance may elude us.

But this should not suggest that because we cannot understand it completely, we must not love!

The existence of mystery in the universe is what makes us men and not gods. But the divine incentive to men, which urges him to use reason as far as it will go, is that makes us men and not animals.

Organization of Education Topic at Queen Victoria H-S

The April meeting of Queen Victoria Home and School Association was held recently with Mr. Frink leading the discussional which was the type used at the Conference of Education at Windsor, Ontario.

A most gratifying report of the school fair was given after which the president, Mrs. Smith, thanked all who had worked so hard to make it such a success.

The Home and School voted to buy the difference to secure an electric duplicating machine instead of a hand model.

A report on publications was given by Mrs. C. Smith, who outlined material available, emphasizing religious material at this meeting.

Mr. Frink took the room count. Mrs. Dracup's class was victorious in the juniors and Mr. Stark's for the seniors.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. H. Belch, program convener, introduced the guest speakers for the evening who were Mrs. C. Anderson, Mrs. Blakely and Mr. H. Frink, delegates last November to a three-day conference on education held at Windsor, Ontario.

At this conference, Mr. Frink stated that there were 1,000 delegates with 30 workshops working concurrently. This conference was sponsored by 30 different organizations.

The main theme of the conference was "Organization in Education." Three conclusions of the conference were: that the curriculum should cover a broader role; that greater attention should be paid to underachievers; and that more time should be spent on mathematics.

It was decided that the family at home should act a schedule for homework and recreation for the students.

Mrs. O. Anderson's subject was "Provision for Individual Differences." She said that for true excellence in education. She said that the differences in personalities of pupils was discussed fully. Mrs. Anderson said that there is a vast field for research in order to cope with these differences, to bring out each child's potentialities.

CAUSES OF DIFFERENCES

The main causes of these differences are heredity, environment and disabilities.

Stimulating and exciting to help separate these personalities. It is important that help for this be given by properly trained personnel. The teachers also need ideas and aids to carry out programs to assist pupils.

Mrs. Anderson closed by saying that many tangible results had come out of the conference. Teaching is becoming a more exacting job, consequently there is a need for more and better academic and professionally trained teachers.

Mrs. Blakely's topic was "Education of Special Groups." The special groups consist of emotionally disturbed, mentally immigrated, handicapped and retarded children.

The conference stressed a greater need for auxiliary classes in the primary division.

They felt that if more attention were given these classes earlier greater accomplishments could be achieved. Mrs. Blakely outlined the auxiliary class. They felt that special classes are best carried on to secondary school level. This is done in some cities, including Belleville. Job placement is most important later and is sometimes difficult.

HANDICRAFT DISPLAYED

Mrs. Blakely brought some handicraft done in auxiliary classes to illustrate her talk. Mrs. Hillary classes have in the city of Belleville. All interested were invited to inspect this work after the meeting.

Mr. Frink spoke briefly on religious instruction in the schools. This instruction is ordered by the Department of Education. He stated that there has been good conference very in some centres over religious studies.

GUEST SPEAKERS

The speakers were thanked by Mrs. H. Chaplin.

A social hour was enjoyed with coffee served by the social committee.

Belts Surround Latest Fashions

Narrow or wide, it's belts, belts, belts . . . that's the fashion picture for spring.

Most seen look is the soft, pliable belt, usually found in suede or supple kid. Wide, crunchy belts are newer, however, in a majority of cases accented by a massive buckle. Sashes appear in every width. Stiffly contoured colorful repeats and gay patents share the spring limelight.

The figure-following belt that puts emphasis at the normal waistline is a prominent fashion look. But the natural waistline is not the only place to situate a belt this season.

Several important looks set the belt right above or below the waistline. And more-high or hip-slung low, soft or stiff, wide or narrow — vive les belts.

Expectation Wear Lovelier

More individuality of design and wealth of silhouettes linked with high – fashion colors and intriguing new fabrics make today's maternity wear lovelier than ever.

Leading the line in waiting dresses are the breezy, one-piece sleeved shirtwaister shifts, that after baby arrives can be accented by a favorite belt; the slim, simply-tailored styles, stiffened with lining, or flared from a fitted bodice and the straight – cut sheath look, usually coordinated with matching or contrasting coat.

The forever – feminine look that prevails in all fashion is represented in expectation dresses for spring. Dresses gently draped at the bodice, empire-bodiced dresses and dresses with bodice skirts all add feminine flavor.

Where two-piece maternity dresses are concerned, ruffles and knife pleating are stealing the show on sleeves and hemlines of jumpers. Leotherette is a "find" in maternity tops.

In expectation sportswear, two-piece set with tops of splashy colors and bold prints, many in the nautical theme, are new. Jeans and Stretch pants, especially in denim and chino are popular, as are bermuda lengths in fabrics such as bopsacking.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

Principal R. Moorcroft, chairman for the nominating committee, read the names of the proposed slate of officers, who will be installed next month, pending the approval of the membership. Any further nominations were called for, but as none was forthcoming, the proposed slate was approved.

Mrs. Shirley Culkin, vice-president, introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mr. J. G. Demerz, superintendent, the Ontario School for the Blind.

Mr. Demerz began by explaining some of the methods of the O.S.D. and a few of the problems faced by deaf children in their school work. For instance, a deaf child is usually five years or 2,500 hours behind a normal healthy child at the commencement of kindergarten because at that time the healthy child usually has a vocabulary of 2,500 words, whereas the deaf child has none.

RHYTHM BAND MEMBERS

Mr. Demerz introduced Mr. Ken Graham, teacher of music at the O.S.D., and a group of the children who form the Rhythm Band and Choral Group or Choral Speech. Under Mr. Graham's direction these children sang two songs, "Jesus Loves Me" and "Farmer Brown," and then played two numbers in rhythm. These were thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

Mr. Demerz conducted a contest among the children to learn to demonstrate their ability in speech and their school subjects. Later a question and answer period was held. The large number of questions showed that the O.S.D. had been.

Mr. Demerz and Mr. Graham were thanked by Mr. Morley Graham.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served under the convenership of Mrs. Barbara Lowbyrne and Mrs. Jennie Taylor.

The next and last meeting of the current year will take place on Monday, May 13th.

Prophetic young bolero for spring is designed in beige and black dyed Southwest African Persian lamb, with a set on flat round collar of black-dyed Alaska Fur seal. By Max Koch for Mona Lisa Furs.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Irwin F. — Why can't I have a sumptuous of just doing nothing at all?

Mr. H.F. — He'll get tired of hanging around, or get into trouble.

Irwin F. — Here comes summer and I've managed to persuade my parents, that, a 16, I'm too old for the camp I've been attending the past few years. But now we keep arguing about how I should spend the time.

I'd like to know how it feels to just do plain nothing! All I will mean to Dad is continuing my allowance, and that's a big saving over what camp would cost. There's no point in my going to summer school. My marks, are high — mostly A's. They're proof of how hard I work each term and why I really deserve a rest.

I've never had a chance to loaf, to get up when I feel like it and spend some time doing as I wish.

• • •

Mr. H.F. — There's an old saying, "The Devil finds mischief for idle hands." Irwin's notion of spending the summer doing what he "feels like" may lead him to feel he did a good thing that are bad for him, things he'll regret!

I can understand his desire to know how it feels to be a lobo — a hallelujah-bum — because by nature he's like me, a serious hard-worker. That's how I know he'd quickly grow tired of a vacation without any schedules or responsibilities. A few days, even a couple of weeks, of sitting around and dreaming up things to do would be enough. He'd keep crazy hours, too, and his health would suffer.

I want him to take a summer job before all the good ones are gone.

• • •

The Council: Freedom to do what one feels like doing can become the heaviest tyranny.

Irwin is likely to find himself a slave to whim, impulse and the fancies of others with whom he'd like to tag along. Centuries ago, the poet Ben Jonson pointed out that he who is his own boss has a fool for a master. Irwin will enjoy his summer more if he plans his relaxation around a fixed commitment rather than in plake of one.

Mr. F.'s mid-givings are valid. Three, eventualities can smash Irwin's idyllic dream. He'll grow bored, he'll grow sickened and court danger, and he'll feel guilty about wasting time.

Presently bestged with school assignments, he can't imagine growing bored with a nothing-to-do respite. But after a week or two of sunlings around the trails of interest, of "hoving" in on the plans of others, he may regret the bereavement of his vacation. By then, alas, all the best jobs will be filled.

Worse, he may let his boredom lead him toward excitements which stain or corrupt. And, looking back at the end of the summer, what will he have to show for the time! Will his plan look as tempting as it does now in anticipation? We think not. He may find himself saying: "I wish I'd spent the precious week in sketching" money, discovering future contacts and slacking up "experience" credentials.

Hence we recommend a plan and a program. Some kids can direct themselves with these. They go ahead with a serious project (inventing, building, exploring) which they can't devote much time to during the school months. They keep regular hours, proceed in an orderly way and are self-propelling.

Since Irwin evidently has no such burning "call," we suggest a summer job. Although the field is somewhat limited because of his age, it can be augmented through direct canvass by both Irwin and Mr. F. among friends, and business acquaintances.

Can Now Buy Late Fashions Off the Peg

By PEGGY MASSEY

PARIS (Reuter) — French women, with moderate budgets are no longer the orphans of the fashion world.

For the first time, they now can buy authentic copies of Parisian haut couture fashions off the peg, as their counterparts in nearly every other country of the world have been doing for years.

Pierre Cardin this spring became the first top-ranking designer to reproduce ready - to - wear styles for sale at relatively inexpensive prices of home in the French fashion capital.

For years, Parisians have been forced into the position of the proverbial shoemaker's daughter who walks barefoot.

Mass-produced copies of couture fashions have been available in leading cities throughout the world within a month of the opening of the new couture collections each spring and autumn. These line-for-line copies have been available everywhere — except in Paris, where they originated.

Since March 15, an exclusive collection of Cardin readymade copies, has been on sale at the Printemps department store at prices ranging from about $30 to $130.

MODEST PRICES

Cardin intends to add a second, "lower" collection. It will be priced even more modestly, from about $18 to $45.

Every top - ranking couture house has had a ready-to-wear line in the last few years, but Pierre Cardin is the pioneer in recognizing that Parisians may like perhaps, left out of the family of women who buy the relatively inexpensive ready-made reproductions of new couture styles each season.

Some critics fear Cardin's innovation may endanger the prestige of haute couture, the replies that London or Geneva will be no hour's flight from Paris, and clients may purchase all the French copies they want in either city.

He hopes that other top French designers will follow suit, filling the windows of other Paris stores with their own original line-for-line copies.

Fresh Fur Beauty Seen

There's a new excitement in fur fashions and creations for spring. There's a bright young spirit in the designing, and by the time you read this, either the fabulous or newly-dyed furs, a whole new color palette results.

The furs for spring must of necessity be light in weight and supple, and many fall in this category. Some are old friends, making their appearance newly interpreted — Southwest African Persian lamb is now not only available in dyed black, taupe or beige, but furs both here and abroad have achieved a duotone process on black, applied to red, beige, green and blue for a completely new effect.

Shape is no longer the barest minimum. Some variations are little jackets that float, ripple or flutter. Some are shaped like a capelet with the sleeves worked in. Others are true flowing capes.

Capelet or flyaway back jackets are also alternatives to dramatized or collarless cardigan straight jackets.

Whole Wheat Bread 1962 Style

by Mary Moore

The last time I made whole wheat bread I made over five hundred copies of the recipes. They are all gone and there are letters from readers asking for them. So I thought it was time for me to get kneading some bread.

This recipe is a little different from my former efforts for I've included some white flour. Also it makes 2 loaves. You glad who are serious bread makers for large families will have to double this recipe if you want 4 loaves to fill up your oven.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY: (Guests)

SUNDAY

Standing Rib Roast of Beef; Yorkshire Pudding (see Saturday); Duchess Potatoes; Spinach with Almonds; Cole Slaw; Profiteroles (see Wednesday); Coffee.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD
1962

1-3 cup milk, scalded, 1-2 cup dark brown sugar, 1-3 cup shortening (or lard), 1 teaspoon salt, 1 3-4 cups lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon sugar (or honey), 1 package granular yeast, 1-2 cup fresh wheat germ, 4 cups fresh whole wheat flour, 2 cups unsifted white flour.

Remove spice from heat and while it is scalding hot add the sugar, shortening and salt and stir until shortening melts. Cool to lukewarm.

In large mixing bowl put the lukewarm water and to it add the 1 teaspoon sugar or honey. Sprinkle yeast over top and let stand 10 minutes. Stir once. Add lukewarm milk mixture to yeast mixed liquid, stir. Add 2 cups whole wheat flour and 1 cup white flour. Mix as well as possible. Sprinkle remaining 1 cup white flour on bread board. Turn dough out on it and knead 175 times or 8 to 7 minutes. (Time depends on whether you are a good steady kneader). Or until all white flour has been incorporated into the dough and dough is perfectly smooth and squeaky.

Scrape down mixing bowl, rub with butter, replace dough, turn it over to have a buttered side up, cover and allow to rise until doubled and light to touch — about 2 hours or room temperature. (Or if desired you can make this dough at night, and cover and refrigerate it overnight — but in morning it takes longer to rise because it is so cold.) Turn out on lightly floured board and knead 78 times. Divide in half, shape into 2 loaves and place in 2 buttered loaf pans. Brush tops with oil or melted butter or margarine. Let rise covered until 1" above rims of pans. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 45 to 46 minutes. Top top of loaves is not to color too much. Test by thrusting a broom straw into the thickest part of loaf. If straw comes out clean, loaves are done. Remove from pans at once and cool on racks. These whole wheat loaves slice better when cold but taste heavenly when fresh from the oven.

Living Fashions Warm Heart

There's no place like the home — and home was never more comfortable, heartwarming and beautiful.

Designs, colors and fabrics in furniture and furnishings all join in to provide the old look in home fashions, which calls for a friendly, welcoming atmosphere, with coziness and charm as well as elegance.

Versatility is an important part of the decorating scheme. Decorators' ingenuity goes far to create a maximum of comfort and beauty, even when space is at a premium.

More adaptibility and a custom look in decorating come with the trend to diversity in height and length of furniture. Low and long sofas and chairs claim their claim to elegance, where the floor space permits.

Sectionals are called to meet many decorating needs. Short units for a small room, can become seating-for-conversation pieces in almost any area of the home, or family room, or even the bedroom.

STRETCHING SPACE

Tall, tall chests and cabinets help create extra storage space, while lower pieces in co-ordinated styles make eye-pleasing contrast, for the decorating diversity important in today's architectural and interior scene.

Modular units — cabinets, chests, shelves, desks for platform stacking or wall hanging — offer many solutions to ever-expanding space, along with more individual appearance. Individuality comes from the new practice of using a variety of materials and designs together in related groups of these units.

FABRICS LOOK RICHER

Fabrics seem to have attained the ultimate in richness, texture quality and beauty, coupled with soil resistance and ease of care. The choice appears infinite, with damask or man-made yarns used separately or combined in inspirational ways.

Velvet and velvet-like fabrics make many of the new fashion coverage. Other important textures are damasks, tapestries, linens and homespuns. Nylon is important in all categories, including velvets.

Color excitement in the home is here, with vivid greens, warm orange, yellows, off-beat reds and blues. Beige, gray, white and charcoal lead neutrals.

Modern technology takes a hand, with new techniques for giving functional luxury for less. For example, now there are new and less-costly ways to give sturdy wood bases and frames a graceful, sculptured look.

Mrs. Anna Hughes Member Of Waterloo Council 11 Years

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Anna Hughes recalls that when she was growing up in Calgary she attended Mount Royal College "where they tried to make a lady of me."

"Instead, I ended up a politician."

As the only woman on Waterloo city council, it is evident to all the men that she became both.

A council member for 11 years, Mrs. Hughes, a widow, is chairman of the finance committee and chairman of the legislation and bylaws committee.

She feels "every council should have a competent woman on it for balance."

Her activities don't end with politics, however. She is a member of Trinity United Church, was president of the Women's Association and served as far as the presbytery level.

She is also a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club and the Kitchener-Waterloo Service Club, an organization of women devoted to work for the aged.

PATIENCE NEEDED

Mrs. Hughes believes more women are needed in all levels of public service but they require quite special qualifications.

"Being elected is just the beginning. It requires patience, tact, perseverance, and above all the ability to buckle down and learn what you don't know about the projects under consideration.

"Therein lies the challenge. It is fun to follow along and voting in any organization. Women should study every phase of a project and know it thoroughly. Added to that, a sense of humor is a help.

"Everybody in the city has been good to me. Women have been kind, yet we do not always agree. Men are co-operative; even if they tease me they also respect me.

"When I first went on council they gave me the chairmanship of the sewer and sanitation committee."

Mrs. Hughes met her husband in Calgary and they moved here 20 years ago.

When asked if she would like to be mayor, she replied: "We have an excellent mayor right now. At one time I entertained the ambition but since the loss of my husband I feel the demands would be too heavy.

"Most people in public life who carry a heavy responsibility need someone near them to help cushion the tensions.

"Being chairman of two important committees in this city keeps me busy. The main thing is to have something constructive to do; to me that is the only way to have a happy life."

Club Activities

FELLOWSHIP CLUB

CENTENARY — On Friday evening the Fellowship Club of Centenary United Church held its April meeting in the church hall with a good attendance. Doreen Pearson led in a singsong.

The devotional was conducted by Jean and Al Christopher. The president, Byron Harder, was in charge of the business. It was decided that on April 27th Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parrott would be invited to show their slides on the Holy Land, taken on their recent trip.

Evelyn and Douglas Dawson were in charge of the recreation after which doughnuts and coffee were enjoyed by all.

Couple Feted By Friends

MINTO — Salem Church hall was filled Thursday evening when relatives, friends and neighbors met to honor Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wannemaker (Helen Lake) on their recent marriage.

Mr. Joe Hagerman as chairman presided over the program. The bride and bridegroom were given seats of honor on the platform and the chairman expressed best wishes to them. Community singing was enjoyed with Stanley Wannemaker at the piano. Readings were given by Mrs. Ed Colclen and Mrs. Everett Sim. Marilyn and Donna Geen sang a duet. Donna Vardy from Stirling sang, playing her own guitar accompaniment. Elinton and Kathy Ketchen played a piano duet; Miss Jane Clement and Miss Sandra Wannemaker played an instrumental number and pupils of Browns School gave two numbers.

Miss Lila Yorke read the address and the young couple were presented with a space heater, for which they suitably replied and thanked all for the gift also for the lovely shower and invited everyone to visit them in their new home at Tweed.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Brims to Flatter In Hats

Planning to flatter and frame pretty faces, hats greet spring with brims, brims and more brims. In keeping with the versatility of new fashions, the look isn't limited to just one type of brim.

Brims wide and narrow, brims rippled or pleated, brims that curve up and brims that curve down, strictly-tailored bumper, cuff and roller brims, and carefree, slouchy brims all have a place in the spring headlines.

Such a variety allows for plenty of choice in silhouettes. Hat heights range from tall and towering to miniscule. Shapes are many—even toques take brims, and there are varlously-brimmed cloches, sailors, profiles.

Little-crowned, wide-brimmed "garden party" hats look particularly romantic. Many are really all brim, with the "crown" flowing smoothly into the projecting brim.

Of course, not every hat is brimmed. There are softly draped, feminine turbans, and the pillbox is the harbinger of a whole covey of little hats meant to perch lightly atop cherished hairdos.

Tiny cone shapes and whimsical mixtures of flowers and leaves win favor among the little hats.

All-flower and flower-adorned hats bloom with their usual spring vigor, given impetus by the feminine mood in fashion.

Feminine, too, are the silky and sheer fabrics, fine and smooth ball-type straws and pliable felts that compose spring hats. In some hats, more textured straws offer a smart contrast to airy fashions.

Sheer Loveliness

By TRACY ADRIAN

Navy and white goes dressy in this charming and feminine frock designed by Sophie and made in sheer twin-printed organza.

The high, shirred, sleeveless bodice is gathered by a tiny string bow at the neckline and a self-fabric belt nips a natural waistline above the short, full skirt.

B. and P. Club Delegates Are Appointed

TWEED— The regular meeting of the Tweed Business and Professional Club was held last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Hilda Sexsmith, in the form of a social evening with a good attendance of members. Mrs. Beitch, Mrs. Garton and Mrs. Sexsmith were in charge of the meeting with Mrs. Anne MacLean, president in the chair. Mrs. MacLean was appointed delegate to the national convention which is to be held at St. Andrew's, New Brunswick, from July 9th to 13th, while Mrs. Norah Hiscox was named delegate to the regional convention which is to be held in Belleville on May 5th and as many members as possible are urged to attend this latter event.

It was decided to arrange a bowling party early in May to raise funds to send the delegates to the aforementioned events. Mrs. M. Bickely, Mrs. O. Dale and Mrs. H. Sexsmith are to look after these arrangements.

A nominating committee of Mrs. Ruth Owens and Mrs. Mildred McCrory will submit the new slate of officers at the next meeting, on April 25th.

FAINTZE RESIGNS

MONTREAL (CP) — Alfred Pellan, 56,—one of Canada's greatest and controversial contemporary painters, resigned Wednesday from the two-months-old Quebec Arts Council. He declined to say why he resigned, saying that the reason should be announced by George Lapalme, Quebec cultural affairs minister.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

The Law Has Loopholes

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—You should warn all wives and children of American-Canadian marriages that there is a very large loophole existing in the laws to protect them. Tell these wives to run, not walk, to the nearest lawyer for advice.

I think a marriage contract should be made between the husband and wife concerning support, etc., in case of desertion or divorce.

Ask the Family Court and they can tell you of some very terrible and sad cases of American-Canadian marriages ending in divorce.

I would like to form a club for all deserted wives and children—understand there are 80,000 such families in Canada, at least—EQUAL LAWS FOR WIVES AND CHILDREN.

DEAR EQUAL—On the grounds that misery loves company?

It is true that making laws is one thing, enforcing them another. Wonder is that our courts bring about as much paying-up by deserting husbands as they do.

Marriage contracts are sound common sense—and common practice in some parts of the country.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO BRANDA—If the deed to the house is in both names, your husband cannot sell without your signed agreement. As for coming back, you fear him and his strange behavior far too much to make a go of it.

A personal counsellor might, however, help both of you. I strongly advise a visit to the Children's Aid Society, 88 West Moira Street, Belleville, which counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved.

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, writer to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: My daughter just became engaged. She is seventeen and her fiance is nineteen. They will be married in April, 1962, when she is eighteen and he is twenty. Here is my problem:

The boy's mother disapproves of his getting married. She has stated she will not attend the wedding, and she does not want any invitations sent to her family. However, she also has stated her intention of giving the youngsters an engagement party.

Once the engagement is announced, what would be the proper procedure to follow as far as his family is concerned? — Mrs. A.O.P., Leading, Ill.

Answer: If, fortunate that the young couple has decided to wait a year to be married, so that family problems can be ironed out well in advance. Since the young man's mother has announced that she's giving an engagement party, it may mean that she's willing to calm down and make some concessions.

Strictly speaking, though, it's not proper for the family of the prospective bridegroom to give an engagement party. It's usually given by the parents of the bride and attended by the families and close friends of both. However, a party is necessary, and most engagements are announced in the paper and informally by phone calls and notes to intimates.

If the boy's mother wants to give a party for the couple then it might be wiser, in this instance, to forget about protocol and let her have her way, if only to bring both families together, under congenial circumstances, to break the ice. Once the initial step is taken, those other members of your family might give small dinners and get-togethers for the youngsters and invite his family and relatives as well as friends. Such a display of good fellowship certainly should help ease the things out before the wedding takes place.

If, in the unlikely event his mother still has qualms at that point and the couple intend to get married despite her disapproval, invitations still should be sent to members of his family in the hope that they will attend. You also should try to enlist her aid at every step of the way in planning the wedding, and include her in all the pre-nuptial parties and showers.

The aid of the clergyman who is to perform the ceremony also should be enlisted if the situation is to be completely cleared up before the year is out.

Question: Until recently, an elderly woman friend who is 72 was planning to give a mutual friend of ours a baby shower. The expectant mother is thirty-two and has two children. There will be a seven-year difference between her second and third child. However, somebody advised her it would be incorrect. As a result, she has decided not to have the shower, is the advice correct, and, if so, what could possibly be the reason? — Mrs. H.C.B., New York City.

Answer: A baby shower usually is given for a first baby, but rarely for subsequent additions to the family. This, may have been the advice your friend was given and was the reason she decided to call off the shower.

Furnishings Set To Defy Dirt

Along with comfort and elegance, there's convenience for the homemaker in spring's home fashions, as more and more designs for living are designed to defy dirt, too.

New vinyl floor coverings for the family or all-purpose room copy carpeting convincingly, yet are competely scrubbable. And in carpeting itself, nylon and the other synthetics have brought boons of long wear and easier cleaning.

Upholstery couples soil resistance with rich beauty. New fabric finishes that repel spots and stains make the use of pale colors, even white, practical in home fashions.

"Pretty is as pretty does" is the rule in draperies, with many easy-care fabrics.

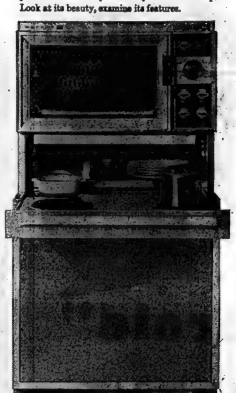
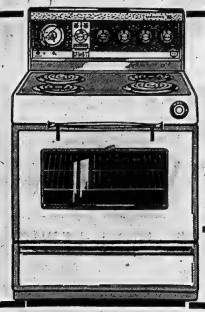
"NO OTHER RANGE EVEN EQUALS THE FIESTA BY MOFFAT"



No other range gives you a power-driven oven-rack for perfect broiling or baking. No other range gives you an open warming shelf. No other range gives you such a practical Lazy Susan for storing pots and pans on the spot. One of these features alone would make the Fiesta outstanding. All three serve to place the Fiesta in a position of peerless leadership. Look at its beauty, examine its features.

THE POWER-RACK. At the touch of a button, oven door closed, you can raise or lower the oven-rack to the exact height you want it for perfect broiling, searing, browning or baking. No within 1! The oven door is glass; the inside is brightly lit. Extras include a power driven Rotisserie, and a Roastmeter to buzz you when the roast is ready. And this oven tells no lies—temperature settings are accurate!

CLEANING. Design is functional in the truest sense: clean lines for beauty; simple construction for easiest cleaning; quality workmanship for length of life. Elements, pans, rings and racks lift out handily. Fit back snugly. Fiesta owners spend less time cleaning . . . have more time to spend on actual cooking or with their families.



THE WARMING SHELF. Thermostatically controlled, and conveniently positioned at the back of the cooking surface for maximum useful space. Keeps food and plates warm; ideal for defrosting frozen foods. The four-element cooking surface glides out to give you more work-space than other ranges. Fully automatic controls are within easy arm level reach. Optional extra: vent hood (if models) fit back snugly. Fiesta owners spend to do away with odours and fumes.

THE LAZY SUSAN. Yet one more exclusive Fiesta feature, underneath the cooking area. Here, in the most convenient spot imaginable, is all the space you could possibly need for storing pots, pans, lids and suits. There's even a rack for paper towels. Just open the Lazy Susan with a touch of your foot! Unquestionably, the Fiesta is the foremost range designed and made in Canada.

Birth, Death and Marriage Rates Fall, Illegitimate Births and Divorces Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's birth rate in 1960 declined to its lowest point since 1945, its marriage rate fell to its lowest mark since 1935, and its death rate reached the lowest figure on record.

Up were divorces and illegitimate births.

The 1960 vital statistics report, issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, shows that 478,351 infants were born alive in Canada during that year for a national birth rate of 26.9 per 1,000 population. The 1959 figure was 27.5.

But despite the drop, Canada remained in sixth position among countries of the world — behind only the 32.5 rate in the United States and Russia's 25.0, and slightly higher than India's 26.3.

Venezuela heads the list with a rate of 46.9. There is a wide gap between Chile's fifth place 35.4 and Canada's next-ranking 26.9.

Nearly a third of Canadian births in 1960 occurred in Ontario, almost 29 per cent were in Quebec, and British Columbia recorded eight per cent. Together the three provinces contributed more than 70 per cent of the year's babies.

Out of every 100 mothers, seven were under 20 years old and 36 were under 25. The average weight of all male babies was seven pounds, 7½ ounces. Girls were four ounces lighter.

Of Canada's 478,351, births, 20, 413 were illegitimate. This 4.3 percentage equals the 1946 figure, the highest on record. The 1951-55 average was 2.3 per cent.

The 130,358 marriages during the year compared with 132,474 in 1959, and the rate per 1,000 population fell to 7.3 from 7.4. The highest rate, 10.9, was in 1946.

The average age of brides in 1960 was 24.7 years, down slightly from 24.8 in 1959. The 1921 average was 25.5.

Their husbands averaged 27.7 years, unchanged from 1959 but down 2.5 years from 1921 — the earliest records available.

A total of 6,960 couples were granted divorces during the year. This rate of 39.2 per 100,000 population compares with the 1959 figure of 37.5. The highest rate on record was in 1947 when the figure reached 63.5. The average rate between 1921 and 1925 was 9.6.

Canada's death rate of 7.8 per 1,000 population was down from 8.0 in 1959 and it compared with a 1921-23 average of 11.2. Only Japan with 7.5 and The Netherlands and Russia, both with 7.6, were lower. Of the 12 countries listed, Cuba had the highest rate at 9.1. The United States and Britain were both higher than that.

The causes of death in Canada showed little change from the previous year. Forty-six per cent were due to circulatory diseases of the heart and brain, about one-sixth were due to cancer and 6.7 per cent were caused by accidents.

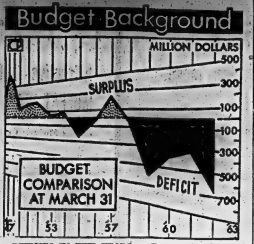
Tuberculosis, which claimed 6,000 lives 20 years ago, caused only 833 deaths in 1960. Accidental deaths also dropped slightly to 9,402 from 9,439 in 1959.

The infant death rate in 1960 was 27 out of every 1,000 births. The 1921-25 average was 90.

Cost of Plan Will Increase $100,000,000

TORONTO (CP)—The cost of Ontario's hospital insurance plan will leap some $100,000,000 by 1963, the chairman of the hospital services commission said Wednesday.

Dr. Ian Urquhart told the legislature's standing committee on health and welfare that improved patient care and increased salaries and fringe benefits for hospital employees will account for the anticipated increase in costs to $355,297,000 in 1963 from the $252,397,000 budgeted for this year.



The increase will have to be met almost entirely out of provincial revenue, since premiums are expected to be frozen at their current rate until then.

"Each year the cost of caring for patients in hospitals increases and each year we are giving more days of care in hospitals to patients under the plan," Dr. Urquhart said.

Health Minister Dymond told the committee that 41 per cent of Ontario's hospital beds are occupied by the mentally ill, and the cost of treating such patients will rise to $120,000,000 from $85,000,000 last year.

Despite the increase, Dr. Dymond argued against "launching into extensive construction of large institutions which could be completely useless."

Budget Background

DEFICITS IN FIVE YEARS — For the last five years deficits have been announced in federal budgets, hitting a post-war record of $650,000,000 in the 1961-62 fiscal year ended March 31.

Other deficits ranged from $38,800,000 in 1957-58 to $609,310,000 in 1958-59.

A string of budget surpluses was recorded following the final wartime budget deficit of $3,313,043,421 in 1945-46. Graph compares surpluses and deficits in the years after that. (CP Newsmap).

Castro Paid $28 Million for 56 Sick, Wounded Prisoners

By JOHN BLAND

HAVANA (Reuter)—The Cuban regime reached a big dollars-for - freedom deal Wednesday with a Cuban exile mission for the release of 1,179 prisoners captured in the abortive Cuban invasion a year ago.

Reliable sources, said 54 sick and wounded prisoners would be flown to Miami Saturday.

They will be followed later, at a time as yet undisclosed, by the rest of the prisoners for whom Premier Fidel Castro has demanded indemnities totalling $62,000,000.

A Cuban government statement this morning said the indemnity for the 54 sick and wounded prisoners will be deposited in the Royal Bank of Canada in Montreal in the name of the National Bank of Cuba.

Under the terms of the agreement more prisoners will be released as new funds are received from the United States, starting with those whose indemnity is least and ending with those whose indemnity is most.

The mission was understood to have raised $38,000,000 so far toward the total $62,000,000 asked by the revolutionary tribunal.

The release was announced following several hours of negotiations between the four-member Cuban leadership at Castro's residence in Veradero, Havana's central residential suburb.

The commission was composed of three relatives of prisoners and a wife of a prisoner.

Terms for the release of the prisoners were set last Sunday by the five of a 39-under-treason trial in which the prisoners received jail sentences ranging up to 30 years or individual fines totalling the $62,000,000.

Fines for the prisoners ranged from $25,000 to $500,000.

The military leaders of the invasion, Jose Pepe Miro Cardona, Ernesto Andres Oliva, and the civil chief, Dr. Manuel Artime, 30, were each assessed at $500,000 and 301 others at $100,000 each.

Mrs. Berta Barreto, hostess of the exile mission, told reporters: "All I can say is that we are satisfied with the agreement and we hope it will benefit all the prisoners."

More than 1,300 prisoners were taken in the invasion of the Bay of Pigs last April 17.

Five were executed last September for alleged crimes committed under the regime of Fulgencio Batista, ousted by Castro's revolutionary movement three years ago.

Several were killed in an accident after their capture and others died from wounds suffered in the invasion fighting.

Two remained in the U.S. last May after being sent with eight other prisoners to negotiate the proposed exchange of prisoners for tractors suggested by Castro last May.

The earlier negotiations collapsed after several weeks with both sides charging the other of bad faith.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt headed the private committee negotiating for the U.S. side.

Fire Destroys Royal Bank In Bath

BATH, Ont. (CP) — The Bath branch of the Royal Bank of Canada was destroyed by fire Wednesday but the branch's money and records were in a fireproof vault and left undamaged.

The bank was closed for the day as the three-member staff was at a sub-branch at Amherst Island.

Cause of the fire here, 18 miles west of Kingston, was not known.

Prince Philip Hands Advice To Industry

By DAVE OANCIA

LONDON (CP)—A sun-tanned Prince Philip, just back from a 60-day tour of South America, handed some blunt advice to Britain's Industrialists Wednesday.

Speaking to the grand council of the Federation of British Industries, which represents most of the nation's manufacturers, he declared:

"I am sorry to say this, but there is no getting away from it. At the moment we have a reputation for being rather slow and old-fashioned."

His speech, followed by a question - and - answer session, was heard by some 300 council members, representatives of trade and export organizations and journalists.

"They do think we have rather abandoned them," he said when asked if South Americans thought the British were lagging behind Continental countries.

He followed this quickly with a quip.

"I spent all my time excusing this by saying we had spent all our money on the Commonwealth."

After the session the prince flew to Frankfurt, with his 13-year-old son, Prince Charles, for a visit with relatives in West Germany.

Asked about the approach British businessmen should use, the prince replied straightfaced:

"It would be much better to go out there in a bowler hat speaking Spanish than in a sombrero speaking English only."

Goes to Work Once a Year But Stays Away 8 Months

HOPE ISLAND, Ont. (CP)—Unlike most men, Alex Herron goes to work only once a year—and he doesn't come home for eight months.

He's the lighthouse keeper on this island in Georgian Bay, a job he has held for the last 24 years.

As he was packing to leave his home in Midland, 25 miles to the southeast, late in March, many of his friends dropped in to say goodbye. Most of them won't see him again until the ice freezes and lake shipping ends late in the fall.

This will be his last year in what was once a lonely job. He will retire at 65 after this shipping season ends.

There have been many changes since he first took a job as a light keeper. There's television to pass away the hours now, and the 10 - room house that bears the light has indoor plumbing and modern communications.

No longer does he make the trip to the island by boat. A helicopter lands him here on a 15-minute flight from the mainland.

FAMILY JOINS HIM

During the summer vacation he is joined by his wife and daughter Dorothea, 16, who was almost born at the light.

Mrs. Herron was staying at the light when it came time for Dorothea to be born. Fortunately the supply ship was in Midland and Mrs. Herron was able to reach hospital in time.

Mr. Herron also remembers tragedy at Hope Island. Three years ago one of his two sons, William, who worked with him on the light, was lost in heavy seas as he neared the island in a small boat. His other son, Robert, is in the navy.

There have been two major wrecks at the island. In 1943 the freighter Riverton, loaded with wheat, ran aground. No lives were lost. The ship was refloated, repaired and today plies the Great Lakes as the Mohawk Deer.

The lighter Michigan, sent to free the Riverton, was not so lucky. Her moorings parted in heavy seas and she broke in two and sank.

The other major wreck occurred in 1896 when the sailing schooner Lottie Wolfe sank. The wreck today provides Mr. Herron with much of his company Skindivers often go down to examine the wreckage and search for souvenirs.

SELLS CANADIAN SAFARIS — Jack Bowen, Trans-Canada Air Lines representative, is selling Canadian hunting and fishing safaris to European sportsmen. He has been in Europe offering package deals tailored to individual demands and including transportation, guides and all equipment. (CP Photo)

Hunters, Anglers Abroad Show Interest in Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — If Jack Bowen has his way the big game hunter or fisherman in search of a safari won't come to Africa. He'll pack his guns and gear and hop the next plane for Canada.

Mr. Bowen's efforts to sell Canada to sportsmen of other lands have so impressed his employer—Trans-Canada Air Lines—that it has established a single-price safari plan.

The result, he says, is that an increasing number of hunters and fishermen abroad are showing interest in what Canada can offer.

The would-be hunter or fisherman simply enters the nearest TCA office, describes his particular sporting interest and is quoted an all - inclusive price covering every detail of the trip from transportation to guides and equipment.

Mr. Bowen, back from a sales campaign in the capitals of Europe, said:

"I found a tremendous reaction among European sportsmen to the idea of hunting in Canada, particularly in the Rocky Mountains where sensible conservation laws have permitted the preservation of grizzly bear, Dall sheep, moose, caribou, elk and buffalo.

"It would seem to me that the main reason is that here in Canada it is hunting in the true sense of the word. What they have in Asia and Africa is mostly bait hunting which means the setting of a trap and the 'sportsman' moving in on the kill when the animal, to describe the situation delicately, is at a disadvantage.

"In Canada, however, the reverse is true, since hinting involves a challenge and a battle of wits between the hunter and the hunted."

In addition to hunting, Mr. Bowen says, the variety of fish and fishing in Canada has been a special attraction for European guests.

He also feels the increased leisure time and improved economic resources of many Europeans has created a class of sportsman with a desire to broaden their horizons.

U.S. Presses For Action On Columbia

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. government, concerned over the future of the Columbia River treaty, Tuesday night announced it will ask Congress to approve $558,000,000 of new power and flood control projects in the Columbia River basin of the U.S. northwest.

While authorities emphasized that these in no way should be considered as alternatives to the Columbia treaty, they made clear these "supplementary" projects would be tackled first if Canada continues to hold up ratification of the Columbia project.

One U.S. power expert said the new projects, in Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Montana, "would be good, with or without the Columbia."

However, if the U.S. proceeds with these "supplementary" works—including the $234,000,000 Knowles Dam in western Montana—then the urgency of Columbia construction might be lessened slightly, the expert said.

Earlier Tuesday, Senate Majority Leader M. J. Mansfield (Dem., Mont.) disclosed that President Kennedy plans to approve the Knowles and other projects and emphasized in an interview that this should not be considered as an attempt to pressure on Canada to speed ratification of the Columbia treaty.

Governor-General Vanier, Entering 2nd Half of Term Of Office, Is Beloved by All

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The comfortably furnished oak-panelled library at Rideau Hall is playing an increasing role in Canada's future these days.

It is there in the quiet of the Governor General's private study that plans of far-reaching importance can be discussed without the hurly-burly and controversy of politics.

Maj.-Gen. Georges P. Vanier, entering the second half of his term of office, is observing all the limitations and at the same time undertaking all the responsibilities of governor - general in the traditions established by his predecessors.

Officially, he acts only on the advice of the prime minister and cabinet of the day, but he has many opportunities to give counsel to both government and non - government leaders based on his wide personal experience in many fields. His influence must always remain unobtrusive.

In a day, the conversations over coffee cups and afternoon tea cups may range widely. Gen. Vanier has a full schedule of private interviews sandwiched among his public engagements.

The Queen's personal representative as chief of state and commander-in-chief, he receives foreign diplomats and talks with Canadian diplomats assigned to foreign posts.

As Chief Scout of Canada he may discuss problems faced by Boy Scout troops in remote localities. A group of other national organizations he may be briefed or give advice on a multitude of affairs, many parts of Canada.

With his help of his gracious and attractive wife, the former Pauline Archer whom he married in 1921, Canada's first native governor-general of French extraction has already travelled coast to coast, visiting nearly 100 cities and towns and making almost 250 speeches.

Many people regard the Governor-General as a figurehead without power, an important person singled out to live a life of luxury in whatever glamor Canadian society can provide. Few know anything about the work involved.

It's not all luxury. Most governors-general have left Rideau Hall poorer financially. They have had tiresome weeks of travel through rugged country and bad weather. They keep smiling through a seemingly endless pilgrimage of meeting people and being nice to everyone, no matter how boring.

It may come easy to some members of the Boyd Family, a raised in the atmosphere from childhood, or to personages who have been cut from Debrett's land to fill the post. But it doesn't come easy to everyone.

Gen. Vanier and his predecessor, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Canada's first native governor-general of English extraction who now lives in retirement at Port Hope, Ont., had wide and varied careers before being appointed to Government House.

Mr. Massey, an industrialist, historian, politician, diplomat, philanthropist and patron of the arts, served as governor-general for 7½ years, longest term of any. It's usually about five years.

Gen. Vanier, who will be 74 on St. George's Day April 23, was a distinguished soldier who lost his right arm and leg in the First World War. He was later a career diplomat in London and Paris.

He took up his present duties Sept. 15, 1959, with a prayer on his lips. He lives each day sincerely acknowledging God's help.

The first Roman Catholic in the post, he attends mass daily, but appears at services at other denominations whenever the occasion arises in his vice-regal rounds.

Each governor - general uses his talents and experience in his own way. Mr. Massey undertains on a large scale with several balls each year, receptions for perhaps 300 and dinner parties of 100.

Mme. Vanier, entertains, for more modest numbers but perhaps more frequently. Recently she gave a tea party at Government House for 30 guests almost weekly.

Each governor - general takes an active interest in the organizations of which he is patron or honorary president. He is especially keen on the work of youth organizations such as the 4-H Clubs and the Boys Clubs which he has visited in most major centres in Canada. He is one of his speeches, to the Canadian Club in Ottawa, he outlined in detail the subjects he said would interest him particularly during his term. They are unity — "a country marching shoulder to shoulder;" youth— "We might leave which might be taken to greatness;" and spirit — "as distinct from materialism."

We have fallen into easy, effortless, materialistic ways," he said. "There is much to be done here to give help to the body by awakening its soul."

The role of the governor-general under the Canadian constitution and in Canadian affairs generally has been the subject of misunderstandings and controversy since colonial days.

Ten years after Confederation, Joseph Todd, Librarian of Parliament, wrote a defence of the post against those who considered the governor-general a "little else than an ornamental appendage to our political system."

FAVORED ADOLATION

Todd, in turn, was described as "a Goldilocks Tod, Librarian of institutional hierophant." Smith, then a fellow professor at Oxford and Cornell and a friend of Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister, was all for doing away with the post, and for Canada joining the United States. He once said:

"These images of loyalty . . . if they dared to do anything themselves, or to refuse to do anything they were told to do, they would be instantly declared. Religious Canada prays, and on Sunday that they may govern well, on the understanding that heaven will never be so constitutional as to answer her prayer."

R. Macgregor Dawson, late professor of political economy at the University of Toronto, described the office as "little more than a convenient peg on which to hang our system of government."

Bodies of 152 Unidentified Victims of Titanic Disaster Lie in 3 Halifax Cemeteries

By WALTER HAYES

HALIFAX (CP)—The bodies of 153 unidentified victims of the 1912 Titanic disaster lie in three Halifax cemeteries but no special observance is planned on the 50th anniversary of the disaster April 14-15.

The cabinetmaker Mackay Bennett picked up 306 bodies and brought 241 here. Relatives could claim 59 of the numbers and are buried beneath plain granite - block markers, distinguished only by numbers and the date of the sea disaster.

Frank Lee Vanderbilt, millionaire, was working in the Royal Naval College of Canada here in 1912. Then 15, he remembers hearing conversations between the Titanic's wireless operator and shore stations.

He said many rumors began flying along the Halifax waterfront, including one that the Titanic had not sunk but was making for Halifax under her own steam.

COFFINS IN ARMORIES

"When the Mackay Bennett docked at the naval dockyard I was able to have a clear view of what transpired. It was one of the saddest sights I have ever witnessed as horse - drawn hearses carried the bodies away."

John E. Murphy of Snow and Company, local undertakers, remembers it well. He was 14 at the time. Long rows of coffins stacked along the sidewalk because there was no room in the undertaking parlors. Others were laid out in a curling rink and the armories.

"The first load of bodies came in on the cablelayer Minia," he said. "There were about 50 or 60 that were identified and prepared for burial."

A few days after the disaster, which claimed 1,502 lives, the Mackay Bennett was sent from here loaded with coffins, ice and scrap iron to look for bodies at the point of the sinking, 500 miles southeast of Halifax. Aboard were an Anglican clergyman and the late C. W. Snow, then manager of Snow and Company.

It was Mr. Snow's job to prepare bodies for burial during the return trip. Some, impossible to identify, were shrouded with iron and buried at sea.

HUNT BY RELATIVES

Hundreds of anxious relatives converged on Halifax, hoping to find bodies of missing kin. Among the bodies brought here were those of John Jacob Astor, New York millionaire, and Charles M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk Railway.

"I was doing part-time work at a local hotel and remember a distinguished-looking man on many occasions," Mr. Murphy related. "One day I asked him if he were a statesman. He introduced himself as Mr Astor and said he wasn't. It turned out he was John Astor's nephew and was in Halifax looking for his brother's body."

In a tiny room above the funeral parlor Mr. Murphy rummaged through a dusty wooden crate. After a time he came up with a soiled record book containing the names or numbers of the victims brought to Halifax. Numbers were used where bodies could not be recognized.

The record showed 123 buried at Fairview cemetery, 19 in Mount Olivet Roman Catholic cemetery and 10 in the Halifax Jewish cemetery. The White Star Line, owner of the ill-fated Titanic, and its successor the Cunard Line have paid the cost of maintaining the graves ever since.

Editorial Comment on Budget

Sudbury Star — Not by the widest stretch of the imagination can the budget be interpreted as an "election budget." No sweeping tax concessions to woo a favorable ballot and no politically dishonest increases in revenue surpluses are to be found in this budget.

Lethbridge Herald (Ind. Lib) —The people should be insulted by any attempt to bribe them with their own money, but in this case the sting of the insult has been intensified by the suggestion, implicit in the budget, that the electorate can be described with mere loose change.

Edmonton Journal — Mr. Fleming's axe is in hustling mood as he devoted much of his budget speech to praising the record of the Diefenbaker government. It was a clever effort, but he will still have to convince critics that, in the words of one of them, Canada has not become "the worst-managed nation in the North Atlantic world."

Charlottetown Patriot — It is an election budget as far as Mr. Fleming could make it so. He cannot be censured for that. On the eve of a general election it was practically compulsory on his part to bring down a budget which, while making no additional demands on the taxpayer's pocket, will leave with them, make a few concessions.

Woodstock Sentinel Review—The budget . . . was conspicuous for the lack of any tangible handouts. As such, opposition critics, as well as some government supporters, have intimated it was a disappointment. At the same time, the budget was more eloquent in the intimations it contained even though they may not be evident at first sight.

Brantford Exposition — The main help provided to individuals is through raising by $50 the deduction of personal exemption. As Mr. Fleming figures, this will have the effect of striking some 80,000 persons from the tax roll, the net result will not necessarily be a saving to the revenue services to engender a false sense of irresponsibility on the part of those "benefitted." Meanwhile, the money has to come from other pockets.

Timmins Daily Press — Will there be a general election this year, after all? No one knows but the prime minister and it begins to look as if he is having sober second thoughts. Fortheast of an early vote continues to pour out of Ottawa. Yet the so - called pre-election budget . . . does little to encourage them. . . . It could even prove the first step in the government may have decided to go on for another year in the hope of a continued upturn in the economy. The tax cuts which have, although welcome, been modest in campaign. If this is the best budget the government can produce, it is unfortunate to the country the government is in trouble—more trouble.

Sarnia Observer — As vote bait, the budget is not particularly tempting. It is, on the other hand, it succeeds in stimulating the Canadian economy, as its author hopes it will, then it has merit. But the voting public as a whole is not inclined to study its fine points of political economy at election time.

Stratford Beacon-Herald—Mr. Fleming has framed his budget with an eye to what he thinks is right and has given short shrift to vote - catching gimmicks. His budget is that of a man who expects to win the next election, not that of a man who is trying to win it.

Winnipeg Tribune—In answer to the challenge of the times, the government has presented a sound budget. While the opposition have dubbed it "another old budget"—and it is—it encourages an expanding economy as are changing trade patterns. It thus counts on increasing prosperity to provide revenue tomorrow for the investment we are making today.

London Free Press—No one can accuse Finance Minister Fleming of presenting a give-away budget on the eve of a federal election. Actually there was very little option under the country was to be faced with another record deficit, and Mr. Fleming is basically an orthodox financier who is not infatuated with deficits. He would rather get rid of them but circumstances have denied him the opportunity.

Montreal Gazette (Ind. Con.) —Mr. Fleming has brought down a budget that was needed rather than far-reaching that was expected. He has provided modest relief to business which will strengthen and prolong the business upturn.

Montreal Star—The budget is a highly responsible document. It does not, to be sure, take into account the broad structural changes which our economy will hardly make, but within its limits, it presents a series of reasonable proposals of a sensible kind.

Montreal La Presse—It (the budget) is a safe one. It causes any explosions of satisfaction anywhere. It clearly doesn't correspond, in the minds of people, to what is commonly expected of a pre - election budget.

Quebec Chronicle (Ind. Lib.)— . . . The fact is that Mr. Fleming has nowhere else to go at this stage. He started on course long ago, and that course is leading the country deeper and deeper into debt.

Ottawa Journal (Ind. Con.)— Mr. Fleming resisted the temptation to bring down a glamorous pre-election budget. What he brought instead was a budget of responsibility.

Toronto Telegram — Mail—Finance Minister Donald Fleming has to be commended for having, on the eve of a general election, resisted the temptation to present a vote - catching budget of indiscriminately distributed sops. . . . His attitude certainly stood out as more positive than the weakness of an opposition that attempted to assail him instead of impending doom unless, governments, spend hundreds of millions more dollars in gifts and subsidies.

FEMININE FASHIONS

FOR SPRING AND FOR YOU

With the singing of birds, the blossoming of flowers, new fashions signal the coming of spring, into your heart and into your life. Every woman will revel in the feminine, romantic look of the season's silhouettes, fabrics, colors. What's more, there's a lively new feeling everywhere... in fashions for men, for the young set, for the home, too. See the news... in the pages of the Ontario Intelligencer and in your favorite Belleville Store.

Dresses Have Appeal To Man's Eye View

Do women dress to impress other women or to please men? Spring dresses answer the old question in ways that seem to be all in favor of the men.

Appealing to a man's eye view are pretty, curvaceous shapes in a flurry of lace, ruffles and pleats — flares and princess lines, fitted waists, molded bodices and, for contrast and curves, too, slinky siren silhouettes.

From a woman's point of view, the best thing of all about spring dresses is that they're both man-pleasing and pleasing to her own fashion sense. New dresses are not only feminine, they're imaginative and varied, making wardrobe planning fresh and fun for her.

Her choice of silhouettes ranges from slim figure-skimmers to frankly-full skirted styles, and takes in all the variations of flares, gores, cones, pleats, bias cuts.

She can have a waistline that's princess-high, tunic-low or right where nature put it—and all three look new.

With the costume concept stronger than ever, she can have her spring dresses with jackets or coats — and what a variety of jackets and coats!

Jackets shape up every way, as cardigans, cutaways, capelets, boleros. Back interest comes to the fore in jackets with fly-away backs, bloused or draped backs.

Important costume coat is the redingote or reefer, which is cut to show the dress beneath — contrasting print under plain, for instance.

Welcome Is Out For All Colors

It's "open house" for color in fashion this season. Every imaginable hue is invited and looks inviting.

Welcoming at any spring fashion gathering are colors that look good, enough to eat. Among the most delectable of the fruit colors are the oranges, apricots, peaches and melons. In fashion's taste, too, are lemon, lime, banana and berry red.

In addition to tangy citrus and cool ice cream greens, there are deeper and brighter greens, while the berry reds are just one lovely part of a whole range of pinks and red, with a fresh prettiness for this most feminine and flattering of springs.

Of course it wouldn't be a spring party without blue and this season the blues are particularly varied and numerous from clear and pale through sea and sky to royal and navy.

Prevalent white adds pretty spring refreshment.

Introduced everywhere, black wins renewed popularity. Cool grays, golden beiges and honey-to-molasses browns round out the "queer list" of colors seen in spring fashion.

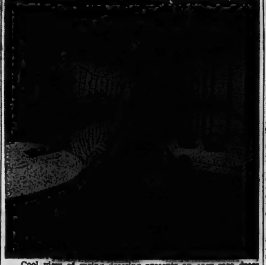
Feminity Ascents Spring Styles

Members of the young set flaunt their feminity this spring, as fashion decrees, but it's feminity with the flair, individuality and wacky touches that mark designs for the lively crowd.

This means that, along with princess dresses, shapely skirts, high-waisted coats, airy-jacketed suits and cascades of ruffles which are feminine news, young set wardrobes boast ideas with a difference that bid fair to become fashion trendsetters.

One "new" silouette looming up on spring's horizon has always been a young set classic — the suit with brief jacket, full whirl of skirt. Young set leads the way to spreading acceptance of the silhouette and gives it freshness by wearing the skirt without the billowing bouffant petticoats that used to be the rule.



With a slim petti underneath, the skirt falls in soft folds, eddies out prettily when the wearer walks.

Another young newsmaker is a fabric, homespun. It's more than a fashion, it's a rage. Use of this interesting fabric ranges from the classic shirtdress with hemp belt to princess flares and sashed Empire dresses. Homespun designs can be feminine with bell sleeves, feminine and wacky with fringe, bold and beautiful with plaids, stripes, blocks of dashing, clashing colors.

Suits, suit-separates and costumes to wear into summer win approval. Fresh-looking toppings in suits and separates are short capes, scarves and triangular stoles. Counterpoint to the brief jacket shows up in longer styles outlined in fringe.

Dresses take a choice of jackets or coats as accompaniments. New approach to the costume coat is the redingote, which sometimes departs from reefer styling to add a hip-hugging half belt.

Fashions that hug the hip get a strong endorsement from young fashionables, starting with St. Tro or hipster pants and continuing in skirts and long-line tops. Some views of the latter are seen in T-shirts continuing to the knee, mannish sweatshirts and outsize blousons that drawstring in at thigh level.

Cool view of spring dressing presents an easy-care dress with feminine tucked bodice, cap sleeves and pleated skirt. Two buttons accent the flattering yoke. It's fashioned in a blend of Eastman Kodel polyester and rayon. From Genevieve Originals.

Young clothes often point up femininity by jauntily adapting some he-man touches. Homespun and other rugged fabrics such as denim are examples of this. Cowboy scarves for a Western look show up in separates for active sportswear.

Blue, green, orange and yellow are some favorite colors, while demure and ladylike wheats and grays make news.

OLYMPIC PLANS

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japanese youth organizations plan to invite young people from abroad to an international camp during the 1964 Olympic games here. Three thousand youths between 18 and 25 will be invited from participating countries.

Guide to Choosing Slacks for Spring

Slacks for spring are expressly designed to fit every man "to a T." For the tall, slender man there are the new slim slims, usually the bellless "hugger" type. For the heavier man, single pleat, belt loop types will predominate.

Blue tones are gaining in popularity, although the olives and grays are still the top choices. Solid tones will be far in the lead, and patterns will be muted.

Toes Follow New Lines

Shoes for every occasion are interpreted in dozens of new looks, shapes and leather colors for spring. Women have been freed from the 'single toe look'.

The rounded crescent to silhouette is available for around-the-clock wear in pumps, sandals, ties and sandals, and in smooth, suede, grained and patent leathers.

The new square toe look is afoot in tailored spectators in smooth or grained leathers, often teamed with suede for a two-tone two-texture shoe. Casual flats in brushed or colored patent leather and slip-ons set on an inch-high stacked walking heel have the squared-off toe.

For the now-classic pointed toe, there are hundreds of styles, colors and leathers available in dress and sports shoes.

In tailored shoes the choice includes strapped pumps, moccasins, flats, low tie pumps, cut-out pumps and even sandals with closed toes and open back. Grained leather, often suede trimmed or smooth trimmed with patent leather is popular in classic shoes.

For late day and dress the multi-colored pump leads the parade. Close behind come little heel variations of the dancing pump in polished and waxy leathers and in patent.

Color choices range all the way from white and bone to brights and from green and coral. Patent leather colors go from pastels all the way out to an occasional fire engine red.

The deeper neutrals, such as malt and ochre are in widespread demand, while pastels, including apricot and aqua, are stronger than last year. The two-tone shoe gains popularity.

Hats Light And Bright For Spring

Topping off the spring fashion picture for 1962 is a bright and light collection of felt hats that blend warm weather comfort with flattering good looks.

The new spring fashion-weight felts combine soft, crushable, butter-like textures with a built-in sturdiness that can resist the rigors of travel as well as the hazards of sudden spring showers.

Misty grays and blues share the color preferences with hazy browns, muted olives and mixtures that combine three and four colors to produce heathery effects.

The new summer straws are notable for a return to the lighter natural colors. This year high fashion is practically synonymous with high shades such as those found in the bleached sennets and panamas is well as some of the linen-like hoes of the natural milans, britans and palm braids. The coconut braids, long a favorite with natural shoulder clothing fans as well as others, now turn up in lighter weights and softer constructions.

Sports straws for the coming season range from relatively conservative numbers with bright batik and woven bands to wild "way out" fun hats.

Knits Gaining Greater Status

With every season, knits gain greater fashion status, and this spring is no exception. The need for travel convenience, the liking for comfort and ease of care and the current trend to fluid and feminine lines give rise to a greater-than-ever-demand for knits of all kinds — wool, cotton, wonder fibres, blends.

Knit fashions are here to meet the demands, beautifully. There are one- and two-piece knits, knit dresses with their own jackets and even knit coats, usually with a fleece-knit flecce backing.

In one of the most important categories, sweaters and other knitted tops, spring reveals an unusually diversified selection. What with air conditioning and travel, sweaters go right through the summer nowadays, and casual tops to wear with pants and skirts are always in season.

Some new spring sweaters show boat necklines, off-neckline cobbles, turtlenecks. A drawstring effect is seen in many pullovers.

Ties bands that end in scarves or ties and other soft dressmaky details add a feminine touch to other sweaters.

Cardigans are scheduled to play an important spring and summer role as air-conditioning or cool-evening cover-ups.

Sweater textures range from the dressy, silky types to bulkies for casual wear. New textures, providing more surface interest, have been developed for some usually-smooth miracle yarns. Patterns, particularly stripes and checks, add a refreshing note.

Long, lanky and striped is the trend in sports toppings.

SCALLOPING SKIRTS

New shapes, new treatments give suit skirts more character and versatility. Skirts with scalloped hemlines are quietly moving into the fashion picture this spring. Resolutely feminine, they make a classic straight skirt seem both new and beguilingly different.

New Style Proposals Are Pretty Poetic

Romance goes to the heart of the wardrobe this season, as fashion's spring fancy gently turns to thoughts of loveliness. The new '62 styles propose everything pretty, poetic, everything feminine and charming to wear.

Silhouettes, fabrics, colors pay compliments to the feminine form and feminine allure. Virtually all silhouettes — and there is a wide variety to please every individualist — take account of the fact that girls have curves.

Fabrics are airy and frothy, sheer and supple or — as in the case of the favorite twills and silk-and-worsteds — crisp and ladylike. Colors, clear and cool or delicately misted, add to the aura of femininity, while the great importance of white offers still more evidence that it's a pretty lady's spring.

Taking up the feminine theme, many fashions define the bosom, lift the waistline and set skirts in easy motion. Among the figure-conscious silhouettes are the princess line in all its variations, the body-skimming sheath, and spring versions of the A-line and the flare. Still another outstanding group includes fashions that accent, almost clutch, the natural waistline. Wide, wide belts are often seen here.

Although the majority of fashions trend to lifted or natural waistlines, the long-line look is by no means neglected. It's particularly noteworthy in suits that reflect the riding-jacket influence and in dresses with narrow seven-eighths skirts.

Skirts-in-motion include almost every type of fullness — pleats, flares, bias cuts, gathers. Frequently seen is the skirt with slim back and forward-moving fullness provided by gentle gathering.

Enhancing the feminine and romantic ideas of fashion, many pretty embellishments appear — fluttering ruffles, delicate laces and fringe, dainty lingerie trims — entirely lovely and wearable.

With the pronounced return of everything in fashion that helps a woman to be her prettiest self, classics share in the softening influence. Shirtwaists look less tailored, and many shows ruffles. Especially pretty are shirtwaists with long, full and feminine sleeves.

Cedar Chest Fits Anywhere in Home

A telephone bench, a foot-of-the-bed seat, a window seat or a coffee table — all of these functional, decorative accents represent some of the extra uses to which cedar-lined storage units can be put.

Today's modern cedar chest is a versatile piece of furniture that finds placement in almost any room of the home. If the homemaker's decorative scheme runs along traditional, French provincial, contemporary, Colonial or early American lines, she'll find a cedar chest to match her mood.

Or, if she prefers to select her furniture by woods, walnut, mahogany, maple, oak, pine, fruitwood or cherry are here.

The three-quarter inch red cedar lining of the storage area awards mothproof protection.

Spring Styles Softly Molded

Some fashions for spring have an unfitted almost architectural look while others are definitely figure revealing. Whichever the preference in silhouettes, there's an abundance of well styled foundation garments, to contact the curves underneath.

There are numerous "little nothing" brassieres, soft and sheer with cups that minimize the bosom as so many bias cuts, knits and clinging gowns for evening require. On the other hand, there are several excellent, new molded brassieres, many of them contoured to round out the bustline that's a between - size.

There are girdles that rise high, to effect a slim midriff for dresses and suits that fit close to the figure. And there are waistline styles concentrating on hip control, for dresses that skim the waist but hug the hipline and thighs.

There are corselets that slip on like a second skin, looking almost too pretty to be as controlling as they actually are. And there are numerous panty corselets, varying in coverage from the brief to the long, legsy type.

Backlessness remains an important design element in all types of foundations, especially in those that are strapless. New shapings have been devised in elastic bands to mold the U or V back to the body.

Other designed - for - comfort ideas include the waistband separate from the body of a girdle in back and the diaphragm section of a corselet separated from its cups — each construction intended to enable the foundation to move more readily with the figure.

Swing to Lighter Weights Is Seen in Topcoats for Spring

Spring topcoats and raincoats are marked by the development of trending trends rather than by the introduction of new styles. For instance, the popularity of the split-raglan shoulder construction in many types of garments has reached unprecedented heights of sophistication.

More specifically, in topcoats the trend to lighter fabrics has really taken hold for the vernal season. To sleek sophisticated city-bred shades skins add new featherweight tweeds, many of which have been fortified with man-made fabrics for durability and wrinkle-resistance.

Traditionalists will appreciate natural shouldered revivals of the herd-brief covert cloths. These come in the classic natural tans as well as in tans seasoned with a tint of olive. The most popular model in the classification is the set-in sleeve, fly - front, slightly fitted raglan shoulder with its characteristic flare.

Spring raincoats sway from very short imaginatively detailed models inspired by European styles to the longer (but still short in relation to old style).

Look for new dressy double-breasted versions, sleek fly-fronted town coats and a resurgence of medium shade iridescents to supplement the darks and the natural, sand, putty and tan tones.

Fellows who go for the sporty touch will find a good assortment of plaids, checks and madras - like effects. Many are made in washwear constructions and many are equipped with "locks" that permit the addition of zip-in liners for chilly weather. The new coats will keep you dry, comfortable and well-dressed!

RUFFLES AND FRILLS GRACE NEW STYLES

Ruffles and lace, ribbons and bows, fringe and other appealing feminine fripperies are graceful spring fashion notes.

These embellishments are not only pretty, they're used with imagination. Ruffles and their relatives might show up almost anywhere — trimming necklines, hemlines, sleeves and tunics; cascading down the front closing of a dress or over blouse; rippling from shoulder to hem; tiered to form a skirt.

Watercolor print with silk look appears in a dress with cowl neckline, wide leather belt, box-pleated skirt. In Eastman Estron acetate.

Teens Set New Pace

Teens, notably "setters the leader", this spring go new leather footwear fashions sweep high school and college campuses, leaving tennis shoes and sneakers behind in the gym lockers.

There's an exciting, wide selection of new silhouettes in loafers and booties whose high vamps and long ties resemble bowling shoes.

Supple smooth leathers shaggy brushed leather and gleaming colored patents set new shoe fashions. The two-tone shoe is one of the most popular "shoe looks," — especially new in avocados with contrasting inserts, tricky tongue detailing.

Patents in gleaming black shimmering green, radiant red brighten the moccasin line-up. Colorwise, teens have the widest shoe-color range in years —including two wonderful new neutrals: mocha mist—lighter than cafe crema color, and white jade—soft white leather with a hint of green.

This year the popular boot is more of a boot shoe than a boot; the sides are still higher than a flat or pump, but never quite reach the ankle. Cuffs, when there are any, are rich accents in contrasting leathers, colors. Side laces, new and two eyelet ties and high collar slip-ons offer variations on the by-now-classic boot-look.

For her sad shoe, the coed has stepped into the bowling alley, come up with a flat, action in vivid colors, smooth or brushed, with a long line of lacing from toe to tongue. Sloped slimly in rough-finish leather, bill'yard and adaptable for all-day wear.

For dances, dates or days in town, this setting's cool choice as dress shoes of soft polished leathers, nappy suedes, or bright patents, rising on stacked, curved or one-inch "jet" heels. Pumps-attached heels are new on casual and sport shoes.

Other teen shoe-news: Forbidden on vamp or sides, as occasional open back, for a soft feminine, airy look. Straps — single, double and T-straps.

FOR BOWLING

Bowling fashions emphasize comfort and fashion. Even "team-type" bowling shirts have more fashion flair — more colors, more details. More and more designers are creating fashions especially for bowling as it gains popularity.

After five, come alive!

Complete wardrobe of shoes to go around spring shows, left to right: grained leather spectator for walking, tapered bow beck; for afternoon in town, patent leather, vamp cutout, self bow; for casual wear, brushed-leather flat, tapered toe; for after-dive, finger-toe pump, two tones of smooth leather.

Shoes Accent New Look

Leather shoes are in step with men's fashions this spring.

Natural shoulder suits most popular with Canadian men and style companion is the unclutterred look and light-weight leathers of newly-designed dress slip-ons, moccasins and bluchers.

Substantial British-influenced suits and sports coats take more robust - looking brogues. For casual wear, the country suit or bold plaid jacket stands on a fashion base of brushed leather slip-on or grained leather chukka.

SLIP-ON POPULAR

The slip-on, long popular with the comfort - loving males this year goes to the head of the footwear fashion column. In smooth and grained leathers, the slip-on is available for business or dress shoes. Most often seen as a moccasin, it also comes in plain toed styles. As a dress shoe, the slip-on sometimes features a wingtip or medallion detailing on the toe.

Even in-lie shoes —two and three-eyelet bluchers and two-eyelet bal oxfords — the leather moccasin is most popular. The low-set moccasin seam, whether executed as "hand-stitching" or fine inverted seam, strikes the simple note desired by most men this season.

For the one man in five who likes to stand in the forefront of fashion, the "more shoe" look is in step with the British and Italian styles. The smooth or grained leather brogue looks modernized fuller, in suburb or country the half-boot is favored leather is more in keeping with the plainer styles.

CASUAL SOFT SHOE

In casual footwear, the soft shoe reigns supreme. For this, the suburbanite wears either a brushed leather slip-on or a slipper-soft glove leather tie shoe. Either is easy to care for and gives you the same kind of support and quiet flexing action for which the Indian moccasin is justly famous.

The understated look of this season's men's shoes is reflected in the muted leather colors of dress and casual footwear. Burnished olive and greened brown are the major departures from traditional black and brown ranges in smooth and grained leather for dress shoes.

THE SCORE

Spring ties will feature more shades of blue to compliment the popular new blue suits. Shades range from deep navy to soft copen hues and are used in both ground-work and as decoration.

Softly styled in light tan smooth and pebble and comfortable afoot) is this pair of moccasin ties for casual wear. Leather Industries photo.

Presidential preference finds expression in this two-button suit model in dark, burnished olive green tropical fabric of 55 per cent "Dacron" polyester fibre blended with 45 per cent wool. By Andrew Pallack.

Jewelry Sways Into Season

Dangling jewelry sways in for spring. Long gold chains beaded with color or shoulder off a tassel or pendant on the end are setting the pace in spring jewelery. Echoing the long chains are a variety of dangling earrings.

The old-fashioned locket is making a comeback on long ornamental chains, for a charmingly quaint look.

Bold, elegant pins that lean towards the tailored side wander femininely all over the spring silhouette. Wherever placed, they're always in style.

Large gold, or sometimes silver, bracelets do hand-in-hand with the comeback trend. Tailored bar pins also take a spring stand, in gold or fancifully improvised in pale pastels.

Beads, beads, beads are here, combined with gold or standing alone, in every length from neck-gracing to rib-tickling.

Fabrics Are Varied

Four leading members of fashion's family of fabrics arrive in the new spring styles. They are: surface - textured; smooth; lacy, sheer.

Sheer might be said to be the parrent of all the others, for fabrics generally are developed to whisperweights, thin and airy. However, there are also sheer and supple fabrics in a class by themselves —chiffons, crepes from wool to silk, and chiffon-weight wools. Knits are noted especially for suppleness.

All of these drape and shape to the feminine lines of new fashions.

Surface - textured group ranges from nubby wools and wool looks, to ribbed types — twills, ottomans — and many kinds of textured silks. Mohair loops often add surface interest to woois.

Smooth types find their strongest representative in crisp silk-and-worsted blends.

Growing popularity of these blends is helped along by widened color choice. Now silk and worsted is seen everywhere, not only in black but in attractive navys, greys and beiges as well as some non-neutrals.

Lacy fabrics are femininity itself — and are led, of course by lace itself. Bubbly cotton matelasse and open - weave wools belong in this group.

Ease - of - care reigns everywhere, in natural and man-made fibres, with every color and effect attaining added distinction.

Important Minks Go Around Calendar

Times and customs change, and so do furs. Nowadays, mink isn't limited to frigid weather — women wear "small" of "little" mink fashions around the calendar.

Air conditioning is one important reason for the change. Lighter coats, lighter weights and softer minks in more summer-like proportions — cardigans, stoles, capelettes and boleros — help to make furs appropriate for 90-degree weather. New mink fashions for '62 include many designed expressly for spring and summer wear. Jackets are short, often suggesting a casual sweater or the Chanel look.

Stoles always a favorite, are given an April-to-September look with- built-in standaway collars. Boleros are brief, ending well above the waist, with wide, deep V-necks for an airy open-throat effect, to show off summer jewelry and sunians.

Small fur fashions in mink are seen in a wide range of natural Emba colors from snow white to beige and blues, grays, violets, dark gunmetal gray. There is a color to compliment any complexion, hair hue or taste.

EXPANDING TABLES

Beautiful space savers for the dining area are round tables which show not only gains in popularity but also more novel and attractive ways to expansion. One new table grows to accommodate extra guests with curving leaves that add on to the centre like petals on a flower. Result combines elegant decor, friendly hospitality.

Soft Slim and Demure Are Handbags in Spring

With the new soft feminine silhouette setting the tone for spring fashions, handbags follow suit in slim, demure styles and delicate leather colors and textures.

The widely varied shapes of leather handbags have one thing in common, — elegance. In smooth or grained leather, suede or patent, this season's bags are rounder in line, softer in hand and more petite to the eye.

The new lady-like look is underlined in curves and circular lines, drawn by rounded bases and semi-circular cutout handles. Suit bags in antiqued leather or gleaming black patent leather frequently exhibit this fashion curve.

In other handbag shapes such as the pouch or the envelope, flat lines or rectangular bases supply the sleek narrow look which goes equally well with the tailored costume.

Even career bags for the business woman have been trimmed down — at least in appearance, if not in capacity.

For casual or sportswear fashions, the demi-shoulder bag is a leader. Shorter overall, and swinging on a slightly shorter strap that brings it riding in under the arm, it is seen in deeply grained, brushed and smooth leathers.

Shapley Slips Are Spring Underlines

Slip shapes emphasize one and other lingerie touches.

Favorite form of underlining new fashions is the slip that defines the form. The bust-line is high and delineated; the midriff long and molded.

For flared or full skirts, there are slips that follow the same line, with ruffles or flounces. Bouncy bouffant petti's come in tiers and tiers of flounces.

However, newest look for full skirts is to let them fall in easy lines over a slender slip or petti.

FOR FEMININITY

Part of the return to femininity is the little girl look in coats—displayed by eyelet embroidered collars and cuffs an dother lingerie touches.

A more tailored turn in coat events shows the notched standaway collar taking a fashion bow, usually bandin-hand with set-in sleeves.

Moccasin-styled leather bluchers are favored by the junior executive. Tie shown here combines smooth and grained leather. Leather Industries.

For a crisp accent to spring's fluid lines, the toque appears in hand-woven straw in a deep caramel shade. An unusual touch is the band and flat tailored bow, of wooden beads on net. By Vincent-Jfarmik.

Accents Show Feminine Mood

Hats, shoes and all the accessories of spring join in the gentle movement toward femininity. Prettiness, gracefulness and variety to charm every woman and make her more charming are reflected in the important costume-completers.

Hats literally brim with loveliness. They display brims of every type from tiny to tremendous in finely fabrics, straws and strawcloths finely woven or elegantly textured. Flowers and veiling add to the enchantment, and some hats are entirely and beautifully composed of flowers.

Handbags are slim and demure, with delicate textures and colors. Curves, circular lines carry out the ladylike effect.

Hues for handbags range from the light look of neutrals such as bone, beige and caramel to gala carnival colors — reds and blues, for instance — often seen in patent leather.

TOEING THE LINE

Dainty detailing for a light-footed look and variety in shape are shoe contributions to a feminine spring. Toeing the shoe fashion line are squares, crescents, classic points, cut-outs, straps, slim soles, contrasting soles, contrasting hues give airiness.

Gloves are pretty, with pearl trims, cutouts, ribbing and other detail. Lengths from aboritie to shove elbow complement the diversity of fashions.

Hair styles swirl forward toward the face, are somewhat less bouffant for more daintiness. Somewhat shorter for fashion as well as comfort is another trend in coiffures.

JEWELRY GRACES SPRING

Jewelry's made to sway gracefully — long gold chains with tassels and pendants, or dangling earrings, for instance. Revival of lockets adds a bit of quaintness. Pins are capricious — though bold, they're meant for playful placement, accenting pockets and hemlines for example, as well as adorning the shoulder or neckline of a costume.

Return of the waistline calls for more belts — narrow to wide, firm and contoured to crushed and soft.

Scarves spark many a neckline, as the collarless look continues very much in evidence for the new season.

Little jackets flutter in, showing flyaway backs or swirling cape shapes. Others have princess lines, more fit. For prettiness, there's the soft touch of ruffles at sleeves and necklines. Fabrics, too, are soft, light and airy.

PAY SHARE IN OIL

BAGHDAD, 6raq (Reuters)— The Iraq Petroleum Company and its associates, the Basrah and Mosul Petroleum Companies, have paid the Iraq government £23,500,000 ($65,800,000) in full settlement of the government's half share of oil revenue for the first quarter of 1962.

Color Spotlighted In Men's Sportwear

Color sets the pace in sportwear for spring 1962. Blue, for instance, comes on strong in navy blazers. Combinations of blue and white also show up frequently in such varied items as madras sport jackets, walk shorts and, of course, in a combination of seersuckers and cords. Frontier versions of last year's hot colors introduce those new vibrant shades modified by the addition of grays and whites in the blends.

Other muted pale shades include hints of the beige and sage families. The soft familiar camel shades make a strong comeback in jackets, sweaters and car coats. With the increasing popularity of boating, the Nautical Look is a natural for Sunday sailors. It takes its style cue from actual sailing gear, and embodies the features needed by crewmen.

In tailored sportswear the nautical theme shows to good advantage in double-breasted blue blazers and washwear white slacks that can be worn without cleaning problems.

Laminated jackets created by the bonding of polyurethane foam backings to various shell fabrics, look to repeat their popularity of last fall. Ideally suited for spring wear, the laminates offer maximum warmth with a minimum of weight. Worn on chilly mornings and evenings, they present little encumbrances during the warm hours of the day.

For summer there are shirt-jackets and shorty shirts, both meant to be worn out-of-doors. Many of these are styled with Continental collars which are experiencing a well-deserved resurgence of popularity.

Polyester and worsted blends of tropical weight lead the field in sport jackets.

Wallpaper Trends To Patterns

The big wallpaper news today focuses on pattern. The trend is toward designs that relate to a particular furniture style, whether it is rustic provincial, such as early American and French provincial; the more formal styles of America, England and Europe; or contemporary furniture.

Many new wallpaper patterns copy old documentary wallpapers and fabric, while others adapt old designs, giving them a contemporary feeling.

For example, many country-type patterns are particularly compatible with provincial furniture—copies or adaptations of early American country-spaced geometric designs, stylized florals of 18th century East Indian crewel embroideries and copies or adaptations of old French provincial printed cottons.

To emphasize formal 18th and classic early 19th century styles, there are handsome floral, bird and foliage designs; classic medallion patterns and handsome broad stripes, as well as copies and adaptations of classic Scenic murals.

Because versatility is the keynote of contemporary furniture, and it is often combined with period styles, many contemporary patterns with an Oriental influence are particularly appropriate.

Smart scheme for spring is the jaunty hip-hitting topper to go over a diversity of fashions. This one, in wool, is lightweight and easy-wearing, with wide bracelet-length sleeves, neat notched collar and pastel coloring. Designed by A. Davis & Son.

Pattern Interest Prominent In New Shirt Styles for Spring

It now appears that the average man has lost his fear of fancy dress shirts and as a result there will be many more interesting and good looking spring outfits to be seen.

Most popular of the colored shirts are the blues followed by grays, off-white, tans and soft olive tones. Pink, the style favorite of several years ago, returns in deeper versions than the old pastels. And the striped fabrics include both narrow and broad types and these often used together.

Collar styles show up in the very popular modified spreads, snap-tabs, button-downs, short points and both square and rounded pinned models.

The fabrics include end-and-end madrass, broadcloths, oxfords, featherweight batistes and open weave leno weaves. Look for many more half-sleeves styles for warm weather.

Sport shirts, in many instances, assume the nautical note that keys so much of this season's sportswear. Both button-up and popovey styles are made with big roomy pockets and other details culled from actual sailing garments.

A very interesting new note in casual shirts is the "work shirt" influence. Among the more obvious details of the "work shirt" styles are big contrasting stitches.

Making Men Look Taller

Contributing most importantly to this effect are the fashion-favored natural shoulder suit models with narrow, cut lapels, and the trim, straight cut of trousers and slacks. The "tall look" is accentuated by stripes and vertical weaves in suitings, as well as by the tall, tapered crowns of the new spring hats.

Color-wise, the fashion picture takes on a distinctly blue hue in suits, shirts, ties and all manner of sportswear. Shades range from black-blue through navy to blue-grays.

Leather Trends To Supple, Soft Appeal

Leather makes fashion news this spring — in the flutter of flared skirts, the swing of short jackets and the drape of fluid dresses.

Soft and supple leather shapes itself to the figure to achieve the feminine look prized this season. Grained, smooth and suede leather apparel is designed for after-the-clock wear in city or suburb.

Adding to the ultra-feminine look are prominently stitched seams, tucks and darts, large patch pockets and oversized self-leather buttons. Youthful lines are set off by collarless, narrow shoulder cowls that flare as they drop. Princess collars and high lapels are also seen.

For the costume look that makes a day in town a fashion occasion, leading stylists have designed smooth leather boleros, suede leather stoles and grained-leather shrugs — all to accent and enhance the wonderly look of fuller skirts and shapely dresses.

Leather colors range from the tan to brown family that co-ordinates with the widest range of spring fashions to the bright greens, reds, blues and yellows that make their own mark on the sunny landscape.

In suburbia, informal fashions have gone feminine, too. Jackets are broader, extending out from wide shoulders. Both suede and smooth leather jackets are favored for a trip to the supermarket or a conference at school. Often leather is teamed with other soft fabrics and knits.

Flyers Oust Stampeders

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Flyers, brushed Calgary Stampeders from the Western Hockey League playoffs Wednesday night with a lop-sided 9-2 victory before 5,560 fans.

The win gave the Flyers a 4-1 decision in their best-of-seven Northern Division final and moved them into the league championship series.

Edmonton will meet either Spokane Comets or Portland Buckaroos in a best-of-seven series for the league title.

Edmonton scorers were Doug Messier, with two, Bill McNeill, Don Fuhr, Ed Joyal, Ken Walsh, Len Lunde, Chuck Holmes and Howie Young. Lou Jankowski and Doug Barkley replied for Calgary.

Int. League Expands to 8 Clubs

DETROIT (AP)—The International Hockey League will expand to eight teams by granting a franchise next season to Port Huron, Mich., it was reported Wednesday night.

Bob Reynolds, sports director of radio station WJR, said in his broadcast that Frank Gallagher, current IHL commissioner, would become general manager of the Port Huron franchise.

The new franchise would have a working agreement with Detroit Red Wings of the National League.

Currently in the IHL are Muskegon, Mich., which won the league and playoff championship this season, Omaha, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Toledo, Ohio.

Win Junior Hoop Crown

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hamilton CYO took the Canadian junior men's basketball championship back to the East for the fourth straight year here Wednesday night when they defeated Vancouver YMCA 65-51.

The victory gave CYO the best-of-five series in straight games.

Roy coach Paul Traynor, it was his second Canadian title in two years. He coached the 1959 champions, when they defeated the same team in an identical series in Hamilton.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — The best-kept secret at Old Woodbine Park Wednesday night concerned Johnny Dale, a seven-year-old gelded roan owned by John R. Ball of Baltimore. Johnny Dale, as practically no one knows, won more races in 1961 than any standardbred on the continent, an astonishing total of 32 in 41 starts.

Johnny's problem was that owner Ball kept hidden in the hinterland, saving at one-day fall fairs. This tended to keep down his average return a win down to some $80.

The Woodbine crowd of 4,412 was skeptical of Record and let him get away at odds of 2 to 1 for a $6.80 return. Johnny led from wire to wire.

The night's best payoff came with the last race when 21-to-1 shot Lord Dean returned $44.30 to win and $16.60 to place.

Was Leaside Sandlotter

Canuck Stars With Tribe

BOSTON (CP) — Eleven baseball-starved baseball scouts had enough to give Ron Taylor a victory in his major league pitching debut.

But the 24 - year - old righthander whom Cleveland Indians found playing sandlot ball in the Toronto suburb of Leaside in 1955 showed enough Wednesday to indicate he'll be on the Tribe's roster for a while.

Taylor shut his American League game in the 12th inning when outfielder Carroll Hardy broke it up with a grand-slam homer, his first in three seasons with the Red Sox, to nail down a 4-0 victory for Bill Monbouquette.

HITS TWO KINDS

In addition, the University of Toronto engineering graduate supplied two of the four hits Cleveland was able to muster off Monbouquette.

Mel McGaha, who managed Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League two years ago, only got around to promoting Taylor from Cleveland's Triple-A farm in Seattle of the Pacific Coast league last Friday. The youngster caught the Indians in spring training.

From Leaside came a few clues to the spectacular performance by a pitcher whose minor league won-lost record was 61-56, including an 8-9 record for Salt Lake City last season.

GRADUATE

Ron's father, Wes Taylor, a former sandlotter himself, said his son couldn't make spring training since 1956 because of his studies. He graduated in his electrical engineering course a year ago.

"It's too bad he couldn't have won the game," said the elder Taylor. "But I guess it at least shows he can pitch in the majors."

"You could see even when he was a bantam that Ron would make the majors," said Ron Bennett, who coached him at Leaside's Tebbutt Park. "He's a low-ball pitcher and has good control with it. He also had a pretty good curve and slider when he was here."

BOXER SPEAKS

CLEARFIELD, W. Va. (AP)—Bengt Hugo Sjoberg of Tumba, Hunsaker, 32, was able to speak Wednesday as he continued to show surprisingly slow improvement, Dr. E. L. Gage reported. The fighter, who suffered a brain injury Friday night in a fight with Joe Shelton of Cleveland, could "move a little upon command," the doctor said.

Top Golfers Open at Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—The annual $35,000 greater Greensboro golf tournament, which could well be tagged the Sam Snead benefit, was set to get under way today with about 120 players in the field.

The 72-hole chase for the $5,500 winner's share of the jackpot had a flat of top swingers on hand. They included Arnold Palmer, winner of the Masters tournament Monday, and Dow Finsterwald, beaten by Palmer in the Masters playoff with South Africa's Gary Player.

Player passed up the Greensboro event and flew home to Johannesburg to see his family. Stan Leonard of Vancouver was in the tournament.

Man Could Stop Tiger Yanks Game

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Don't be surprised if a man walks in with a tri at Detroit Sunday and stops the American League baseball game between New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers.

State Police John P. Smeekens says he may do it if the Senate doesn't go along with his bill to outlaw that Michigan's Sunday blue laws need revising.

But only if the Tigers are way behind before the fifth inning. Smeekens is a backer of a bill that would close most retail stores on Sunday in Michigan's 29 most populous counties. The bill would also change the law which forbids sports on Sunday.

The unenforced 1846 law forbids people to "take part in any sport, game or play" Sunday. The law also provides that "no person shall be present at any game, sport, play or public diversion" on the Sabbath.

"We only seek the writ if the Senate kills the bill before Sunday," Smeekens, a Tiger fan, said Wednesday. "Then I'd bet they would be back reviving the bill on Monday. The Tigers would have to be behind. If Mickey Mantle and company started hitting home runs and it looked as if the Tiger couldn't catch up, I'd try to have the law enforced to stop it before the fifth inning. Then the game wouldn't count."

Grid Body Rejects Loyola Bid

KITCHENER (CP) — Loyola University of Montreal Wednesday was refused entry into the Ontario Intercollegiate Football Conference.

The refusal of Loyola's entry was one of the decisions made at the conference's annual meeting held this year at Royal Military College at Kingston.

The conference also decided to hold a playoff game between the leaders of the eastern and western divisions.

It will be the first playoff game for the six-team conference which is going into its sixth year.

The conference made no commitment regarding the Atlantic Bowl post-season game, scheduled for the Maritimes next November, saying it was unable to guarantee the conference champion would be able to compete.

The new football rulebook, containing a loosening of downfield blocking rules which is under preparation by the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association, was adopted.

Bill Mitchell of Ontario Agricultural College was named the new conference governor, replacing Carl Tebbie of University of Waterloo.

McMaster University of Hamilton, Waterloo, and OAC at Guelph make up the conference's western grouping, and Carleton University at Ottawa, Ottawa University and RMC comprise the eastern section.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Lethbridge Broders, fighting from the brink of elimination, capitalized on free throws Wednesday night to defeat London Frederick's 87-77 in the third game of the Canadian senior basketball championships.

London leads the best-of-five series 2-1 with the fourth game Friday night.

Red Wings Blank Irish

HAMILTON (CP) — Wayne Rivers scored two goals Wednesday night to pace Hamilton Red Wings to a 5-0 shutout over St. Michael's College Majors and a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Memorial Cup quarter-final.

The fourth game is in Toronto Friday night and the series winner will meet Quebec Citadels in the Eastern Canada final.

Rivers, 19, scored at 10:23 of the opening period and again eight minutes later.

John Goffon made it 3-0 at 1:13 of the second and defenceman Bob Wall's breakaway goal, with Paul Conlin hanging on to him, boosted it to 4-0 at the end of the second.

Lowell MacDonald rounded out the scoring just past the midway mark of the third period.

The Wings dominated play throughout as they fired 42 shots at Majors netminder Gary Smith. Buddy Blom kicked out 18 shots to register his first playoff shutout and his third of the 1961-62 season.

Barons Defeat Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland centre Hank Ciesla scored two third-period goals Wednesday night as the Barons defeated Springfield Indians, 4-2 and tied the best - of - seven American Hockey League semi-final 2-2.

Springfield opened the scoring as Kent Douglas tallied at 3:28 in the first period. John Ferguson tied it at 12:07 and Ron Attewell's goal at 15:12 gave Cleveland a 2-1 lead. Springfield's Ted Harris tied it again at 16:12.

At Cullen, 20-year-old amateur from Woodstock, subbed for Les Binkley, the Barons' injured regular goalie, and made 28 saves, Marcel Paille made 29 saves.

The series resumes Saturday night at Springfield.

Sugar Ray To Fight Downes

NEW YORK (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson just missed getting another world title fight as a present; for his soon-due 42nd birthday, his adviser disclosed Wednesday.

Instead, the former welterweight and five-time middleweight king will have to celebrate with a fifteen - by - 10-round bout with deThroned Terry Downes in London in late June.

If the cocky Cockney had retained his piece of the middleweight crown against Paul Pender last Saturday instead of losing it, Ray Robinson would have fought for the title.

George Gainford, Robinson's adviser, and Sam Burns, Downes's manager, confirmed Wednesday matchmaker Mickey Duff's Tuesday announcement that Robinson and the 25-year-old Downes have agreed in principle to the fight. Some money matters still have to be ironed out.

Students Digging Into Own Pockets for Trip to Peru

MONTREAL (CP)—Four students at Sir George Williams University here are digging into their own pockets for a working summer in Peru to get practical exercise in international understanding.

They will join 17 American students and 13 from South American countries in Lima where they will provide health, recreation and education programs for youth and a month of hard labor on construction of a community building.

The four student volunteers are Bill Douglas, 21, of Woodstock, Ont.; Phil Macdonald, 21, of Fergus, Ont., Fred McGregor, 20, of Peterborough, Ont. and Gordon Meyers, 21, of Calgary.

The project is sponsored by the YMCA, and the Lima building on which they will work is one of 46 made possible by a world - wide $16,000,000 capital fund-raising campaign of the Y.

COSTS $1,000 EACH

"We heard of the Lima project when Stanley Sousa, YMCA World Service Secretary in Bolivia, visited Sir George Williams University a few weeks ago," said Meyers. "Since then we have been in touch with YMCA authorities in New York, Montreal and Montreal. All of us have been accepted for the project if we can raise the necessary $1,000 apiece for transportation."

Douglas said each of the four has about $300, "but somehow we have to find another $700 apiece and we have written to service clubs, YMCAs and the local papers in our home towns and hope they will help."

All four are arts students and YMCA secretaries-in-training at the university.

Lima will be the third person-to-person student work - camp project undertaken by YMCAs under the association's Building for Brotherhood effort. Others are in Liberia and Turkey.

Peruvian YMCA leaders suggest that the restless South American continent needs to be understood by Canadian and American leaders of tomorrow while this project is aimed at helping foster such understanding.

Fourth game of the series will be played here in Belleville on Saturday, April 21.

Soggy Road Stirs Rally Leaders

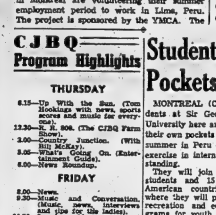
By FRED CHAFE

REGINA (CP) — A single stretch of soggy prairie road, Wednesday carried on the leader, in the 4,000-mile Canadian auto rally.

Drifted snow and a soft road surface in the Brandon district sent Peter Ryan and Mike Kerry back an estimated 28 points and may have cost them first place in the week-long Toronto-to-Vancouver event.

Ryan, of Mont Tremblant, Que., and Kerry of Toronto arrived here Wednesday night and reported that the single bad spot provided the only trouble in an otherwise uneventful drive from Winnipeg.

"It was a 150 yard, long and we practically had to carry it through area on the way," Kerry said.



Kerry said they lost 25 minutes on the section and were able to gain back only seven. Their little Austin-Cooper began Wednesday's trip with only nine penalty points.

Point standings, however, remain unofficial pending compilation of results by electronic computer.

Also in trouble, but for a different reason, was the car that began the day's trip in second place. Stuart Jarman of Rochester, Mich., and Don Hamby of Oshawa missed a route control and added at least 40 points to the 13 with which they began the day.

Labor Declares War on Corrupt Red-Led Unions

By ROBERT RICE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Organized labor Wednesday declared war against outcast unions that are corrupt, Communist or company-dominated.

By an overwhelming vote, more than 1,100 delegates at the policy conference of the Canadian Labor Congress rejected attempts to label the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) a pirate union.

They approved an omnibus resolution that:

1. Maintained an "open-door policy" toward all unions outside CLC ranks that are prepared to accept the CLC constitution, principles and policies.

2. Commended the big 82,000-member Steelworkers union, without specifically mentioning it, for its campaign to "liberate" workers in Sudbury and Port Colborne in Ontario and Thompson, Man., from the left-led International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.).

3. Pledged CLC aid to workers belonging to outcast unions to help them get back in the free trade union movement.

UNIFIES MOTIONS

The resolution was a watered-down version of nine other motions submitted by individual unions locals—most of them condemning inter-union raids as a threat to labor unity.

The convention also made a first step toward a new method of dealing with jurisdictional disputes between rival unions. It endorsed a resolution instructing the executive council to make a "comprehensive study of the problem of jurisdictional disputes and their solution by arbitration and other methods."

The council was told to consider establishing new machinery to resolve quarrels between unions over their jurisdictions.

Convention approval of the two resolutions represented a defeat for Red-dominated locals that contended labor unity is threatened by attacks on unions outside the free trade union of labor, such as the Mine-Mill union.

16-Year Old Girl Inmate Of Bawdy House

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A 16-year-old girl was sent to reformatory Wednesday for being an inmate of a common bawdy house.

The girl, Anne Macfarland, pleaded guilty in Stamford court to the charge, laid after police raided a nearby motel April 2.

Before sentence was passed, her mother, Mrs. Hiscocks of Toronto, asked Magistrate John Stone L. Roberts to "put her away until she's 21."

"This has been going on for some time," said Mrs. Hiscocks, "and my girl also requested that she be sent to reformatory.

"I'm sentencing her to four months indeterminate in reformatory," Magistrate Roberts said in "trying to do nothing more could have been done for this girl being today."

The girl, who said she lived at the motel, was the ninth person to be sentenced as a result of the raid.

Last week 17-year-old Jo-Anne Little was sentenced to four months indeterminate for keeping a common bawdy house.

Thomas Has Plan to Put Life Back Into Oscar

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Just about everyone is agreed: Oscar needs a new act.

The question is, will he get it?

The answer is discouraging. Probably not.

None but the most simple-minded movie fan—and there aren't many around say more would claim that Monday night's Oscar telecast was a good show.

Bob Hope tried valiantly to keep it rolling. But even a master quipster can't breathe life into an over-burdened, poorly-conceived, downright dull show.

The telecast was 30 minutes old before the first award was handed out. And then the timing had lagged so far behind that film clips of the nominated pictures had to be eliminated.

Between the opening fanfare and the final flurry of major awards was a procession of awards that few outside the geographical bounds of Hollywood cared about.

Okay, Thomas, you're always knocking Oscar—why don't you be constructive?

I'll try. Here is the Thomas recovery act for putting life back into Oscar:

1. The two-week telecast should run one hour only. Most of the minor awards can be handed out in front of the auditorium audience before the telecast starts. The winners would be quickly announced at the start of the show.

2. The number of awards can be whittled down. Many categories have become outdated.

3. Top names must be coerced into appearing.

4. Something should be done about the best-song category. With virtually no original musicals being made, nominees are largely title tunes, most of them dreadful.

5. Bob Hope should be retained as permanent emcee. Nobody can do it better. But he should be relieved of the impossible task of trying to keep an interminable show alive.

6. Wearing of tails by males should be forbidden.

Britain Ready to Accept ECM Political Obligations

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain has reassured the six Common Market countries that she accepts the political obligations as well as the economic benefits of partnership in Europe.

Edward Heath, the lord privy seal, told the community's foreign ministers in London this week that Britain now is ready to take part in a new political map of Europe.

Since negotiations began last year, the six governments have remained silent about the political implications of the European community formed by France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

This has led to criticism in London and on the Continent that the political issues were being deliberately hidden from the British people because of the delicate problem of national sovereignty.

READY TO TALK

Now the government apparently feels that the horse-trading in Brussels is sufficiently advanced that Britain can profitably join in the planning discussions.

Reports indicate that Heath remained vague about specific proposals for European co-operation but clarified Britain's views about the main problems that have dogged the community's political talks in Luxembourg.

He left no doubt of the close condition of British entry that constitutional ties and arrangements with the Commonwealth Commonwealth countries would be retained.

The European states have been unable to agree whether they want an integrated or international political structure or a looser confederation that preserves present national unities.

France's President de Gaulle is a confirmed supporter of a "Europe of the Fatherlands" —but Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg prefer a tighter structure and think a British voice in the planning will strengthen support them.

Heath's foreign ministers still could not agree at the last talks three weeks ago. The next round of political talks will April 30 but there is little prospect Britain will be ready to sign.

Heath's statement, brought Britain down on the side of those members of the community who wish to strengthen current political institutions and see them evolve into a structure above existing governments.

He also said Britain wants purely a closer integration of defence policies among members but stressed that NATO should remain supreme.

Harkness Denies Aspersions Against Clergy

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Harkness said Wednesday that H. W. Arthridge cost implication on the honesty of the clergy of the United British Columbia militia unit and Western Army Command.

The house leader of the CCF-New Democratic Party group, Stanley Knowles, refused to withdraw, said Mr. Harkness aspersions against a member of the clergy.

The exchange grew out of Mr. Herridge's contention Monday that two non-commissioned officers in the 11th Squadron of the 8th Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Engineers, were given a choice of leaving the NDP or the militia.

Correct, said Mr. Harkness. Army policy prohibits political activity by militia during duty or on army property.

The men were given a choice and left the NDP, he said.

He said he was another chaplain—identified earlier as Capt. T. B. Macdonald—been asked to refrain from political activity in the armory at Creston.

Then Mr. Herridge asked if the NDP candidate for the next federal election had substituted his name as the denominational committee.

Later, Mr. Herridge said he understood the substitution was based on false information. His question: Was Mr. Harkness untruthful?

Mr. Herridge was casting doubt on the integrity of army officers, said Mr. Harkness. He refused to withdraw.

Mr. Harkness then denied that he had cast aspersions against a member of the clergy.

Regular Role as Salesman Gives Financial Security

By CYNTHIA LOWAY

NEW YORK (AP) — James Daly says that one of the best things that ever happened to him was his selection — six years ago — as television spokesman for a cigarette company.

Daly, who will be seen in the title role of Give Us Barabbas, an NBC return of a biblical drama Sunday, finds his regular role as a salesman gives him financial security to pursue his professional career with freedom.

"It takes care of things so that I can afford to work in the theatre and to take chances," explained the actor. "You know, it is very hard to make a decent living in Broadway shows—so many of them close so soon."

Daly has been fortunate, in that his six years as a TV salesman have not stamped him with the identity of the company.

Daly believes, on the contrary, that his selling job has actually helped his acting career.

"The commercials are soft-sell," he said. "And I think people recognize me because of them."

They certainly haven't hurt. He has starred in two hit Broadway shows in recent seasons; is currently in a movie, and is working on a show for Broadway next year. In addition he has appeared often in TV dramas sponsored by the companies.

'Watch Hawk Rope' Warns Smythe

Don't Hang Yourselves

By BILL MacDOUGALL

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs lead the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final by virtue of a first-game victory over Chicago Black Hawks but there is a querulous, voice piping up from the Maple Leaf camp.

Stafford Smythe, president of the Leafs, said Wednesday: "Hawks, just give you that 'rope' for the first two games, then you hang yourself with it."

On the basis of Chicago's performance in the semi - final against Montreal Canadiens, when they lost the first two games and bounced back for four straight victories, Smythe has reason to wonder.

But he may be underestimating the strength of his own club.

As the Chicago club arrived in Toronto for the series' first two games Tuesday night and tonight, many observers were wondering whether the Hawks would play a "hitting" game—way the Leafs down with rough-tough bodychecking.

Tuesday night, when Toronto won 4-1, the Hawks, showed little inclination to such a method of attack. Chicago coach Rudy Pilous excused his club's loss after the game with a simple "we were tired."

LEAFS TRIED IT

But the Leafs, especially after the first period when they were down 1-0, were not averse to taking a body-swipe at a passing Hawk.

An example was a feud between Dick Duff and Chicago defenceman Pierre Pilote. The two several times exchanged slight bumps and hot verbal blasts until Duff slammed Pilote heavily into the boards. The small but tough Leaf left winger got a boarding penalty, but Pilote was not uncrushed. He took a big goose-egg on the forehead.

Toronto is still favored to take the series, but most observers figure a lot depends on the outcome of tonight's second game. The series moves to Chicago for the next third and fourth games and the Hawks are a lot tougher on home ice where they have the rousing, sometimes fanatic support of fans.

Toronto coach Punch Imlach is not unaware of the problems a visiting team can run into in Chicago, where the fans are reputed to prefer everything that's mowstlie on the ice in support of the Hawks.

MAKE REFEREE'S CALLS

"In Chicago the crowd calls the penalties, for the referee," he said after, he ran the Leafs through a light workout.

The Chicago camp was quiet Wednesday. Pilous visited his home in St. Catharines, and the club did not work out. The Hawks plastified a light skating session today.

Imlach plans no lineup changes. Utility forward Johnny MacMillan, pushed out of the lineup Tuesday night when right winger Eddie Shack returned after being benched for two games, spare defenceman Larry Hillman and left winger Bert Olmstead will be on the sidelines.

Olmstead, said Imlach, will dress for Sunday night's game even if he doesn't play, he's expected to be useful as a morale-booster. He's been out with a cracked shoulder bone. The veteran winger "will get gradual work," Imlach said.

The Hawks also plan to ice the same team tonight.

Whip Mets 11-4; Sets Record

Musial Draws Three, Cards Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

One game. Three hits. Another record.

That's how Stan Musial regreeted the 1962 baseball campaign Tuesday night, leading St. Louis Cardinals to an 11-4 opening - game triumph over New York Mets.

Musial, 41, whose National League batting average dipped to .330 last year, had three hits, drew a walk, drove in two runs and scored once for a perfect performance.

The run was the 1,859th of Musial's 21-year-career and tied the National League record established by Mel Ott of the old New York Giants. Musial, who holds or shares 13 major league records, has set or tied 36 National League marks.

Houston's new Colts won their second straight with a 3-0 victory over Chicago Cubs. Sandy Koufax pitched a no-hitter as Los Angeles Dodgers whipped Cincinnati Reds 6-2 and Billy O'Dell checked Milwaukee Braves on four hits for a 2-1 San Francisco Giants victory—Philadelphia Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates were rained out.

Musial's three hits and four by Julian Javier paced a 15-hit attack that backed Larry Jackson's route-going performance.

SCORES WINNING RUN

The Cards won the game with three runs in the third inning off Met starter Roger Craig. Musial scoring the clinching run on Minnie Minoso's single. Jackson was tagged for homers by Charlie Neal and Gil Hodges who moved past Joe Dimaggio into 11th place on the all-time list with the 362nd of his career.

Hal Smith's two-run single in the first inning off Cub ace Glen Hobbie proved the difference for the Colts, with Hal Woodeshick and Dick Farrell combining for the shutout. Farrell came on after Chicago's first two men reached base in the ninth inning and ended it by getting pinch-hitter Bob Will to zap into a doubleplay and striking out pinch-swinger Danny Murphy salvaging a walk to Sammy Taylor.

After leadoff hitter Eddie Kasko blooped a double to open the game, Koufax pitched lifeless ball until the ninth inning when Cincinnati scored twice. Jim Gilliam's two-run homer ignited a four-run Dodger uprising in the third inning that starter Carl Willey and Juan Pizarro's solo shot in the second accounted for the Giants' runs.

Willie Mays' two-run homer in the first inning off Milwaukee starter Carl Willey and Juan Pagan's solo shot in the second accounted for the Giants' runs.

O'Dell, who struck out nine men, never allowed more than one man on base in any inning and had the bases empty when Eddie Mathews tagged him for a homer in the fourth.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

He was stoutish, "fifty-ish" and wore the air of a successful business man. But when he smiled and spoke, the years rolled back—almost 30 of them—and I visualized a small, slim southpaw wearing the baseball uniform of "Picton."

The last time I saw Doris "Warpy" Phillips was "way back when" he was desperately trying to pull the Picton club out of an 8-3 deficit in the Guelph Stadium.

But the damage had been done. And the Southampton Fishermen ran off the diamond with the Ontario Baseball Association intermediate championship tucked away.

Now a successful garage and restaurant owner in Maxford, "Warpy" was a household name in baseball circles in the Bay of Quinte district at the turn of the thirties. He ranked with such greats as Lefty Painter, George Blaetich, Ken Church, Vern Bishop and others.

"Warpy" was here with the Maxford team which currently is engaged in intermediate playoffs with the Belleville Perpels. "Haven't missed a game," he said. "I travel with them—and see them at home."

But hockey was secondary as memory unfolded the curtain of time and tossed it back nearly three decades.

We played and replayed such famous duels as those with Lefty Goldsmith, the Southampton ace, and the sterling losers of Gananoque, Falconbridge, Sunderland, Yarker and other milestones in the Picton club's march to the championship.

"Warpy" remembered all of them—and the fine gang that supported him. The questions rolled off his tongue in swift sequence.

"Howe is Pete Cole?" "Where is Peewee McQuaid?" "What became of Earl Mighton?" Is Jesse Mason still in Picton? Pops Frederick?" Raynals Hudgin? He knew Morley Dunsford and Hallis Kerks and passed on.

We talked about the great series with Southampton when Goldsmith bested Picton 1-0 in Southampton only two Phillips' come back and blank the Fishermen and Goldsmith 3-0 in Picton. The third game was played in Guelph.

"They burned the snow off the Guelph diamond that day in mid-October," Warpy recalled. "We took the Picton band with us and I think it was the first time a baseball game was broadcast by Picton sponsors. The good people collected $100 and the game went on the air with you and Wes McKnight doing the casting from the snow-covered roof of the Guelph stadium."

"They were great people," Warpy said, "and of course I cannot forget my old home town of Bloomfield. Cliff Garow, Ernie Gilbbard and the rest of the grand Napanee fellows also gave us fine support after we hit the playdown trail."

"There was the great five-game series with Falconbridge with the clubs playing the rubber fifth game at Napanee when I defeated Adelarde LaFrance in a tight battle," said "Warpy."

And what can forget Church and Jock Yanover buying the fashion chicken with the 'colonel' taking it into the King Edward Hotel and asking for a reservation. Of course he wasn't the 'colonel' then," smiled Phillips.

"And coming home the Picton band met us at Bloomfield in a torchlight procession and we stopped outside the Royal Hotel and everyone made speeches. Ah, they were the days. Jack Yanover was a great manager and five the club fine leadership."

And so on into the night.

The diminutive left-hander left Picton after the championship series and moved to Maxford where he had a long and honorable mound career with the Black Knights of that town.

"But I will never forget Picton, the fine bunch of fellows I played with and the great people who supported us. I spent some of my finest baseball years there. Please give them my best regards."

Wins Eastern Canada Opener

Montreal Blanks Kaps

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP)—Montreal Olympics, backed by goaltending that bordered on the superb and an almost airtight defence, defeated Kapuskasing Kaps 3-0 Wednesday night in the opening game of the best-of-seven Eastern Canada Allan Cup final.

The second game is here Friday night.

The Montrealers weren't expected to give the Kapsters much trouble but an overflow partisan crowd was almost stunned by their performance.

Goalie Andre Binetta played a standout game in recording the shutout. Play was just about even throughout, with the Kaps holding a slight edge in the third period.

The Montreal defence was steady and seldom carried the puck as they stayed on the blue-line and gave Binette excellent support. Claude Richard scored the only goal of the first period. Connie Mandella scored a second-period goal and the Montrealers played kitty - bar - the-door in the third period to keep the Kapsters off the scoresheet.

Red Sox Hurler Tosses Four-Hitter

By BOB GREKEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

In a number of respects, Billy Monbouquette of Boston Red Sox resembles a young Early Wynn. Like Wynn, he's a hefty sophomore right-hander with an easy pitching motion.

He was mean enough Wednesday, throwing a spectacular 4-0, 12 - inning shutout over Cleveland Indians that Wynn—who has won more games than any other active American League — would have been proud to claim on his best day.

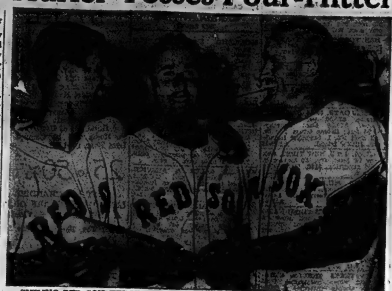
Monbo finished with a four-hitter and allowed only one the first nine innings. He struck out five men and walked three in one of the best performances of his five-year major league career.

Monbo's performance was almost matched by rookie Ron Taylor, a native of Toronto's suburban Leaside who scattered 10 hits and helped himself to two of the four the Tribe gathered off his pitching rival before the roof fell in on him in the 12th.

Camilo Pascual, who tied for the American League lead in shutouts with eight last season, had a four-hitter in Minnesota Twins' 8-0 blanking of Kansas City Athletics in a night game. Detroit Tigers and Washington Senators were rained out.

HARDY ADDS HOMER

Monbouquette appeared to be on his way to another no-support decision until Carroll Hardy blasted a none-out grand-slam homer in the bottom of the 12th, spoiling a fine performance by Taylor who went all the way in his first major league test.



Red Sox lost their season opener 4-0 to Cleveland.

The blast allowed Monbouquette to post the longest shutout since Hector (Skinny) Brown went 12 innings without allowing a run—for Baltimore Aug. 12, 1958.

Bob Allison, Dick Rollins and Earl Battey provided Pascual with all the hitting support he needed at Kansas City. Allison had a solo homer, Rollins a home run and a triple and Battey a two-run homer among the 10 hits off rookie starter John Wyatt and two other hurlers.

Pascual, favoring a darting curve ball, pitched himself out of a jam in the seventh inning and breezed the rest of the way. He struck out seven men and walked one.

Lose To Woodbridge 6-4

Macs Reach Semi-Finals

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Writer

Playing one of their worst games in some time, by far their poorest of the playoffs, the Belleville McFarlands dropped a 6-4 decision to the Woodbridge Dodgers here last night before a small crowd.

This was the final game of the OHA Junior "B" round-robin playdown. The loss to the previously-eliminated Dodgers left the Macs in second place in the three-team round-robin.

Belleville now meets Waterloo Siskins in the best-of-seven Ontario semi-finals. Because they lost last night's game the Macs dates are not yet to be announced.

The winner of this series will meet either St. Thomas or Chatham in the provincial finals.

Woodbridge, with nothing to lose or gain, led the Macs all the way. They were in front 3-1 after one heat, 4-2 at the end of the second and 6-3 at one time in the third.

The Macs were lucky they were not beaten by a bigger score. They could do nothing right. Bell's pedshirts had plenty of scoring opportunities but could not put the puck past Woodbridge goalie Dave Kelly. Twice when the Macs did score they gave the goal back on the next play.

But the losers saved their worst hockey for their own end of the rink. They were unable to clear for minutes on end, passing time and again directly on to the Woodbridge players' sticks, and a couple of times almost put the puck in their own net.

Woodbridge drew four consecutive penalties in the first period but failed to score a single goal.

The Macs were just one goal back at the time, 4-3, but could not get an attack organized in net the equalizer. They did come close early in the period when Johnston was off at the 23 second mark. The Macs did everything but put the puck in on this one and just after the clubs were at full strength, McGuire, Boyle and Kellar all fired from point-blank range only to be stopped by Kelly.

Jim Johnston, who scored two Woodbridge goals along with Joe Ptashnik, sewed the game up for his club on a breakaway with a teammate in the penalty box at 14.19. Ptashnik made it 6-3 at 17.10 before Billy McGuire deflected in Mavety's slapshot to close the scoring at 18.01.

The Weston - Hunter - Smith line, best for the losers, was robbed by Kelly on a number of occasions but Weston's goal in the first period and singles by Smith, on a pretty play with Ethier, and Gary Reid, in the second kept the game close until late in the third.

Bucky Ethier and Larry Mavety each earned two Belleville assists to go with goals by Weston, Smith, Reid and McGuire. Zakos, Boyle and Smith had single assists.

The Macs drew their only two penalties in the first period while Woodbridge's first, in the middle heat, led to Smith's goal. The winners drew five in all.

WOODBRIDGE: Kelly, LaRue, Selater, Layton, Graham, Yurkiw, Buchman, Burford, Johnston, Pender, McDonald, Hall, Ptashnik.

Referees, Art Casterton and Whitey Walton, both of Kingston.

Ross Neal Elected to Head Ratepayers' Association

DESERONTO — The meeting advertising the reformation of the Deseronto Ratepayers Association in the Town Hall on Monday night attracted some fifty ratepayers which included some members of the council and the school board.

Mrs. Dorothy McCullough who had been appointed temporary chairman opened the meeting with a few remarks on the purpose of the Association. She then recessed the gathering for fifteen minutes to enable any who wished to join the group by paying the annual fee.

When the meeting reconvened a nominating committee composed of J. Edwards and E. Keech were appointed and they withdrew to prepare a slate.

On their recommendation the meeting approved the selection of officers as follows: president, Ross Neal, vice-president, Mrs. D. McCullough; secretary treas. —Mrs. R. Marks; directors, Mrs. Hooper, Dr. D. C. Mc-Vicker, B. Lloyd, L. Edwards, R. Keech and J. McVicker.

Mr. Neal in accepting the chair pointed out the aims of the Association and stated that the school board, the Utilities and the council meetings are open to the public but the public cannot enter into debate on any subject. The feeling of the people was that they should have an association, where injustices could be debated. The present issue in the town was the closing of the High School and that feeling was that the facts should been fairly presented. not all facts had been given and only one side of the question had been heard. The ultimate object of the association was to assist the council and he asked the mayor if he would concure in that policy.

INTERESTED IN WELFARE

Mayor Sweetman stated that the council are only interested in the welfare of the children and the council had left the matter open until after the meeting of the Association. He advised that he felt the matter would go to a vote of the people.

The by-laws of the association were then read and adopted and will be presented at the next regular meeting.

The chairman then introduced the school question and asked if the meeting would care to acquire all pertinent information. A motion was passed that the Napanee Area board be requested to supply a financial statement for the last few years.

J. W. Spence thought that the same information should be acquired from the Belleville Board, this was added to the motion.

The chairman asked if the Deseronto Board would have information available for the forum and E. F. Gillett said the secretary should request that information from the Board as he was not prepared to speak for the Board. He made some comments on the school issue and the chairman asked Mr. Gill that the association were not involved in his opinion that they were only trying to get information for the use of the public.

The meeting passed a motion that after 10 p.m. the town council requesting them to defer action until the public forum had been held on the school question.

OPEN TO PUBLIC

Mayor Sweetman said that the town council meetings were open to the public and it was not necessary to form an association such as this. He would be glad, he said to see people turn out to council meetings.

Chairman Neal said the organization hoped to work with the council and any other governing body of the town and in the past, certain members of the association were designated to attend council meetings.

R. F. Gill a member of the school board again addressed the meeting and disagreed with the statement that the motion of joining the Napanee Area was a bombshell. He also took exception to the inference that the school board had influenced Mr. Elliott of the department of education who spoke recently to the council and board.

The meeting adjourned with the understanding that a forum would be held as soon as information had been obtained and some speakers arranged to address the group on the school question.

Artist, Minus Both Hands, Painting Murals for Church

MILLMAY, Ont. (CP) — A man who lost both hands when he was 15 is painting murals in Sacred Heart Roman Catholic church here.

Mykola Bidniak, who refused to abandon his dreams of being an artist when a land mine exploded beneath him in the Ukraine, has compensated remarkably for his handicap.

He places an elastic band around the stump of his right arm, which was amputated between the elbow and shoulder, then picks up a brush with his teeth and places it between the elastic and his arm.

Mr. Bidniak was born in Canada but went to the Ukraine with his parents when he was four. Twice his family fled the Communists.

The land mine exploded when he was plowing a field. Determined to return to Canada, he escaped the Communist area.

In Toronto he was awarded a four-year IODE scholarship to the church art. He attended the Ontario College of Art and now is a commercial artist, furthering his studies under Stephen Winter, one of Canada's few church decorators.

Mr. Winter, who is in charge of restoring Sacred Heart in this village 40 miles south of Owen Sound, said church art is dying.

Church decoration was different from other forms of art because the work was so varied. The church decorator had to be an artist, sculptor, architect and designer.

In addition to restoring 15 murals in the church, Mr. Winter is refurbishing the statues, has designed new lighting, is repainting the stations of the cross and is redecorating the entire interior.

CHANGES IN LIQUOR LAWS ANNOUNCED

RIOT SCENE — This was part of the damage done Thursday when a battle, erupted between two unions at a steel plant construction site at Trout Que., 40 miles northeast of Montreal. Feelings have been running high at the site all week since the new International Union of Construction Workers, which is contesting bargaining rights now held by the Building Workers' Federation (CNTU), set up a picket line. Some 1,500 workers were involved in the riot, the first major trouble at the site, but there were no serious injuries. (CP Wirephoto).

500 Men Batter Each Other With Pipes, Damage $50,000 in Quebec Union War

TRACY, Que. (CP)—As uneasy calm settled over this busy community 40 miles northeast of Montreal today following a short but violent civil war between members of two rival construction unions.

The brawl was brief but bloody as the men—about 500 on each side — battered each other with pipes, rubber hoses, bricks, stones and anything else they could lay their hands on.

However, there were no serious injuries and the major victims seemed to be local car owners whose vehicles were overturned and at least two were set on fire, resulting in damage estimated at about $50,000.

The riot occurred at a site where the Pigott Construction Company is building a 240,000-pound plant for Atlas Steels Limited to produce alloy steels and stainless steel products.

TROUBLE BREWS

Trouble has been brewing at the site since Monday when the new International Union of Construction Workers (Ind.) contesting bargaining rights now held by the Building Workers' Federation (CNTU), set up a picket line.

A full-scale brawl erupted at the picket line during the noon lunch-hour Thursday and grew to riot proportions with the arrival of 38 truckloads of workers from the heavily industrialized area.

Unable to cope with the situation, the 12-man Tracy police force appealed to the Quebec Provincial Police which dispatched reinforcements from Montreal, Sorel, and St. Hyacinthe.

Roads to the battle were so efficiently blocked that it took the 50 QPP men 30 minutes to break through after the first report of trouble at the site to other hour to end the melee.

No arrests were made after the riot but the affair is still under investigation.

REPORT STRONG SHOCK

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP)—Residents of this northern New York area reported a "strong shock" Thursday night but described by some as possibly a mild earthwauke, there were no immediate reports of damage. Police said no explosions had been reported. A mild quake was felt in New England and sections of eastern New York Tuesday.

Today's Chuckle

One advantage of being married is that you don't make a fool of yourself without finding out about it.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A storm centre moved into South Ontario this morning, causing a wide area of cloudy weather across the province. Some clearing is expected Saturday with temperatures continuing on the cool side.

Mud and Error Plague Leaders In Auto Rally

CALGARY (CP)—A clinging back-crowd mud patch and a navigation error Thursday helped some strong contenders far back in the standings of the 4,600-mile Canadian auto rally.

The lead remained with a pair of Toronto drivers who made no mistakes—John Jones and Ron Adonis in a Studebaker Lark. Two other cars with clean drives on the Saskatoon-Calgary leg fit the weeklong event advanced to second and third place.

The trio of Swedish-built Volvos was knocked out of contention for the manufacturer's team prize when one car became mired in the muck and failed to reach here Thursday night.

This left the field wide open to the Renaults, all of which lost an hour in the gumbo and incurred penalty points but managed to dig out and continue on their way.

Peter Ryan of Mont Tremblant, Que., and Mike Kerry of Toronto avoided the mess but missed a check point in the same area. They lost 15 points, running their penalty total to 186, and slid to eighth place from second.

TREAT CRANE

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A four-day-old whooping crane flown to St. Louis from New Orleans Wednesday was found to have a slipped tendon in its right leg and remained for treatment at a feed company laboratory. The injury of the little bird—it stands 4½ feet high—apparently occurred in hatching at the Audubon Park Zoo in New Orleans. The crane was the fifth hatched by Jo and Crip, first cranes mated in captivity.

HOUSE DEBATES BITTERLY OVER VARIOUS ISSUES

Not Much Progress Made in Sitting

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on publications was "totally and completely unnecessary," Liberal J. W. Pickersgill said Thursday night, and there are rumors the government won't take action on its recommendation at this session of Parliament.

Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) suggested non - implementation could impose a "very natural reluctance on at least a very human restriction" on the editorial policies of affected United States and Canadian publications in the looming election campaign.

The views were presented as the Commons, in another sitting shaped by pre-election fever snapped and snarled without much progress recorded.

One feature was the unsuccessful Liberal attempt to kill payment of $2,000 worth of the expenses of the periodical record commission that reported last year.

It was defeated 56 to 15—the CCF - New Democratic Party group supporting the government.

MINISTER DIFFERS

"Talking through his hat," concluded Finance Minister Fleming after listening to Mr. Pickersgill, member for Bonavista-Twillingate, declare that Mr. Fleming had suffered "profound humiliation."

Mr. Fleming repeated that the magazine legislation was left

Cancer Produced in Animals With Virus That Causes 'Cold'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Production of cancer in laboratory animals with virus that commonly causes a severe type of respiratory "cold" in human was reported today.

The achievement was announced by a group of Texas researchers who said tumors developed in hamsters within one type of adenovirus—a microbe first isolated from diseased tissue removed from humans ago and now known to have various strains, effective vaccines against some strains have been developed.

The American Cancer Society, which helped support the research, said the work provides a new stimulus to the theory that some human cancers could be caused by viruses —and thus are possibly open to treatment or prevention by vaccines.

But the American Cancer Society stressed that production of the hamster cancers with a virus responsible for another type of human ailment "by no means constitutes proof that human cancers are virus-caused ones."

Dr. John Trentin of Baylor University College of Medicine told about the hamster tumor research in a report prepared for the annual meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research.

Co-authors of the report were Dr. Yoshiro Yabe, also of Baylor, and Dr. Grant Taylor of the M. D. Anderson Hospital, University of Texas.

Trentin said cancers were

Govt. May Try to Break Up Gigantic U.S. Steel Corp.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Big Steel faced two momentous threats today as a newly ordered federal grand jury investigation took aim at the 95-a-ton price increase.

The possible lines of government attack, now officially confirmed by the justice department, are:

1. Possible criminal penalties against the price-boosting firms and their executives if the government can find and prove any price collusion.

2. A move to dismember the industry's giant, U.S. Steel Corporation, if the government can convince a district court that it "so dominates the industry that it controls prices and should be broken up."

Administration officials disputed or shrugged off the last minute defence of the price rise made by U.S. Steel's chairman, Roger M. Blough, in a televised press conference Thursday in New York that there was no comment from President Kennedy.

Blough issued firm on the position that the increases were necessary "to the welfare, the strength and the vitality of the nation." They would, he said, "partially correct the squeeze that handicaps U.S. Steel in meeting a stiffening world competition."

Blough said he was "surprised" at the angry reaction of Kennedy Wednesday, since "no assurances were asked (by the White House) and none were given" that price, would not be raised when the current steel labor settlement.

Kennedy, who spent his blessing to the union contract agreement; and called it "non-inflationary," blasted the price increase as "unjustifiable and irresponsible" profit grab at the expense of the national interest.

Thursday night Attorney-General Kennedy announced he had ordered a grand jury investigation in New York of the three-cracker big chunk of virtually identical price increases set off by U.S. Steel.

That was all the attorney-general would say, and he told it because Blough, under press conference questioning, had disclosed justice moves against U.S. Steel had been subpoenaed Thursday morning.

Later the Bethlehem, Jones and Laughlin and Armco Steel corporations confirmed they had received subpoenas, and that the president of still another company, Inland Steel, has been subpoenaed to appear a week from Monday.

Next, reporters learned that the attorney-general had discussed with a group of visiting foreign college professors—reportedly confirmed U.S. Steel to divest some segments of its vast empire of ore fields, coal mines, rails and identifying plants.

Meanwhile two more steel companies climbed on the higher - price bandwagon, the National Steel Corporation, fifth largest, posted the now-familiar $6 increase, and was followed by Pittsburgh Steel Company, 16th in rank.

Five companies had followed U.S. Steel's lead a day earlier. They are Republic, No. 4; Youngest; Republic, No. 3; Jones

Quebec Deficit Denounced As Failure to Face Reality

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

$142,873,775 compares with an $83,300,000 deficit, estimated.

Developments in other legislatures:

Winnipeg — David Orlikow (CCF—St. John's) said the Manitoba government's proposed new labor laws were "confused either by ignorance of the facts or with malice toward labor." The legislation includes a provision making municipal entities and as such subject to it.

Fredericton—The New Brunswick government was in trouble the night in a drive to wind up business in time for prorogation by Saturday when the Conservative opposition blasted a government bill to give it crash points assessed under the province's driver demerit system for the first time in the past three years.

Halifax — Premier Robert Stanfield's tabling of capital spending estimates of $28,296,000 touched off speculation the Nova-Scotia legislature will prorogue this week end. Many work remaining in third reading of some 50 bills.

U.S. Has Means to Detect All Red Nuclear Tests

WASHINGTON (CP) — Qualified U.S. authorities indicate the United States has the available means of detecting all Soviet nuclear tests in the atmosphere without the need of imposing control posts or other detection devices on Soviet territory.

However, the U.S. would not be prepared at this stage to sign a test ban treaty because of the possibility of cheating by Russia unless a massive new series of secret detonations, these authorities added.

They left open the possibility the U.S. might decide to consider such a partial ban in the future—but not before it U.S. launches its own series of atmospheric tests later this month.

East-West negotiations on a test ban covering both atmospheric and underground explosions are deadlocked at Geneva following a Soviet walk-out. The territory to foreign inspection as proposed by the West. Russia has stated it will resume atmospheric tests if the U.S. does.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Public Health Service says high-altitude radioactive debris from Russia's series last fall is beginning to show up in April showers and in the spring flow of milk. From a health viewpoint, the increase is insignificant, the service said.

At Geneva, Valerian Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister, has called for an unexpected moratorium for the duration of the 17 - country disarmament talks. He made the proposal in saying it cannot accept Russia's "paper pledges."

While authorities declined to outline in detail how the U.S. can detect Soviet atmospheric shots, there have been reports that along with seismic and acoustic devices, the U.S. also uses high-flying aircraft and Earth borne traps to pick up radioactive debris.

It is understood that while the U.S., through its detection devices, could find out whether Russia had set off an atmospheric ban, it would be another matter to obtain evidence sufficient to convince other countries that this breach had occurred. The only sure way of obtaining such proof is by on-site inspection on Soviet territory.

When the point was put to this informant that the U.S. could overcome this matter by convincing others by placing the detection system in the hands of an international team, he replied that this could be a possibility and the U.S. might take this approach later — but not now.

MEMBERS CHASE GOVT SKELETONS IN CLOSETS

Leader Renews Attack on Lavergne

TORONTO (CP)—Two of the Ontario legislature's five New Democratic chose debate on municipal affairs department estimates Thursday to resume some hoped-for skeleton-hunting in the department's closets.

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald renewed an attack on Gordon Lavergne (PC — Russell), who he cited as an example of persons the government was boosting who were guilty of conflicts of interest.

And Ken Bryden, the party's financial critic, demanded an inquiry into the sale of municipal land, formerly owned by the highways department, to the then deputy reeve of Pittsburg Township.

Mr. Bryden declared the sale involved a "conflict of interest in the municipal level" and claimed Municipal Affairs Minister Fred Cass facilitated the deal by ordering a land survey.

Earlier in the session the NDP frontbencher labeled documents which he said showed the highways department sold 17 acres of land to the township on June 2, 1958, for $14,000 after it had received tenders of $18,700 for the land.

CLAIMS TRANSFERRED

He said the township sold the same land, minus a diagonal strip 100 feet wide, to the mother of Deputy Reeve Ralph Pearson Sept. 25, 1958, and that on the same day the land was transferred to Mr. Pearson's name. Both sales were for $14,000, Mr. Pearson said in reply, is one of the Kingston-area township.

A claim by Mr. Bryden that auditors were the first to bring the matter to the municipal department's attention prompted a heated exchange between the NDP member and Mr. Cass. The minister said he cannot comment first heard of the sale in a letter from a Pittsburgh ratepayer.

Mr. Bryden: "Produce the letter."

Mr. Cass: "The letter can't be found."

Mr. Bryden: "There's just no evidence of a letter."

Mr. Cass: "Assessment of the sale of the land, Mr. Bryden

Transport Minister, Balcer announced he has called a meeting St. Lawrence River pilots and the ship-owners to a meeting.

Agriculture Minister Hamilton said that wheat and oat quotas have been lifted for Western Canada farmers.

The CCF - NDP group flowed barrages of divisive bills to crawl by forcing votes on each one. Only four of 186 got through.

Move to Implement Report On U.S. Magazine Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—The government proposes to prohibit the importation of special Canadian editions of foreign magazines starting Jan. 1, 1963.

Revenue Minister Nowlan gave notice today in the Commons journals of a resolution authorizing introduction of an amendment to the customs tariff carrying out the government's undertaking to implement part of the royal commission on publications' recommendations.

The amendment would empower the cabinet to pass orders-in-council declaring what special editions of foreign magazines would be affected.

A second resolution said amendments would be made to the Income Tax Act disqualifying advertisers from any deduction from taxable income starting in 1963 for advertisements published in non-Canadian periodicals and directed to the Canadian market.

Motels, Resorts To Be Eligible For Licensing

Bars Open to 1 A.M. Room Service in Hotels

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts today announced that hotels in Ontario will be permitted to sell liquor in rooms.

The premier's announcement covered about a dozen changes in the province's liquor policy. The new regulations will permit cocktail bars to remain open for the same hours as dining lounges.

Private clubs in dry areas may be licensed.

Tourist establishments in unorganized areas, motels and summer resorts, will be eligible for licensing and arrangements will be made for the package sale of alcoholic beverages in summer resort areas.

At least dining lounges may remain open from noon to 1 a.m. on weekdays and from noon to 11:30 p.m. Saturdays.

Cocktail bars and lounges have been permitted to operate from noon to midnight on weekdays and noon to 11:30 p.m. Saturdays.

LOCAL OPTION REMAINS

Mr. Roberts stated the government is not in favor of "saloons" that it has no intention of "running public liquor outlets into communities that simply do not want them"—that local option will continue, despite Liberal party criticism.

Other changes announced by the premier:

1. Licencees will be given the right to appeal to the courts against a cancellation order by the Liquor Licence Board.

2. The procedure for applying for licences to operate establishments will be simplified.

3. The board will be given authority to cancel the licence of a banquet or food service establishment.

4. Requirements that there be no internal means of communication between two different parts of a hotel or dining building will be removed.

5. Hotels in the province will be able to set their own opening hours, provided they are not open more than the maximum hours and closing regulations allow.

6. Adjustments will be made in the fees for banquet permits.

7. Refreshments will be served during the period a person must wait after convicting a person for liquor offences before he may apply for a licence; there now is a "perpetual ban" on such people.

Mr. Roberts described as "contrary to the principles of British justice."

Public houses and lounges will be required to make "substantial snacks" available for purchase by customers.

NO SUNDAY SALE

Mr. Roberts said there will be no change in the government's policy of forbidding the sale of alcoholic beverages on Sunday.

The premier said the government will continue to examine its liquor legislation and regulations this summer "with a view to removing any remaining inconsistencies and bringing all aspects of Ontario's liquor control system into line with the modern-day situation."

Election Date Will Be Given Early in Week

OTTAWA (CP) — Suspense over the date of the next election will be ended early next week," Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated in the Commons today.

The prime minister promised to make "a full statement" at that time.

Mr. Diefenbaker's comment added strength to general expectations that Parliament will be dissolved next week for a June 18 election.

Dissolution of the minimum 37 days required before an election, Saturday would be the last day for calling a June 18 election.

Mr. Diefenbaker's statement was in reply to Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East), who asked that the conventional C of P's representing distant communities the prime minister say whether they should plan for an Easter recess of the session or a dissolution of Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that early next week he will give an answer "to the fullest degree" to Mr. Winch's question.

Savings in Credit Unions Grow Faster Than in Banks

Govt. to Pay Big Subsidy To Railways

OTTAWA (CP)—Another $50,000,000 government subsidy will be paid to the railways this year as an interim measure pending a decision on proposals of the royal commission on transportation, the Commons was told Thursday night.

Finance Minister Fleming said the payment, inaugurated last year, was taken into account in his budget figures presented Tuesday night.

But he said no government action should be expected in the near future on the wide-ranging recommendations of the commission.

The recommendations of the two reports so far—with a third volume to come—required the most detailed study and would demand the same attention from Parliament once that was possible.

Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) said it is "bizarre" and "ironic" that railways are legally are to be freed for competition while they are given "new kinds of handouts" such as passenger subsidies and subventions for branch line abandonment.

TORONTO (CP)— Personal savings in credit unions in Canada have grown faster than last five years than savings in chartered banks and trust companies.

This statement was made to the royal commission on banking and finance Thursday by the Ontario Credit Union League Limited, comprising unions with about 300,000 members.

It underlined the commission's continuing concern over the degree to which the tax-free credit unions, carrying on what they call "do-it-yourself financing," are competing with the tax-paying chartered banks.

Asked to background credit union growth, league officials cited several factors including population growth, interest-rate advantages, growing awareness of the value of savings and the growth of industry in which occupational credit unions are set up.

"Wherever we ask that question, no one ever mentions income taxes," said Paul H. Leman, commission member and vice-president of the Aluminum Company of Canada. He replied to previous hearings in the four western provinces.

The league's brief examined the competitive situation and found credit unions in a "favorable" interest-rate position.

It said credit unions pay dividends on their capital—which makes up the bulk of savings in credit unions—of four or five per cent annually. On deposits, the interest ranged between four and five per cent a year.

Trust companies, on savings services that include personal chequing facilities, paid 3½ to 3½ per cent computed on a minimum quarterly balance and compounded half - yearly. On longer-term savings, investment certificates were issued and bore interest ranging from four to five per cent a year.

The league said it understands that it is the usual practice among commercial banks to calculate savings interest on a minimum quarterly balance at "the rate of 2½ per cent a year."

Priest States Man Has Right To Refuse Aid

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest said Thursday that a patient possesses the right to die but the right to refuse medical treatment that might prolong his life.

And if the patient or his relatives are unable to make such a decision, added Rev. Gerald Kelly, the doctor can make it for him.

Father Kelly, a Jesuit and director of the St. Louis University department of moral theology, made his remarks during a panel discussion before the American Academy of General Practice.

He said he considers euthanasia — mercy killing — immoral.

"Man is obliged to take reasonable means to preserve life and health." Father Kelly said, "but he is not strictly obliged to take any means which, in concrete circumstances, involves excessive hardship for himself or others."

"By excessive hardship we mean difficulties which, according to the judgment of prudent men, would be disproportionate to the good to be obtained.

"There can come a time when a patient can conscientiously refuse some treatments because, in comparison with the good they do him, the cost is excessive."

New Program For Federal Welfare Grants

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Monteith announced a new program of federal welfare grants Thursday described by it as a "breakthrough in Canada's welfare system."

However, Saul Martin (L—Essex East), former health minister, said the program did not represent any new welfare effort on the part of the government.

Mr. Monteith said that by 1967 the grants would be limited by the channelling of $2,500,000 a year into the field of general welfare, professional training and research.

He said the welfare research grants will be made available on a non-matching basis while the general welfare and professional training grants will remain on a matching basis with the provinces.

FIRST FOR CANADA

"Nothing like this has ever been done in Canada before and I hope that there will be discussions with provincial authorities in the near future with a view of obtaining their full co-operation in an endeavor, which I believe will strengthen tremendously our welfare structure," Mr. Monteith said.

The grant for general welfare and professional training, Mr. Monteith said, will start at a level of $450,000 for the initial fiscal year and increase at a rate of $450,000 annually for five years, reaching $2,250,000 by 1966-67. The welfare research grant would begin at a level of $50,000 in 1962-63 and increase at a rate of $50,000 annually for five years, reaching $250,000 in 1966-67.

The minister said a national council of welfare would be established under the program. Membership of the council would be announced shortly.

Mr. Monteith said he would like the council to consider a number of important social security matters, including the need for an increase in family allowance payments and the development of a new and integrated approach to public assistance.

cence Act go into effect when given royal assent, probably next week when the legislature adjourns. Changes in the regulations can be made at any time.

Explaining some of the major changes, Mr. Roberts listed the revision on sale in hotel rooms with an alteration in general recommended policy.

"It will be permissible now for hotels which operate full dining room and room service and which are licensed under the Liquor Licence Act throughout these room services during the hours when they liquor permitting are open," he said.

Of the proposal to license clubs in "dry" areas, he said he believes the people of Ontario do not consider it a "sin" that it should be illegal for private associations to consume liquor in their own premises.

He said the licence will be granted to private clubs under these conditions "only if it meets the strict requirements of the act in respect of clubs. If it operates full meal services and if it has been in existence for a minimum of three years."

In other words, only bona fide organizations such as veterans, union and other social clubs will be granted licences and this will be done only after the closest scrutiny of each application, particularly.

The changes in regulations for tourist hotels, he said, would also be closely scrutinized, were designed to "meet the needs of new hotels which are rapidly developing tourist industry."

The changes concerning two adjacent types of liquor outlet under one roof meet the government's view that several of the restrictions "do not jibe with plain common sense and should be removed."

The decision to removal of restrictions on access between the two types of outlet, the government is removing similar restrictions which require separate entrances for other applicant and which forbid employment in one outlet from entering the other.

Plan New Try At Settling Pilots' Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — A new bid to settle a walkout by St. Lawrence River pilots was set for today, Meanwhile the threat of a strike by deep-sea pilots stopped by pilots re-emerged.

In Parliament Thursday Transport Minister Leon Balcer confirmed plans to call on either the disputant parties in Ottawa for further negotiations.

He said the 276 members of the Pilots' Corp of St. Lawrence River Pilots have revised their demands, making them "much less severe."

But from Saint John, N.B., came word to the minister that nine pilots employed by the Naval Hydrography Board there will walk off the job in sympathy unless the issue is ironed out by midnight Friday.

The nine are members of the National Harbor Board Association, an affiliate of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC).

F. L. Quinn, a member of the Saint John Association committee, said Pilot Association affiliates across the country are expected to take similar actions.

The Pilots' Federation itself also announced 73 pilots in Vancouver harbor are ready to walk out at midnight Vancouver time.

In Montreal meanwhile a spokesman for the city's 2,600 longshoremen indicated the dockers were prepared to back up the pilots with a strike if necessary.

The spokesman said no request has been made nor will be made by the pilots but "if they ask us to help them we will."

Marc Lalonde, lawyer for the Pilots Federation, had remarked earlier:

"Even if ocean ships come up the river without pilots their ships will have been made in vain."

Mr. Lalonde also disclosed the federation has made "a last ditch offer" to Mr. Balcer.

"We feel it is no longer a matter of money which separates us but the true many of our members would rather become farmers than return to the river."

COUNCIL-OR RESIGNS

New 'Teaching Machine' Explained to Lions Club

TRENTON — Trenton Lions were told last night about an amazing new "teaching machine".

This do-it-yourself three R's learner promises to revolutionize the educational field. In fact, it's the most revolutionary step forward in education since Gutenberg invented the printing press, over 500 years ago.

Co-related to experiments with children and adults being carried on, making use of the mechanical wonder, are similar experiments with, of all things, pigeons. In the case of the pigeon, the reward for beating the machine at its own game, is food. Children and adults involved in the experiment have to be content with a feeling of satisfaction or "reinforcement."

If the pigeon pecks two alike symbols in succession, he gets the food. If he chooses two unlike symbols or words in succession, the machine moves automatically to the next problem. If the adult answers correctly, he gets what the machine correctly, he gets a figurative pat on the head and the machine moves on to the next problem.

S/L John Harder of the RCAF School of Aviation Technigues at RCAF Station Trenton, told the club members that the machine's possibilities are too slow to meet the challenge of the age. He under-cut that the pupils who are now in grade school, 25 years hence, will be working with problems which do not exist now, by then.

The teaching machine, which can be used for mass education or individual instruction, has caused quite a stir in educational circles, said S/L Harder. The field will progress by very steps, at his own pace, which are arranged in logical sequence. After each step, the student must respond in order to learn immediately whether he is right or wrong and, therefore, thus gaining "reinforcement."

The teaching machine has unlimited scope. At the present time, mathematics, science, basic electronics and languages are being taught by this method. All research indicates that it is the most effective way of getting instruction across. Children of the future should have college at an earlier age.

The Lions themselves had news of a machine. Some months ago, the club purchased an eyesight testing machine and Lion Bill Thompson, school nurse Mrs. C. M. Wilson, started testing the eyes of the students in Dufferin Ave. school. The machine points up weaknesses and the optometrist is recommended where indicated.

New 'Heating Office Entered, Some Money Taken

TRENTON — Trenton police are investigating a break-in at the Area Heating office on Balaam Street, which occurred sometime Tuesday night.

A small amount of cash was taken from the premises and the office was ransacked. The thief or thieves gained entry by breaking a window, and reaching through the hole to release the door lock. When they left, they locked the large double door again and the break-in was not discovered until Wednesday morning.

Meantime, J. W. Stewart, superintendent of the Canadian Westinghouse Co. Trenton division, said today that CPR police were investigating the breaking of seals on three freight cars parked on a siding in east Trenton, sometime last night. Mr. Stewart said that the cars had been entered but that very little, if any, damage had been done. The freight cars will be checked in Montreal to find out if anything is missing.

Technicians Hold Meeting

An education night was held recently by the Quinte District Radio Electronics Technicians Association (RETA) at Moira Secondary School for the students of the school's special electronics course. Over 75 persons were presented for the meeting which included both lectures and demonstrations by both RETA members and students.

Talks included such topics as "The Radio Receiver" by M. Ames, "The Monochrome TV Receiver" by G. Turney, "A Historical Outline of Radio and TV Construction" by W. J. Slavin, who was also chairman of the meeting. Vocational addresses were given by Stan Eles and K. Vanderwater.

One of the highlights of the program was a display of vintage radio receiving together with the latest—color TV receiver and monochrome TV receivers put on by RETA members. The Moira students also put on a display featuring construction projects which they have been working on and several exams on such topics as computers, atomic reactors and transformers.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday that the legislation would be introduced before Parliament shortly.

On Feb. 14 he said the government accepted recommendations from the commission, headed by Senator Grattan O'Leary of the Ottawa Journal, which in one step would help magazines printed in other countries if they contained advertising directed only at the Canadian market.

Another would eliminate the present 100-per-cent income tax deduction allowed Canadian advertisers on their costs of advertising in foreign-owned periodicals printed in Canada. An important modification added by the government would be to exempt Time and Reader's Digest. Established in Canada, they are eligible for 50-per-cent deductibility.

Mr. Pickersgill said the Toronto Telegram is the only Canadian newspaper published by a prominent Toronto candidate in Toronto. Those Steel Price Boosts

When, under pressure from President Kenney, eleven big steel firms in the U.S. and the United Steelworkers signed two-year labor contracts, long before the present ones expired, the U.S. President hailed the pacts as responsible and non-inflationary.

Wednesday the U.S. Steel Corporation, the Number One firm of "Big Steel," announced an increase of $6 a ton in the price of steel. Five other firms followed suit later in the day. Leslie R. Worthington, president of U.S. Steel, said the increase was made necessary by the continuing cost of production, without even considering the higher labor costs which will result from the new contracts when they become effective July 1. Most people, though, will tie the price boost to the new labor contracts and the only way to shake their conviction that, there is a direct connection between the two, would be for the steel firms to announce another price increase when the new labor rates come into effect.

It is evident that one of two things is true —either President Kennedy was wrong when he described the labor contracts as "non-inflationary" or the steel firms are taking advantage of these contracts to excuse an increase in the price of steel.

Whichever of these alternatives may be the correct explanation, the immediate reaction of members of Congress in planning inquiries into the price increase is understandable.

The decision of U.S. Steel to increase prices may be the result of economic necessity, and the same necessity may press on other firms. But it is difficult for the layman to believe that the four biggest steel producers in the U.S. would all announce a similar increase on the same day without co-incidence. The only reason that there was prior consultation between the firms is strong. Whether this consultation can be proved and whether, if it can, it amounts to a violation of U.S. anti-trust legislation, which is much more stringent than Canada's anti-combine laws, is another question entirely.

France Speaks Out

Seventeen million Frenchmen cannot be wrong—not when they represent 64.87 per cent of the electorate, over 85 per cent of those who cast ballots and 90.7 per cent of those marking their voting papers in a valid manner. These seventeen million Frenchmen say that General de Gaulle's plans for Algeria meet with their approval.

This is an effective, and should be a final, answer to those who have contended that President de Gaulle was betraying France in his proposals which pave the way for an independent Algeria.

The vote leaves no doubt about the chasm which yawns between the Frenchmen of France and the European in Algeria.

The chasm does France no honor. Any lingering sympathy that civilized men may have had with the "colons" or "pieds noires" must surely have vanished the day after the French referendum, when European terrorists threw gasoline bombs into a school for Moslem children. The huge "Molotov cocktails" exploded without injuring the children does nothing to lighten the soul-sickening brutality of this act.

No true lover of France could have held up his head had the referendum favored such people.

Who 'Accepts A Position'

Why don't we say what we mean?

The other day, reading "Looking Backwards" on this page, we learned that thirty years ago a Lindsay woman "accepted a position" with a department store here.

The quoted words were almost certainly used in the original report—they are still used today, in newspapers, in advertisements and in formal conversation.

The inference is that the person mentioned was good-hearted enough to help some desperate employer out of a difficult situation.

Things just were not that way back in 1932, nor, for that matter, can we remember any year when employers were pleading with people to come and work for them, except in the case of a few specialists.

In all probability, at some time or another, in somebody's phrase, all of us have "accepted a position." The truth of the matter is that we got a job. And, almost invariably, it was after more or less of a struggle.

Neutralism is neither a crime nor a disgrace; it must not be punished.—West German Minister of Economics Erhard.

When Does Death Occur?

By Tom Margerison in the London Sunday Times

A young airman was knocked down by a car in Germany last year.

He was unconscious and badly injured, but it was decided to transfer him to a hospital in Britain.

There, with the aid of modern equipment to help him breathe, and by skilled nursing he was kept alive for three or four weeks, though he never regained consciousness.

After he died it was discovered that he had no chance of recovery, even the time the accident had taken place. His brain was irreparably damaged.

His was a living body with a dead brain.

Was the airman alive or dead during his three-week stay in hospital?

When we are speaking of man should we take, as the definition of death, the final cessation of the vital functions of an animal or plant?

Or the narrower yet surely deeper "loss of spiritual life"?

At what point in a human's life does he die? When did his soul leave his body? Did spiritual death occur when the fine his brain was destroyed?

Or was the final act of dying delayed until the last bodily functions ceased?

At one time the fact that the heart stopped beating was a clear indication of death.

The purpose of the heart is to supply through the blood-stream, all the nutrients required for the well-being of the cells from which the body is constructed. And to carry away the waste products they produce.

If this supply is interrupted the cells will inevitably die.

In this human machine, there is no ambiguity about what we mean by death.

It is always an irreversible change which occurs; a chemical change, which means a cell that even when it is provided once more with oxygen and nutriments as required, it is no longer able to function.

Now this irreversible change does not occur instantaneously the blood supply is cut off.

There is a short period of time during which the cells are able to exist without further materials and without the removal of their waste products.

It is because of this that doctors are able to "bring back to life" people whose hearts have stopped beating, provided that they can start them again, by massage or other such treatment, within a few minutes.

These people, according to our first definition, are dead. They have been brought back to life.

But did they undergo spiritual death? Did their soul leave their body?

If it did, it presumably returned again, for they're living today with a personality unchanged by their brief period of "death."

But there are, of course, the clinical death did not apply to the cells of their brains, or the individual and a total loss of organs.

It was simply an interruption of the vital function of supply undertaken by the heart.

In one quick heart beat I am tempted to accept this argument, that spiritual life must be directly related to the life and death of the cells of the brain.

If which case the comatose airman underwent spiritual death after the fatal accident, and the nurses tended an "empty" body.

By modern lights the cells biological death can be delayed and the vital functions of the body brought to a standstill, and so nearly so, for hours without damage being done. This is the principle of hypothermia.

Nobody supposes that the soul leaves the body during a period of sleep or unconsciousness. And there is no reason to suppose that it should during hypothermia.

Now we're prepared to accept the possibility that a man's soul could be locked up in this way, within frozen brain cells, for period of years, perhaps hundreds of years, like Rip Van Winkle?

Research work being carried out in universities and firms is eventually prove to be possible.

At the very low temperatures used to freeze whole animals the chemical processes which cause deterioration and death of cells quite quickly at ordinary temperatures are almost completely suppressed.

The main problem has been to find a way of freezing the animals without forming ice-crystals, which cause the sort of damage which occurs in cold-water pipes and car radiators in cold weather. But this difficulty has now been largely overcome: hamsters frozen as hard as boards have been thawed into life again, apparently none the worse.

So far, the maximum time for which hamsters have been frozen is under an hour. But in principle there is no reason why they should not be kept in cold storage almost indefinitely.

In fact, it has been suggested that the best way of sending spacemen to the moon and back would be to freeze them in this way for the duration of the journey.

Can we assume that a man's soul would be in no way affected by this process?

Norland Shelf Designed for All Party Goers

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the great benefactors of mankind — in this frantic age of the cocktail party and the highball — has never been given his due.

turn out to be an Iowan named Wayne Norland. May his royalties flourish for eternity.

As inventor of the Norland Shelf, Norland has devised a shelf that hangs from one's shoulders, and rests below the stomach and is adjustable to any size glass.

This shelf, which may come in rank with the wheel and the abacus as a prime invention, is designed for the aid of all party guests who nowadays stand around juggling a lighted, a plate of hors d'oeuvres, a cigarette and a drink, whenever during those lunatic crushes known as cocktail parties.

Trying to shake hands with another guest, or to light a cigarette, for a lady, gives one a distinct resemblance to Charlie Chaplin in his famous waiter's scene. With the Norland Hors d'oeuvres, one is utterly immobilized, and any unexpected motion can mean ruin and a trade to the social disaster.

The cocktail party is a menace to civilization at best; but under current physical conditions it is, so representative, a tribute to table-ing, limbs and dignity.

The Norland Shelf — if we who were born without it can common use — will also prove an inestimable boon to people like me, who were born without a lap.

At a buffet supper, it is impossible for me to balance a plate, a glass in my lap, and seem to claim downward at a 45 degree angle and is as slippery as a pig supper, no matter what I put on it. Since there are never enough laps to go around at supper, I usually end up eating off the fireplace mantle, or other cross-legged on the floor, bending down to my plate like some carnivorous animal, snarling with greed.

With the Norland Shelf sonchalantly hanging from my shoulders, I can become the debonair guest I have always wanted to be — shaking hands with ease, lighting ladies' cigarettes with a polished Gallic charm and nibbling at my food with all the grace of a Venetian nobleman, I will feel like a page instead of a pig.

Of course, the apparatus may look a little strange at first — but so do the first Wright brothers' crates and the first telephone. Pioneers always look ridiculous.

The Norland Shelf — if he who was born without it can common use — will also prove an inestimable boon to people like me, who were born without a lap.

At a buffet supper, it is impossible for me to balance a plate, a glass in my lap, and seem to claim downward at a 45 degree angle and is as slippery as a pig supper, no matter what I put on it. Since there are never enough laps to go around at supper, I usually end up eating off the fireplace mantle, or other cross-legged on the floor, bending down to my plate like some carnivorous animal, snarling with greed.

With the Norland Shelf sonchalantly hanging from my shoulders, I can become the debonair guest I have always wanted to be — shaking hands with ease, lighting ladies' cigarettes with a polished Gallic charm and nibbling at my food with all the grace of a Venetian nobleman, I will feel like a page instead of a pig.

As rubber restrictions become felt, officers of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board throughout the Eastern Ontario region are finding themselves flooded with requests for information concerning those who are eligible for preferential treatment in regard to the acquisition of new automobile tires.

Sharp criticism was heard as the Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Association voted unanimously against the granting of licences by the Department of Game and Fisheries, for the seining of carp in local waters, especially in Hungerford Township where the action met little we extensive damage in such places as Muskrat Lake and Stoco Lake.

Mastkrange if such a practice is allowed and I am calling on this meeting to protest against it," stated George Wellbridge in his address.

Complaints were received by police regarding a disturbance and a pool room on Front Street last night, and upon arrival of the police, Thomas Watts of this city was questioned. It is also playing the pin ball machine and the light flashed indicating a good substantial odds in the event if played and won. Before we could play the machine, however, the proprietor pulled the electric light connection, turning off the machine; I told him to turn it on or there would be trouble," stated Watt.

The Titanic Disaster. The greatest maritime disaster of history occurred twenty years ago today when the Titanic struck ice and sank with 1,513 passengers and crew; only 705 survivors were rescued by 711. The Titanic was the largest ship afloat —30,000 tons displacement. It was built at Belfast for the White Star Line and launched May 31st, 1911. On its maiden voyage which was its last, the Titanic started for New York with 2,224 passengers and crew. At about 11.15 p.m. on Sunday, April 14th, 1912, a lookout rang a bell thrice sharply, a signal to the bridge that an object had been sighted dead ahead. The order was given "wheel hard to starboard"; the engines were reversed but it was too late. The submerged mass of ice, a treacherous iceberg slid along the bilges of the ship. The ice bugs can open air sitting its bulkhead and bilges, there was a terrific crash. The watertight doors were unshakable, and even when the order came for passengers to put on life belts and come to the decks there was no panic. In the lowering of the lifeboats, ed first into lifeboats, then men into available places. Some women refused to leave their husbands; they were drowned.

Vicot Tag Day, the proceeds being for the General Hospital, will be held this week.

A good crowd was present to see the exhibition game of basketball between the G.T.R. team and the S.O.E. team. The former team won, the score being 2 to 1. The following composed the teams: G.T.R.—Gamble, Griffin, Johnson, Summers, Taylor, Grant, Hibbey, Robinson, Lancaster, Hicken and Gandy; S.O.E. — Peters, Pulker, Baker, Ross, Gilbert, Hubbell, Scates, Page and Jenkinson. Referee Thompson gave entire satisfaction. Umpiremen were Gill and Sandow.

The Rev. Canon D. F. Bogart has resigned the rectorship of St. John's Church rectorship of Isabe, and West Bridge Street and will retire and many years of faithful labor in the service of the church. Bishop Mills of the diocese of Ontario has authorized the closing of the church and consequently a new rector will not be appointed. The parish was organized in the year 1858 by the late Rev. R. Fornert, now rector of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, was the first rector. The church building was first located at the corner of Bridge and Isabe by the Anglican Streets. Canon Bogart succeeded the Rev. R. Fornert as rector over twenty years ago and the church building was removed to its present site. The first sermon was delivered by Mr. Fornert and he was the preacher at the service on Sunday evening when the closing of the church was announced.

Note: The church building was moved to Point Anne and is now the Anglican Church there.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A book entitled "African Genesis", by Robert Ardrey, published last fall, caused quite a flurry. It contends, on the basis of archaeological discoveries in Africa, that man is the descendant of a killer ape that evolved in the African plateaus of Africa. This theory outraged the archaeologists, who stand firm in the assumption that man originated in Asia Minor. It scandalized the religious who, happy in the agreement of science as to the location of the Garden of Eden, insist that man is a fallen angel; whereas Ardrey suggests that we are risen devils; that we have come up, as far as we have got, by very bad origins, rather than having fallen from a higher estate.

The fact that Ardrey is a dramatist by profession, rather than a scientist, gave heart to the critics of the past few years.

Now along comes Dr. Louis Leakey, a British scientist of the highest repute, with the brand new discovery in Africa of what he claims to be the relics of a creature not yet man, but not still ape. And the whole archaeological world is, as they say, agog.

Agog is a nice apey word to use, in the circumstances.

Displaced Disc Affects Alignment of the Spine

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: In two years I've had a displaced disc in my spine three times. When I left the hospital the doctor warned me to be careful not to lifting, no bending, no dancing, and to get as much rest as possible.

I have five children, all boys, and it's not so easy to rest. I have one leg with no reflex in the knee or heel. I'm in my early 40's and full of life. Would you explain some reasons why this should happen so often? — E.S.

Disc trouble, whether "displaced" "slipped," "crushed," or whatever, means that a cushion of cartilage and fibrous tissue between two of the vertebrae has been damaged.

The damage may be from an injury or from arthritic changes in the spine. The result is that the alignment of the spine is thrown off to some degree, and nerve roots at that point can be "pinched" or irritated, resulting in pain and loss of reflexes as you mentioned or perhaps elsewhere.

This condition usually develops only after repeated injury. True, some violent fall, or injury caused while lifting or straining in some unusual position may be the straw that "pinched" or irritated the spinal cord resulting in pain and loss of reflexes as you mentioned or perhaps elsewhere.

Generally speaking, present practice is to treat such cases conservatively — take it easy measure, are available to prevent the injury from being repeated, and hope for at least some degree of healing.

Hence the advice you had is sound — except that it's a problem for a husband of five boys to get a lot of rest.

No lifting, no dancing! That's good advice. And so is rest.

You'll simply have to make your brain and your wife's. The boys must learn to pick up after themselves and to share the load of household chores in the house.

It can be done. I have in mind a woman who was paralyzed in an accident. She has three children and a husband to care for. Confined to a wheel chair, she gives instructions as to what must be done, and the youngsters, perform remarkably well. (It's better for them to understand, however, just from having their mother in the wheel chair.)

You will have to do a little more explaining to your doctor, less will have to be rather firm. Otherwise the youngsters might shirk their responsibilities.

Often a brace or firm garment is used to keep the spine more rigid and this protects the damaged place. Traction sometimes helps. Loss of weight may help, too.

In severe cases, and after conservative measures haven't been sufficient, surgery may be necessary. "Fusion" of the spine at the damaged point. Small pieces of bone are "fused" at that place, acting as a permanent "splint." That particular joint won't bend afterwards, of course, but it takes the pressure off the nerve roots, prevents further damage, and brings the spine back into good alignment.

Dear Sir: My wife says one should scrape the mucus from a head cold before into one's head instead of blowing it out. I say snuffling only inflames the sinuses, and one should blow gently. Who is correct? — E.C.

You are, although a certain amount of snuffling may be necessary, to clear the passages back near the throat.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I'm on a diet but I love bread. How many calories does it have? — F.H.

About 65 calories to a tablespoonful.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

COMPANIONS

One of the first conclusions that the Creator came to was that "it is not good for man to live alone."

So He scattered throughout the land companions for this human creation of His mind. Not only in every human being, but companions of the field, of the forest, of the vast open spaces, and of the handiwork of men's minds — art, literature and the crafts.

What would any of us do without the companionship of the man back upon in the midst of discouragement and loss?

Every man followed by shadows. Shadows of his better self, shadows of things of reflected faith from the brave.

Behind every great and earnest man, a noble mind. Behind every great and earnest man, a noble mind. Behind every great and earnest man, a noble mind. Behind every great and earnest man, a noble mind said Mr. Pearson put up the money which Pittsburgh Township bought the land from the department of highways.

ALLEGED REPORT

"Mr. Pearson deposited his cheque for $14,000 in the township's bank account and the municipality issued a cheque to the department for the same amount," he added.

"I have heard of put-up deals in my day, but never anything to beat this."

Mr. Bryden asked a judge be appointed by inquiry into the part played by the highways department, the municipal affairs department, Reeve Pearson and the township itself in the sale of the land.

Mr. MacDonald also got into an exchange with Mr. Cass during his speech, and managed a delayed-action dialog with Mr. Lavergne, former mayor of the Ottawa suburb of Eastview.

He said that earlier in the debate he had heard Mr. Lavergne call across the floor to him:

"Shut up. I'll meet you outside and deal with you there.'"

"I have no intention," Mr. MacDonald said, "of running away from him outside the House or in."

Mr. Lavergne wasn't in his seat at the time.

The former mayor has been a target of criticism since East-view's dump was ordered closed of converting more than $10,000 in town funds for personal use. The case is being appealed.

At the trial Mr. Lavergne testified he told the treasurer to withdraw funds to help needy families.

HITS POLICY

Mr. MacDonald said the government's policy of not prosecuting those guilty of conflicts of interest was also shown in the nomination of Conlin Mulvihill, Progressive Conservative candidate in the recent Hamilton South provincial byelection, won by the Liberals.

The NDP leader said Mr. Mulvihill had been the subject of government reports for selling Gas a member of Arrowtype town council on questions of interest to clients of his law firm.

Summing up, he said Mr. Cass would have a hard time proving an interest to rectify political corruption.

As this, the minister smiled and the NDP leader responded by accepting him of greeting criticism with a "provocative cheer."

DEMANDS WITHDRAW

Mr. Cass demanded Mr. MacDonald withdraw his remark but the NDP member refused to do so even at the request of chairman Keith Brown (PC—Peterborough), leaving himself open for possible expulsion from the House for the rest of the day.

But Mr. Cass didn't press his demand, saying he wasn't going "to put the chairman to any embarrassment."

The minister earlier had told the House his department will be "uncompromising" in dealing with conflicts of interest among municipal officials. He said absolute honesty is a must for anyone elected to municipal office.

"We all know that life in a political arena is not an easy one," he said, "but it must be an honest one."

CLAIMS WASTE

A Liberal member accused the government of a "thorough, going waste of time" in its tackling of municipal problems.

Vernon Singer (L—Toronto-York Centre) criticized government policy on a half-dozen fronts.

Mr. Singer called for a full-time committee to study the province's huge lodgment municipal law and suggest revisions.

Mr. Singer devoted particular attention to laws dealing with conflict of interest, which he said "receive little respect."

The conflict laws were "stringent to the point of absurdity in some areas," while ignoring possible conflicts in other areas entirely.

"In the light of the reports made in recent years concerning the affairs of several municipalities," he added, "the plea for more effective conflict-of-interest provisions is one which must be answered if a municipal government is not to be subjected to further misuse at the hands of those who put their interests above their duties."

He charged the government had "betrayed" Elliot Lake by promising two years ago that the improvement district, mill rate would not be increased and now peneging by allowing an increase.

Grain Delivery Quotas Ended By Government

OTTAWA (CP) — Prairie farmers are now free to market all the wheat, oats and barley they can, Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton informed the Commons Thursday.

Grain delivery quotas have been scrapped entirely by the Canadian Wheat Board for the first time in 10 years. Drought last year and a good export demand have combined to end congestion in storage facilities, Mr. Hamilton said in announcing widely. According to situation, set limits on the amount of grain farmers were allowed to deliver as congested wheat board elevators and storage points.

The eventual removal of the grain-delivery quotas was well received. They were first used in 1940 and have been designed to give all Prairie grain growers an equal chance to market a portion of their crop.

The action began building up when the Korean War stimulated exports for reserves. Quotas were enacted when seeding and big crops which followed left the country room mercial storage facilities in a chronic surplus problem.

WORLD CONDITIONS

That situation now has righted itself with the help of last year's skimpy crop and a slightly more than 200,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Sales to the China have been continuing steadily as well as to other Communist and buyers such as Britain, Japan and West Germany.

Mr. Hamilton's announcement Thursday was greeted with cheers in the Canadian

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) asked the government jeers when he said the country would welcome the fact that we are about to enter an election—and that this is the only way to get this government to do things positively."

Arnold Peters (CCF—Timiskaming) said the government's policies and whatever board's sales efforts and the Prairie drought should get the credit, not the government.

School Children 'Spring' Mongrel Pup From Pound

COLCHESTER, Ont. (CP) — Tag, a homeless mongrel pup, is alive today because he won the hearts of the seven children of this Lake Erie village.

Ever since he was abandoned here six weeks ago, Tag had been the unofficial school mascot. He spent his days frolicking in the school yard and his nights freeloading with various families.

On Monday the pup was picked up by dogcatcher Doug Scratch. The school kids were told Tag would be destroyed in 48 hours.

The youngsters sent up petition. They emptied their piggy banks and canvassed the village for cash and collected the $5 needed to spring Tag from the pound. Their dimes and nickels amounted to only $4.40, but Scratch went to see the dogcatcher anyway.

After listening to their story, Mr. Scratch settled for $3 and released Tag.

School Trustees Now Must Be Canadian Citizens

TORONTO (CP)—The legislature's standing committee on education recommended Thursday that all school trustees must be Canadian citizens.

The list of qualifications has, until now, designated "British subjects."

New Democratic Party Leader Donald MacDonald, who suggested the change, said it could not possibly be construed as an affront to the British.

The new provision is contained in amendments to the Public School Act affecting separate and secondary schools. The amended acts will not come into effect until Jan. 1 next year, so that trustees may finish their terms.

Those who are not Canadian citizens would have to take out citizenship before they can stand for re-election.

The Municipal Act still requires that city councillors be "British subjects," not necessarily Canadian citizens.

Secret Army Battles Police For Five Hours

OF from AP-Reuters

ORAN, Algeria—French rioi police made a house-to-house search for Secret Army commandos in the heart of Oran today following a five-hour street battle in which five police and at least one Secret Army fighter were killed.

Civilian sources said the Secret Army received advance warning of the search and had time to pull out most of its men, their arms and equipment from the buildings from which they had fired on the riot police in the center of Oran.

Several persons also were reported wounded on both sides in the five-hour exchange in the downtown business section near the Oran City Hall.

A surprise attempt by the riot police to search a house in the Algerian Moslem quarter of Commandos and armed civilians fired on the police from balconies, and rooftops, and the truckload of police took cover in a nearby house. Within minutes, the Secret Army commando parked cars and trucks together to form barricades, and placed them the police with a steady hail of fire.

French army units moved from the western district toward the center of the city, hearing fire from other Secret Army commandos. Four hours after the firing started, a French armored car with its machine-guns blazing smashed through the barricade of cars. Other armored vehicles followed, spraying machine-gun fire at Secret Army commandos on their rooftop and balcony positions.

ATTACK CITY HALL

The Secret Army then turned its assault on the heavily defended city hall building 300 yards from the square, but was beaten off. The commandos finally retreated to positions in nearby Moslem buildings, and the fighting subsided.

Later fighters, normal air traffic resumed after being temporarily disrupted Thursday when a Secret Army bomb destroyed the top two floors of the civil airport's control tower.

Police sports, terrorist attacks killed 13 persons and wounded 36 others Thursday. Most of the victims were Moslems.

Scouting activities

By CHRIS. F. LEGGAT

CHRIST CHURCH BANQUET

Our fondest memories of Scouting are associated with the 2nd Belleville Scout Troop and Men's Club and "conscripted" into the Movement by Art Simpson, Oliver Owen and M. Button. We served as group chairman and later "promoted" to A.C.M. under the leadership of Scoutmaster Chuck who still controls the pack and is loved and respected by all the Cubs and "adopted" by the entire Scouting world in Belleville. Everybody was happy to see Alvin Kemp at the banquet, as well as could be expected after a lengthy illness.

And so, it was with these pleasant thoughts of by-gone years still fresh in our mind, that we accepted with grateful thanks the artistic invitation from auxiliary president Mrs. Isobel Ralsbird. This lady, we are told, was largely responsible for the miniature totem poles, carefully painted replicas, much appreciated by all as a graphic souvenirs of a well-planned party. Tastefully laid tables, bordered with the group colors, green and yellow, with many birch bark canoes and wigwams spelled "Scouting" in the background.

CHAIRMAN'S WELCOME

A smart clean-cut young man, Glen Ralsbird, correctly unfurled the pennant from the flag break ceremony, followed by Grace by Rev. J. B. Creegan. Mrs. Ralsbird then in a very appetizing dinner which was thoroughly enjoyed by all the 150 fathers and sons present. Chairman Doug McBride warmly welcomed the guests. He thanked the group committee for its support throughout the year and the Men's Club, which sponsors the group, and has also been responsible for the award of the troop and pack when required. Mr. McBride received special mention for the work and also for their work in Scouting. He then introduced in the Christ Church group. Fathers were called to attend at least one committee meeting held each 3rd Monday at 8.00 p.m.

Mr. P. Pickering, District Council president, was pleased to note that the Scouts recently received the religion and life award, and heartily commended the leaders on the efficiency of their Cubs and Scouts. He told of a recent visit to a camp-ed when the lights failed. A Scout leader asked them to raise their hands, and the entire gathering did this and to their surprise, the lights came on. The Chinese explained that Confucius said that "Many hands make light work."

District Commissioner Murray Mew announced that a World Jamboree would be held in Greece, August 1963, and asked if any Scouts or leaders in their group who might be chosen to go on this wonderful adventure. We are fortunate indeed to have Art Pickering and Mr. Mew as our guests at this time, and Scouts meet you will find them, giving of their time and ability for the advancement of the Scouting Movement.

Archdeacon Creegan expressed great pleasure in the efficient leadership of Christ Church Scouts, and various problems that existed years ago have now vanished. Mr. Creegan also had a story of a small boy attended church without his mother one Sunday. Johnny was asked on his return what the clergyman used for his sermon text the boy replied: "Don't worry, you'll get your share." A puzzled mother phoned the minister who informed her that Johnnie was quite right. The text was "Feed ye my lambs because I will send you the Comforter."

PRESENTATION

Akela Kemp explained that during her term of absence Mrs. Ralsbird had done many good deeds for her and was entitled to a reward. In appreciation Mrs. Ralsbird was presented with a gardeners' badge (about two feet square) and a badge of office very carefully wrapped by spade and rake! "What about overalls?" was the only comment by the recipient. Instead of a report, Akela requested parents to visit the pack on any Monday, 6.30 to 8.00 p.m., when they would be made very welcome and could see the Cubs in action. If they find the boys noisy, please remember that healthy, happy boys are never quiet. Cubs Robert Burton, Doug Woonacott, Jimmy Cole, David Fisher, Michael Browning, Peter Middleton and Tommy Churchill were given efficiency badges by Rakshaw and Baloo. Scouter Ed Ingram thanked the Men's Club for the much-needed Patrol equipment. He announced that two Queen's Scouts are now leaders and the troop is in very good condition. Mr. Jack Bolton, rapping to Cub David Fisher's seat to the fathers, appealed for more leaders and group committee members. The motto, "Do Your Best" repeated by the Cubs and Scouts would apply to fathers, too. Boys need leadership.

ENTERTAINMENT

Mrs. Wallis showed a great variety of colored films and gave a running comentary on wildlife in the Belleville district. It is amazing what we don't see around us. The photography was amazing and Mrs. Wallis' humorous remarks had everybody laughing heartily at the antics of the animals, birds and fish. She is an excellent entertainer and very interesting. The Cubs didn't want her to stop.

On the stage with a very realistic camping scene for a backdrop, the Scouts performed an operation on a perfectly well "patient" to see if they couldn't find something wrong. Legs and arms were reen flying around behind a screen. When "Drs. Kildare and Casey" served the victim pack together again, the "patient" walked away as if nothing had happened. The age of miracles is still with us.

The singing of the Prayer concluded a most enjoyable evening of Scouting.

Sample Shows To Be Sponsored By Department

OTTAWA — The Hon. George Hees, Minister of Trade and Commerce, announced today that two Canadian Sample Shows will be sponsored this spring by the Department of Trade and Commerce, and that 150 department stores and resident buyers from New York, Philadelphia and Chicago have been invited through the trade commissioners in those cities to participate in a selection of products of Canadian origin, suitable for sale in the United States.

One will be held in Toronto on May 22 and 23, in the Queen Elizabeth Exhibit Hall, in Exhibition Park. Another will be held in Montreal on June 19 and 20 in the Show Mart, 1650 Sherbrooke Street. These dates are the earliest on which suitable display space can be secured. Similar sample shows will be held in Winnipeg and Vancouver later in the year, when buyers from the Prairie and Western United States will be brought to Canada on the same basis.

The Canadian Government is arranging to fly the American buyers to Toronto and Montreal in chartered aircraft. The firms taking advantage of this opportunity will be provided with facts with prospective purchasers from the United States will be supplied to contribute towards the cost of the project. There will be a charge of $350 per unit area of approximately 144 square feet, which will cover all exhibit costs on the stand.

Firms wishing to exhibit bulky products may seek permission to rent more than one unit.

Each exhibitor will be responsible for the delivery, setting up and removal of his display, involving all costs for carriage and labour. Because of the limited space in the sample shows, Canadian firms participating with the department store buyers will be asked to send sales executive to discuss prices, terms, delivery and other details with the visiting buyers.

Mr. Hees said the Canadian Samples Show should provide a unique opportunity for Canadian manufacturers to get summer goods to display their products for possible sale in the United States, as the visiting delegations will comprise the buying and special buyer from that country were brought to Canada.

Non-Alcoholic Beer Brewed For Residents in Far East

By DION HENDERSON

MILWAUKEE (AP)—In Milwaukee, the city made famous by a beverage which also made several large families financially independent, you ask any five experts how they'd like some non-alcoholic beer.

The general consensus: variations of the same theme.

One is a shortcut in the price. Without alcohol, federal taxes that make up the bulk of beer price no longer are applied.

Outside of the fact that the only way this stuff can hurt you is if you drown in it, there's no other thing going for it. There are only 87 calories in a 12 - ounce can, which is about one-quarter the freight of regular beer.

And that may even bring the genuine 46 - inch waistline experts to terms, eventually.

TASTES LIKE BEER

While the non-alcoholic product is made out of the same grain and hops as beer, is produced like beer, bottled and canned like beer, and looks, smells and — Milwaukeeans avert their eyes — tastes like beer, the absence of alcohol makes possible all sorts of shortcuts.

The April meeting of the Alpha Group of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women was held, recently, at the church building. Mrs. J. Somerville led in the devotional period, which was followed by a word of welcome from the group chairman, Mrs. N. Hutchinson.

The missionary program was in charge of Mrs. D. Taylor and Mrs. J. Burke. This featured a play about a Christian family in British Guiana with Mrs. I. Stoltzburg, Mrs. G. Devolin, and Mrs. J. Burke taking part.

With pictures Mrs. Taylor introduced the Catholian Mission stories and other workers in the Presbyterian Church in British Guiana, and also read a letter from one of the workers there. Following this, the chairman, Mrs. N. Hutchinson conducted the business period. The secretary's report was read and approved. The recent rummage sale was reported to be most successful and Mrs. G. Devolin was thanked for her efforts.

Among the projects discussed was the dinner to which the members are catering the end of April.

Pictures of historical buildings and places throughout Belleville were also shown by Mr. Bakker which proved to be interesting and enlightening to all.

U.C. Women Hold Pot Luck Supper

The Thank-Offering meeting of the United Church Women of St. John's Church took the form of a pot-luck supper on Wednesday evening.

After a bountiful meal, the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. J. J. Clark.

The worship service with thoughtful Easter articles was conducted by Mrs. T. F. Franklin, a solo, "The Shepherd's Lullaby," sung by Miss Margaret Hillis was much enjoyed. Mrs. K. Bird was accompanist for the evening.

Miss Beatrice Wilson, associate secretary of the Board of Women was introduced to the gathering by Mrs. Bruce Wonk. Miss Wilson brought as her topic, "The Home Mission Frontier", a rich field of personal experience and knowledge.

Stating that frontiers in Home Missions in Canada extend to the north of the country she speaker pointed out that the Church is at work all across the land, but particularly at work in Christopher House, Toronto, a unique project which is growing in the work of St. Christopher House where Miss Wilson had served.

It is established in the older downtown area, where inadequate housing, lack of playground space and a mixture of racial background might cause trouble.

St. Christopher House provides clubs and recreation for all ages. Those in charge are always ready to listen to problems; to study the social conditions of the neighborhood in order, to try to meet the conditions.

To any who might question whether the work is worthwhile, Miss Wilson cited many cases where boys and girls who have attended the centre, have grown up to assume positions of responsibility.

SLIDES SHOWN

Some slides, showing activities at the House, at Day Camps and Fresh Air Camps showed the large number of boys and girls served, and the variety of activities enjoyed.

An understanding between Canadians, and between Canadians and newcomers.

Miss Wilson was warmly thanked by Mrs. G. Wishart and presented with a gift as a tangible expression of appreciation.

The thank-offering was received and dedicated by the president.

A roll call of the units and the minutes of the general meeting in February were read by the secretary, Mrs. J. Bell. Treasurer, Mrs. W. Hall, read the treasurer's report.

It was decided to forward the quarterly missionary allocation, also the Presbyterial conference expenses to U.C.W.

Miss Gwen Kenny, reporting on "Christian Citizenship", by means of a chart, demonstrated a new way of reaching the total allocation of $7,370, of which $3,136 is for missionary purposes.

Mrs. R. Jeffrey, membership convener, reported 13 in unit with a total membership of 202.

FRIENDSHIP ACTIVITIES

Mrs. C. Massey reported activities of the Community Friendship Department. A plea for used clothing, particularly men's clothing, was issued by the supply secretary, Mrs. C. MacDonald. The special supply allocation of layettes is to be ready for September meeting. It was stated that four and one-half tons of used quilts had been sent to Korea last year. These are unravelled and made into many useful articles.

Mrs. G. Shaver, corresponding secretary, reported on cards sent to those who were ill. Mrs. C. Wishart, flower convener of the recent hat show, gave her report and a thoughtful appraisal of the success of the venture.

St. John Ambulance Gives Report on Belleville District

This is the report of the three divisions of the Belleville District of St. John Ambulance.

Great enthusiasm is evidenced among the younger members, who form this group. Recently a number of the Cubleaders qualified and received their proficiency badge certificates and are now taking the senior home-nursing course.

Cadets were recently presented with preliminary first aid and home nursing certificates by Supt. Proverbs, Cadet officer Mrs. C. D. Ashley. Further training is planned and a child care course is to start after the Easter holidays. The cadets have been very forward in having two instructive lectures. One on the care of animals by veterinarian, Dr. H. W. Burns, and one by Brigade instructor, Mr. J. Sproule on the history of the order. Both of these are proficiency subjects, and the cadets are trying exams on them. There are 35 cadets in this division, and the enrolment of the members of division are planning and looking forward, to a camping trip this summer, which was so successful last year. Any of the group will be the week of June 24th - 30th John Baptist Day.

The St. John Ambulance Nursing Division of Belleville, consists of about 20 women who give their services voluntarily and who are presently holding a refresher course in home nursing, which is also open to the public.

MARCH BUSY MONTH

The month of March may well have been one of the most important for No. 399 Belleville Ambulance Division which celebrates its first birthday on April 12.

On the 20th Dr. Leslie J. Calvert, area commissioner and provincial examiner for first-aid competitions adjudged the team entered by the division, Cpl. Fran Wishart, team captain, Jack R. Wickens, John M. McCreary, Charles R. Young and Hazel Kirby made up the team along with alternates A. D. (Bert) Kinton and Beverly V. Haighway. They have been intensively training during the winter under the leadership of instructors William James and Bert R. Waters. Only one of the team has reached medallion level to date so their competition attempt is all the more commendable. Automatically they won the area competition, being the only first-aid team in the division entering.

TRAINING OF CADETS

Members of ambulance cadets affiliated with the senior division has begun with eight cadets working under instructor Jack R. Sproule. Young men, thirteen to sixteen years of age and interested in first-aid work are invited to inquire.

The local division has been divided into squads and is training as such for local disasters. The response from employers of members to release them in regard to service in such emergencies has been one for which the Brigade and senior is encouraging votes of confidence in the work.

Skating season now is almost past, but the ambulance division men were pleased to have served over 250 hours at the minor hockey games, the Crippled Children's Ball and Night of the Shrine Club, at the skating carnival and at the C.O.D.A. hockey and basketball playoffs. Some 19 persons were treated for assorted injuries. Ambulance men did many hours duty at a local ski run.

HEADCHEESE

With a whole shaved pig's head (minus the brain) either with or without tongue (with tongue it is more delicate), use 4 shaved pig's feet and blanch in plenty of boiling water. Drain, and wash in cold water. Boil again, covered with water, and let simmer for at least 4 hours. Add, while cooking, 2 teaspoons salt, 6 whole peppercorns, ½ bay leaf, 2 whole onions, and take off the scum from time to time. Drain, strain and measure and reserve liquid. Pick meat and jelly-like tissue from bones. Chop them together and measure. You should have equal quantities of meat and liquid. If necessary, boil down liquid to correct the measurement. Soak 2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin in ½ cup cold water and dissolve by stirring over hot water. Add to measured meat liquid. Stir into chopped meat. Taste and add salt and pepper if needed. This should be lightly flavored. Pour into moistened glass or earthen or enamel bowls and chill until firm. This must be stored just as if it were fresh meat.

Jury Box Walnut Walls Resisting to Bitter End The Presence of Women

By DAVE BRACEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Most of the bastions against equality of the sexes have come tumbling down, but the polished walnut walls of the jury box are resisting to the bitter end.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that although there are only three provinces that bar women from jury service, they are never seen in two others and rarely in another four.

Ontario is the exception. Not only are women called for jury duty (about one in every 100 is a woman) but the attorney-general has asked for more.

The seven provinces that officially allow women jurors are Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. Women are rarely on juries in Nova Scotia and Quebec for women who don't want to serve.

In Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Quebec women jurors are unknown.

Ontario has long had women on its juries. Recently, however, the number of women jurors has been lobbying for better representation. Attorney - General Kelso Roberts, a subsequently asked sheriff's officers to oblige when women are called to the jury.

Unlike men, women may be exempted simply by filling a form. Ontario's attorney-general says he don't need an excuse.

Mrs. Jim Cuthbertson, president of the 36,000-strong Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, says she doesn't approve of it being made so easy for women to get out.

In Nova Scotia, women have been allowed on juries as long as men. But it wasn't until Halifax Alderman Abbie Lane headed a campaign by women's organizations, three years ago that they finally reached the jury box. Even now they serve only in Halifax.

NO HUSBAND

"No one has pressed for women on juries in the rest of the province," said a spokesman for the Nova Scotia attorney - general's department. "There's nothing that has been done."

Elsewhere in the Maritimes, juries are ultra-masculine.

New Brunswick in 1954 gave women the right to sit on juries, names on jury panels but none has ever served.

Prince Edward Island jury service is confined to males by law. No one has made much noise in favor of a change.

Under Quebec's Jury Act, revised as recently as 1941, women are not allowed to serve. If they were, the majority would probably be excluded by the property qualification. There is no movement afoot for the right.

Mrs. Gerard Pelletier, wife of the editor-in-chief of Montreal La Presse and a writer herself, commented that the disqualification from the jury duty in Quebec "follows the usual pattern of ignoring women — or not holding them responsible."

Women have been allowed to practice law in the province since March, 1941. Gertrude Bisson of Montreal, said women should not be allowed to be. Pauline Caziels, president of the Quebec Association of Women Lawyers, agreed.

She recalled pleading a case before a jury for a man charged with stabbing. Defence said: "I think it would have been better for her if she had been a woman on the jury. I think women are more humane."

In Newfoundland there is little prospect of women crashing juries. Attorney-General Leslie R. Curtis said his department has been thinking it over for several years but so far he hasn't seen enough of how it works on the mainland "to be convinced it is practicable or desirable."

Mrs. Alex W. Parsons, JODE regent in St. John's, said women in the 45-60 age group should be allowed to sit on juries. The younger ones would not have the time.

Manitoba permits women jurors, subject to the same qualifications as men, and also provides them with a set of legal exemptions of their own.

NURSES EXEMPTED

Members of religious orders who live in convents or other religious communities may claim exemption, so may registered nurses, practical nurses, wives of law officers, judges, coroners and jailers.

Women may also be released from duty because of the nature of evidence involved or the issues to be tried.

In 1961 only three women actually served on juries in Manitoba. Forty had been summoned and 23 claimed exemption. At this year's spring assizes 26 were called. Eighteen begged off, 10 reached the panel, but none served.

Court officials said this is about average. Women have been allowed to serve since 1952 in Manitoba but for some reason, officials said, both Crown and defence counsel usually challenge women.

Saskatchewan is similar in Saskatchewan. Some are called for service but nearly all are excused. A woman may claim exemption under the same 19 categories as men but she even has the right to release herself because of her sex.

MUST SIGN DOCUMENT

Alberta hasn't seen a woman in the jury box for 10 years, when Mrs. Agnes Macphail was chosen for civil juries but not criminal cases, and Chief Justice C. J. McLaurin of the Alberta Supreme Court said there was no law which prohibited her from the province for 10 years. In addition, 95 per cent of criminal cases were handled by judges without juries.

Premier W. C. Manning, who is also attorney - general, said no woman can be compelled to serve as a juror unless she signs a document, before a jury commissioner, specified, signifying her willingness.

Under some circumstance, a woman litigant in Alberta may apply to have women included on the jury lists when her case comes up.

British Columbia's Jury Act covers both men and women. Women are exempted only on the same grounds as men but they must be notified in writing when their names are placed on preliminary lists. The number of women actually called to serve is minimal.

Mrs. Frank Cotton, New Westminster sheriff, said women jurors are as able as men on most cases. They are at a disadvantage in rape cases where the evidence is usually not very wholesome."

Mrs. Bertrand Galloway, president of the Provincial Council of Women, said: "There would be very few in the situation might be delicate and difficult. But the evidence in rape cases would certainly be no worse than some of the books and movies some women take in these days."

Numbers of men and women on juries, she said, be equal, she said. "Too many women would get carried away and too many men would be inclined to forgive the sinners. The same traits of men and women would balance this out."

Her reason for opposing the idea of an all - woman jury? "There wouldn't be enough lails to hold all the men."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Lucy N. — They should sell the piano and take that trip.

Mrs. N.N. — The piano is an heirloom. It's a shame to lose it.

Lucy N. — Dad hasn't been well and I'd love to see Mother for a little go of by herself one month in the Berkshires, which he loves. He hasn't been up there since their honeymoon, 36 years ago, although when a child and young man, he made his summer vacations in that region. I'm tired of hearing him love to go to those mountains" and "if only we could afford it." He can afford more than enough for a one trip, door-to-door back and all!

Mrs. H.N. — Lucy means well, but I'm finding English to give up something with a perpetual value for something of passing pleasure.

We're planning to leave the piano to Lucy. She's been playing fairly well, although neither Mr. H. nor I are musical. But whenever I give her my reason for refusing to sell the piece, she pooh-poohs it. She says she doesn't need such an elaborate article and thinks we're being snobbish on it she'll sell it herself, and just rent a piano by the month if she wants one.

I think she just says that out of kindness. She's willing to sacrifice what will be her future property to finance a trip for her father and me. I can't convince her, it's not necessary.

The Council: Lucy's the smart one here. Liz, is made of choices. Sometimes she has to choose between people and things. Lucy is the lucky one to pick people. Dad's animate, ill, mortal and of measured days. Mother's things are at a disadvantage in rape cases where the evidence is usually not very wholesome."

Mrs. Bertrand Galloway, president of the Provincial Council of Women, said: "There would be very few in the situation might be delicate and difficult. But the evidence in rape cases would certainly be no worse than some of the books and movies some women take in these days."

Bird Pictures Highlight P.S. 'Open House'

The girls rendered "The Fairy Pipe" and "A Star Child" after which the full school gave the selection "Sitting On My Lawn," "Bird Songs" and a two-part number entitled "The Cuckoo." A double trio of the group favored with "The First Noble."

Mrs. Morton introduced Mr. naturalist who has won nation A. G. Austin of Wooler, to deal ai awards for his photography. also awards in the United Sta tes. Mr. Austin delighted with his book of pictures and comm entary.

A novel idea was carried out when a recess had been held halfway through the showing of the slides and all sang a series of popular songs.

At the close, Mrs. G. Hubble voiced thanks to Mr. Austin, and Harvey Couch thanked Mr. Beckett. Mrs. Morton spoke briefly on the work of the music supervisor.

WHAT'S YOUR M.Q.?

Dining out? Naturally, you'll want to be on your best behavior. You'll make a good showing if you can answer these questions correctly:

1. May a woman have her coat checked in a restaurant?

2. Suppose there are two couples. How do they proceed to their table?

3. Who pulls out the chairs for the women, the waiter or their escorts?

4. When there is a banquette and two outside chairs, what is the seating order?

5. Who orders? Does one man do the honors for all four?

6. If a woman accompanies stops by to say hello, should she extend women rise as well as the men?

7. Should the men rise if another man stops for a second to say a few words in passing?

8. Is it permissible to ask for additional rolls and butter during dinner?

9. When the check comes may the host check the total to see if it's correct?

10. If there's a mistake, how should it be handled?

Answers:

1. A man checks his coat and hat, but a woman usually wears hers to the table, then drapes it over the back of her chair.

2. The women follow the head waiter and the men follow them.

3. The head waiter leads the first woman and possibly the second, unless one of the hosts beats him to it. The men then seat themselves.

4. The woman sit against the wall and the men take the outside chairs.

5. If one man is acting as host and paying for the party, he asks each of the others what he or she wants and then tells the waiter. If the two men are splitting the check, each orders for his companion and himself.

6. The men rise; the women don't.

7. No, not if he keeps going. If he stops to shake hands, the men then must rise.

8. Yes. Again, the host does the ordering.

9. Yes, but it should be done discreetly. If two men are sharing the check, then one may pay and both may settle up after they leave the restaurant.

10. The host should quietly point out any error to the waiter. He will take it to the head waiter and have it rectified. Then being is corrected bill is to the table.

Poetry Parties Popular

By JACK HUTTON

Interested in throwing a party absolutely different from any which you or your gang have ever tried? If so, take a second look at your high school poetry books.

We're going to throw a poetry party.

Sounds whacky? Well, the idea is being tried by a large number of American teenagers—and I think you'll find it stretches your mind while you're having fun.

To be fair, you might let your guests know which poets you'll concentrate on. Or, if some of them have individual preferences, let them make suggestions about the evening.

POETS ALL

Guests may want to dress up like poets. Once they've arrived, a good starter is to have individuals act out famous starting lines ("Listen, my children, and you shall hear of the midnight ride of Paul Revere.")

Sometime during the evening call a 15-minute break during which each person selects another guest and does a rhymed "word portrait". You'll probably spend more than 15 minutes—but the doggerel is usually hilarious.

As a warmer-upper you might prefer a group effort. Have one person think of a line and the others, sitting in a circle, will supply the succeeding verse. Maybe you'll discover that you're all brilliant.

Ingenue Magazine, an American teen-age journal which originally suggested this party idea, claims that the party-giver can set the atmosphere with both music and appropriate cards.

Know a friend who plays guitar? Carl Sandburg, the well-known American poet, proved some time ago that guitars and poetry go hand-in-hand together. Just try reading against that background.

Cards? A perfect card to hang over the party room entrance would be Carlyle's phrase; "A vein of poetry exists in the heart of all men." Or you may prefer your own examples.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Everyone has to eat eventually (poets really don't like starving), so you might as well borrow Milley's phrase; "Love is not all: it is not meat nor drink." Perfect for the table.

There are an infinite number of gimmicks you can use—supplying missing words from familiar lines, making up a treasure hunt with familiar lines, writing hit parody songs with the guitar.

Finally, you and your guests may want to hear the real thing. If so, the help you need is no farther away than your favorite record store. Ogden Nash, for example is available on Coedmon Records (277 Fifth Ave., N.Y. 16, N.Y.).

An excellent anthology of modern poets speaking their own verse is available on Columbia Records (ML 4259), entitled "The Pleasure Dome." (Just try turning out the lights and listening to this all by yourself sometime.)

A few others you might enjoy: "Famous Poems That Tell Great Stories," read by Alexander Scourby, Agnes Moorehead and Arnold Moss; "Poems of Robert Burns," read by Max Dunbar, and "Leaves of Grass" by Walt Whitman. (All three are on Folkways Records).

Above all, don't aim at making the evening highbrow. It should simply be fun. If you're all weak on remembering lines, it would be a good idea to have a few books of poetry scattered about. And pile the record jackets on the wall.

We've heard for some time about a rebirth of interest in Canadian poetry among both adults and young people. Why not be the first in your block to make it the basis of an interesting evening?

SUMMER JOBS

University students still looking around for a summer job have a splendid opportunity to work this summer in Holland and at the same time see the country.

KLM Royal Dutch Airlines announced two weeks ago that about 200 jobs were open for young Canadians this summer. The response has been so great that another 300 jobs have been found.

The Minister of Economic Affairs for the Netherlands has co-operated to draw up a list of jobs in hotels, light industry and farm work, seaside resorts, lumberyards, food processing and with the Netherlands Railways.

If accepted, your salary will be the same as that paid unskilled labor in the Netherlands. You may live in private homes or in two large buildings supplied by the City of Amsterdam. (The Anne Frank House is one of them).

JUST NOTES—Have you heard what the Gallup Poll said about you recently? It described the average North American teen-ager as "indifferent, conservative and cautious, little spirit of adventure, and willing to settle for less success rather than risk high failure." Agree?

New interest in poetry has been reported across Canada. Jack Hutton suggests that poetry can make an added attraction at your next party.

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Back pains, arm aches and false teeth.

THAT ACHING BACK

Psychoanalysts, like many other people, do most of their work sitting down.

They don't use many muscles, and a high percentage of them are afflicted with backaches. The reason is mainly too little physical exercise, says Dr. Hans Kraus and Sonya Weber of New York City.

They prescribed muscular fitness tests, and then exercises, for 36 psychoanalysts complaining of low back pain and pain in the upper back, neck, shoulders and legs. After continued regular exercises, eight were free of pain and 24 had definite relief. All improved considerably in muscle strength and flexibility, Dr. Kraus reports.

DENTURE FIT

Now there's a way to help artificial teeth "grow" so they will meet properly with teeth in the opposing upper or lower jaw.

Natural teeth are continuously erupting, and this allows them to keep meeting despite normal wearing down, explains Dr. Bernard Jankelson of Seattle. When people get false teeth, the original fit may be good, but the wearing process eventually allows a denture to become loose.

In a new technique, porcelain teeth are used in the upper denture, and acrylic or plastic ones in the lower. If wearing occurs so the dentures loosen, a plastic coating can be added to the tops of the lower teeth to bring them into close contact with the upper again.

CAUSES OF ARM ACHES

Painful condition of the shoulder and arm seem to be increasing—perhaps because "somewhat violent episodes seem to dominate our working life, and leisure," says Dr. Harold A. Sofield of Oak Park, Ill.

We hurry when we go to work, or engage in violent sports occasionally, and such rough treatment causes injury.

"Part of the problem stems from our ancestors' determination to walk in an upright position. Our arms swing through a wide range of motion, and tendons are thus subjected to extra wear and tear. When this wear and tear is excessive, tendon fibres degenerate and calcium deposits may occur."

"Just a Second"

Says Canada Has Protested New A-Tests

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says Canada has formally protested to the United States against its intended resumption of nuclear tests in the atmosphere if no test-ban agreement is reached with Russia.

The newspaper says in an Ottawa dispatch that Arnold Heeney, Canada's retiring ambassador to Washington, made the Canadian position clear earlier this week in an interview with State Secretary Dean Rusk.

President Kennedy announced early last month that the U.S. intends to launch a series of atmospheric tests in the Pacific late in April unless an East-West agreement on a test ban is reached at the disarmament conference in Geneva.

In Montreal April 4, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said there should be no resumption of nuclear tests, whether or not a test ban treaty and general disarmament was reached with Russia.

Earlier, on his return from the opening sessions of the Geneva conference, External Affairs Minister Green said resumption of tests by the U.S. would be a setback to the conference.

The Globe and Mail says Mr. Heeney formally advised Mr. Rusk of Canada's views in terms similar to those expressed by Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Green.

Broadback River Fishing Camps Convert High-Grade Brook Trout Into Dollars

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP) — The Big Chiefs missed perhaps the richest strike of the '30s in the Chibougamau mining country.

In one sense, it was a gold mine. And Ron Thierry and Rene Demers are lovingly milking the lode.

Their Broadback River Fishing Camps are converting high-grade brook trout into Yankee dollars.

This bit of angler's alchemy began three years ago when Ron, managing a bush airline at Chibougamau, 315 miles north of Montreal, booked a prospector into the Broadback River area for two days.

The prospector waved off planes that came to pick him up, staying four days.

"He must have something," Ron mused to Rene, a gold miner turned bush pilot.

"When the prospector finally returned to Chibougamau he made the error of his breed—bragging. He slapped six- and seven-pound trout on the table to back up his tales."

Jack London's Klondike sourdoughs never got more excited about a strike, and no one in fiction ever jumped a claim faster.

By 1960, Thierry and Demers had fishing rights in a 100-square-mile block encircling the Broadback and Lake Assinica, both 64 air miles northwest of the mining town of Chibougamau.

While they and their wives were building cabins and stocking supplies for their first season as outfitters, Ron's wife landed the record 1960 trout—a 19-pound, four-ounce beauty. It was her first.

The Broadback camp produced 14 of 20 winners in the 1960 Field and Stream Magazine contests. Besides trout, the lake was producing northern pike up to 30 pounds and walleyes up to six pounds. Nine of the 20 prizes for 1961 went to fish caught in the Broadback or Assinica.

Rene considers the river a natural hatchery, and experts say the lake, a shallow body about 18 miles long and 10 wide, is perfectly balanced for its population of big trout.

COSTLY OUTING

"There's trout here 7½ years old," said Rene. Average age in most areas is less than four years.

The Thierry-Demers partnership blossomed from a friendship that began 15 years ago when Rene was prospecting on the Waswanipi River and ran into Ron, manager of the airline post there.

Ron, 36, is a tall, broad-shouldered Manitoban with a thatch of No. 1 Northern hair. Rene, 37, shorter and huskier, was born in St. Jerome, Que.

Fishing the Broadback costs $32 daily a person. Rates include Cree guide, boat, motor, gasoline, room and board. The stiff rates can be explained. It costs 85¢ cents a pound to fly in supplies, sending the price of a loaf of bread to 35 cents and steak to $1.30 a pound. Gasoline costs the camp $1.75 a gallon.

The 40-per-cent profit made last season all went back into the camp. Ron estimates that $35,000 to $40,000 has been invested by the partners in the last two years.

East Pakistan Boys Stolen From Homes and Then Sold As Slaves to Crime Bosses

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Authorities in East Pakistan, spurred by a persistent newspaper crusade, are investigating the fanged plots of a kidnapping operation in which scores of boys were stolen from their homes, trained as criminals and sold as slaves to crime bosses.

Official action has recovered 64 boys in different parts of the province and restored them to their parents. Some 400 suspects were rounded up on kidnapping charges and 34 more were held on charges of attempted child-stealing.

The March issue of IPI Report, bulletin of the International Press Institute, tells the story and credits a Dacca newspaper with bringing the undercover operation into the open. Serajuddin Hussein, news editor of the Bengali-language Ittefaq, launched his campaign last July and saw it bear fruit some three months later.

Hussein began to suspect there was more than schoolchasing behind a continuing series of little items filed by correspondents about parents throughout the province reporting their children missing. He accumulated facts, dug for information and questioned officials.

On the basis of evidence published in Ittefaq, police raided a remote village 40 miles from Dacca and found it to be the hideout of a 400-strong band of kidnappers.

Boys ranging in age from seven to 12 were being trained as pickpockets, thieves, beggars and, in vice, in some cases, police found, the gang had deliberately broken the arm or leg of a child to increase his value as a beggar.

The apprentice criminals were sold "to crime organizers at prices ranging from $40 to $200.

More raids followed. In two police operations in the Mymensingh area north of Dacca, 40 boys were recovered.

When local police failed to trace one missing boy, federal police moved in and found him in a wild area of the province. An armed band of kidnappers ambushed the police party on its way out of the district, but the police and the boy escaped.

While charges were prepared against suspects in the kidnapping system, federal police were preparing a formal report on the work of crime dedicated to stamp out a suspected network of child-stealing enslaved kidnap victims for a life of petty thievery pected to consider further action and vice.

Fast Growing Business Result of Ads, Service

The happy combination of being able to recognize a need, plus the power of advertising, is a quick road to success.

At least that has been the experience of Mrs. Tony Acerra, 71 Emily Street, who just over a year ago decided that there was room in Belleville for an efficient home typing service.

She placed a few advertisements in The Ontario Intelligencer offering to do typing at home. The response was so overwhelming that Mrs. Acerra has had to hire more help and purchase more equipment to keep up with this increasing business.

Today the Mar-Ton Typing Service is being officially opened out of a modest result of a small classified ad. The staff now has grown to seven girls "working at" offices, clients' offices on four hours notice, using either the client's equipment or that of the Mar-Ton Portable Typing Service.

HAD TO BUILD ADDITION

In fact business has been so good, that Mrs. Acerra and her husband had to build a new office addition at their home. The name Mar-Ton is derived from the first names of the husband and wife business team.

And business is not confined solely to the Belleville area.

Mrs. Acerra has done typing for a man from South America and frequently has a travelling salesmen leave work with her and be picked up on their return through the city.

The Mar-Ton "spare board" of typists was organized by the late Len Taylor, former job printing foreman of The Ontario Intelligencer. On short notice these girls are prepared to go into a client's office to do extra work or to fill in while the regular stenographer is vacationing.

Doctor Warns of Dangers Pregnant Women Face in Taking Drugs Before Tested

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dr. Helen Brooke Taussig, professor of pediatrics at Baltimore's Johns Hopkins University, warned Wednesday of the dangers pregnant women face in taking new drugs before they have been adequately tested.

She supported the warning with a report on an increase of congenital abnormalities in Europe known as phocomelia.

Dr. Taussig made her statements in a report to the American College of Physicians here Wednesday night and at a press conference.

She told the press conference that in West Germany figures indicate there will be between 2,500 and 3,000 babies born in 1962 afflicted with phocomelia —shortening and deformation of the limbs. Often the hands and feet are gone, or resemble the extremities of a seal. About one-third die.

She said there "is extremely strong circumstantial evidence" that the abnormality could be traced to a use of drugs containing thalidomide—a sedative —by women in the first two months of pregnancy.

DRUG WITHDRAWN

Dr. Taussig said the drug was tested briefly in the United States and withdrawn. It was sold for a while in Canada, she said, but has been dropped there too.

She said that in Europe before the advent of the drug, the number of cases were rare, that a physician "might see as many as 10 cases in his lifetime." Now she said, there are thousands of cases, in Westphalia, a section of Germany, medi-

Words of Wisdom From 'Dad'

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—A young teen-ager was having the usual boy problems. Widely she took her trouble to her Dad. After the discussion, he remarked:

"Remember, dear, that girls who allow themselves to be 'boy handled'—most teen-agers know what this means—who 'kiss and neck,' who 'embrace' must class themselves as 'second hand.' They can only rate as 'second or third class goods' when they come to marry.

"Don't let that happen to you, daughter."

Was the Dad too harsh? Do you think what he said is really true? Please comment.—ONE WHO WONDERS.

* * *

DEAR ONE—Agreed.

When a boy seriously searches for the girl of his dreams and the mother of his children, he avoids counter-soiled goods.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I have six children, all boys, and my husband is now away from us for the third time. He has no sense of responsibility and I want to become self-supporting as soon as possible.

I am trying desperately hard to complete Grade 12 this year. I have only a 50-50 chance because there is a great deal of work in this grade and I also have all the household business and housekeeping to do.

What can I plan to do at my age? I am 43. I want to take further training but can't decide what. I can drive a car, have worked as cook, housekeeper, saleslady, operated a hatchery, driven a truck, sold repair parts, worked on a farm.

I would like teaching, but many have tried to discourage me because of my age. I also love nature and travel. — MRS. D. W.

DEAR MRS. D. W.:—Starting a new career at 43 takes real pluck, but more have made the grade than you might think. A family of six boys is something worth working for.

Move heaven and earth to complete grade 12 this year. This opens several possibilities for you: teaching, with a year at teachers' college; nursing, with three years' training; occupational or physical therapy, with a three-year course; certified nursing assistant, with ten-month course; laboratory technician, or X-ray technician in a hospital, with most of the training on the job. And others.

Since the pension problem rules out older beginning workers, in some locations, I suggest you sound out the possible market first. This can be done by visiting your nearest National Employment Service branch, your department of education and your general hospital.

A personal interview with a vocational counsellor would be worth its weight in gold to you. Your high school or YWCA can direct you to the right person.

Labor Congress Urges Choice Of Union Tie

By ROBERT RICE

VANCOUVER (CP)—The national convention of the Canadian Labor Congress Thursday urged the 84,600-member Carpenters Brotherhood to allow Newfoundland loggers to pick their own union—the Carpenters or the International Woodworkers of America.

This step—in the form of a "property - conditioned vote" among loggers in the island province — is the way of repentance for the Carpenters Brotherhood after being found guilty of violating CLC policy but acquitted of raiding the IWA jurisdiction.

The dual verdict was handed down by a special vice - presidential committee of the CLC, accepted by the executive council and overwhelmingly endorsed by the congress convention. About 25 of the 1,200 delegates voted against the verdict.

No sentence was pronounced upon the accuser, the 54,500-member IWA, made it clear it was not demanding suspension of the Carpenters union.

OPENS THE WAY

Thus the door was left open for new efforts by CLC officers to resolve an inter-union quarrel that threatens to split labor solidarity wide open. The new talks, however, were not expected to take place until after the congress convention ends. They will probably be put off until later in Ottawa.

The carpenters were absent from the convention when the verdict was given.

They had walked out Wednesday protesting unfair treatment in the dispute. The big question was whether some of the 13 building trades unions would also stalk out of the convention in support.

If they do, labor will be faced with its greatest internal crisis since the CLC was set up in 1958.

The building trades unions were reported planning a meeting early today to decide their position.

Meanwhile, the Carpenters union is withholding monthly per capita payments to the congress, a tactic that can also lead to suspension from the CLC after three months of non-payment.

RCAF Lowers Its Accident Rate by 64 P.C. and Fatal Accident Rate 89 Per Cent

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — In the last eight years the Royal Canadian Air Force has lowered its accident rate by 64 per cent and its fatal accident rate by 89 per cent.

It has achieved this remarkable record by plugging away at safety, by constantly dinning into the ears of air and ground crews the precious need of minimum risk in all operations.

Air Marshal Hugh Campbell, chief of air staff, has made himself personally responsible for flight safety in his 23,000-man organization.

Group Capt. A. B. Searle, director of flight safety, is directly responsible to Air Marshal Campbell in each command — air defence, transport and the like—the flight safety officer is directly responsible to the command chief. At each base the flight safety officer is directly responsible to the commanding officer.

Group Capt. Searle said in an interview the number if flying hours has not changed appreciably in the last eight years. But higher speed and more complex planes have come into service and a major reduction in the accident rate has still been attained.

SE RELAXED

"On security grounds, the air force doesn't make public total number of flying hours annually or the actual number of accidents. Even the accident rate has never been made public.

A compilation by The Canadian Press, however, shows that 85 airmen have been killed in the air defence of Canada since the CF-100 jet interceptor went into service in 1952. The CF-100 will be replaced by the CF-101B Voodoo jet by this summer.

This figure does not include fatal accidents in other RCAF commands such as the air division in Europe or training command (transport command has never had a fatal accident). Nor does it include the 18 airmen killed May 15, 1956, when a CF-100 dived from 33,000 feet into the rest home of the Roman Catholic order of the Grey Nuns of the Cross seven miles east of Ottawa.

The fatal accident rate of the CF-100s as they go out of service is 1-11th of what it was a decade ago, Group Capt. Searle said.

CRASH IN QUEBEC

CF-100s in air defence command have made approximately 1,200,000 practice interceptions with one fatal accident. Two jets collided and the four crew members were killed Dec. 7, 1960, over northern Quebec.

"There's no room today for the happy-go-lucky flyer—in the air," said Group Capt. Searle.

"In the first place, we select good men and we train them well and we supply them with good equipment. We have constant supervision over all factors dealing with flight safety."

For instance, somebody is responsible for seeing that aprons and runways are swept clean. A stone sucked into a jet engine can cause an accident.

Ground crews now have an average of 14 years' experience. The RCAF air division has won the NATO gunnery trophy in Europe every year, Group Capt. Searle said, not only because the pilots can shoot better but because the ground crews have never permitted a single unserviceable plane during the competitions.

EVERY ACCIDENT CHECKED

He said that in 1961 aircrews were responsible for 45 per cent of accidents, material (design or structure) for 1 per cent of incidents and personnel for 7 per cent of ground accidents.

To the RCAF, an accident means damage to the airframe. An "incident" is an occurrence in which the airframe is not damaged, such as a tire blowout or oxygen leak. And ground accidents usually concern a collision between a ground vehicle and plane during handling.

Each accident in the RCAF, no matter how minor, is investigated. The directorate of flight safety investigates all major accidents and has a group of specialists to do this. These experts can call on commercial airlines, the transport department, RAF and U.S. Air Force for any information they might need.

Group Capt. Searle said that only in three or four per cent of cases is the cause not discovered.

PLAN BIG LAYOFF

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadair Limited will lay off up to 1,200 of its 9,780 employees by next Spring unless more orders are received for the company's swing-tail CL-44 aircraft, it was learned Tuesday night. A company spokesman said Canadair now has completed delivery on all firm orders for CL-44 cargo planes.

Fox Is Dead at Shotgun's Bang, Comes Cry 'For This You Hang'

By EDDY GILMORE

BADMINTON, England (AP)—Odd sir, it's unthinkable . . . the Queen's prime horseman ordered off the land with his fox hounds in full cry.

Unthinkable, but it happened.

The Duke of Beaufort, official master of the horse to the Queen, set off on horse, with 90 baying hounds, about him.

At his right was the joint master of the famous Beaufort hunt, Maj. Gerald Grundy.

As they galloped across the duke's 17,000-acre estate they saw the casualty for lunch onto 60 acres owned by farmer Colin Robertson.

Maj. Grundy galloped after the fox. The duke charged after the major.

"Bang," went a shotgun.

Relating Wednesday's incident to reporters, farmer Robertson said:

"I shot the fox. I had to put him out of misery. The dogs would have torn him to pieces in a moment."

SENDS DUKE HOME

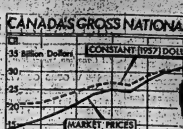
"I told them to get off my land," said the farmer. "The duke told me not to be silly, but I got hold of the bridle of his horse and led him off. He wasn't very pleased."

Robertson said the major shouted "You'll swing for this."

Said a spokesman for the British Field Sports Society:

"It was terribly unnerving for the major."

The major's wife said: "It was all too awful. Too awful for him to talk about."



The incident over — but hardly closed—his grace rode back to his stately home, Badminton House, to greet the Queen, who will be his guest for the next three days.

The occasion is the annual Badminton horse trial, the great annual gathering of the horsey set.

The 1961 figure, if expressed in 1957 dollars, would be $34,500,000,000 a $600,000,000 increase over the 1959 total. —(CP Newsmap.)

Fruit Lands in Peninsula 'On Brink of Destruction' Claim of Liberal Member

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government was accused Thursday of abdicating its responsibility to protect the unique resources of the Niagara Peninsula.

Vernon Singer (L—Toronto-York Centre) said the precious fruit-growing lands of the peninsula are "on the brink of destruction" and the government is "encouraging socially inconvenient and uneconomic urban jungle sundae to thrive which now exists in the Toronto-to-Hamilton region."

Speaking for some three hours in debate on the estimates of the municipal affairs department, Mr. Singer repeatedly criticized the department for holding back a detailed report on land use and regional development which he said has been years to complete.

He said the report was promised to Niagara area municipalities to help in their planning although it has been completed for some two years, the department had declined to release copies.

Mr. Singer said a partial report—listed an acreage of 320 acres a year of fruit suitable for tender-fruit crops was being lost through urban development.

By 1980, he said, there will be only 900 acres of tender-fruit soil left in the peninsula and that the "Niagara fruit belt will disappear as a major tree fruit area long before 1980."

Mr. Singer contended that the Niagara fruit belt is uniquely endowed to produce fruit. And its fruit-growing soil could be preserved without limiting industrial or urban growth if sufficient planning were brought to bear.

"Farmers cannot be expected to hold on to their land in the face of rising costs and declining prices for produce," he said. "The provincial government surely has some responsibility to see that agriculture is put on a sound financial basis."

Government assistance to the municipalities would help them plan sensibly and avoid costly "ribbon" developments.

"It is difficult to explain rationally why a government will continue to pour millions of dollars in new provincial grants down the drain of uneconomic urban sprawl. It is totally incredible that, at the same time, a government will spend hundreds of thousands of dollars on a regional planning survey and then refuse to use it to assist the municipalities in controlling their haphazard growth."

By coordinated effort, with the help of the provincial government, Mr. Singer said, municipalities "could attract industry to give a prime industrial site, direct housing to attractive residential areas, preserve agricultural land, scenic woodland areas and ravines as recreational activities."

CLINIC LINEUP—Volunteers line up for yesterday's Red Cross blood donor clinic at the Kiwanis Centre. A total of 319 donors turned up and, while not a record, the clinic was said to be "very gratifying." Seen registering donors are Mrs. J. E. Marsh and Mrs. C. N. Nicholson.

Fire Destroys 17 Trailers, Truck Depot

TORONTO (CP) — Seventeen trailers and the rear of a large truck depot were destroyed in a $500,000 fire that raged through a warehouse in suburban Rexdale early today.

The fire broke out at 9:30 p.m. at Motorways Ontario Limited and was brought under control four hours later. Company employees drove 50 tractors from the building but were unable to save the remaining 17, most of which were loaded with goods. One destroyed truck contained more than $60,000 worth of cigarettes.

Motorways sales manager W. H. Cosgrove estimated loss at $500,000.

No Mere Drop in Bucket As A.S. Hobbs Gives Blood But Another Pint in Barrel

One hundred and fifty donations, the equivalent of over 18 gallons, is the blood contribution of Arthur S. Hobbs of this city as a Red Cross Blood Donor.

Yesterday Mr. Hobbs made his 150th donation at the Red Cross Blood Clinic held at the Kiwanis Centre. He will be back to make one or two more donations. He is now 64 and according to Red Cross regulations will not be acceptable as a donor after his 65th birthday.

Mr. Hobbs started donating blood just under 50 years ago during World War I when transfusions were made on a direct person to person basis. His 150 donations have been made in many different countries in both Europe and in North America.

He has given blood in seven cities in four Canadian provinces and in 24 centres in 20 of the United States of America.

He has also donated blood in Cuba, France, England, Scotland and Wales.

GIVEN CITATION

In recognition of his magnificent contribution as a blood donor, Mr. Hobbs was presented with a citation from the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross at its recent annual meeting. The presentation was made by Mr. Partridge, president of the Ontario Red Cross.

Mr. Hobbs, who works as a janitor at an Ann Street apartment house and also as a local school crossing guard, has lived in the Belleville area since 1932. He has also lived at Trenton.

During the last war he served with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment which he proudly asserts is "the only regiment in Canada".

He is easily the city's most prolific blood donor and his lifetime contribution of 150 pints is almost half of the just over 300 bottles donated yesterday at the Belleville Clinic.

Mrs. G. M. Miller clinic director said no record was kept at yesterday's local clinic but the 319 donations were said by clinic officials to be "very gratifying".

BLOOD DEFICIT

"But if there were more public spirited people like Mr. Hobbs there would not be the large deficit of each year between blood used by the Belleville General Hospital and that supplied by the citizens of Belleville, through the Red Cross Mobile Blood Donor Clinic", noted Archie Lewis, president of the local Red Cross branch.

Mr. Lewis said that since 1947 when the Canadian Red Cross free blood transfusion service was started upwards of 6,000,000 bottles of blood have been donated by volunteer donors across Canada.

This blood has been received by over 12,000,000 Canadians at a saving of many millions of dollars to the recipients.

Mr. Lewis noted that a large percentage of the money raised by local Red Cross branches in Canada goes to maintain this free blood transfusion service now in effect in every province in Canada.

The Belleville local no cost to the local branch is $1.51 per bottle but this would be possible without the money raised through the Belleville United Appeal, of which the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross is a member.

With the advent of industrial participation the blood donor clinics seem to be ended for this year, but many more companies and plants will need to join the plan before there are sufficient local donors to supply the amount of blood needed annually by the Belleville General Hospital.

Church Minister Accuses Mrs. Fairclough of Betrayal In Sale of Timber Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — A United Church minister, Rev. Peter Kelly, accused Citizenship Minister Fairclough Thursday of "the betrayal" of her position of trust in her handling of the sale of timber rights of the Tsimpesean Indians in British Columbia.

"I am discouraged and disappointed," Dr. Kelly told reporters following two meetings with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and one meeting with Mrs. Fairclough.

The 76-year-old minister, Haida Indian sent as emissary of the Tsimpesans, has been backing the band's appeal that Mrs. Fairclough award the timber rights at once to Beaufort Industries Limited of Victoria.

In recent tenders, Beaufort made a $1,700,000 bid for the timber rights on 12,800 acres—the band's entire holdings—plus other benefits bringing the total value of its bid to $2,200,000, Dr. Kelly said. The department had accepted a $782,000 bid by Columbia Timber Limited of Vancouver covering 12,800 acres of prime timber.

CANCELS CONTRACT

Recently Mrs. Fairclough cancelled the Shoreline contract and called for new tenders. Other charges in the Commons by Judy La Marsh, Liberal member for Niagara Falls, that Shoreline got the contract because it backed the Progressive Conservative party.

Dr. Kelly said the Tsimpesans don't want the idea of calling for new tenders.

It would mean they would lose the logging employment this summer. Moreover, the export market for the timber was deteriorating.

"This is the last chance of profiting by this timber."

Asked by reporters whether he thinks political pressure was delay, Dr. Kelly said:

"I'm not a politician, but one is apt to be led to that conclusion."

He said the 1,000 - member band hadn't been told by Indian affairs officials that the 8,000 acres of lower-grade timber were being withdrawn from the sale.

"This objection looks like an effort to stop-gap the timber on the reserve . . . a betrayal of the position of trust that Mrs. Fairclough holds in regard to the lands."

Airline Failed To Deliver Pyjama Set

LONDON (AP) — Bridegroom Anthony Gill asked an airline Thursday to pay him compensation for failing to deliver his pyjamas while he was on his honeymoon.

"It was ridiculous and almost spoiled our honeymoon" he said in an interview.

Two weeks ago, Tony married Barbara, a pretty 23-year-old. On the way to London Airport for a honeymoon, Gill said:

"My pyjamas, they're in a suitcase with some other things I packed at my house."

A friend offered to go get them and ship the bag by air. Gill said his wife left for the Island of Majorca.

The friend collected the suitcase and posted it at London Airport.

At the airport in Palma, Majorca, the bride and groom waited. The bag with the pyjamas didn't arrive.

HONEYMOON ON RUNWAY

The next day and the following day—still no bag. Hours that the honeymooners should have been spending in the sun they spent at the airport.

Wednesday night, the honeymoon over, Gill returned and discovered that the package had not been sent because customs officers needed a detailed list of the suitcase's contents.

"I want compensation—and a written apology from the airline," (British European Airways) said Gill.

His wife said:

"He managed to buy just about everything he needed in Majorca—except pyjamas."

Montreal Editor Doubts Canada Is on Right Track In Policy on Cuban Trade

Following are excerpts from a report Gerald Clark, associate editor of the Montreal Star, wrote on his return from an eight-day visit to Cuba, his second in about a year.

By GERALD CLARK
Montreal Star Associate Editor

MONTREAL (CP) — Should Canada reconsider its position on Cuba? Should we think about breaking diplomatic and trade relations.

A year ago I would not have asked these questions at that time I felt we were on the right track. Now I have my doubts. During a visit to Havana in 1961 I felt that a majority of Cubans still supported Castro's revolution. In a more recent visit I saw that the picture was changed.

The disenchanted speak softly but forcibly. "If you want to help us," one Cuban told me, "you must starve us and not dictate us, so there can be a quick ending to our nightmare."

One night a couple of weeks ago in the Embers' Bar in Havana I got into conversation with a young Cuban beside me, an engineering draughtsman. And he said that, as recently as six months ago, he had been a devoted follower of Fidel Castro and the revolution. Now he was bitter and bewildered wondering what had gone wrong.

We discussed Canada's role. "What about the food we ship here?" I asked. "Even though it is paid for, it does help cut the hunger."

He pondered for awhile, and then he said: "You must stop the food, even if it means more suffering for us."

I met other anti-Castro Cubans who were positive in their opinions of Canada. "One day there will be a chance in Cuba," said a middle-aged man, "and then you Canadians will have the price for dealing with the enemy.

The big question Canadians must ask is this:

Do we want 'the Castro-Communist regime to succeed or to fail?

A year ago any withdrawal of diplomatic or trade relations would have been interpreted not only in Cuba but in Latin America generally as submission to Washington dictates. Should we pull out now, the anti-Castro press would probably still call us "tools of the United States."

But it should be a hard psychological blow to the Cuban people to discover that an important friend had withdrawn if our reasons were well presented. The main reason should be that at one time we felt Castro was doing a job for the Cuban people but no longer feel he is doing a job for the bulk of the people.

Liberal Leader Speaks by Phone To Meeting

SARNIA (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester Pearson Thursday night described as "regrettable and debauching" the push-button session in the House of Commons.

Using a special telephone connection from his home in Ottawa, Mr. Pearson spoke to 400 persons at the opening convention of the federal riding of Lambton West.

"At today's session we were prevented from discussing things of government such as the Columbia River situation," he said. "We were asked in the last minutes of the session to do things which should have been done years ago."

Walter F. Fay, 53, an insurance company executive, was named to represent the riding.

Lambton West now is held by Progressive Conservative J. W. Murphy.

Mr. Pearson, criticizing the budget, said the Liberals will have the job of getting the economy on the move again.

Mr. Pearson had planned to attend the rally. He said business has kept him in Ottawa "as it will be the last week of the session I will be present."

Steel Chiefs Take Dramatic Method of Declaring War

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

American steel bosses did such a flat-footed job of public relations in announcing price increases that some observers believe it was deliberate.

One theory was that the big steel companies — whose chiefs are often Republicans — took a dramatic method of declaring war on President Kennedy and his Democratic advisers, and of down - grading Kennedy in the public eye.

Kennedy, apparently, knew nothing of the price increase until Roger M. Blough, chairman of the U.S. Steel Corporation, asked for an interview at the White House Tuesday and handed him a press release.

This, says Kennedy, was a shock and humiliation to him since the steel companies and the United Steelworkers of America had signed a new contract after negotiations in which there had been no threat of a price increase.

Kennedy's administration was not a partner at the bargaining table. But the president and Labor Secretary Goldberg have long been urging that labor and industry — in their deliberations — be more concerned with the "public good." Kennedy had especially pleaded for stable prices.

There are some differences of opinion about whether the price increase — as Kennedy says — is unjustified. But observers are just about unanimous in the view that about the timing of the announcements, even if they were meant as a declaration of political war.

They came as Kennedy prepared for a regular press conference in which he had a tremendous opportunity immediately to lambaste the steel companies and, by television, newspapers and radio.

As one commentator put it: "This might make no difference if American business didn't spend a lot of money trying—as the advertising boys say—to improve their image.

"In this case they must have sent their public relations men home."

Harkness Is Challenged To Repeat Charge Outside

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Harkness Thursday was challenged to repeat outside the Commons his charge that a militia chaplain and two non-commissioned officers carried on political activity while on military duty.

The challenge was thrown across the floor by an angry H. W. Herridge, CCF - New Democratic Party House leader, who says the three militiamen accused of political activity while on military duty have denied the charge.

Mr. Harkness said he would decline to accept or reject the challenge.

He said he stands by the statement he made Wednesday and that he has confidence in the information given him.

Statements made by MPs in the Commons are privileged but not those made outside the House.

Mr. Harkness said Wednesday in reply to questions by Mr. Herridge that Capt. (the Rev. W. B. Mundy had been asked to refrain from political activity in the armory at Creston, B.C. Mr. Mundy is the New Democratic Party candidate in Kootenay East in the next federal election. The ridin- adjoins that of Mr Herridge.

Mr. Harkness also said the two NCOS had tried to influence militia members before a parade "in favor of the NDP." Both were members of an NDP club. They had been asked to cease political activities or withdraw from their militia duties.

Mr. Herridge said he has received a telegram from Creston saying that the chaplain and two NCOs are busy political activity while on militia duty and urging Mr. Harkness to repeat his statement outside the Commons.

Mr. Harkness said he would have no objection to giving Herridge's report outside the Commons or anywhere else.

Mr. Herridge then asked whether Mr. Harkness would say outside the Commons that the three militiamen had carried on political activity while on military duty.

Mr. Harkness did not give a direct reply to this demand.

U.S.-Soviet Talks on Berlin Start Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — New United States-Soviet talks on Berlin will start Monday and Gen. Lucius D. Clay said Thursday a peaceful settlement of the long-festering dispute may be possible.

State department press officer Lincoln White announced that State Secretary Rusk has called in the new Soviet ambassador, Anatoly F. Dobrynin, for U.S.-Soviet discussion on ways to solve the Berlin problem.

Previous U.S.-Soviet rounds on this major cold war sore point were conducted last fall and again earlier this year in inconclusive results. The Russians continue to insist that Berlin solution which the Western powers say would damage their vital interests in the city.

How to Buy and Care for a Home

Does It Pay to Prepay?

Is it wise — or foolish — to pay cash for your house, or to pay off a big chunk of your outstanding mortgage if you have the money available?

The answer: it all depends — on your finances, on whether you may wish to sell in the near future, on the investment return you might obtain elsewhere, on the level of inflation, on a lot of things.

The first fact to consider is that the money you spend on a home is an investment. In order to acquire that home, you must likely have borrowed money from someone else. Each month you pay them back a little of this money, along with interest on the amount you still owe them.

EARLIER THE BETTER

It stands to reason that during the first few years of your occupancy, when your balance yet to be paid is still large, a much higher proportion of your monthly payment is going for interest than for the principal of your debt. Therefore, the earlier in the life of your mortgage you pay off a big chunk of the outstanding principal, the more interest you save.

With some mortgages, it's not possible to prepay a portion of your debt anytime you wish, however. This constitutes a change in the terms of your agreement with your creditor, and he has been counting on you to adhere to those terms for the life of the loan. On conventional mortgages, lenders' policies vary and are sometimes flexible. Some charge a penalty for prepayment. Others restrict the times and amounts which you can pay in this manner. The cost of any penalty would have to be weighed against your savings in interest, to discover if it were profitable for you to make such a prepayment.

With an NHA loan, you have the prerogative of paying off an additional 10% of the principal on each of the first two anniversaries of the date you assumed your mortgage. This amount cannot exceed 10 per cent of the original amount of your loan, however, and you are liable for a bonus to your lender of three months' interest on the amount.

On the third anniversary of your mortgage, you may pay off all or part of the remainder of the money you still owe, again providing you pay a bonus of three months' interest on the extra amount you pay off.

When you make any extra partial payments on your mortgage in this manner, normally the subsequent monthly payments remain the same, so that your mortgage is retired sooner than the original terms called for.

Even though the National Housing Act sets out certain policies, as described above, however, it should be kept clearly in mind that the lending company is the deciding body. It has the liberty of saying yes to those terms, depending on the merits of the individual case in its judgment.

If you are in the position of being able to pay cash for your house, you are able to save yourself payment of any interest whatsoever. In other words, you become your own lending and lending money to yourself at the prevailing rate of six per cent or more.

But your money is not then standing anything for you. It is invested in a fixed asset, and your equity in it are the amount the value of that asset appreciates. The only way you would realize a return on your investment, while retaining interest to yourself regularly your home, would be to sell and invest it somewhere.

Even if you have the cash, it may not be wise to put it all into your house at the outset. A large reserve should be retained for family financial emergencies, for one thing. There are sometimes more important things than getting your mortgage paid off as quickly as possible. And there are things which are not investments.

There is also the matter of inflation to consider. It has become increasingly easy to keep the value at the rate of keeping four per cent a year in Canada. Over the long haul, it means that 10 years from now you will pay in mortgage and interest, payments will be worth only $80 in today's dollars. This is one reason real estate is such a popular investment in times of inflation; because while the terms of payment are set today, the payments on your home in the future in dollars of less and less real worth. In this way it can be reasoned that you are money by going into debt — if inflation continues.

Therefore, even if you have the money now to pay cash for your house, or to make a very large down payment, it might be more profitable for you in the long run to take normal mortgage terms and invest your extra money elsewhere.

When you're in this realm of investment, however, you can expect some assistance. Investment implies risk. Your best adviser is not always the most competent financial adviser you know — your bank's investment counsellor or mortgage company representative. Before him, discuss the alternative ways of using your capital. Only then can you decide the most advantageous method of investing it.

Every Home Gardener Can Grow Wide Variety of Roses

The rose is grown by home owners everywhere. Its success is due in large measure to its many uses. Its flowers can decorate inside the home, can be worn as a corsage, or beauty outdoors on the property. There are six principal types of roses, the home owner can choose, as follows:

1. Hybrid tea — offering the most perfectly formed flowers, though somewhat fewer in number. They are excellent for cut flowers.

2. Floribunda — offering many flowers on each plant; sometimes a hundred or more. These are also good for cut flowers and they give striking landscape effects.

3. Climbing roses — offering striking landscape effects. They make excellent plants for growing on a trellis or trained on one side of a garage, back porch, or elsewhere on the property. They are beautiful when trained along a fence.

4. Grandiflora — this newest type offers large flowers of excellent form, color and fragrance. Plants are large and fairly tall, their uses similar to floribunda.

5. Tree roses are growing in popularity. They are used as accent plants in landscaping and along driveways where a taller plant, (around four to five feet) is desired.

6. Miniature roses — offering unusually attractive borders for flower beds. The small boutonnieres, and for feminine corsages are ideal to wear, besides providing variety of cut flowers for the home.

Polyantha and hybrid perpetuals are often used in landscaping. Consult with your local nurseryman for the type best suited for your particular requirements.

RAISING THE WALLS — Frame walls may be built vertically, or a whole section may be assembled, braced and cladded then lifted into place as a unit. This method speeds up the job of erection.

Stud Frame Popular Type Of House Construction

Wood framing is the most common type of wall construction for houses built in Canada. There are many reasons for this. The open frame permits economy in the use of materials; assembly is simple, the walls are easily insulated and are light but sturdy when braced and sheathed.

The frame wall consists of a horizontal plate at the lower end, a sole plate upright studs usually 16 inches apart, and a double plate at the top. Studs are doubled around all openings, such as doors and windows, to provide strength. In addition, this offers a wider surface for nailing finishing.

Although studs can be nailed vertically end to end, a more common method is to assemble the wall section on the floor with door and window openings, then raise the whole section into position as a unit.

In stud framing both face nailing and toe nailing are used. In face nailing, the nail is driven through the board into the adjoining member. With toe nailing, nails are driven at an angle through the end or the edge of one piece of lumber into the next. For example, a lapped joint, in which the end of one member extends across part of the other, is face nailed, while an upright member, such as a stud, is toe nailed to the bottom plate. Another term is "end nailing" which refers to the face nailing of one member to the end of another.

The bottom horizontal piece in the window framing is called the bottom header or rough sill; the one above the window opening is called the top header or lintel. Lintels are usually from four to twelve inches deep, depending on the width of the window opening. The larger openings with heavy loads or long spans require the heavier lumber. A lintel can be a single piece of lumber or it can be built up with two pieces of lumber laid on edge. In this way the lintel is made stronger, since the greater depth of the lumber is used to carry the load.

Each stud, whether single or doubled, must be made of a single piece of lumber. Two pieces nailed end to end cannot be used for stud framing. However, joints will normally be found in top plates because a single piece of lumber can seldom be obtained to run the full length of the house. Joints in top plates should come directly over a stud.

Where two outside walls meet and at the intersection of an outside wall and an interior partition, the top plate should be lapped. The lapped members are also nailed to each other from the top.

At the four corners of the house and at any other exterior angle, the framing is strengthened by adding an extra stud to form a corner post. This three-stud arrangement is also used wherever a bearing partition meets the exterior wall. These studs are nailed together in such a manner as to provide adequate backing for wall board or lath. If plaster is to be used as the interior finishing material, or for the panel edges, if dry wall finish is called for.

BRACING PROVIDES STRENGTH

Stud framing walls are not strong enough, usually, to hold up the roof and at the same time resist lateral pressures without some sort of bracing. There are a number of ways of doing this.

In a one-storey building the exterior sheathing, if properly nailed, will provide sufficient bracing. Added strength may be achieved by nailing a board diagonally across the studs. The board is recessed into the studs which are notched for this purpose.

In a two-storey house diagonal bracing is required in addition to any bracing provided by fibreboard sheathing, but may be omitted if panels or lumber laid diagonally is used as sheathing.

There is a right way of nailing each type of sheathing, depending on whether it is wood, plywood, fibreboard or gypsum board. Fibreboard sheathing should be nailed on too tightly. Fibreboard is softtextured and readily undersize hammer blows. Excessive hammering either bruises the board or else drives the nail head into the material. As the joining system of panel sheathing takes place in the framing members, nailheads have a tendency to work further into the fibreboard, thus impairing its bearing value.

If fibreboard or gypsum sheathing is used, the exterior walls should not be left uncovered for too long a period, as unnecessary stains or deterioration may occur.

Plywood is more rigid than other types of panel sheathing, which partly offsets its lower insulating qualities. The bottom ends of plywood panels should never be nailed to the floor framing. Otherwise, when the lumber shrinks a gap will develop between the floor and the frame, and the wall will then, in effect be supported by the plywood alone.

A gap of 1-16 to 1-8 or an inch however, should be left between panel edges when they are used as exterior sheathing. The opening does not weaken the structure and it allows for expansion in the plywood caused by absorption of moisture. If this space is not provided, the framework may buckle under the strain.

PIPE MEASURING

To measure the outside diameter of a piece of pipe slip an adjustable (with parallel jaws) over the pipe and close the jaws to fit around it. Slide out the tool without disturbing the distance between the jaws.

MIXING PLASTER

To avoid lumps when mixing plaster, put water into the container first and then add the powder to the water.

GARDEN WORLD GROWS WIDER

A little while ago we were wondering what sort of vegetables our great grandmothers in London city couldn't name very many. Even in summertime fairly fair variety was certainly limited to Canada. And we got through the winter with a very scurvy and goodness knows what is completely beyond us.

But thanks to the plant breeders and experimental farms we have a wonderful choice and even if we are beyond the 160 mile wide quarantine belt in Canada where over 90 per cent of the population are still to reside, we still have quite a selection. Fifty years ago, in most parts of Canada there was very little chance for corn, tomatoes, melons, cucumbers and even pumpkins. Fifty years ago lots of Canadians had never tasted cauliflower, broccoli, celery, Kona beans, musk melon or any of the beautiful and easily grown squash we have today. And fifty years ago carrots and beets had tough cores, celery had strings, and beans did not snap. Nor only are the modern vegetables quicker, and hardier to grow and less resistant to disease, but quality, especially when we get them right out of our own garden in the kitchen door, is vastly improved.

LOTS OF FLOWERS FOR JUST A FEW CENTS

Since last war, house builders and town planners seem to have discovered that people like gardens, and consider than just enough room for a clothesline and a baby carriage. At any rate, in the new areas where the lots are far larger than they used to be. And this is a good thing for the husband or wife that likes to garden. With a 50 to 100 foot lot we can really make a big show with flowers and it needn't be expensive. If we plant our own seed. Of course if we want a lot of start, sed plants, and want them extra early it is advisable to make a hot bed or at least cold frame. complete directions for which will be found in government bulletins or books on gardening. But if we live in any of the warmer parts of Canada it is surprising what we can do simply by planting the seeds outside in the ordinary garden. At least two weeks can be saved if we plant some of the hardy seed extra early and protect it right in the garden with some panes of glass, propped up a few inches, or clear plastic paper on special wand paper covers, available in seed stores.

In England gardeners usually make a regular practice of sheltering some of the early seeding with panes of glass for a few weeks. This keeps off frost and cold winds and increases the heat from the sun. Germination and early growth are hastened and at least a fortnight is gained in early bloom or maturity, in the case of vegetables. Even with this first of the started plants such as tomatoes, cabbage and sinnias, many commercial growers protect with paper covers or glass for the first few weeks.

EARLY JOB

While waiting for the ground to dry there is one garden job of these plants.

that can be tackled any time. This is a spring clean up, a sort of housekeeping of the flower beds, lawns and vegetable gardens. Old brush, weeds, leaves and other unattractive material should be raked up. Shrubs, trees and vines should be pruned, with all dead wood removed, and any injury to branches repaired. Any dead fruit left on apple, pear or plum trees should be gathered up and if disease is suspected it is best to burn. The same applies to weeds and dead stems of perennials if there is any likelihood that insect pests may have lived over the winter in them. If one has not done so in the fall, early spring is also a fine time to cut off and burn the old asparagus tops and last year's raspberry canes. Almost invariably destructive beetle, and other pests will be holed up in the more or less hollow stems of these plants.

Building Materials Can Be Adapted to Many Uses

Now aren't you ashamed of all the times you've walked past construction projects, and dismissed them as ugly and just utilitarian?

Plain Jane and No Nonsense items that they are, with a little help they can mingle with the best of 'em at a patio, party, or add a bright touch of color when the flower beds begin to look drab.

Choose your colors deftly, keeping in mind both the house and garden colors, then stand back and polish your nails on your lapel while the friends exclaim over the yet unfamiliar furniture you have.

As the cost-of-living charts rise perilously, it is more true today than it ever was that in order to keep up we have to substitute time and ingenuity for money.

Here's an object lesson, and you can go on from there with your own variations. Homely objects viewed with a new eye can burst the bonds of their very familiarity, and become something new, different, and fery worthwhile.

For example? Well, suppose you decided that you like that fir plywood underpadded for extra comfort, but could afford it only for occasional bare padding right now. What's wrong with cutting up that old felt mattress in the basement and covering it with some cheerful plastic from the local five-and-dime?

Or, perhaps you would like to preserve the natural wood grain of the fir plywood. Experiment with stains, but pick a weatherproof one which will last as long as waterproof-glued fir plywood, stamped PMBC Exterior on the end.

By the way — next time you are in your local hardware store, give the stock a searching look. You may just find the thing you have been looking for to complement your new frock.

And the next time you visit your local lumber yard, do a bit of snooping in the yard. Ask the owner for help. You'll be amazed at his ingenuity!

Housing Hints

(A New Feature by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation)

Q. What steps should you take after you've decided to build a house?

A. Engage an architect at least that would be the ideal procedure, with his experience, an architect would not only design a house to fit your family's needs, but would also ensure that the price was within the amount you wished to invest in the property. He would prepare the necessary specifications and also select the contractor and supervise construction of the house for you. Another method, of course, is to select a suitable building site, select stock house plans—such as those available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation—and have a contractor build from these plans.

Q Do you need the help of trained professionals when you set out to build or buy a House?

A: Definitely. The lawyer, realtor, architect and builder can all be of great assistance to the prospective homeowner. And, of course, we must not forget the lender who can also offer professional advice in his own field. Obviously, the person who wishes to buy a ready-built house won't require the services of an architect or builder. Likewise, a potential homeowner who wants a custom-built house may not have to deal with a realtor if he already owns a building site. But it would be foolhardy for us to think that we can do better than the professionals.

Q. Do most new homeowners buy rather than build their own houses?

A. Yes they do. By far the greatest number purchase ready-built houses and there are several reasons for this. First of all the prospective homeowner sees exactly what he's paying for and he knows definitely what it's going to cost him. It's a much less complicated transaction for the purchaser and he is sometimes able to move into his new home immediately. More important, perhaps, is the fact that the house will probably cost less than if he were to build one of the same size and quality of construction.

Q. Is it cheaper to buy rather than build a new house?

A. Yes. Remember there's economy in quantity. A builder constructing houses for sale quickly has a number of units underway at the same time. Materials are purchased in large quantities and such items as the excavation work for foundations cost less per unit because all the work is being carried out at the same location. In addition, the builder has an experienced working force that can keep construction progressing at a rapid pace and the overhead expenses of the builder are spread over the total number of houses. All of these savings are reflected in the selling price of the dwellings.

Investment Viewpoint Rates Top Priority In Planning Projects

For every $3 spent on new homes last year, industry sources estimate that $1 was spent on the expansion, remodelling, repair and modernization of existing homes. This ratio, in dramatic contrast to that of ten years ago, when the proportion was 10 to 1 in favour of new construction, points up the rapid acceleration of home improvement activity from coast to coast.

A prime reason for the upsurge appears to be that many families, faced with the need for extra rooms or the urge for more up-to-date living conveniences, or both, have found it advantageous to expand, remodel or modernize their present homes rather than to buy or build new ones.

Owners are increasingly (and very wisely) looking at home improvements from the standpoint of an investment. That is, they are very carefully considering just how the projected improvements will affect the resale value of their homes.

If you are contemplating home improvements, it would, accordingly, be well for you to ask yourself these questions:

To what degree will the projects you plan increase the value of your home?

If you wanted to sell in a year (or 10 years) would the improvements you have in mind be those that most people would want in their homes?

OWNERS SURVEYED

Bearing directly on such an evaluation is a recent survey of home owners which disclosed that the modernizing and remodelling jobs they wanted most, ed were, in order: (1) kitchens, (2) basements, (3) bathrooms, (4) attics.

Also high on the list were bedrooms, outdoor recreation, extra storage space and the modernization of heating units.

With other substantial costs mounting as they inevitably will, it would appear that a well-considered improvement should enhance the resale value of a home by substantially more than the actual cost of the project, thus fulfilling the basic requirement of a sound investment.

For those planning to fix up their homes this year, time is an important factor. Because of the boom in improvement and modernization business expected for this Spring, the sooner such projects can be launched, the better.

Here to help you get off to a good start is a four-point program:

1. Make your plans. Review your whole manner of living. Then determine your home improvement goals. Do you need an extra bedroom, a downstairs playroom for the kids or perhaps a den? Set up a schedule. Space your projects over several years if you wish.

ADDING ROOMS

2. Decide where to make your new additions. Pick a wholly or partially enclosed area, if you can. Consider your attic, basement, porch, garage, breezeway or carport as possible sources of extra living space. If you plan to build a brand new wing, make sure that your property is large enough so that the addition will not violate local building codes.

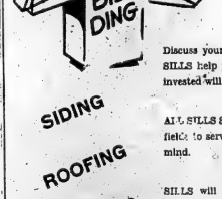
3. Pick a reliable contractor. Get cost estimates from at least three firms. Ask for the names of their local banks. Check the reputation of each contractor with his bank. Also ask for the names of former customers, especially those who have done jobs similar to the one you contemplate done in the past. Talk to these customers about their experiences with the contractors.

4. Figure your finances. How much do you have in savings that you can divert to home improvements? Don't dig too deep. Consider a home improvement loan instead. Talk things over with the loan officer at your local bank or other financial institution. He can help you evaluate the various loan plans that are available in terms of your individual needs and means.

Start Lawnwork Early

Lawn work can start almost as soon as the snow has melted. Work on grass seed and fertilizer in the soil to give the seed a head start.

Grass seed sown in early spring or fall in most parts of Canada should be sown either late in the month of June or after the first of September. This means that with a new lawn or repairs to an old one, you should attempt to get the seed in the ground while the weather is still on the cool side.



Too many people seem to forget that grass is a plant, and like other plants it needs food and moisture regularly for the best results. The application of commercial fertilizer, high in nitrogen every spring or fall and thorough watering during very dry weather, will insure a smooth, healthy growth and rich deep colour. Of course even more important is good seed, because without it, it will be impossible to produce a first class lawn. And good seed for the average home owner will be a mixture of several varieties, specially balanced to produce even, fine and deep green turf throughout the entire season.

Multi-Outlet Assemblies Can Power Numerous Appliances

To operate all the small kitchen appliances such as toasters, coffeemakers, wafflemakers and electric knives in homes it is essential to have sufficient outlets to have these electric servants ready to work.

When it becomes necessary to remove a plug each time another appliance is to be plugged in, one of two things happens: the [illegible] is overfuse or in the house rigs up a dangerous, dangerous [illegible] device to supply additional sockets; or the not-too-frequently-used appliance ends up on the closet shelf or in the basement.

Today, however, a simple way to make certain that the electrical power in the wires is available is the application of outlet assemblies provide an attractive, economical method of being certain the kitchen has a

Timely Hints

One is missing a whole lot of fun and satisfaction by sticking to the same old varieties year after year. It is an excellent idea to deliberately choose one absolutely new flower and at least one new vegetable each season. In this way, we broaden our knowledge and make worthwhile discoveries.

Window boxes and hanging pots need far more water than most people realize. This is especially true in warm, dry or windy weather when the evaporation is extra high. Watering daily is none too often then.

WARM PUTTY

When replacing a broken window in cold weather, heat a brick and lay putty on it while working. This keeps the putty soft and oily.

nomical to install it provides the kitchen with a flexibility designed to meet changing needs and varied appliance placement.

In general a multi-outlet strip system consists of a metal channel with outlets located at pre-determined intervals, from six inches to five feet, along a continuous strip.

Contemporary ranch with extras! A pleasing note is the long, protected front porch. Double front doors lead into hall containing coat closet, washroom with vanitory, stairs to basement and arch to living-dining room featuring studio ceiling throughout. Living room has a stacked brick corner fireplace, high placement of rear windows for privacy and flexible furniture arrangement and dining area has cabinet. Most dramatic however, are the two 7' sliding glass doors leading to terrace with barbecue grill. Terrace has corrugated plastic roof with accent on color! Master bedroom has sliding door access to washroom and spacious closet. Window placement permits easy furniture arrangement. Other bedrooms have plenty of light, closets with sliding doors and ample wall space.

Claims Montreal Victory

Says Kaps Will Take It

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP)—Montreal Olympics and Kapuskasing Kaps are both going to win the Eastern Canada Allan Cup final—if you listen to the coaches.

Maurice Filion, whose Olympics took the opener 2-0 to run their winning streak to seven games, said Thursday his team "played well . . . and I am happy with the results."

Bummer Doran of the Kaps vowed that his boys "can take them, but we'll have to play much better hockey than in the first game."

Next game is tonight and both coaches, said they plan to use the same lineups as in the opener.

Both coaches agreed that the better team won the opening game and both believe the better team will reach the final.

Doran felt the Kaps played their worst hockey of the season when they lost the opener Wednesday. He said the Montrealers played good defensive hockey and deserved to win.

Each team came out of the opener with a minor injury but both will be back in action tonight.

Defenceman Bert Bourassa of the visitors suffered a five-stitch cut over the right eye while Kap forward Marcel Mercier missed the last 10 minutes of Wednesday's action because of a painfully bruised finger.

Although Dr. Giles paid only $3.70 to win, the quinella of Dr. Giles and Streamline Lee, a 9-to-1 shot, yielded $27.50.

TORONTO (CP) — Referee Frank Udvari, who disallowed two goals in Thursday night's Stanley Cup game, said he struck by the rules in both cases.

In the second period Chicago centre Stan Mikita scored after he knocked the puck out of the grasp of Toronto goalkeeper Johnny Bower.

"Bower blocked the puck, holding it between his arm and his side," Udvari said in his dressing room after the game won 2-1 by Toronto.

"I blew the whistle because I lost sight of the puck. It went into the net when Mikita hit Bower after the whistle had gone."

Chicago coach Rudy Pilous criticized the decision.

"I don't know why he blew the damn whistle," Pilous said. "It was a judgment play all right. Everybody in the country saw the puck except Udvari, apparently."

Udvari also called back a goal by Toronto left winger Ed Litzenberger, who batted in a flying puck in the third period.

"He had his stick above his shoulder when he shot," Udvari said.

Litzenberger disagreed.

"That was a good goal," he said. "Hell, I'm six-feet-three and if I had it with my stick above the shoulder it would have gone over the net. He's (Udvari) got no argument."

Lane, Molina Meet Saturday

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—Undefeated lightweight Louis Molina, who won notice and ranking with two bonfire victories in a week this year, figures he'll have Saturday night whether he's ready to challenge for the 135-pound title.

The 25-year-old former United States Marine fights veteran Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., in a 10-rounder to be televised by ABC starting at 10 p.m. EST. CFTO-TV in Toronto will carry the event.

"If I beat Lane, I'm going to Las Vegas and challenge the winner of the Joe Brown-Carlos Ortiz title fight," Molina said Thursday.

He got his first chance before a TV audience on short notice Feb. 24, outpointing Texas Manuel Gonzales at Las Vegas, Nev., as a substitute bout when the Brown - Ortiz match was postponed.

On Tuesday, of the same week in San Jose, Molina had knocked out veteran Lan Mathews in the first round. The victories were No. 18 and 19 for the little slugger who turned pro in 1959.

EVINRUDE talks torque

Torque is power where you need it. In outboards that means right at the propeller, when you want to plane a big boat fast, or lift a string of skiers with authority.

The Evinrude Starflite develops this kind of torque, gives this kind of performance. A powerful, deep-breathing, marine engine, it delivers an honest 75 h.p. (rated by OBC).

This is the motor that holds the world's outboard speed record of 122.97 m.p.h. yet runs at full throttle quietly (with no high-pitched whine), because ① its fibreglas hood is lined with cellular polyether; ② the booming exhaust is silenced under water; ③ the balanced, V-4 powerhead rides on aircraft-type ④ live-rubber mounts.

Its large capacity (89.5 cu. in. or 1198 c.c.'s) means flashing getaway and its short-stroke design means economical cruising all day long.

New for '62 is "Selectrio" shift; ⑤ superb, pushbutton control that allows instant ahead-astern-ahead with no gear "clunk" because ⑥ the gears remain meshed: the change is smooth and positive, right on the propeller shaft.

Feature-for-feature and dollar-for-dollar, the 1962 Evinrude awaits your closest inspection, at your Evinrude dealer's! Now.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Twenty-four years ago Mike Karakas, suffered a broken big toe. Now this isn't unusual in hockey, but there are a few guys still around who'll never forget it.

It has to go down as the most celebrated busted digit in Stanley Cup history. It precipitated charges of double dealing, fights and possibly the wildest behind-the-scenes shenanigans the cup has known in its long existence.

Conn Smythe, Bill Stewart, King Clancy, Frank Selke and Bobby Colton certainly remember it. Before the swelling went down and Chicago Black Hawks had beating Toronto Maple Leafs in the cup final they all were mixed up in an unscheduled fist - swinging episode right in Toronto's Maple-Leaf Gardens.

The year was 1938. Karakas in case the younger generation doesn't remember, was the Black Hawk goaltender. Smythe was manager of the Leafs, Selke his sidekick and Clancy and Colton a couple of old Leaf players. Stewart was Chicago's manager.

WANTED KERR

Karakas had suffered his injury in the last semi-final game against the old New York Americans and, naturally enough, Stewart wanted a replacement for the best-of-five final against the Leafs.

Stewart wanted to use Dave Kerr of New York Rangers in the Hawk nets but the late Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, ruled him ineligible because he had already participated in three cup playoff matches.

Kerr was dressing for the first game when Alfie Moore, New York Americans property who had been loaned to Philadelphia, arrived and announced he had been sent by Smythe to report for duty. Then the fun and games started.

Stewart left the Chicago dressing room, spotted Smythe standing near the Leaf doorway and immediately started talking about the "raw deal" his team had been given. Smythe replied heatedly and Selke entered the verbal duel.

SMYTHE THREW PUNCH

Newspaper reports of the day give this play-by-play account:

Selke said Stewart had been told that Kerr couldn't play. "You're a liar," roared Stewart.

Smythe leaped at Stewart with: "You're the guy that's always been talking about fighting everybody, but you can't call my pal Selke a liar and get away with it."

The Leafs head got in the first sharp punch, but Stewart retaliated with a right smash to the face. Both then got in a few short jabs before King Clancy and Joe Cotton separated the managerial pugilists."

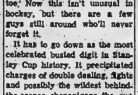
Moore played and Chicago won 2-1.

Calder then ruled Moore ineligible for the second game and Paul Goodman, property of Hawks whom Stewart had never seen in his life, was found handy in a movie house 20½ hours before the opening faceoff.

Toronto won 3-1.

Karakas returned to the Hawk nets for the third game and Doc Romnes broke a 2-2 deadlock with about four minutes remaining. Leafs claimed the shot hit the post, but they were overruled by Referee Clarence Campbell, now NHL president, and Chicago took a 3-4 lead in games.

STEWART FIRED!



Karakas again was in the nets for the fourth game which Chicago won 4-1.

Hawks won the Cup and Stewart lost his job. He was fired the next season.

Now, Hawks and Leafs are meeting again for the first time since that memorable year.

Goalkeeper Glenn Hall of Chicago has suffered all sorts of ailments. A much more drastic injury than a broken toe would be necessary to keep him out.

Besides, he's played more than 500 consecutive NHL and cup games and there are only two other players who can boast of this record—the original Iron man, Murray-Murdoch of New York Rangers back in the 1920's and 1930s, and Johnny Wilson of the current Ranger team.

AT THE PARK — Ricardo Montalban, one of the screen's most popular male stars, is co-starred with Greta Thyssen and Carmen Sevilla in one of the exciting scenes in the Cinemascope Color feature "Desert Warrior", showing today and Saturday at the Park Theatre. On the same program is exciting color, "Journey to the Seventh Planet", starring John Agar and Greta Thyssen. Continuous show from 1.00

Don't Make Drinkers Like They Used to Says Lorre

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "They just don't make drinkers the way they used to," said Peter Lorre, his fried-egg eyes almost brimming with tears.

We were sitting over lunch on a miserable day, chill fog and acrid smog heavy on the air. This was in the dark reaches of Culver City, where Peter was playing his goonish self in something called Five Weeks in a Balloon.

Somehow, between the fried chicken and the coffee, Peter started talking about the old days.

"I don't want to sound culogistic about those times," he said, "but dammit, they were great. Today isn't so great.

"The drinking is a slower down. I don't like it. It's just easy that has done it. We just don't have the incentive to drink any more.

"There never was a team like Bogie (Humphrey Bogart, of course) and me. Oh, the times we had! The old gang stood the time we blackmailed Mike Curtiz into a sense of humor? No? Let me tell you.

BOGIE MISCHIEVOUS

"Curtiz was directing us in Passage to Marseilles. One night Bogie and I were drinking and he said: 'I'm going to get that guy to laugh.'

"The next day Bogie was absent on a scene when he said he wanted to tell Curtiz a joke. Curtiz said wait until after the take, but Bogie went ahead with a pointless, involved joke that took 20 minutes. Curtiz said, 'Heh heh. Now let's shoot it.'

"It took 26 takes to get the scene. I picked up the cue and said Curtiz a long time before he'd say take. He said 'heh heh. Now let's shoot it.' My scene took 27 takes.

"This went on for two days. Curtiz knew something was up because we were one - take guys. The next day Bogie and I failed to work at the big studio 22. Curtiz was clear at the other end of the stage, but as soon as we walked in the door, he started laughing. And he always laughed at our jokes after that."

Curtiz died this week.

Bisons Whip Hershey 5-1, Even Series

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Dave Creighton, 32-year-old centre who played for Hershey 20 years ago, led Buffalo Bisons to a 5-1 victory over Hershey Bears Thursday night that cut their best - of - five American Hockey LLeague semi-final 1-1. Creighton set up the first goal for the Bisons at 4:46 of the first period when Murray Hall scored from right in front of the net.

After Hershey had tied the game at 14:04 on a goal by Al Johnson, Creighton took a pass from Ron Ingram and sent it underneath the pads of Hershey goalie Bobby Perreault at 19:35 for what proved to be the game-winner.

The second period was scoreless, but Hall scored again at 16:28 of the final period to put the Bisons ahead 3-1. After Brian Cullen had scored an unassisted goal, Creighton set up Wayne Hicks with the final goal at 18:04 of the final period.

The Bears now go back to Buffalo for the third and fourth games Saturday and Sunday.

Soccer Blokes Don't Fool Over Ome

ROTHWELL, England (CP) — A fiery temper cost vanished centre-forward Ronnie Wonfor £10 and his soccer career.

Ing a Feb. 10 amateur league match between Rothwell Corinthians and Rothwell Town, Rough Woofer was pulled up by referee Brian Osborne for rough play.

In regulation manner Osborne produced his book and asked Woofer his name. The 21-year-old stalwart of the Rothwell forward line answered with an attack. When it was over the referee's nose was broken and his eyes were blackened.

Woofey left the field and the battered referee carried on with the game.

Two weeks later the Northamptonshire Football Association suspended Woofer permanently, ending his soccer career.

Osborne took the matter to the courts. A Northampton magistrate's court Wednesday fined the player £10 for assault.

Television Now on Verge Of Reruns for the Summer

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Now comes the period when television slows up and becomes relatively lazy in plastic bags and moth crystals and pulls out its collection of summer words.

As the days grow longer and screens replace screen doors, television gives a three-month vacation to such descriptive words and phrases as "dynamic," "original script," "fresh approach," "novel use of," of course, "live broadcast." They are used mostly in the late in dustry calls "promos," an abbreviation for "promotions," which are those short commercials dedicated to network coming attractions.

It is beside the point that these descriptives often are as inaccurate and misleading as the excited words on the cover of a paperback novel.

In their place come words which the viewer must view with equal suspicion if not downright cynicism: "Reruns of selected episodes," "Repeated by popular demand," and, "The best of ..."

Television is on the threshold of its annual season of repeats, and one of the first and closely held secrets of the big industry is the technique used in selecting, out of 26 or 39 programs in a series, 13 or more for rerunning.

AT THE ELLE — Bob Hope and Lana Turner head a cast of funmakers in MGM's "Bachelor in Paradise", showing today and Saturday at the Belle Theatre. Also playing roles are Paul Ford, Jacqueline and Color comedy are Janis Paige, Jim Hutton, Paula Prentiss, Don Porter, Virginia Grey and Agnes Moorehead. The signs are all around us. A youngster took a quick dip in the Bay of Quinte; the pickerel are sending out advance scouts; robins are househunting; fishing tackle is being aired; seed catalogues are in the mail, and moon-eyed youngsters are getting that look.

Softball and baseball leagues are girding their loins; hockey is in the final death throes to the wire; horsemen are loosening harness, getting the steeds ready for spring meets; the dowagers are seeking good tradesmen for 1961 girdle models; younger matrons and sprightly misses are eyeing the Easter bonnet creations; the old man is readying his pooner on the brook trout, and Ole Sol is screening some warmth through outer space winter blankets.

Jack Dickens and his arena ensemble are thinking of swapping hockey circles for wrestling rings. Ken Soden is readying plans for a bigger and better baseball season.

Softball Commissioner Cliff Belch is rounding up his squads; Russ Soule has his minor baseball squads under organization; soccer buffs are finalizing plans; golf pro George Balkas is sounding the Quinte fairways and greens into shape, and many other signs of spring are apparent.

HOCKEY

The Belleville McFarlands who could have been beaten by an average Juvenile team against Woodbridge Wednesday night sank to the Waterloo Siskins in the first of their semi-final best-of-seven series here tonight.

It is hoped the Gordie Bell youngsters got a bad one out of their collective systems for they'll need all their speed and hockey savvy to make those Waterloo backscoss say "uncle."

The climb uphill a pair of verdicts in the recent round-robin series, both games being more or less sing-and-luck battles. There's plenty at stake in the upcoming series with both teams eyeing a provincial championship.

A win tonight is a must for the Macs since they play the next two games in Kitchener.

Jean Paul Lamirande's Pepsis trek to Collingwood tomorrow for their second game intermediate "A" semi-finals with the Stratford Cherios. The Pepsis will stay over and play the third game in Barrie Sunday starting 2.30. Seems the Stratford arena has ice-making problems.

Trenton's great little midget minor "A" club are battling Tillsonburg in the OMHA finals. Both teams claim victories. The third game is in Trenton tonight starting 9.00 o'clock; the fourth game in Trenton tomorrow night, starting eight o'clock. Fifth, if necessary, in Trenton, April 19th.

SOCCER

Soccer opens here Sunday at two p.m. when Parsons Cleaners entertain the Inglis Canadians in an exhibition tilt at the fairgrounds. It should be a real test for the Belleville club.

Soccer people complain about lack of publicity for their sport. As far as this newspaper is concerned it is due to lack of co-operation on the part of the soccer people. They get schedules, changed, revised and whatnot published, as well as free advertising in the sports calendar.

But as far as soccer results are concerned the telephone is a mile away. Even Canadian newspapers and radio stations are well informed. What publicity the soccer people will get this season from this newspaper depends entirely upon themselves.

BASEBALL

The Lakeshore Baseball League is holding a meeting in Fort Hope Sunday and some important items are on the agenda. There are plans in the making to form a two-sectional league with intermediate teams, two from Kingston, two from Peterborough, and one from Belleville, comprising the eastern section. Lower bracket and junior squads from Newcastle, Orono, Newmarket, Fort Hope and Alex are being mooted for the western section.

Leafs, Beefs, Griefs Mark Cup Win

All In On Bleat Act

By BILL MacDOUGALL

TORONTO (CP) — Referee Frank Udvari's decisions were loud and clear—and so were the post-game squawks — as Toronto Maple Leafs edged Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 Thursday night to take a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final series.

Chicago coach Rudy Pilous was openly bitter over the refereeing. The Leafs, milder in their hour of victory, had a few beefs of their own. Udvari simply said he followed the rules in disallowing a goal for each side and refusing to award a penalty shot demanded by one side and a major penalty demanded by the other.

The Hawks were unhappy when Udvari called back Stan Mikita's second-period goal, having blown his whistle while Chicago's Bobby Hull dangled the puck before the Chicago defensive zone. It looked Pilous also felt the referee should have given Carl Brewer a penalty for his second period when he slammed Murray Balfour into the boards and the Hawks' right winger angered off with a mild concussion. Brewer's fisticuffsspan escaped with a minor.

The victorious Leafs were left wingers Ed Litzenberger, who had a goal disallowed because Udvari blew his whistle in with a high stick, and Frank Mahovlich, who thought he was entitled to a goal when he was tripped by Chicago defenceman Elmer Vasko. Both incidents happened in the third period.

Mikita, maintaining his hot playoff pace, scored both Chicago goals. Centre Dave Hakey Mahovlich and right winger George Armstrong scored for the Leafs.

The series swings to Chicago for the Hawks' home Sunday night and fourth Tuesday. The Chicago battles start at 9 p.m. EST.

Harris, sparingly used all season, was on ice for only about 20 seconds when he blocked defenceman Tim Horton's rebound and fired a 10-foot backhander past Hall to give the Leafs a 1-0 lead at 2:35 of the first period. Balfour was off at the time, for boarding Toronto defenceman Bobby Baun.

That was one of the four or five times Harris got on the ice. On one of the others, he had Hall at his mercy but the Chicago goaltender flashed out his glove to make the stop.

Mikita tied it 1-1 at 8:47 of the third period, capitalizing on the rebound of a shot by Al McDonald.

Mahovlich put Toronto ahead again a minute later, as Red Kelly carried the puck down the right boards from the Chicago blue line and passed to centre Red Kelly, who quickly tipped the puck to Mahovlich at the goalmouth.

Another goal-scoring spree, this time to Armstrong at 16:39 put the game out of reach.

Centre Stan Mikita, later up the play by passing from behind the Chicago net to Murray Balfour, whose screen gave the assist to Dick Duff. Seven later asked Udvari for a credit for the goal, but he and the referees said he would, only if there was an official correction on the goal.

Mikita's goal, his second goal, boosted his total in eight playoff games to five goals and 11 assists, at 16:27 of the third period, but it was too late for the Hawks to revive. Chicago's Red Hull and Chicago and Mikita drove it home.

Hall gave the crowd of 15,603 another thrill in outstanding performance. The Leafs checked the Hawks tenaciously and tested Hall unsuccessfully 31 times as they reasserted the form they lost in Tuesday night's 6-1 win. Bower made 29 saves.

In the Dressing Rooms

TORONTO (CP)—Billy Harris, the Toronto Maple Leafs' centre ice get a maximum of two goals with a minimum amount of ice time, said he would have had a second goal in Thursday night's Stanley Cup game if his shot had been a few inches higher.

The spatigney - used stick-handler was put on the ice in the first period on a power play and about 30 seconds later gave Toronto a 1-0 lead. Leafs went on to win their second straight game of the series 3-2.

During one of the other two or three times he was on the ice, Harris looked like he had Chicago goaltender Glenn Hall beaten for a second goal.

"He went down on his knees and stuck out his arm," Harris said. "I tried to get the puck over his arm. I had room to do it, but I missed by a few inches."

Leafs coach Punch Imlach was pleased, but not enthusiastic about the victory.

"It was a little tougher for us to win than the first game and the second (Sunday night in Chicago) will be a little closer, too, I would say."

Defenceman Carl Brewer said he thought the check that sent Hawks' right winger Murray Balfour out of the game with a mild concussion in the first period was "the cleanest check I ever put on."

"He just put his head down at the wrong time. I was trying to take him out of the play and was watching the puck. He put his head down. I hit him with my shoulder and he banged into the boards."

Brewer was given a boarding penalty.

Chicago coach Rudy Pilous blamed a quick whistle by referee Frank Udvari as one of the determining factors in his club's loss.

"Udvari found his whistle a lot faster on that play than he did on most others," Pilous said in reference to the disallowed goal ruling on a shot by Hawks centre Stan Mikita in the second period.

Mikita knocked the puck from between Leafs goaltender Johnny Bower's arm and chest and shot it into the net. Leafs' ref Udvari blew the whistle as soon as Bower grabbed the puck.

Pilous was also critical of the way Udvari dismissed the whole thing when Hawks' goalie Pierre Pilote questioned the official.

"Get away from me or it will cost you $25," was what Udvari told Pilote, Pilous said. "I don't know what the CA is supposed to mean on the sweater. If you get answers like that on a legitimate beef ..."

Pilous also made an issue when he didn't give Brewer a major on the play that Murray Balfour suffered. Balfour had blood on his forehead but I guess Udvari must have thought it was tomato juice or something. The referees must be frustrated by how to call a play like that though, with all the clutching, grabbing and holding going on by the other team."

Pilous then said he didn't want to be criticizing as an alibi.

"We have given more goals again tonight," he said. "But I thought our guys came back well, too, under the circumstances."

Both coaches said ice might make a big difference, Pilous said, referring to the next two games.

"I agree," said Punch Imlach of the Leafs, Pilous said;

"I agree," said Smythe and Harold Ballard (Leafs executive) are having a lot of trouble with the jewellery. Some pieces of them are fighting as to who will engrave the Stanley Cup. But we've still got it locked up and intend to keep it. We aren't finished yet."

Great Cast Of Castoffs

Colts Kick Up Heels In National

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dean Stone, 32, a journeyman lefthander who buried a three-win season for his first victory in the majors since 1957, is the newest hero on a rapidly growing list by Houston Colts' great cast of castoffs.

Becoming the third former American League southpaw to win for the National League's new entry, Stone blanked Chicago Cubs 2-0 Thursday for Houston's second straight shutout and third consecutive victory over the Cubs.

Stone, following the example set by Bobby Shantz and Hal Woodeshick, struck out nine men, walked only two, permitted only one batter to reach second base and hurled no-hit ball by the final six innings.

It was an auspicious start for the former Washington Senators pitcher, who had a lifetime won-lost record of 34-35 in the majors and spent the majority of the last five years in the International League. He was drafted from Charleston, W. Va., Colts.

Los Angeles southpaw Pete Richert tied three major league strikeout records in the Dodgers' 11-7 walloping of Cincinnati Reds.

FAN SIX STRAIGHT

Coming on in relief, Richert struck out Vada Pinson to end a four-run rally in the second inning. He struck out four men—one reached base when catcher John Romano let a third strike get past him—in the third inning, then fanned the first man he faced in the fourth before pitcher Joey Jay grounded out.

The six strikeouts tied the mark set in 1954 by the Dodgers' Karl Spooner. It also marked the consecutive strikeouts by a pitcher.

Braves.

Only making his major league debut and equalled the mark for relief pitchers established by Philadelphia's Jack Meyer in 1958. The four in one inning matched an often-accomplished feat.

San Francisco Giants walloped Milwaukee Braves 8-4 in the only other game scheduled.

Stone, like Woodeshick, gave the credit for his showing to coach Cot Deal and general manager Paul Richards, noted for reclaiming pitchers discarded by other clubs.

Stone got the run he needed on Hal Smith's run-producing single in the fourth inning and received some working room when Bob Anderson wild pitched Ken Aspromonte home in the eighth. Jack Curtis started on the mound for the Cubs and took the loss.

The Dodgers chased Cincinnati starter Joey Jay who lasted his second game of the season, in the fifth inning with a seven-run outburst.

Wally Moon's double knocked in the run that snapped the ice and Roseboro cloved the inning on an unusual note. He doubled, double play ball catcher Bob Miller threw to first—thinking Roseboro had missed the bag—and scored when the return throw to third went wild. Richert, who retired after 2 1-3 innings for a pinch hitter, got the victory.

Shortstop Jose Pagan drove in four runs for the Giants with a single, double and triple and also scored a run to make Jack Sanford's eight-inning chore easier. Sanford pitched shutout ball for seven innings before Joe Adcock hit a grand-slam homer in the eighth. Bob Buhl absorbed the defeat for the

Has Spectacular Debut

Tribe Likes Leaside Lad

CLEVELAND (AP) — The spectacular debut of rookie Ron Taylor has given a lift to Cleveland Indians' pitching, which was the club's main question mark when the season opened.

The young Canadian's performance against the Red Sox in Boston Wednesday convinced manager Mel McGaha that he had taken an important step in the right direction in giving Taylor a starting assignment.

Taylor, a 26-year-old right-hander from the Toronto suburb of Leaside, lost a 4-0 decision on a grand slam homer by Carroll Hardy after holding the Red Sox in check for 11 innings. He allowed 10 scattered hits, struck out five and gave up only three walks, all of them intentional. Two of the walks followed Ceal Yastrzemski's leadoff triple in the 12th to set the stage for Hardy's blast.

"You can't judge a pitcher on one performance, but Taylor certainly has demonstrated that he deserves every chance," McGaha said Thursday. "I'll probably start him against the Red Sox here Tuesday night."

Taylor, who had an 8-4 record with Salt Lake City last year, reported to the Indians' spring training camp at Tucson, Ariz., determined to make it all the way with the Indians this season.

PERFORMED WELL

"His determination, coupled with his ability, showed us that he warrants some starts in the exhibitions and he gave up only one learned run in 18 innings," McGaha said.

Taylor, promoted to the Indians from the last Friday, has moved into the starting rotation with veteran Dick Donovan, Bob Lemon and Ted Sox in the season's opener for the Tribe, and Barry Latman.

Jim Perry and Gary Bell, who were disappointing in the exhibition games, and rookie Sam McDowell are the likeliest candidates for the other places in the rotation.

The 6-foot-one Taylor has an electrical engineering degree from the University of Toronto, but at present is more interested in making a go of it as a major leaguer.

"There's no doubt that he could make more at engineering than his minimum major league salary," McGaha said. "But he wants to play. He's a real competitor, the kind of a guy you like to have around."

Anyone For Girls' Softball?

Anyone for girls' softball? Allen Sills, who looks after minor softball for the Belleville Minor Sports Association, would like to know.

But girls' softball has nothing to do with his BMSA activities.

He would like to see an industrial league composed of girls between the ages of 18 and 40.

He prefers a city league, but would settle for a district loop of say, Trenton, Brighton, Belleville and BCAF.

Anyone interested is asked to contact Mr. Sills at WO 8-7051.

Twins Belt Kansas City

Angels Goose-Egg White Sox 1-0

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

What's this? The American League a pitchers' haven?

The same sluggers who slammed a record 1,956 home runs during the 1953 campaign have been the victims of four shutouts when getting his season—the latest Ken McBridge's three-hit performance that gave Los Angeles Angels a 1-0 triumph over Chicago White Sox Thursday.

The righthander dueled with White Sox rookie Joel Horlen. Leo Wagner hit a 2-2 pitch for a homer leading off the ninth inning to settle things for the Angels.

McBride, 26, who had a 12-15 won-lost record last year as the Angels made their league debut, got the club's first shutout of the season just as he did in 1951, But he had to survive a rocky first inning in which a potential White Sox run was thrown out at the plate.

Luis Aparicio opened with a walk, then stole second. When Nellie Fox was safe on a fielder's choice, the fleet White Sox shortstop tried to score on Thomas' peg on the fly to catcher Bob Rodgers nailed Aparicio.

Meanwhile, Horlen held Kansas City Athletics 9-5 in the only other game played. Ned Wynkoop and Herb Score were rained out for the second straight day and the other clubs will resume action Friday.

The Tigers will try to get a split in today's doubleheader against New York Yankees, but the Twins already have been rained out of today's scheduled curtain-raiser at home against the Angels. Other home openers have Boston Red Sox at Baltimore against the Orioles and Washington Senators at Cleveland against the Indians.

While McBridge was keeping the White Sox scoreless, Horlen was equally as effective against the Angels. The lefty-sold righthander wound up with a pitching record of 5-5.

McBridge almost didn't make it through that first inning even though Aparicio was cut down at the plate. After he was pulled

Astrological Forecast

For April 14

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Key is dynamic action. If single day could be topped by exciting person and realization that your feelings are reciprocated. If married, you may rediscover deep emotions with partner.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Feeling that you must be secure could delay progress. Take a chance on your own abilities. To advance, you cannot be shored down with guarantees. Be free.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Stress the unusual. Not just to be "different" but because original ideas pay off today. Your own chart is stimulated in the area having to do with the intellect.

Cancer (June 22 to July 23): You're tempted by grass on other fellow's yard. You seek the exotic. If careless, you could hurt feelings of one close to you. Keep feet on ground. Be practical or your budget will collapse.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Tonight finds you celebrating without knowing why. Remember, Leo, there is a difference between recognition and notoriety. Keep responsibilities, ideals in mind.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23): Venus activated today in Ninth Solar sector of your chart. Best Virgo qualities come to fore. You can improve personal, home appearance, add to income by discovering time-saving methods. Have faith.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Unusual schemes proffered by friends could backfire. Be conservative. One who is more than a friend could mean well but not have the necessary qualifications. Heed your own counsel.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21): It may not be obvious, but there are persons working for your cause, today. Thus, try to be diplomatic. Self-control must be the key to avoid loss, embarrassment.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Plan your day for action. Tonight could be very good for dining out, for "romance," for lasting love come to fore. Appreciate friends.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Two close friends may argue and ask you to "referee." This is a good day to lose both friends. Stay out of disputes. Instead analyze assets, debits. Tonight, read and relax. Let others celebrate.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Restlessness evident today as you ask yourself "where to go, what to do." Answer may be to entertain at home. Intelligent discussions with friends could provide valuable information.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Keep activities on "low key," if possible. Too much stress and strain could be detrimental. Better try to relax early; you'll be happier tomorrow!

Refusal to Compromise

By ROY L. SMITH

One gets the impression as he reads the New Testament that those first century Christians were in some kind of a fight. They seemed forever contending with something or someone. They were always face to face with some moral issue concerning which they were expected to take sides. There were those individuals with whom they could not agree, except at the cost of their very souls.

The 20th century church forever gives the impression that it is trying to live at peace with everyone—with the newspapers, the politicians, the labor unions, the American Legion the Manufacturers' Association and the banks.

Somewhere I read a statement, said to have been made by Albert Einstein to the effect that when he first saw Nazism engulfing the German nation, he enjoyed a certain sense of security in the confidence that the labor movement and the universities would resist to the last ditch. But they did not. The famous scientist saw German professors of world-wide fame dismissed from their teaching posts because they did not teach "Nazi mathematics," or "Nazi biology." As if there could be two different brands of mathematics. Then to his amazement he listened as the Christian church, under the leadership of such indomitable souls as Pastor Niemoeller defy the Nazi-sect declared for the dignity and the independence of the human soul.

"I could scarcely believe it," he is said to have remarked. "It was a thrilling thing to watch an institution as it refused to compromise."

CHURCH IN THE ROMAN WORLD

No more difficult place could have been found in all the world in which to launch a world religion, than the Roman Empire. This was not because it was vicious or brutal, but because it insisted that men must not compromise with the moral codes of an immoral society.

The International Sunday School Lesson for April 15: "Living in the Light of the Cross," Luke 19:29-38; Titus.

Licentiousness, bribery, slavery, inhumanity, perversions, infidelity, brutality — these were common characteristics of the man society, and these were the evils against which the Church proposed to wage war.

It would have been so much easier to conform, for it could have been said of many of the evils of the day that "they are such little things." Or, perhaps, "you can't afford to waste your energies on the edge evils. Stick to the great spiritual ministry to which you have been called."

It was not really a very great thing at which the Christians rebelled. As was rather common throughout the world, kings strutted as if they were of a different breed. The Roman emperors carried the master only just a little farther, as they demanded that they be accorded the status of gods. To salute one more god, when the woods were already full of little gods-let-ts, did not seem to be too important to the Romans. They could not understand the Christians who refused to do it. "It is just a formality, like saluting the flag," they might have said.

But to the Christians it was an admission that there were legitimate rivals of Jesus Christ, and this was an admission they could not make. Therefore, they refused to compromise, and the Romans drove them to the stakes where they burned them.

The blood of these martyrs, however, became the seed of the Church, and for every one who died a thousand came into possession of the new life in Christ Jesus.

THE OLD MAN'S LETTER

Somewhere, there was an aged Christian—an old man who had given all his life to the ministry of Jesus Christ, who saw the terrible danger the Church faced as it underwent the seductions of paganism. And his great concern was that the younger men in the ministry should not surrender things for which he had given his life. He therefore addressed a letter to all youthful preachers, calling them all "Titus," and in that epistle he implored them to stand firm and admit of no compromise.

In the face of the mounting pressures of today, the young Christians are in dire need of such warnings as were addressed to Titus. Let them, therefore face a simple question: "Would the Jesus in whom you believe have produced the Christian Church?"

Creator of Insp. Maigret, Vivacious Canadian Wife Always Centre of Attraction

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP)—It takes a bit of fancy footwork for a pair of behind - the - scenes operators to upstage a roomful of actors and actresses, at a cocktail party.

But mild - mannered Georges Simenon, prolific author and creator of Inspector Maigret, and his vivacious Canadian-born wife do it without half trying.

The scene is a posh lounge at the new BBC Television Centre. Present are the cast of the TV series Maigret, a host of other actors, TV officials, publicity men and journalists.

The stars — there's no doubt about it—are Simenon and his French - Canadian wife, from Ottawa, the former Denise Ouimet.

In the midst of one group, Simenon is placidly puffing on his new gold-plated pipe—one of a collection of 86—and talking on his favorite subjects, his books, method of writing, his travels.

When the compulsion to write overtakes him, as it does four to six times a year, he works two to three hours a day, turns out a chapter a session, a book in about 12 days.

NEARLY 500 BOOKS

He confines himself to about one Maigret book a year. But he's vague about exactly how many books he has written since he started 41 years ago at age 17, the number, included along about 150 written under 17 pseudonyms, is approaching 500.

Tell me, Monsieur, when was your last book published?"

"About two weeks ago, I think."

"What is the title?"

The Belgian - born Simenon drawn thoughtfully on his pipe, then, a boyish grin spreading across his face, he admits: "I'm afraid you'll have to ask Denise. I just light the pipe for my wife—I don't seem to remember."

The petite, 41-year-old Mrs. Simenon, holding court in the midst of the other half of the party guests, does indeed remember. She is the one with business head behind the opera-tion, handling all the contracts, ensuring her husband's privacy when he's at work, guarding with against fans and unwanted guests, arranging his appointments and interviews and even selecting his pipes. There have been more than 60 movies based on Simenon mysteries.

MET IN NEW YORK

Mrs. Simenon's favorite subject, after her husband and his work, is their four children and she is eager to illustrate her running commentary on them with a bulging folder of snapshots.

It was in 1945 that Denise Ouimet, in New York between jobs, phoned Simenon to say she didn't want the job as his secretary. They met to talk it over, fell in love and were married.

Since then they have lived in 13 different places in the United States and Europe. Their permanent home is in Switzerland where they have lived for a record five years.

They don't take long trips often now—"after less than a week I am lonely for the children" Simenon says—but as a great pipe smoker he was lured to London by the annual dinner of the Brier Pipe Trade Association.

"Nothing but the best talk about men and their briar pipes would have made me leave home," he said.

Mrs. Simenon, who studied hard to learn the knack of selecting pipes, confesses she would like to smoke one herself. "But it is not feminine," she says, so she sticks to cigarettes. "I just light the pipe for Georges when he is driving."

It was she who picked Rupert Davies, from a photo, to play Maigret in the TV series which has been shown in Canada. The cast now is at work on a third series to be shown here starting in November.

Davies, one of those on the fringe of the circle surrounding Simenon, was asked if he had to acquire a taste for the pipe for his part in the show.

"No, I took up the pipe while I was in the navy but I still smoked cigarettes. Now, because I have to use the pipe so much on the set and before the cameras, I have cut down on the cigarettes."

Does he share Maigret's love of cognac?

"I enjoy it," he said, gesturing with a glass of gin and tonic, "but they don't usually serve it at these cocktail parties."

PC Contends Ont. Teachers Are Overpaid

TORONTO (CP)—A Conservative member of the legislature contended Wednesday that Ontario teachers are overpaid, and objected to proposals that their pension plan be improved.

The statements by E. E. Sutton (PC-Victoria-York-Scarborough) came in the legislature's standing committee on estimates when representatives of the Ontario Teachers Federation asked that pensions be based on the best seven years of earning, rather than the last 10 as at present.

"I think teachers are well paid today," Mr. Sutton said. "In my humble opinion they are overpaid."

He said the teachers' superannuation fund is already getting $1,000,000 a year in government help to fend off an actuarial deficit, and any increase in pensions would only make the situation worse.

Robert Hines (LL-Brant), a former high school teacher, protested that education department officials should end the misconception that teachers are not overpaid. He said it was "so that we teachers in the legislature don't have to be on the defensive all the time."

E. E. Jones (PC—Lambton East) said teachers themselves have created the impression that they are only after money because of their constant lobbying.

Bert J. Conway, principal of St. Patrick's College High School in Ottawa and president of the Teachers' Federation, said, "teachers are getting sick of the arguments over $100 or four top people and their salaries," when there are 100 present salaries paid to the profession as a whole.

There are many men and women teachers who have taught for 25 years and still make less than $4,000, Father Conway said.

R. G. Robinson, general secretary of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation, said principals are having more and more trouble recruiting teachers.

K. Says Russia Will Match U.S. Blast For Blast

Khrushchev Rejects Last-Chance Appeal

MOSCOW (AP) — The staff was set today for a nuclear arms race as Premier Nikita Khrushchev vowed to match Western nuclear tests blast for blast, underwater, underground, in the atmosphere, even in space.

Khrushchev has rejected a last-chance appeal from President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan to accept a controlled end to nuclear testing and declared that Russian tests scheduled for later this month in the Pacific.

Kennedy and Macmillan had asked Khrushchev in a statement earlier today to reconsider the Soviet refusal to accept any form of international control within a test-ban treaty.

Khrushchev's answer, in a note distributed by the Soviet news agency Tass and broadcast by Radio Moscow, said the Soviet Union cannot accept the Western plan because Russia refuses to permit "unhampered intelligence" over its territory. The Soviet Union has urged the Western powers to show more flexibility in the hope they will accept its proposals for an unpoliced test-ban treaty. Otherwise, Khrushchev said, the announcement of your declared decision to hold tests compels us to prepare and hold tests of our nuclear weapons.

"And in the future your holding of nuclear weapon tests under the ground or in the atmosphere, in space or under water, will force the Soviet Union to hold tests of its own nuclear weapons so that the defence of the Soviet State will be at an appropriate level."

HITS WESTERN AIMS

Khrushchev asserted the Western powers were prompted by a desire to establish military superiority over the Soviet Union. But to Western leaders Khrushchev's interpretation of "an appropriate level" likely means an advantage over the West.

Kennedy has said the U.S. tests are necessary to American security because the Russians made gains in their series of tests that nuclear blasts last fall.

At the 17-nation disarmament conference in Geneva, Britain also spoke out today against the Soviet nuclear weapons advantage gained from the Soviet tests last fall. The British said then they were willing to let the Soviets have the lead-in advantage if it accepted a cheat-proof test ban treaty.

Khrushchev's note is scoffed what appeared to be another bid for a summit conference on disarmament, declaring it would be willing to travel anywhere to sign a treaty on general and complete disarmament.

FAIR SETTLEMENT

Western leaders have rejected Khrushchev's earlier summit bid on the grounds that lower level negotiations must show progress before a meeting of heads of state promised to bear fruit.

River Pilots Will Return To Their Posts

Minister Plays Mediating Role

OTTAWA (CP) — Pilots were to return to their posts today aboard ships in the St. Lawrence River, ending a walkout that tied up shipping on the busy waterway between Montreal and Quebec for eight days.

The back-to-work order was signed Friday night following conclusion of an agreement between the striking pilots and shipping companies, with Transport Minister Balcer playing a key mediating role.

Telegrams were sent to the 28 Federation of St. Lawrence Pilots notifying them of the settlement and the 8 a.m. resumption of normal duties.

One of the first vessels expected to be freed was the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, idle in Montreal since April 4 for lack of a pilot. Most of her original 800 passengers were flown by chartered plane or made other arrangements to reach Europe.

AVIANCA OTHER STRIKER

Friday night's settlement also averted threatened sympathy strikes today by pilots at Saint John, N.B., and Vancouver. Their walkouts had been set for midnight.

The settlement calls for setting up a federal commission to inquire into the entire pilotage situation in Canada. Details of the proposed commission have not yet been worked out.

Other features, meeting many of the pilots' original demands, include:

An upward income adjustment for pilots in the Quebec-Montreal (83 cents), Montreal Harbor, and Cornwall districts; a revision in the method of calculating earnings, and an agreement by the pilots to defer an increase in fees for the next three years;

Provision for four additional pilots on the Quebec-Montreal section; hiring of pilots in the Cornwall and Kingston districts; and abandonment of a transport department proposal that the pilots should contribute to the upkeep of small boats used for ship-to-shore travel.

FAIR SETTLEMENT

Mr. Balcer announcing the agreement to reporters said "in the circumstances it was a fair settlement."

Andre Bedard, president of the pilots' federation, commented "we are happy with it" though the increases were not as high as originally sought. No figures were released of the fee increases the pilots, who now earn an average $12,000 a year.

The Shipping Federation of Canada said it would co-operate as Mr. Balcer considered the settlement in the national interest, and welcomed the decision to set up an industry commission.

The shipping officials said however, they maintained their original stand in connection with the walkout. They were disclined to meet with pilot negotiators until the men returned to work on the grounds the walkout was an "illegal strike."

ELECTION BEFORE COMMONS DEALS WITH TREATY

Pact Will Be Sent to Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — There will be a slight pause before the Commons deals with ratification of the Canada - United States Columbia River treaty.

The pause will be for a general election.

External Affairs Minister Green said Friday in the Commons that the treaty will be sent to the Commons external affairs committee for examination but it was "very doubtful" it could be dealt with before June 18.

Mr. Green's statement served as a negative reply to a telegram from British Columbia's Premier Bennett who told the Commons Thursday he "is anxious to get cracking" on the power development.

Although the federal authorities have made no mention of the telegram, Mr. Bennett said in Victoria Friday it urged ratification of the treaty before Parliament is dissolved for a federal election.

It is officially assumed Parliament will be dissolved before Easter for a June general election.

DEMAND HEARING

The opposition heatedly denied Mr. Green's charge by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton that Canada has been "sold down the river" on the Columbia treaty he referred immediately to committee.

Mr. Green, dispersing the charge with "soft answers," said he would be "personally delighted" if Gen. McNaughton could testify before the external affairs committee.

But he did not specifically promise — and the opposition noted this — that the general would be permitted by the government to appear before the committee. Common committees, like the Commons itself, are ruled by the government.

Gen. McNaughton, 75, retires Sunday as Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission. He has charged that he was removed on a decision made without the Canadian section. He has charged that the treaty has been seriously changed since Eisenhower signed it.

Mr. Green had only nice things to say about the general.

WOULD BE UNFAIR

He said further criticism of Gen. McNaughton would be unfair "because it is going to do him a great deal more harm than it will do his splendid reputation.

Gen. McNaughton was retired "simply and solely because of age. He had not been asked to stay on longer.

Mr. Green said Gen. McNaughton "is the author of the line of life features of the treaty but said: "I cannot recommend that it be approved in its present form."

"Now, apparently, he is a great deal more antagonistic toward the treaty.

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) said the heart-rending aspect of the situation is that Canada has great power potential and that nothing has yet been done to develop it.

Diefenbaker-Pearson Talks Shed No Light on Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — A private 35-minute talk between Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson has shed no new light on when the next election will vote.

The two party leaders talked about the election—and other things—during their meeting in the prime minister's office Friday.

Top speculation was that the prime minister had invited Mr. Pearson in order to give him an advance tip on when Parliament will be dissolved and when voting day will be. This kind of prior information has been given opposition leaders before. But neither party leader confirmed that this had happened.

The prime minister hadn't committed himself finally to a date.

But he did not specifically promise — and the opposition noted this — that the general would be permitted by the government to appear before the committee. Common committees, like the Commons itself, are ruled by the government.

Will Take Week To Repair Crack In Seaway Lock

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP)—Shippers who were ready to enter the St. Lawrence Seaway Sunday will have to wait at least a week until a crack in the 320,000,000 Eisenhower Lock is repaired, a Seaway spokesman said Friday.

The crack, believed to be 80 feet long and three to six inches wide in places, was discovered Thursday. Pumps immediately began emptying the 800 - foot - long lock of 18,000,000 gallons of water. The pumping job will be completed today.

A better estimate of the time needed for repairs will be made then, the spokesman said.

If the crack is worse than anticipated at this time, the delay may be up to two weeks, he said.

In the meantime, ships will be forced to negotiate the waterway between Montreal and Lake Ontario.

Kennedy Puts Republicans On Defensive in Steel Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has increased his personal prestige and put Republicans on the political defensive with a smashing breakthrough against big steel's price increases.

The action Friday by the two largest companies, U.S. Steel and Bethlehem, in rescinding a price boost they obviously was forced by a White House power play that combined the presidential office's opinion and threats of retaliation.

Like a row of dominoes, other major companies fell into line after Bethlehem toppled under presidential pressure.

From this successful battle with big business, Kennedy emerged with a newly-established reputation as a dragon killer and the school of one of his favorite professors, Theodore Roosevelt.

It demonstrated that when a president summons all the means at his command—as Kennedy did in some instances he can compete with him in the market of the country's affairs.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minnesota), leading Democratic leader, said the outpouring of criticism by labor and the president exerts his leadership and puts the facts before the people in the best traditions of the government of the United States, he is difficult to defeat."

Kennedy's enhanced prestige seemed likely to pay off for Democrats who rallied vigorously to his cause when he denounced the price increase after steel had signed what was regarded as a non-inflationary wage pact with the Steelworkers, Union.

The Democrats could picture themselves, along with the president, as the champion of the public interest. They also had him in the pocket by price increases consumers generally linked to a steel cost rise.

Republicans didn't like to think about the impact the president's performance might have on the fall congressional elections. Many of them felt Democrats would try to plaster them with a "big business" tag.

There was little doubt that they had been politically embarrassed by the action of big steel executives who went along without price increases for two years, under former Republican president Eisenhower but chose to test the power of a Democratic president and lost.

Republican leaders tried to tab the controversy as an economic one of no political importance. They said Kennedy administration policies, including a steel price rise, posed the biggest danger of inflation.

But some sacrificial lambs they refused to go along with the Democrats in condemning the price increase. Instead, they fired away at Kennedy's tactics.

Senator Roman Hruska, Nebraska Republican, said a member of the Senate's anti-monopoly subcommittee, criticized Kennedy's order for the defence department to shift part of its buying to companies which did not raise their prices.

He said he deplores "the type of thinking that unless companies do what a political leader says they must, retributions will be visited upon them." He said this threatens a "corporate state" in which the government controls and manages property without owning it.

Kennedy Wins Three-Day War Against Increase

Victory Adds Greatly To President's Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's victory over big steel left him clothed today with vast new influence to shape, the economy of the United States.

The steel giants bowed on by one Friday in a massive, three-day government drive forcing them to cancel $6 a-ton price increases announced late Tuesday.

The surrender under furious Kennedy attack was a public spectacle unlikely to be forgotten soon by industrial leaders considering a try at breaching the administration rules for wage-price stability.

The president, after denouncing the price boosts as "unjustified by the industry - leading U.S. Steel Corporation, unleashed the full brunt of government retaliatory power to force a cancellation.

The people of the United States are most grateful," Kennedy said on learning that many steel producers had reversed their decisions. "We are just starting an inspection of Atlantic Fleet manoeuvres.

LEADERS PRESSURE

The president's brother, Attorney - General Kennedy, although also elated at the administration victory, ordered a full speed ahead on the New York federal grand jury investigation into the price increases. He said the government action "will not have any effect" on the probe.

Similarly, two congressional committees said they would carry out plans for investigations. Chairman Emanuel Celler (Dem., N.Y.) said, however, the House of Representatives judiciary committee would engage in more of a study than an investigation. Senate hearings of divisions of big oil situation of all those price increases are under another. This hasn't changed now that there has been an equally quick reversal.

CANCELS INCREASE

The surrender parade was signalled by Inland Steel Corporation not to raise prices. Then Republic Steel, No. 3 in the industry and heavily involved in government shipbuilding, cancelled its own proposed increase.

From then on it was a rout, with U.S. Steel toeing in the towel, it said it couldn't stand alone and waited to "remove a serious obstacle to proper relations between government and

'Left-Overs' Provide Scientists With New Anti-Cancer Chemical

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Housewife-like attention by scientists in laboratory "left-overs" has produced a new and promising drug in the cancer-fighting field, it was reported today.

The development concerns a new drug produced from the periwinkle plant, a widely-used decorative flowering shrub.

The drug — called both "vincristine" and "leurocristine" — has shown promising activity against a number of cancer cells.

It appears to have some unique characteristics when compared with older anti - cancer chemicals, said reports made to the annual meeting of the American Association for Cancer Research.

But it might never have been turned up if scientists had not paid attention to "leftovers" in the laboratory, indicated one of the reports by four different groups of researchers who described tests of the new drug.

McNAUGHTON BACKS CHARGES ON RIVER TREATY

Claims Sellout To United States

OTTAWA (CP) — Technical evidence to back his charge that the Columbia River treaty is a sellout to the United States was made public Friday by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton.

The development plan chosen for the 80-year treaty signed January, 1961, would cost $254,200,000 more, in Canadian-U.S. construction and provide Canada with power it needs two to nearly four times greater per unit than the U.S., said the retiring Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission.

An 800-word statement reiterated the line of testimony he gave in 1944 before the Commons external affairs committee.

It was the first major word from the general since his criticism last week that he had been retired at 75 on a decision "arbitrarily made by a director" and that he had absolutely himself from the treaty at the start of high-level negotiations early in 1960.

CALLS FOR DAMS

The treaty calls for Canada to build three storage dams in British Columbia. Their cost would be divided equally by the U.S. returning half the extra power generated from the controlling action on the Columbia's seasonal fluctuations.

The treaty has been ratified by the U.S. but Canadian ratification has been delayed by federal-B.C. differences.

The McNaughton plan, based on initial recommendations of 1959 by the International Joint Commission, would wipe out the controversial High Arrow Dam on the Columbia and eliminate the equally-controversial Libby Dam in Montana.

The Libby would back water more than 40 miles into Canada along the Kootenay River, a tr:

business." Only 24 hours before, U.S. Steel board chairman Roger M. Blough said at a television conference in New York that no firm would stick to its high prices.

Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg — one of the chief White House spokesmen in bringing the steel industry around— was in New York to talk turkey to Blough.

The arsenal of weapons the president could use to force a 180 out economic foray against the big steel makers was an awesome display of coldly determined political and economic power and one he brings to employed by a U.S. government. Every major government department got into the act.

PRESIDENT PHONES

The president himself got on the phone to people of influence. Steel bosses were flooded with grand jury and congressional committee subpoenas. Steps were taken to direct the government orders to steel firms holding the biggest. These holdouts were encouraged.

Defence Secretary Robert S McNamara said, for instance, that steel buying for defence contracts would be shifted to firms that did not raise prices.

It was clear that Kennedy had only begun. His actions may have impressed the industry.

With Congress seemingly in Kennedy's corner, he had new anti - trust legislation which he recommend for immediate enactment.

Other moves were being considered. One was to remove concessions to business contained in the pending tax bill.

A second was to prevent purchasers of foreign-aid items to rate only the lower-priced steel. Still another was to change scheduled business depreciation revisions.

The president obviously felt that what was at stake was his future ability to maintain a wage - price line—something he had constantly emphasized as vital to the U.S. world position and commitments.

Ed Logan, Jeweller, Files Suit Requiring Immediate Action to Clean Up Debris

Belleville Jeweller, Mr. Edward Logan, who was declared out of his Bridge Street shop on January 19th by the fire which destroyed the Ben Safe block, will take court action to see, either a force a clean-up of the debris and re-opening of the street has been brought about.

The sidewalk and part of the roadway on the south side of Bridge Street has been completely blocked off since the fire and the street works only one-way vehicular traffic has been permitted between Front and Pinnacle Streets.

Mr. Logan's store has been reopened but he is unable to re-open because of the blocked-up street and danger of falling debris.

Yesterday Mr. Logan's solicitor Donald Templeton filed an action to be heard next Thursday before County Judge J. C. Anderson requiring immediate action in cleaning up the debris and re-opening of the street.

QUESTION OF LIABILITY

Reports made to city council indicate that the insurance liability over walls surrounding the fire area will not prove a delaying clean-up operations.

A start in clean-up operations was made on Friday, on several occasions at council when Mr. Logan's counsel several weeks ago personally requesting action.

On each occasion, however, council has been told that action was expected "within a few days."

For several weeks following the fire the public was not permitted along Bridge Street but with warming temperatures starting the ice from the debris, the situation was deemed to have become more serious and barricades along the street were extended to allow only one-way traffic.

Gen. McNaughton would divert the Kootenay into the nearby headwaters of the Columbia in southeastern B.C., so that more water would pour through Canadian generating stalls on the Columbia and eventually into the U.S. among the international river.

MENTIONS REMARKS

He pinned his statement Friday on remarks attributed to Justice Minister Fulton in Alberta.

Mr. Fulton, head of Canada's treaty - negotiating team, was quoted as saying the McNaughton formula would have meant a better treaty for Canada than that B.C. wishes had to be met.

"I am glad to have Mr. Fulton's statement . . . that he deferred to views of the government of B.C. on several occasions," he said. "It is my view that the people of Canada should now be told the heavy cost that Fulton has thereby imposed on Canada."

He said he was irked by his visit to Ottawa last December week, ago by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and effective Monday, he said he had searched for 13 years on the—Columbia. He said he was irked by the new appointment "in an attempt to throttle . . . objections to a very disadvantageous arrangement with the government of B.C. and a consequential disaster to Canada."

Blind Soprano Captivates Albert College Audience

BY EUGENE LANG

The gifted young blind soprano, Lorraine Jakson, last evening in the Memorial Chapel of Albert College captivated her audience by her lovely voice and charming manner. She studied voice with George Smale in Brantford before entering the University of Toronto Faculty of Music as a student in the licentiate diploma two years ago. She has already won honors at her center completing her second year in the course and is one of the leading students of voice teacher George Lambert. She has received several scholarships and has given recitals in Toronto, Galt and other Ontario centres.

She sang a well chosen program which included works by Handel, Schubert, Verdi, Poulenc, Quilter, and Moeran, along with numerous folk songs from the British Isles. She exhibited in her group of four Lieder by Schubert imitating each song with emotional depth and romantic appeal. In the aria "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio" from Verdi's La Forza del Destino, Miss Jackson demonstrated her dramatic soliloquizing and surging power of tone with a result that this tragic aria was most convincingly portrayed.

She seemed to be in her element when singing the four Suffolk Songs or the like number of Scottish songs and interparted into all of these that strictly convention that is so necessary to carry these ditties successfully along. The three French airs by Poulenc were given a lovely vocal rendering by the young artist and showed that she seems to be as much at ease in this style of music as the German Lieder mentioned above. Roger Quilter's three opt were beautifully realized, especially in the "Love's Philosophy." The aria "O God Be Pure" from "Messiah" by Handel was voiced reverently with a pureness of tone emanating from this young artist's deep and true justice to this pathetic aria.

TRULY LOVELY VOICE

Miss Jackson at times seemed a trifle strained and forced in the higher registers, but barring this she is the possessor of a truly lovely voice that has great possibilities to bring her renown in the years ahead. Her singing and is one of the full control and clear inflections were the end result of long study and a fine approach to all that she sings.

Jennifer Gall, pianist for the accompanist, supplied a most markedly sensitive and shaded keyboard accompaniment to the voice of Miss Jackson. The soloist was introduced by Rev. J. Allastair Haig, principal of Albert College and the presentation of the bouquet rendered Miss Jackson at the conclusion of her recital was made by Bill Hamilton, president of the Student Council.

Albert College is to be commended for bringing young artists like Miss Jackson to Belleville and it is to be hoped that this recital last evening is only the first in a long series to follow. These young recitalists need live audiences of appreciative listeners. If they were on hand last evening, to perform for, so that they can get that confidence in themselves that is often lacking to convince them that they have great musical talents that music lovers really want to enjoy and be impressed by.

Following the recital all present were invited to the dining hall for refreshments and an opportunity to meet the young soprano.

Mr. McKenna emphasized the fact that many Canadians go far afield at holiday time, when Canada could offer them a thoroughly enjoyable vacation.

Gaston Proulx evaluated Mr. McKenna on the physical aspects of his address and Chaplain Lodge commented on the content and organization of the speech.

New Building Values for Town $1,500,000

TRENTON — Building inspector William Anderson said yesterday that from the first of January to the end of last week, new building values for the town had totalled more than $1,500,000.

Building values for 1961 stood at $1,360,000; hence the 1962 value is up by more than $140,000 for the first two months of the year, over last year's 12 months' total.

Recently, clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry predicted that 1962 would be a banner building year from Trenton and at this point, Mr. Anderson is inclined to agree with him.

The most recent estimate received by building inspector was for the renovation of King Street United Church, valued at $73,795. Workmen have already started excavating early at the front and rear of the church. Repairs and renovations should be completed in early July.

IN MEMORIAM

ALEXANDER — In loving memory of my dear husband and friend, Alexander, who passed away April 14th, 1961.

We little knew when we woke that day
The sorrow the day would bring.
That you would be taken from us

Something it is hard to understand
Why some things have to be.
In His Wisdom, God has planned,
Beyond our powers to see.
Only memories linger now
Remained by his wife Pearl.

HUFFMAN — In loving memory of a dear dad and grandfather, Charles Huffman, who died one year ago, April 15, 1961.
At the setting of the sun
And in each early morn

Than earth has ever known.
Our loving Father was waiting
To give him strength and rest;
Then we, the loved ones remember
In the thought that God knows best.

Library Services in Rural, Suburban Areas Inadequate Committee Survey Shows

This is "Canadian Library Week," and how timely it was for the Library Survey Committee for Rural and Suburban Schools to hold their second meeting on Friday evening in the auditorium of the Belleville Public Library. This well-attended meeting was sponsored by the Belleville and District Home and School Council was presided by the chairman, Mrs. Dave McDonald. Members present included Mr. K. Bird, principal of Bayside School; Miss O. Delaney, chief librarian of Corby Public Library; Mr. H. Varty, Warden of Hastings County; Mr. H. Hamilton, Reeve of Sidney Township; Mr. C. Long, Reeve of Tyendinaga Township; Mr. H. Pound, Reeve of Thurlow Township; Mr. R. Dunsmore, school inspector; Mrs. M. Bates, principal of Massassaga School; Mrs. F. Henderson, principal of Canniffon-Codbyville School; Mr. Linton Read, vice-principal of Moira Secondary School; Mr. Trumble, librarian of Quinte Secondary School; Mrs. T. Langman, vice-chairman of Albury Board of Education; Mr. W. Whalen, chairman of Board of Education, Point Anne; Mr. H. Conner, trustee of S. S. No. 3, Ameliasburg; Mr. C. Horton, secretary-treasurer of Centre Thurlow School Area Board; Mrs. B. Stetsam, Mrs. A. Fort, and Mr. R. Lee, all members of the Belleville and District Home and School Council.

WELCOME EXTENDED

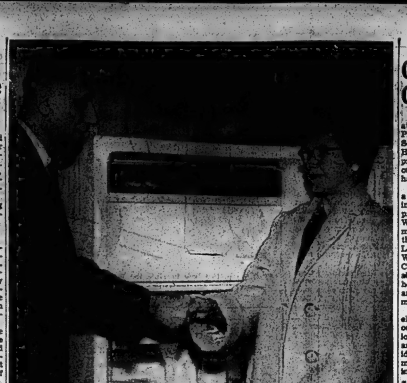
Mrs. McDonald called the meeting to order and extended a warm welcome to the members, and in her opening remarks briefly explained that the Library Survey Committee for Rural Schools was formed at the suggestion of the Duke of Quinte High School District Area Co-Ordinating Committee. Through a survey it was discovered that library facilities in the rural and suburban areas were inadequate. This is a sad situation when you consider that the time to interest children in books is before, during and more important, just after they have learned to read. This is the time when they should have access to a wide range of books suited to both their reading skills and especially to their interests. Children need to be influenced in their reading, and the library is the place for this. It they are to keep up with the trends of education today. Unfortunately, too often the library is looked on as a "frill" rather than a necessity. Mrs. McDonald further specified that the purpose of this meeting was to enlarge library service in the rural areas, and the prime goal is a "County Library." Since the main interest lies in the rural areas it was felt that members from the areas concerned should be included in this project.

REPORT GIVEN

Mr. K. Bird, secretary, gave a report of the last meeting and also suggested that more school boards should be brought into the picture, and to build on what has already been done. He felt too, that principals, board members and interested people should set the idea to the local board on financial support.

Mrs. McDonald reported that various library facilities available in the district were forwarded to 125 rural teachers last October through the assistance of inspectors. Recently questionnaires were mailed to each rural school inquiring whether the information they received was of any help, and reports indicated it was most useful.

Members participated in a free discussion. Miss Delaney gave a report of the present strength of the Circulating Library. Mr. Varty stated that his keen interest in education, and of the Library situation as he saw it in his own township of Hungerford, and the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities, and offered all the support possible. Some expressed that library conditions in rural areas were very poor, and books were antiquated. It was felt that there was a lack of interest on teachers, schools, and difficulties involved in transportation of books. Mr. C. Long, reeve of Tyendinaga, spoke of his interest in library work, particularly for children and felt much should be done for them because they are the citizens of tomorrow. Mr. Dunsmore, school inspector, offered to bring library interest before the Board of Education as much as possible. Mr. L. Read spoke of reading skills as he found them in rural and city pupils.



WILL MEET COUNCIL

At. Mr. Trumble's suggestion Miss Delaney was delegated to investigate the possibility of some agreement being reached between Corby Public Library, County council and townships within the Bay of Quinte District High School Board in regard to library services.

The warden spoke of the County council meeting to be held on May 18 and requested that a representative be in attendance. It was decided that Mr. W. A. Reynolds, Director of Provincial Library Service, Department of Education, be asked to attend along with Mrs. Dave McDonald on the question of May 18 and that a report be brought back to the committee.

Mr. K. Bird was delegated to make inquiries from the school clerk regarding libraries in rural areas, and the amount of grants paid to local libraries within the county. A committee to be headed up by Mrs. McDonald would assess the findings of the work done at county level, and bring this before a meeting at a future date.

Mr. R. Lee expressed appreciation to the committee for the fine work being done on behalf of libraries and to Miss Delaney for her co-operation.

COOKING SCHOOL DRAW WINNER—Above, Mrs. G. C. Goraline, 182 Bleecker Avenue, is congratulated by Mr. Enos David of David's Furniture and Appliances on winning a new Westinghouse refrigerator, the major prize at the Cooking School held in the Park Theatre this week. The school was sponsored jointly by Loblaw's and Canadian Westinghouse in connection with the local dealers, and was well attended by local housewives.

Rev. J. H. Melchmor, secretary of the board of evangelism of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, said he was shocked by the Many are in semi - isolated areas and have no corridors and cannot be policed effectively and they are family stopping-places.

As for the proposal to license private clubs in hitherto dry areas:

"Clubs at the moment are in bad odor. Why give them more leeway?"

It was almost three years ago that the Duke of Edinburgh, passing through London, Ont., on the Royal Tour, asked when Ontario's "obsolete and outlawed liquor laws" would be changed.

The comment was reported at a private banquet licence was Stratford Shakespearean Festival Theatre. A bar held under a private banquet-license was ordered closed at 11:30 p.m., shortening a cast reception which followed the royal couple's visit to the theatre. Neither the Queen nor the Prince had been scheduled to attend.

TALKS TO TC

The prince questioned the laws the following day in conversation with Harry Allen, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Middlesex South.

Mayor Robert E. Mountain of Stratford said he told the prince that his millionaire boatman Conrad Hilton would not be interested in Stratford "until our liquor laws are changed."

The prince laughed and promised to speak to my friend Leslie Frost (Then Ontario premier) about it."

Prince Philip will visit Ontario again next month and by that time the changes may well be in effect. Royal assent will probably be given next week when the legislature adjourns.

Maple Syrup Still Selling On Local Mart

Despite the cool weather encountered in the city this morning, a fair crowd appeared on local farmers' market.

The syrup season is ending but there still remains a good supply of syrup for sale.

Nearly 15 per cent of the vendors who came to the market this morning had a large quantity of maple syrup to offer.

The price has changed very little, if any, from that at the beginning of the syrup season, selling at 90c a pint, $1.50 for a 36-ounce can, $3.25 a half gallon and $6.00 per gallon, including containers.

Eggs are holding unchanged at 50, 43 and 40 cents for large medium and small, a dozen. Chicken sold from 35 to 40 cents a pound.

An unusually large quantity of apples was displayed and prices have changed little from a few weeks ago, 70c a six-quart basket and from 25c up for a bushel.

Also being offered was a good assortment of pastry, selling at market prices, pies, 50c each; layer cakes, each, and cookies and tarts, 30 and 60c per dozen.

ELECTION BEFORE

The federal government had allowed itself to be made the "stooge" of Premier Bennett of B.C.

Opposition Leader Pearson said:

"Surely since the Coyne affair there has never been a matter which has cried out more loudly for examination and investigation than this one does." Mr. Pearson said.

The reference was to the government's bill to fire James E. Coyne as governor of the Bank of Canada. Mr. Coyne was denied a hearing by a Commons committee but resigned after the Senate killed the legislation to sack him.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said Gen. McNaughton should testify because of "so many contradictory statements" from Ottawa and Victoria.

Lubricants' Subject of Film Shown Agents

The Purchasing Agents Association of Eastern Ontario met recently in Belleville. The evening was highlighted by a presentation of "Lubrication," Mr. P. Cresswell and Mr. P. Williams of Imperial Oil Limited, gave the purchasing agents an insight into the many products derived from crude oil. The showing of a film detailed in animated fashion the processes employed by refineries in extracting the various types of petroleum products. It was interesting to note that of all petroleum products, 80 per cent is used as a source of energy to produce heat, light and power.

The speakers were introduced by R. F. Whitney of the Consumers Gas Company and thanked by R. H. Davis of the Canadian Locomotive Company.

The next meeting of the Purchasing Agents Association will be held in Brockville on May 8. A plant tour of the Parks Davis Company is planned for the afternoon.

would have to come from the government.

"I wouldn't want to betray confidences in any way."

Earlier, in the Commons, Harold Winch (CCF — Vancouver East) asked prime minister to say if the convenience of MPs from distant constituencies, whether there would be a dissolution next week or merely an Easter recess of the dissolution.

"I hope, early in the week, to be able to make a statement that will answer the question in the fullest detail," Mr. Diefenbaker replied.

If dissolution should come next week, it would entail Mr. Diefenbaker flying to Quebec City to see Governor-General Vanier just as he did Feb. 1, 1958, before the last election. Gen. Vanier left Ottawa Friday night for Quebec City to take up residence in the Citadel until after Easter.

Over 100 Attend Opening Of Pr. Ed. Horticultural Soc.

PICTON — More than 100 attended the open meeting of Prince Edward Horticultural Society at the County Centre Hall, Wednesday night, and practically all became members of the Society. It is hoped to have 400 members this year.

Verne Zufelt, Jack Laundry, Charles Fletcher, William Ecclbitt, BSA, and Creighton Lockyer, who were able to give the viewpoints of house and nursery operators and agricultural departments.

It was decided that this panel will be available throughout the year to answer questions and give advice. Questions are to be sent to Society president Phil Dodds and panel members will provide answers in a column in the local paper.

SOUND FILMS

Second feature of the program was two sound films in which Prof. Woll O.A.C., gave illustrated lectures on landscaping home and over lawns of homes, both for beauty and to provide privacy.

Following a very similar meeting is to be held in May, at which time plans will be completed for a sale of annuals, perennials and shrubs on consignment.

At the meeting, orders were received for nursery stock to encourage increase in beauty by their surroundings.

REVIEWS WORK

A welcome was extended by President Phil Dodds who reported 313 paid members last year and 114 others who cooperated in beautification work.

Highlights had included his trips to Newark, N.Y., rose gardens, and to Ottawa in May to time; planting shrubs and annuals in Benson Memorial Park; War Memorial Park and at police office; a save-the-trees campaign when a spraying campaign was conducted; tree planting on Sar grounds; a rose show; classes at County Fair; clean-up, paint-up campaign; sprig of garden items; distribution of 1,500 tree seedlings; illustrated lecture; talks to various organizations to promote beautification.

Society slogan is: "Make the world a little bit better and a little more beautiful because you have lived on it."

Financial report by treasurer Jack Laundry showed receipts of $1,066.12, expenditure $747.37, leaving bank balance of $252.75, with grant on 1961 memberships and planting yet to be received.

1962 OFFICERS

Officers for 1962 are president, Phil Dodds; vice-presidents, Miss Margaret Haight, Byron Beeler; secretary-treasurer, Jack Laundry, Picton; directors, the Rev. Grants Tricky Problem

Ald. Stuart Robb asked some good questions about municipal grants at Monday evening's Council meeting.

It is going to be more difficult to provide good answers.

As Ald. Robb said, it does not seem appropriate that the Council should be making grants to organizations which refuse to join the United Appeal, for Council is thus, in effect, working against the efforts of a large number of public-spirited Belleville citizens to gather all appeals for financial aid into one basket. Yet one can hardly give grants to individual organizations and make membership in the United Appeal a condition of these grants.

An alternative which may suggest itself to many would be for the Council to make one grant, to the United Appeal, and let it distribute this as it sees fit.

That, though, would create a new problem. Would many taxpayers, when now contribute to the United Appeal, feel that they were being asked to pay twice and, for that reason, reduce or eliminate their voluntary contribution to the Appeal? Would the danger not arise that more and more people would leave it to the city, through its grant to the United Appeal, to finance the work of the member organizations? We fear it would. And this shunting of the financial burden from the field of private charity to that of public welfare work is the last thing which most of those connected with the United Appeal and its member organizations would desire to see.

First Atomic Power Plant

News that the atomic furnace in Canada's first atomic power station has just come into operation may occasion some surprise that so much talk about Canada's research into the peaceful uses of atomic power, and with reports of atomic energy projects under the Colombo plan in which Canada is playing a vital part, some of us may have forgotten that, to date, we have not generated electricity with atomic power in Canada.

Nor does the operation of the atomic furnace at Rolphton, near Chalk River, change this. It will be a few months yet before the reactor is ready to start feeding steam into the turbine which will produce Canada's first electricity generated by the use of uranium as a fuel.

When we remember that work is already underway on a commercial nuclear power station, Ontario Hydro's "Candu" plant near Kincardine on the shores of Lake Huron, our surprise can be deepened. But theoretical progress in the nuclear energy field is proceeding at such a fast pace these days, and the actual construction of power stations of commercial size is such a major task, no matter what the source of the power used to generate electricity, that this commencement of a commercial project before the first research plant is in operation was doubtless justified. The research plant, be it noted, has had a gestation period of seven years.

Salesman Hees at Work Again

Hon. George Hees, Minister of Trade and Commerce, continues his efforts to push Canadian manufacturers into a hunt-for new markets.

Latest manoeuvre in the Hees' campaign is the announcement of two "Canadian Sample Shows." These appear to differ from the more familiar "trade fairs" in that they are aimed at a specific group of prospective buyers, the "rifle" as opposed to the "shot-gun" technique of selling.

The first fair will be held in Toronto on May 22 and 23 and the second in Montreal on June 19 and 20. A hundred and fifty Department store and resident buyers from New York, Philadelphia and Chicago have been invited to attend these shows and the displays will be limited to Canadian-made consumer goods normally sold in department and similar stores.

Unlike horses, which can be led to water, you cannot even force a buyer to view available goods, much less guarantee that any inspection will be followed by an order. Thus the proof of the latest Hees pudding will be strictly in the eating. Still, win, lose or break even, this is an effort which is distinctly worth a try.

Ottawa Offbeat

The Campaign Photograph Dedicated to Cheerfulness

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—If you look around a little in some of the more likely places, you'll probably see something that will be confronting you at almost every turn before this election year is very much older.

This, a faceful of smiling teeth.

Something which the political trade knows as the Campaign Photograph.

More than enough already have appeared.

All those faces in the pictures of party pow-wows, candidate nomination meetings, annual constituency rallies and assorted organizational get-togethers at the campaign revs up into high gear are beaming evidence of the changing times.

You could scarcely avoid noticing how fashions in politics, as in just about everything else, have been redesigned.

Ther'es, a new model' political face.

In the old days, when all the country was supposed to have heeded it was a good five-cent cigar, your political candidate simply shut his mouth, took his best and tried to look serious, like a statesman.

There was a certain phoice of just a few elections ago, now look like today's caricatures of the old-time, hard-boiled, cigar-in-the-corner-of-the-mouth ga-light-era politician with the plugged hat and the big cigar.

Those days are the age of the political pumpkin face.

This is the era of the Big Grin.

Your candidate may have lost the women's vote, the business vote, the labor vote, anyone may mark him down as a cipher with the rim removed; and he may, in fact, be a pretty unlovable, humiliating and well-deserved object of hate . . . but there he will be, looking out at you from your newspaper or television screen, grinning his way to oblivion.

Serious, solemn faces, almost funereal.

The old political picture albums show it was that way straight through to Big Bill Nesbitt, Mackenzie King, Franklin Roosevelt and the coming of TV.

And since then there has been a dogged determination to dedication, almost, to cheerfulness.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker smiles.

Liberal Leader Pearson grins, boyishly, at last trick or treat.

Socialist Leader C. C. "Tommy" Douglas chuckles eternally.

Hegdecone, personable Trade Minister George Hees laughs it up . . . even Opposition Prebencher "Jolly Jack" Pickersgill, political gamekeeper turned fishing, neither exactly noted for political hilarity, have been caught snowing their teeth to the camera.

SMILE OR FAIL, IT HURTS

Towards the end of the '58 campaign, the Prime Minister and Leader of the Opposition probably wishing it was all over and both close to the point of sheer exhaustion, were practicing so hard it almost made you weep in sympathy.

Their medical advisers likely really were weeping for both leaders' tender mouths with fatigue, and those bullish, frozen smiles frozen nobody.) Stone and mortar have never been a science of having their pictures taken.

It has become one of the artistic arts.

Latest is one noted Parliament Hill character, for instance, who has always made a point of standing at the back end of the line in a group picture, so that when it appeared in the paper the caption always began with him when it comes to the names "left to right are . . ."

Smile, Gerald, you say?

Maybe so, but not to a pol-

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS
HATRED PUNISHES ITSELF

Hatred is not only an evil — it is a most soul devastating evil. Singularly enough it damages the person who entertains the hate more than it does the object of that hatred. The human beings who set out to hate another human being and up by gathering to themselves a tremendous amount of misery. No matter if their hatred results in "success," the price they have had to pay to the fulfillment of their desire has been too great. They have injured themselves more than they can possibly have injured some else.

What is true in the case of individuals is likewise true internationally. One of the most inspiring circumstances in world affairs is that there is neither a gun, a fortress, nor a soldier along the border separating the United States and Canada. Not the slightest fear ever crosses the mind of an American or a Canadian that the people on the other side of the line will come to how or someday assault them. We have lived so long in peace and amity with this country that we know there can be between us nothing but friendship and good will.

How many streets would be happier if the people who lived along those streets could learn the lesson that hate defeats its own ends, that it has a terrific kickback, that it damages the hater worse than his victim.

The God who made us is a God of love. We, his children, are only happy if our lives partake of His nature.

Too-Young Love

Hartford Courant

In the past youth was always bent on having its fling before settling down to being grown up. This was not entirely traditional. It seemed natural and common. Now youth starts pairing off almost before it is out of grammar school. Since boys are still boys girls are hardly old enough to know the meaning of the word love, we cannot call them love-yeyed. Instead, any woman is merely the girl in a wetness behind the ears. This is where the doting starts is disturbing. Some of the affairs leads to the rush step of early teenage marriage.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 14th 1932

The ice has disappeared from Moira Lake, according to advices from that district. Other lakes farther north show signs of breaking up. Weseminkon and Salmon Lakes are expected to be open sometime next week.

Robbery broke and entered Black's fruit warehouse on South Front Street some time early Friday morning Belleville police believe. A silvery pound box of pickerel, packed ready for shipment, was reported stolen.

With milk flow maintaining a consistent increase, cheese factories of the district will be in operation within a month. In the next few days, Department of Agriculture officials report, approximately eighty per cent are now open for business. Because of drought conditions in localities cheese production areas last summer, the Dairy Products Board found it necessary to borrow considerable cheese for home consumption. In order to meet British requirements.

Mrs. Campbell Campbell of Dunnville, Ont., was removed from a Canadian National Railways passenger train at Belleville shortly after midnight Thursday and rushed to the Belleville General Hospital. Unfortunately, Mrs. Campbell had fallen in the Toronto Union Station and sustained a fractured hip. The injury did not cause serious pain at the time but upon arrival at Belleville, Mrs. Campbell's condition had become affected and it was necessary to remove her from the train.

30 YEARS AGO

April 14th, 1922

Twenty-four Belleville men receive their mail daily at the city's lodge for transients, and seven Belleville men have been sleeping at the lodge for some time, Tuesday night fifty-seven transients were given food and shelter at the lodge.

The record snow storm was started in Belleville. Over an inch of snow fell here and the temperature was 32 degrees and 30 low. City workmen are busy removing slush from the streets.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Leet and Mr. and Mrs. Putman of Port Hope spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Leet on Bridge street.

Mr. Arthur Rogers spent yesterday in Brockville.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Edmonds are spending a few days in Toronto.

Captain Ted Heffernan, master of the "Belwood" has left to join his boat at Sandusky.

40 YEARS AGO

April 14th, 1912

The members of the Iroquois Club gave a very enjoyable Dance At Bennett's Dancing Academy, and upwards of one hundred couples were present. Excellent music was furnished by the Belleville orchestra of Toronto. The decorations were: Messrs. H. L. Chown, W. B. Bowlby, E. W. D. Wright, H. A. Boulter and W. B. Hogan. The officers of the Club are: President — H. Chown; Treasurer — R. C. Crook; Hon. Secretary — H. F. Boantleury.

Woodcocks are unusually numerous near Cromsbury Wollaston township.

50 YEARS AGO

Ald. A. Wallace spent yesterday in Toronto.

Mrs. Gregory J. G. Lindsey entertained the members of the city council at supper at Black's restaurant last evening after the regular meeting of the council.

Our old friend Mr. W. F. Sexton of Pinnacle Street will leave tomorrow to visit his son in St. Louis Mo.

The Rev. A. M. Hobly or Richmond Hill is spending a few days in Ottawa.

Was Glenn's Trip Secret?

New York Times

The United States has created unnecessary embarrassment for itself by failing to submit a report to the United Nations Security Council on Colonel John H. Glenn's flight around the world.

The idea of having the United Nations maintain a public registry of space launchings originated with the United States and was embodied in a General Assembly resolution drafted by the United States and adopted unanimously last December after the Soviet Union had withdrawn its opposition. Apart from the intrinsic value of such a registry, the aim was to circumscribe the efforts of the U.N. to stimulate the peaceful uses of outer space. There were fears at the time that the Soviet Union would not submit reports; but it was taken for granted that the United States would set the example of prompt and ungrudging cooperation.

The Soviet Union has now reported its eight space-vehicle launchings, including those of Major Gagarin and Major Titov. The United States has, in participating in the United Nations space committee, which it had previously boycotted, made the most important — has begun exploratory talks with the Soviet Union on how to avoid interference with each other's space development program.

Why should President Kennedy, whose promising development, as well as all the more inexplicable the Defense Department's announcement that the Colonel Glenn's American astronaut will not be reported to the United Nations. No classified information is apparently involved. In default of another explanation it seems that the decision to withdraw from the State Department's claim that only objects sent into orbit and remained there have to be reported under the U.N. space resolution.

This is a tortured interpretation of the General Assembly resolution and hurts the standing of the United States abroad. We suggest that the State Department abandon its concern for such technicalities and make sure that Colonel Glenn's great achievement is included in the United Nations registry.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There was a theory widely held a few years ago that the reason hotel bellhops took your bags was to make sure that the elevator from the one you ride down to the lobby delivered portable lamps, framed pictures or ash trays from your room, on departing.

The theory now held pretty generally is that the hotels charge enough for a room to look after such petty larceny as occurs in the course of the year.

"Actually," a hotel manager told me, "there is very little pilferage. Most of the stuff that is done by the people you would suspect, the well-dressed, well-to-do smart, the so-called 'nice' people. There is something pitiful about the little well-worn of facial tissue, pinch the extra packet of chewing gum from the cabinet, or take off with towels, face cloths, and sometimes even a sheet from room service. On the rare occasions when it has been necessary to check into these cases, the fetching ladies invariably say, laughingly, that they just wanted a souvenir."

Skin Planing Smooths Blemishes and Scars

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain what is meant by "skin sanding."

I am in my early 30's and have wrinkles on my forehead from a sunburn, suffered four years ago. On my cheeks I have some acne scars which I would like removed, as I feel self-conscious about my skin. K.D.K.

When the term skin sanding first came into popular use, it was sometimes called sandpapering, and there were scars scattered but disastrous cases of girls who tried to rub their faces with sandpaper. The result was exactly what you'd expect: They scratched their faces, infection set in, and they suffered both pain and scars.

So from then on we've avoided the term "sandpapering" and used skin sanding or skin planing.

There can be superficial roughness, small pits or scars, and if the surface can be smoothed off and the "high" points removed, within limits, new skin will grow.

The difference between a high point and the bottom of the pits can be measured in thousandths of an inch. We can't remove a really prominent scar — but we can sometimes make it less visible. We can also create deep pitting from acne, but we can get rid of the lesser roughness and make the skin challenger.

We don't get rid of wrinkles, but when the skin has become roughened from repeated exposure to the sun, planing gives a new surface of skin develop with a smoother appearance.

Sanding or planing is useful if applied in the right cases, but we can't expect it to do more than smooth blemishes.

The patient's skin is anesthetized by — for example — a spraying of carbon dioxide "snow."

Then a surgically sterile instrument, something a rotating cylinder with abrasive surface, or an equally sterile metal, scrapes off the skin to the greatest precision to flick off the high spots, and leave a more even surface.

It's a process demanding substantial skill, training and judgment. It is not something that most surgeons have learned to do. It is in the field of dermatologists and dermatologists. It is a task of great precision. Until difficult; very helpful with its capabilities. Not a miracle, not a cure-all.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a young mother whose child has a bedwetting problem. The whole family blame it on me. So not using a belly band or binder right after he was born? — Mrs. J.W.

I'm sorry the family is bitter, but if the boy has such a hernia, a binder would not have prevented it from developing.

Dear Dr. Molner; Must both breast and wife reach a climax before a woman can become pregnant? — Mrs. V.L.

"Don't Quit Because of Arthritis" is the title of my leaflet designed to help all who suffer the aches and pains of arthritis. Profit Not Dirty Word

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

With so much talk of socialism these days, it is perhaps not out of place to remind Canadians that profit is not a dirty word.

Profit, or more precisely the quest thereof, is what makes our free enterprise system work. Our entire economic system is geared to go forward today and ingenuity and to discourage both an inefficiency. It can do this only through the lure of profit, because profit, in the long run, is the yardstick of success or failure.

The profit motive also plays a vital role in the allocation of human and material resources. Such allocation must bid against each other for assistance, under the free enterprise system, if capital is to flow into those areas where the profit potential is greatest. Equally, where demand is high and needs available resources, new industries will be developed to meet requirements.

If, when demand falls off, the profit motive disappears, there will be slackened or the surplus resources diverted to other end uses.

This continual system of overshifting of capital and resources, over the long term, that evaluation between human resources will be settled in the most efficient way. Again the flexibility of the profit denominator which is used to evaluate the different end uses to which any resource can be put.

In the final analysis, the test of any economic idea is how well it works. And in this respect, North America, which has achieved closely by the profit motivation since its economic beginning, has enjoyed the highest standard of living of any area in the world. Socialist planners have been heading utopias in many parts of the world but they have yet, however, to match the North American standard of living.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE SAMPLE THAT YOU ARE

Somewhere or other I came across this sentence: "How can you expect to accomplish a purpose and look like a matter down sample?"

If we thought of ourselves as samples, selected specimens of the great race, and took pride in the thought, what an improved race there would be in the run of the years!

Our thoughts shape our souls. We go about doing the things we think we can do long before we are convinced that we can do them. And as we think we can we can do many things we would not dream we could do more things — and do better — as we do them.

Watch yourself as you walk down the street today. Just imagine that the eyes of the world is looking at you as a sample. Ask for a minute give this old world the impression that you are a "marked down sample."

And as you work, as you think, especially while you are alone with your thoughts, bear in mind that you are a population sa,g a sample to go out and influence women, whether for or wide no matter. That important thing is to rightly influence, to command and inspire all those within your influence before you know it your circle will be enlarged!

Be the best sample of which you are capable. Be true to unto yourself — and then the rest will come.

It was said of Wendell Phillips, the great American orator and abolitionist, that he was a citizen of the Twentieth Century sent down to us a sample of the Nineteenth.

Walking among men and women today, we are samples. Here's hoping we more than the thoroughbred sample?

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Christ Most Masterful Figure Known

By Dr. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

On Palm Sunday, the Christian world bows in reverence before the most royal and masterful figure whom history records. To be sure, He rode into Jerusalem on a lowly beast of burden. The little company of followers marching with Him seems tiny in comparison with the giant parades staged today. But, however small the company behind Him that day, the universe was behind Him.

Jesus was master of every situation. When He was acclaimed by the cheering crowds in the days of His popularity, He did not lose His head. When He was cursed by the crowd as an impostor, He did not lose His nerve. When He was mocked upon by the rich and flattering Pharisees, He did not soften His principles. When He was spat upon by the mob, He did not harden his heart. In public and in private, in joy and in sorrow, in the Garden of Gethsemane and in the court of Pilate, He was the one to whom others turned instinctively for order, and for order.

Jesus Christ was not only masterful beyond all other historic figures, but He was able to impart His masterfulness to others. He was more than an example dazzling others with His achievements.

He was a team player, linking Himself with others, imparting His strength to them. Jesus in his gospel says, "To as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God."

Christ has the power to cleanse the mind of poisoning temptations. He fills the thought with whatsoever things are honorable, just, pure, lovely and gracious. He humbles us with penitence for our sins, but He restores our self-respect. He makes us feel what we were meant to be and by God's grace still can be. He imparts the encouragement of the diving love which has faith in us. He lifts from our conscience the weight of guilt. He breaks the power of cancelled sin and sets the prisoner free from the shackles of enslaving habit. This is the timeless gospel of salvation.

'Resurrection' Topic at St. WMS Meet

The Easter thankoffering meeting of the Afternoon Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held on April 10th. The president, Mrs. W. M. Barlow, extended a welcome to all members, including those from the visiting Evening Auxiliary, invited to join in this special meeting, having the Rev. N. W. Hutchinson as guest speaker.

Following the routine portion of the meeting one minute's silence was maintained in memory of several recently deceased members of the church.

Any of these items may be gladly received up to and on receipt of a telephone call to Mrs. Williamson's office.

It was decided that "In Memoriam" cards should be sent during the year by the members of the auxiliary, through Mrs. Bondy, literature secretary, in charge.

The devotional portion of the meeting was conducted by Mrs. D. Kane and Mrs. H. Yorke, assisted by Mrs. J. Millar and Miss Mary Lou Hutchinson using the Easter service from the Presbyterian Record.

Mrs. R. D. MacLean introduced Mr. Hutchinson, minister at St. Columba Presbyterian Church, whose visit was his second to speak to the Women's Missionary Society. Mr. Hutchinson discussed the Record, and his meaning of his message completing the meeting.

Residents of Palm Springs Go for Luxury in a Big Way

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Palm Springs, Calif. — In Southern California there are many ways to live, either as a tourist or as a native (a native is anyone who lives here, thinks the area is growing too fast, and that migration should have stopped about the time he arrived).

If it suits your fancy, you may ensconce yourself in an 18-room — count 'em, 18 — mansion on the grounds of the stately old Sheraton Mainstay Hotel in the stately old city of Pasadena. Here there are gardens and walks, verandahs and writing rooms, European service and Victorian grace that belong to a time out of mind. There is a place out of mind called Hollywood only 30 freeway minutes away.

Or, you may check into a motel like the Ocotillo Lodge in Palm Springs, which is not a motel at all, but a hotel allowed to call a motel a motel in order to escape the burden of anything, but not motel. Besides, the food at Ocotillo is unsurpassed. There, the dinners are mostly luxury three-room affairs, and it's all a long way from Ma and Pa's Modern Cabins of fond memory.

Also in Palm Springs, you may have a ranch house on a quarter-acre ranch (one bathroom boasts a picture window, and the kids have been promised a TV camera installation to watch Mommy take a bath. Mommy, by the way, would not have done if bathroom had picture windows when we were kids, isn't it?).

HAS THREE TRAILERS

Finally, you may live in a trailer, a home that is not a house. To show you how it's done in Palm Springs, we hold up the example of our friend Richard Bishop, a New York industrialist, who, in addition to a room home in New York, has three trailers.

One he uses for trips between Palm Springs and New York. This second is a $20,000 mobile home permanently installed at the Blue Skies Village. It is equipped with a stocked pool from which guests may fish for their own catfish, and features an electronically controlled fountain with colored lights.

His third trailer, worth $10,000, is next door. That's for his maid.

Chairman Hal Dixon invested a modest $12,000 in a mobile home at Blue Skies. His wife then redecorated it, adding a ramada (overhanging shelter), cabana, patio, barbecue, landscaping and — get this — a $3,000 stereo system. If you can find a truck big enough to haul this trailer away, you might get it for $40,000. You may have to build your own highway, however.

There are in Palm Springs a number of trailer parks resembling Blue Skies (owned by Bing Crosby and a pride of other Hollywoodians) where you can find a trailer

Elder Sister Of Stevenson Leaves Order

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP)—Mrs. Ernest L. (Buffie) Ives, elder sister of Adlai Stevenson, United States ambassador to the United Nations, has resigned from the Daughters of the American Revolution, criticizing the leadership as out of step with U.S. needs.

"A growing number of the official policies of the organization," she wrote, "are wholly out of line with the policies of the United States of America and formulated by both the Republican and Democratic party and overwhelmingly endorsed by a major of American voters."

Mrs. Ives said: "This trend seemed to me to have reached its climax when the society was unable to support the children's fund, the UNICEF program of the United Nations.

Women's Activities

COLLEGE HILL U.C.W.

The regular meeting of the afternoon unit of College Hill United Church Women was held in the church on April 11, Unit Leader, Mrs. A. Dickens opened the meeting in the usual manner and business was conducted.

Twenty one calls on the sick were reported.

The devotional period followed the theme of Easter and was led by Mrs. H. Clarke who read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. D. Watson gave a reading on "The Cross" which made very clear what Jesus meant when he said "Take up your Cross." To do this, one must deliberately choose a difficult task, or endure suffering for others, as Jesus did.

Mrs. C. West rendered a solo "Were not the Disciples Cross" and a poem was read by Mrs. Dickens in connection with the theme "Along the Way" which was read by Mrs. C. Bailey. This was the story of Jesus' presence at the Passover feast and how, to the surprise of His disciples, instead of conquering the enemy, Jesus gave Himself up without any struggle and was shamefully put to death. And how, three days after crucifixion He reappeared to Cleophas and another of His followers and made Himself known unto them by giving thanks and the breaking of bread and as they gazed at Him He departed from their midst. As they pondered it became clear to them that Jesus' Kingdom was not an earthly one but a rule of righteousness in the hearts of His followers.

All retired to the lower auditorium where a short film was shown by Mrs. H. Vesey depicting a young mother telling her children the story of the true meaning of Easter.

At the conclusion of the film, Lunch was served by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. H. Clarke assisted in the serving by Mrs. G. Jenkinson and Mrs. A. Dickens brought an enjoyable afternoon to a close with delicious refreshments and a cup of tea.

"WHEN THE QUEEN MOTHER CAME FOR TEA"
"Oh, to be in England now that April's there."—Robert Browning.

Upon learning the other day that a young Marysville doctor had met Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, at tea last year in England, we simply had to ask for details. Wouldn't you have?

Let us first say the modest, pleasing reply was in keeping (pleasing reply was quite in keeping with charming surprise we received, upon entering the office of a research officer at the Belleville Entomology Research Institute by Biochemical Control to behold a flashing, merry-black-eyed young lady with dark wavy hair and an infectious smile. She is the afore-mentioned doctor, Dr. June Stephens.

A little difficult to look at her, we found, and remember, that she graduated from the University of New Brunswick, in Fredericton, N.B., with a B. Sc. degree in home biology, secured a Master's degree in bacteriology at Queen's University in Kingston, Ontario, to work subsequently for the Canada Department of Agriculture before taking an educational leave from there in 1961 in order to obtain the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the faculty of medicine from the University of London, (England). This work was done at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. The title of study being bacteriology.

Here at home (even before the degree was conferred) as a Ph.D. for her work on immunity to insects is less than three years old, but has resulted in writing two years', she had publish-ed, one scientific paper on this subject which was recognized by fellow bacteriologists the world over and is included for a textbook on "Insect Pathology". At present she is studying the manner in which insects are infected by certain bacteria and how they are destroyed by each other organism and the types of organisms that may be used to be controlling harmful insects, at the Research Institute.

But did we hear something about we asked: "But how did having tea with the Queen Mother come about?"

Why, really, it's just that the Queen Mother is Chancellor of the University of London, and on a Thursday afternoon in February 1961 the school of London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, where students come from all over the world, especially from the tropical countries for post-graduate work, are usually given the great honor of a visit from her. Dr. Stephens said. "At least that was the way it seemed to black, as she was in mourning for her father who died a relative. She was received by the Mayor of Holborn, an Alderman, by the Director of Studies and by the Chairman of the Court of Governors.

Then the Chairman of the Board of Management, the Chairman, the Director of Studies and certain of the staff were presented to Her Majesty. How colorful was the scene, with the dignitaries wearing their red academic robes and gay hoods. She signed the Visitors' Book and thereafter tea and some of the Departments, where members of the staff and eight research students from various countries (I being one, chosen to represent Canada) were presented, and some of the work of the school was demonstrated.

From other letters I hastily knew if I was showing her the right slide of specimens of insects, which briefly explaining I had to do with insects in Sussex. About the time the Canadians found themselves members of a party riding in the French Ambassador's regal car.

Ah, to be in England, indeed!

A most enjoyable supper was spent, recently, when Guiders and Local Association members of Belleville southeast district gathered to honor their retiring Guider-in-taginer Mrs. H. T. Floyd.

The blessing was asked by Mrs. D. Hall and the toast to the Queen, proposed by Mrs. W. Harwood.

Mrs. J. Coles expressed the thanks and appreciation of all those present with Guiding in the district for the excellent work done by Mrs. Floyd, and on behalf of the Guiders and members of the Local Association, presented a beautiful China "Balloon Seller" to Mrs. Floyd. Mrs. Floyd graciously thanked the gathering and expressed her gratitude for all the help and encouragement given her who had assisted her. Without their help, Mrs. Floyd asserted "the work would have been much more difficult."

The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all those present.

On March 16th, a rally was held at Moira Secondary School, attended by all the Girl Guides and Brownies in the southeast district, as a farewell for the commissioner, Mrs. H. T. Floyd. Each pack put on various competitions to the entertainment and a delightful evening resulted.

Mrs. Floyd was presented with ten silver coffee spoons—one from each group which had been under her supervision during her six years as District Commissioner.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

"WRONG NUMBERS" CHALLENGE YOUR ETIQUETTE

When you get a wrong number on the telephone, what do you do? Fuss? Fume? Bang the phone down in a huff?

The average well-mannered person, of course, would never be so rude. But there are a few who react to a wrong number as if it were some sort of sinister plot.

A friend recently had some strange experiences and the result, of a few unfortunate digits in her phone number. When all the wires were finally uncrossed, it was discovered that she and a local plumber had phone numbers that were identical except for the last two numerals. My friend's number ended in 06, and the plumber's in 60. But, until she finally had her number changed, her telephone life was hectic, indeed.

Emergency calls would come in at all hours of the day and night. Many times a day she had the wrong number, some callers would practically give her the third degree and demand to know "Who are you?" or "What are you doing home this way?" A few die-hards even insisted they had dialed the right number and seemed to think she had the plumber stashed away in the cellar, or under the stairs. She finally got hold of the plumber's number and was able to supply it when anyone had sprung a leak and called her by mistake.

It's always easy to transpose numbers when you're dialing, especially when you're in a rush. When you get a wrong number, it's not always polite, but senseless, to argue about it with the unfortunate person who answers.

If you should make a wrong turn by dialing a number and voice greets you at the other end of the phone, then the only polite thing to do is say "I'm sorry" and recheck the listing. It's extremely disconcerting to hang up the phone without saying a word. If you're annoyed, remember that it's not all in your own making. It's certainly not the fault of the person who answers. A gracious apology should be offered when you find that you've misdialed and been connected with the wrong number.

Actually, the person on the receiving end has much more reason to be vexed than the one who dialed the wrong number. It's always irritating to join in the middle of doing something, answer the phone and then discover it's all a mistake.

Our good-natured friend certainly has had plenty of practice in her unwanted role as "plumber without portfolio." Luckily, most of us do not have to cope with such a heavy load of incorrect calls. But whenever does the dial your phone in error, you should recognize it as an honest mistake and treat it accordingly.

Instead of growling in reply, you should be considerate and explain that it's a wrong number. It's not necessary to give your own phone number, even if asked. If a call is inside the dial-it-yourself right number, courteously request that it be removed from the book, or call "information" if he's still in doubt.

Joseph U. — She made me think she was a believer. Now she admits she's an agnostic.

Carla U. — People change. Now that I'm away from my parents I can think for myself.

• • •

Joseph U. — I don't expect Carla to observe every detail of every rule of our religious attitude, the way her parents do. But I certainly didn't expect her to go through such an about-face that she's practically an atheist now!

She certainly had me fooled. We met at the home of friends and she was introduced to me as "a very pious young lady." The couple who introduced us to each other knew that my religion meant a lot to me and that I was seeking a mate who felt the same way about such faith, someone who'd remain true to its traditions and commandments.

We were married three years ago. At first she obeyed the letter, but not the spirit. But in the last year she's "dragged her feet" openly, admitting, by her religious practices only to summer me. Now she stays away from services, and is gradually skipping over, more and more of the rules and regulations.

• • •

Carla U. — While under my parents' roof I was under a spell. I did things like an automaton, never questioning why, never imagining that there was any other way to live and believe.

Lately, however, I've felt like someone coming out of an amnesia spell and asking "Where am I?" I realize that one's religion is a matter of feeling, that the world doesn't and for me when I skip a prayer or do what I want on the Sabbath. It's a new and wonderful feeling to be able to think through big matters like life and death and my place in the world, instead of accepting what I'm told like a dummy.

But because I love Joe and don't want to jar him too much, I try to adhere to his approximate forms. I feel responsible for living like the sort of girl he fixed in his mind he was marrying. Although I've changed inwardly, I don't want to embarrass him. But I keep hoping he'll change a little, too.

• • •

The Council: Carla had better get back on Joe's good side.

The Council: His piety seems to be part of his very fiber, not subject to locale, worker or social position. It would have been better for their marriage had Carla's change in belief occured before she married Joe. Now that she has reached a point of conviction about their faith, we are confronted with a masked intermarriage.

As usual in such cases, we need to attack not the faith, religion before a child appears on the scene.

The harder row to hoe is Joe's. He can't claim fraud. Carla did believe when she married him. She changed.

The issue is between him and will not flaunt her defection before him, his family or friends. Joe is fortunate, for at times an unloving mate pounces upon this area for sinning her barbs, for "getting back" at a man where it can hurt him most. Regarding him up as a "religious" man, a bitter wife becomes anti-religious by-cause, she is anti-him. Joe's patience, respect, sympathy and broad-mindedness will help keep Carla loving him. This keeps the "friendship" or "association" purely intellectual rather than emotional and makes the road back welcoming and easy.

Warmed by Joe's tolerance, Carla will pursue her quest further unconspicuously, while following the form, of observance for his sake. True, the gestures may not mean much. But they'll mean something — namely, that she'll stand at Joe's side through his enjoyment of rituals and customs. Her enjoyment of them may not come from the knowledge that he is comfortable and at peace spiritually.

Let's hope Carla's doubts lead to an improved faith. As Carla struggles to find her own, Joe's understanding can ease her way.

Your Car

Better Care Will Stretch Battery Life

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

How long can you depend on your battery to start the engine and run the ignition system and all the electrical accessories you need? Engineers now tell us seems to be the general average, even if owners are the best. Yet with just a little better care, that service period may be stretched to three years or more!

The first rule is most familiar—watch battery water level, especially in summer weather when there are more trips for gas. During winter months, keeping the water level a bit lower can give the battery a little added muscle for frigid engine starts.

Keep an eye on battery cable connections. They should be tight and clean of corrosion. Occasionally check to see that the battery is sitting firmly in the carrier or cradle. But don't overtighten the clamps, or you may damage the battery case.

Finally, use good judgement with accessories which eat battery power.

• • •

From D.M.: "Is breaker point just another name for ignition points, or are they something else entirely?"

(A) They're one and the same — and you may have also heard them called contacts or points or distributor points.

• • •

C.H. writes: "Shortly after I bought a used '57 sedan, I found that the clutch was slipping apparently because there was no pedal play. The pedal has been adjusted but the clutch still slips."

(A) Perhaps pedal adjustment was corrected too late to avoid worn clutch facings caused by the continuous slipping.

• • •

S.N.: "A fellow was telling me that his car brake, were damaged because the wrong grease was used on the front wheel bearings. I don't get this at all, and he couldn't explain."

(A) For wheel bearings, a special grease with high melting point, must be used. Heat boiling up will melt ordinary grease which can then get on brake linings and ruin them.

• • •

From M.S.: "My car is a '61 hardtop, and the gas mileage has suddenly dropped off in the last two weeks, although the engine hasn't lost any of its power and it's 6%. Any suggestions?"

(A) Gas leakage might be the reason. A close inspection of fuel line, fuel pump and carburetor would be a good idea.

Retirement are 25-year-old housewives with small children. Always they write me, asking how they can start planning. There are troublesome years. The young wives yearn for escape. Retirement is the promised land. And they look at retirement through 25-year-old eyes. Many in the early 50's do likewise.

The couple owns two small houses, side by side. They live in one and rent out the other for $60 a month. At the moment they have $30,000 in savings. Their aim is $15,000 before they are 62.

"We never made an attempt to keep up with the Joneses," the wife says, "so we don't have their headaches. We buy a new car every three years, and our wardrobes are sturdy, take grandmother, immediate aunt, and sister Lillian dresses and coats.

There is one child, married and well-established.

What are the weaknesses in this couple's retirement plan?

A FEW AREAS

Financially, I see a few. With the two small houses, the couple probably could get by. But the inflation that comes in 10 years can wipe out a third of their $27,000 income. And they'll be only 62, with maybe 20 more years of inflation to live with.

Any couple that starts dreaming of retirement in the early 50's as this couple is of course might take note of other leaks that can develop in their plans.

A couple of 52 planning retirement at 62 is sniffing the prospect of a 52-inch garden. At 62 the garden has different ideas. It's difficult for people to understand this.

But a couple must plan. And age 52 is not too early to do it. So what, beyond money, should be added to the roof to prevent the leaks?

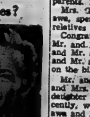
Health. The cemetery is crowded with men and women who died between ages 52 and 62. A couple at 52 should go to a doctor, even before counting the money, to find what they can do by looking their lives fit to their 60's and longer, and what they can do to keep from being invalids.

Work. This is not what it is at 52. The couple — or more likely the male part of the couple — often continues with a fading vigor in the early 50's and rarely associates retirement with rejuvenation. Retirement at 62, whatever vigor might remain, should be for other things.

MUCH LESS STATUS

Status — There is a bit of it at 52, much less of it at 62. Youth is still associated with energy and there are jobs on the church, civic affairs, the company that can be had. Especially in the company, because in the mid-50's or late 50's many men hit their peaks in careers. So a certain amount of glamor attaches to the man who still may go somewhere. Most people think he's not going anywhere once he is past 60.

Therefore the couple of 52 who plans retirement at 62 should know they will not be at desirable to others when retirement comes as they are now and develop something within themselves that will give them the status they want.



Energy — Much of it gets up and goes between 52 and 62. The couple at 52 should plan activities — and learn to be content with activities — that they see 52-year-olds following. There are many of them, and many are good. But they aren't the demanding doings of the early 50's.

In my experience, the people who think most earnestly of re-

Hypnotized by Old Wives' Tales?

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS:—Whenever I used to go out with a guy, either he was no good or myself, according to Auntie. I used to listen to all kinds of frightful, dreadful stories of hers and after a while I just plain gave up. Why I was so influenced by her I don't know.

Now all of the fellows I used to know are either married or have drifted away. Oh brother! What makes her act the way she does? She has an only daughter who is married, but her husband hasn't been living with her for over six years. Can one put someone who has trust in her under hypnotism?

—SOFT JELLY.

• • •

DEAR SOFT:—It amounts to that.

Now that you know she is soured on life, pick up the pieces. Start believing in your own future and don't waste another minute on blaming her for your single blessedness.

• • •

Mr. Right may be right around the next corner.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I've know this guy four years. He is 23 and I am 19 and I can't figure out if he likes me. Once I lost an article and I asked him if he had seen it and he said "no." It was right beside him and he knew it. He likely figured I was lying and I couldn't see it.

I asked a friend of mine to go up and get it for me and the other guy looked up at me and gave me a smile as he saw my friend bringing back the article which had been beside him.

What does this mean?—UNCERTAIN.

• • •

DEAR UNCERTAIN:—It means you are not fooling him. He is not blind to your ruses—and is probably too old for you in every way.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—Re T. F.'s inquiry which you replied to in today's column. You might tell her to write to Miss Ruth Rorke, Director of Home Economics at Kemptville Agricultural School, Kemptville, Ontario, and ask regarding the Homemaker's Course for one year and the two year course in Home Economics.

Tuition is free and board and room very reasonable. I can remember when I hit a first-class meal in lovely surroundings. It is co-ed and the boys even cry when their graduation day comes. They hate to leave.—MRS. B. S.

• • •

DEAR MRS. B. S.—T. F. wanted to learn sewing and cooking so that she could be "an experienced housewife." Thanks for the suggestion. Perhaps it will help someone else as well.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—This year I am 17 years old, and I wish to find a job where I could help people. The wages don't matter, as long as I'm around people who are being looked after.

Preferably I would like to work around where there are small children. Do you think I could work some place near children. If not do you think I could be where the blind are or the aged?—R. W.

• • •

DEAR R. W.—Since you know what you want, go after it. Places to ask are: Your National Employment Service Office; the child care agency; the general hospital; your Y, or recreation department; the church nursery or a baby shower.

To get experience, offer to work as a volunteer for a start.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I am one very unhappy mixed-up teenager. While I was on a bowling trip with our church group I met a most wonderful young man about 20. When I discovered I was falling in love with him I tried to get to know him better.

Last Sunday he came over and we started talking. I was pretty excited and thought I was making some headway with him until the church group went bowling in the afternoon and he ignored me completely.

I don't understand it. I am in love with this guy. (Please don't laugh and call it puppy love because I know it isn't. He is on my mind constantly and I can't seem to stop thinking about him.)

I thought back to see if I had said anything to hurt him to make him act that way but I'm sure I didn't. Please help me.—MISERABLE.

• • •

DEAR MISERABLE:—If he's for you he'll be back. Right now he's shy and unsure of himself.

Probably some crush on a teacher—which is what it is, my little chickadee! The antidote is other boys.

• • •

(Have you a vocational problem? Perhaps a letter to Doris will help. Remember that stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

The resolution will be "in the nature of a protest" against the increase in steel prices, Gillette said Thursday.

Absolute silence doesn't help you to work better. It's distracting. . . . Psychiatrists have found most people's mental powers are at a peak against a background of soft music.

Men Who Think for Themselves

You have heard it all too many times. "Three out of four doctors . . ." Inescapably, a great many people have wondered about this lack of unanimity in the medical profession. Why should three doctors prescribe certain "ingredients" for their patients while the fourth refused to even form? What's the matter with that guy, anyway?

We have wondered about that fourth doctor. At first glance his refusal to go along with the crowd and use medically proven aids to the ailing seemed to reflect unfavorably on his general ability and knowledge as a practitioner. Could he be didn't know about the value of these well-advertised compounds. This action on was discarded, however. Just about everybody has a pretty good idea what these drugs will do for relief from certain specified ailments. Surely the fourth doctor would know, far better than we.

The thing stayed with us wouldn't let go. Unquestionably people suffering from these said specific ailments had come to him for help and relief. Goodness knows, the ailments are common enough. No, there must be a better reason for his refusal to follow the crowd. Then the probable answer came — ten to one that fellow has his own ideas about cures and prescriptions. Instead of going along with the crowd, drinking with the current, he has formed his own conclusions, done his own research, to the extent that he is one or two jumps ahead of the pack.

ALWAYS SHOWS UP

In just about every town of human size there is that "fourth doctor" showing up every now and then. Considered a prehistoric man. All of his neighbors were content to drag their sad-looked tigers back to their caves just as their fathers had done. Then he'd find that a round log or two, properly placed, made dragging easier. Finally he invented the wheel.

And so it has gone, right down through history. Ben Franklin took his kite out into a thunder storm and showed the world that lightning actually is electricity. Robert Fulton grew weary of waiting for a favorable wind and applied steam to navigation. Morse carried his compass through the Catskills, searching for iron deposits from which he fashioned the first iron cores of the first telegraph instruments. Fourth doctors, all of them.

As you know, the same idea has projected itself into the out-door sports down through the years. Izaak Walton and his compeer Cotton were content with the fly rod of greenheart or lancewood. Then along came Phillipoi who, so far as we know, split and glued up four Calcutta cane, the first six-strip bamboo fly rod. One of there is on display at the club rooms of The Anglers' Club of New York. Many all of us are familiar with glass rods which gradually are replacing bamboo.

For years all of us who fish the dry fly or the bug have struggled with the problem of keeping those old silk lines afloat. Then came the fourth doctor with braided nylon and "bubble flshes", giving us lines that are lighter than water. No longer is a floating line a problem.

IN PEARLMEN FIELD

In the firearms field the same thing has held true. Missile doctors and rimfiredoc were a distinct handicap to our forefathers, fighting for their lives to carve out new homes in the wilderness. The percussion cap and, later, the Henry rifle lined it on Sunday and shoot it all week made the colonization of the West a far easier job than it would have been without them.

Only last spring I saw a fourth doctor at work on one of our trout streams. An ample batch of flies was drifting and the trout were feeding actively. He was using a size smaller than the long pool, all of them casting dry flies which were a size or two smaller than the imitations of the drifting hatch. Nobody was catching any fish.

Then one of the fishermen reeled in his line and, instead of making his way downstream, he waded right out into the middle of a mass of rising trout. There he stood for fully ten minutes, bending over and watching the flies on the water as it flowed past him. Then deliberately he retired to the bank and fussed with his terminal tackle for four or five minutes.

Repairs complete, he waded out again to the head of the pool. The trout had recovered from their fright and once more were feeding actively. Instead of fishing his fly among them, I noticed that he was not using a dry fly, but in the space of half an hour he hooked and landed six beauties. Fourth doctor, but he stopped drifting and the rise was over.

I stopped him as he started back to his car. "You seemed to find the formula quickly enough," I said. "What in the world were those fish taking?"

"Well, they weren't taking my flies; you saw that for yourself," he replied. "I waded out and watched the water. Sure enough, some specs, spinners were drifting down the river on the surface. I whittled down a wet fly, cutting off some of the hackle and wings, and fished it aswai. You saw what happened."

There we are again, another fourth doctor.

Thinking along these lines brings home all too clearly the failure of following the crowd. The fellow who thinks for himself, and not accepting to his convictions, usually prospers in the long run.

Maxwell Ties Souchak

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Billy Maxwell, former U.S. Amateur champion, shot a four-under-par 67 Friday to join defending champion Mike Souchak as 36-hole leaders in the $35,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament. The two have 137 totals.

They were two strokes ahead of thirty three nearest rivals, Mason Rudolph, Dow Casper and Jerry Steelsmith. Dow Pinkerwald, first round leader with 68, slid to 73 to drop into a five-way tie for sixth place.

Arnold Palmer shot a 70—five over par—for a 147 total. That dropped the Latrobe, Pa., way tie for 40th place, 10 strokes off the top.

Al Johnson of Montreal skyrocketed to an 80 Friday after Thursday's first-round 68 but still got in under the cutoff at 156. George Knudson of Winnipeg added a 76 to his 73 Thursday for a 149 total.

Jack Nicklaus of Val Morin, Que., failed to make the cutoff. He had rounds of 75-84—159.

Sports Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Ken Twigg of Toronto is a sensitive kid. I pitied young man. In case the name escaped you, he is national chairman of the Canadian Amateur Union of Canada track and field committee.

He isn't really mad at anybody, but he wonders why the sports directory committee, the group that is helping the government spend $50,000 a year on physical fitness and amateur sport, would pass up his committee. He's waiting for an explanation from any committee member.

Twigg almost flipped the other day when he read in the newspapers that $18,000 had been set aside for the AAU's boating fencing, gymnastics, weightlifting and wrestling committees and $50,000 for the Royal Canadian Legion's 1962 track and field program.

Twigg's committee got nothing.

NIL 'IN KITTY

"I'd just like to know what this is all about," Twigg said in an interview.

"I have nothing against the Legion. I think it is doing tremendous job for track and field in Canada, but I'm no less than anybody else, but I always thought the AAU was the governing body of the sport in this country. I guess we're out in the cold.

"We got zero from the council."

For council's enlightenment, that is exactly what Twigg has in the kitty.

"My budget from the AAU is $50" he said. "We finished in November and the 50 bucks was spent in the months. People in track and field send me telegrams, and they're always collect. It's been a tough year since taking office and these took care of the rest of my budget."

Twigg said he had asked for $10,000 to run the Canadian track and field championships and Royal Canadian Games trials at Toronto next August.

WANTS NATIONAL MEET

"We need between $5,000 and $10,000 to get athletes from every province to compete. We haven't had a truly national track meet in years simply because our athletes haven't the money to travel across the country."

Twigg noted that the Legion would conduct coaches' clinics "These are fine, and I'm all for them, but what's the point if we can't get our young athletes to compete in Canadian championships because they can't afford the travelling and other costs?"

Announcement of the grants, including $2,300 to the provinces for their own fitness programs, was made in the House of Commons by Health Minister Monteith.

One council member, who wished to remain anonymous, appeared to be surprised at the government's announcement. "It must have been an oversight," he said in reference to lack of funds for the AAU track and field committee.

BEEVES SURPRISED

He indicated this would be remedied. The next council meeting is slated for May 30.

Another member, Ted (Toronto Telegram) Reeve, had this to say:

"A few months back yours truly had been a member of the 30-strong Advisory Committee for the Standing Council of Physical Fitness. Naturally interested, therefore (though still a very long and growing member) to learn that of the yearly $5,000,000 allotted to this plan by the federal government $50,000 of the 1962-63 budget will be divided amongst the provinces.

"This seems like a good idea but I'm sure it will surely have to know is why the Council of Phys. Fit. didn't receive the $5,000,000 tabled by Mr. Diefenbaker for this most laudable plan, for the federal fiscal year of 1961-62.

"We know many others on our advisory group whose advice might as well have been given to the pigeons, are also slightly puzzled.

"Yes, aren't the only one, Measor.

Bob Horton Drops Off Train After Five Year Ride

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Horton, the tall, curly-haired, drop ped off the Wagon Train this week after a five-year ride. How does he feel?

"Older, wiser, richer and full of enthusiasm."

Bob was relaxing at his Laurel Canyon home.

"Ward Bond, Saturday, takes care of that; the leg said about the latter that he was 'wiser'!

Wiser? I've learned how a big outfit operates in this business. I once read a book by Kirk Douglas in which he said an actor is nothing more than a commodity in Hollywood.

"I found out that is true. As long as I was a studio's commodity, they are interested in you. After the relationship is over, you mean nothing to them. Friendship doesn't count for a thing.

DENIED FETE

"Funny thing—I didn't look for any special celebration on my last day on Wagon Train. But some of the crew said rather apologetically that they wanted to give a party for me, but management wouldn't allow it.

"Richard Boone offered the friendships I made during the five years—with the crew members, not the executives. I respect the crew, and I think they respect me.

"Yes, I'm richer in money, too. It has been a very profitable engagement. I'm not foolously rich, but I am well enough off to be able to pick and choose."

The fourth element—enthusiasm—results from Horton's view of the future. He has a new deal with NBC that ties him to the network for 10 guest appearances on different shows each season. They may well include The Virginian, the Western series which Ward will throw against Wagon Train, on ABC next season.

GUEST COMPOSER

Dimitri Shostakovich, famed Soviet composer, will be guest of honor at this summer's Edinburgh festival.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Friday the 13th was a big night for the occasion in Old Woodbine's history. Crowd of 14,000, $4,000 Invitational Trot before 4,336 patrons.

Empire Song, at 7 to 1, and Chappie's Boy, longest shot on the board at 8 to 1, staged a head - to - head duel down the stretch. The 3-to-5 favorite, Wee Irish, was a distant third as Empire Song, owned by the Comeskey Stable of Montreal, scored a half - length victory over Chappie's Boy in the upset.

Chapman, popular young horseman, was the harness-horseman's Bible. The Canadian Sportsman, appeared to be the favorite, based on the race-track week his seven-year-old gelding earned $1,000 for the runner-up position.

Right from the wire, it was Empire Song, driven by Doug Peters, handled by Jack Gordon, and Empire Song, guided cleverly by Al Burns and second later Mandella grabbed the puck and flipped it into the empty net. Kapuskasing played stronger than in the first game, but could not find the net.

The clubs move to Montreal for the next two games, Sunday afternoon and Monday night. If the Kaps take one of the games, the series will return to the Northern Ontario town Wednesday night.

LAST DAY AT BELLE — Lots of fun! Lana Turner, Bob Hope and Jim Hutton, head a cast of funmakers in MGM's "Bachelor in Paradise," showing today for the last times at the Belle Theatre. Ten-Pin Bowling Tour, and Tom and Jerry Cartoon, "Life With Tom", precede the feature comedy.

British actor James Mason made his debut before motion picture audiences in the United States as star of The Seventh Veil.

Montreal Olympics shut out Kapuskasing Kaps 2-0 Friday night to take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Canada Allan Cup hockey final.

The Kaps have yet to score a goal yet against the Olympics.

Montreal, with great goaltending by Andre Binette, skated and checked both ways to come up with the win, their eighth straight in playoff games.

The Olympics went ahead 2-0 in the second period on goals by Connie Mandella and Mike Labrosse, With three minutes to go in the third, Kap captain Bummer Doran pulled goalie Al Burns and seconds later Mandella grabbed the puck and flipped it into the empty net. Kapuskasing played stronger than in the first game, but could not find the net.

The clubs move to Montreal for the next two games, Sunday afternoon and Monday night. If the Kaps take one of the games, the series will return to the Northern Ontario town Wednesday night.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The Toronto Maple Leafs, a club dedicated to bringing the Stanley Cup back Canada-side, have shown no fear of the bullish Chicago Black Hawks that ripped their way through Montreal's dashing Canadiens. At least not with some 26,000 loyal fans, all spraying support at them from the sidelines.

In a "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Hawks?" setting the Leafs have shown an utter disregard for the bull-dozing style of the Hawks in such a manner that the brutaling, smashing tactics of the Pilous Pucksters have been more or less missing.

In the first two games the Leafs have bulldozed, waltzed, hogrod, slung and slashed their way to victories. The Hawks seemed to have been hoist by their own petard for they have shown little of the dash, fire and battle-like courage that marked their march to the cup finals.

But Chicago fans I have talked with are far from conceding anything to the fired-up Torontos. They point to the fact the Hawks dropped their first two games in Montreal in the face of hostile crowds, reared back to take three in the City of the Red Stocks, yard and brazenly laughed in the face of Habitant fans by topping the Canadiens in their own backyard.

I talked with Bobby Hull via long-distance telephone and young Marne Robert is far from admitting series defeat. "We had a long, tough series with the Canadiens," Bobby said, "and naturally it took a toll. The boys had a natural let-down and the fact that the Leafs hold a two-game edge doesn't mean a thing."

"I think we shall hit our stride in Chicago Sunday night and if we do it will be a different story. The Leafs are fired up and full of desire. So were the Canadiens. I think we shall regain our peak in Chicago and change the picture."

There are loads of Leaflet fans who go so far as to predict a four-game Cup victory for the Toronto club. But sturdy Chicago butts who would add a little color (long grass) to the conversation have found little cooperation in this respect.

If the Leafs maintain their pace, keep the spirits and desire cups to overflowing, the Hawks may run into trouble even in front of the famous "Stanley Club" where ice-loading feats range from firecrackers, rabbits and baby octopi. And don't be surprised tomorrow night if you see a pair of baby elephants descend to the ice from the "Stanley Heaven."

But don't tell Chicago them. Their pattern has been to start a series slowly, giving and taking, then like the Chicago fire of Mrs. Murphy's cow renown, coming on like a bevy of Ness gangbusters to take the hoodlo, crook and the cow.

There could be blood on the Chicago moon tomorrow night. The Hawks are none too happy over Toronto-cha-cha, twist and mombo lessons handed to them in Toronto and they, being adepts at these forms of the hockey dance may turn instructors.

And the way the Leafs have been handing out the bumps, bruises and bulldosing, this series may turn into the roughest, toughest of all the Stanley pewterware clashes.

And I'm along with a lot of television fans who say they can willingly dispense with the dry, dusty interviews that clutter the "private eye between periods. "What answer," said one, "do you expect when the Canadiens are playing and a Canadian official is being interviewed, and he is asked 'what team do you think will win?'"

"Another thriller," said another, "was that fond mother of a player who told all about her son losing only one tooth. Maybe he didn't forget to brush after every meal."

"Doesn't bother me," said another. "We usually turn off the set and go to the kitchen for a long, cold one."

Detroit's Lary Defeats Yankees 5-3

Senators On Top

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

There was a time when New York Yankees shuddered every time Frank Lary of Detroit Tigers picked up his glove and walked to the mound.

Now they mustn't get nervous when he does. Lary is the writer cooler, it's too close to the bat rack.

Lary beat the Yanks 5-3 Friday in Detroit's home opener for the 1962 American League season. Departing from his usual custom, Lary did most of the damage with his bat instead of his arm.

He tripled in the tying run in a wild seventh inning as the Tigers charged from behind a 3-0 count. He pulled up lame at third base and was lifted for a pinch runner. Detroit eventually scored the winning run.

The undefeated Washington Senators gained first place in league race with a five-inning, 8-2 victory over the Indians at Cleveland, while Chicago White Sox bombed the Athletics 12-5 at Kansas City.

Baltimore Orioles' home opener with Boston Red Sox was rained out and a blanket of snow covered Minnesota Twins put off their home opener against Los Angeles Angels.

The seventh inning at Detroit started with a fan throwing a 200 bomber at New York outfielder Roger Maris and ended with Yankee pitcher Luis Arroyo walking in the winning run and Jim Coates another.

BOTTLES HITS ARM

Maris trotted into the New York dugout after the bottle grazed his arm. Spectators then scattered broken glass over his position. The game was held up for almost five minutes while Maris talked with manager Ralph Houk in the Yankee dugout. Eventually he was escorted back to right field by umpires.

Arroyo, the Yankees' ace fireman, walked three straight men after Lary's triple, forcing in the winning run, he was replaced by Coats, who promptly walked Norm Cash for another run. Elston Howard hit a homer and a run-producing double for the losers.

Lary was credited with the victory, running his career record to 28-10 over the Yankees. Tempestuous Ryne Duren was 36 degrees above zero for the affair, but it was even worse at Cleveland, where a rain and snow storm forced adjournment after five innings.

Washington jammed in two runs on three first-inning hits against Dave Denny Lehman and took it from there. Gene Woodling belted a two-run homer for the Senators in the fifth inning.

Rookie Mike Hershberger had four singles and a double, drove in four runs, and scored another in Chicago's route in Kansas City. The White Sox were trailing 2-1 when Don Larsen took over the Chicago pitching duties and retired the next 13 Athletics in order. Lola Aparicio started the offensive fireworks for Chicago with a solo homer in the fifth.

San Francisco Giants no longer are pitching poor in the National League—not with Juan Marichal, Billy O'Dell, Jack Sanford and Billy Pierce around.

Pierce, 35, a gamble picked up by the Giants in a winter trade along with Don Larsen for three promising youngsters, allowed only two hits as he 7-1-3 inning, before relievers Stu Miller came on to finish a 7-2 victory over Cincinnati Reds Friday night.

Making his first start in the National League after 13 consecutive seasons with Chicago White Sox in the American League, Pierce retired 13 straight men before Wally Post hit his third homerun of the year, a bases-empty shot in the fifth inning.

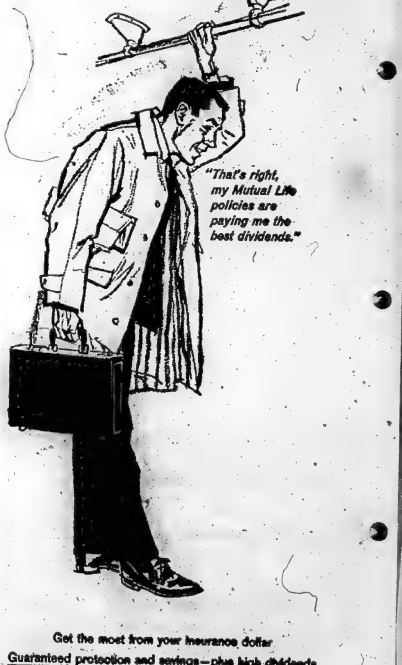
Pierce was untouchable after that until he hit Chico Cardenas with a pitch, walked a man and gave up a run-producing single to Vada Pinson in the eighth. Miller finished up, permitting a harmless single to pinch-hitter Johnny Edwards in the ninth.

The performance by Pierce and Miller was the fourth consecutive low-hit effort by the Giants' staff. In earlier games, Marichal gave up three hits, O'Dell allowed four and Sanford was touched for seven. The victory left the Giants in first place in the league race with a 4-0 won-lost record!

Los Angeles Dodgers kept Milwaukee Braves' hitless wishes with a 6-3 victory, Philadelphia Phillies, blanked Houston Colts their first loss, 2-2, Pittsburgh Pirates marred New York Mets' home debut with a 4-3 triumph and the St. Louis Cardinals outlasted Chicago Cubs 8-5 in 15 innings.

Pierce, a two-time, 20-game winner who was 10-9 last year, held the Giants' first run safe when he singled in the fifth inning and came around on Hershel Kuenn's double off Cincinnati starter Jim O'Toole.

Willy Mays' third homer, with the bases empty in the sixth inning, put the Giants ahead to stay and Orlando Cepeda provided some working room with a two-run shot in the seventh.



Don Drysdale went the distance for the Dodgers, striking out 11 men and giving up eight hits, including a two-run homer by Roy McMillan in the ninth. Drysdale also drove in the go-ahead run with a double in the fifth as the Dodgers belted Milwaukee's Lew Burdette for five runs—three on Tommy Davis' homer.

SUPPLIES THE POWER

Tony Gonzalez, of the Phillies supplied the power with a tie-breaking 417 homer off Colts' starter Dick Farrel in the sixth inning and a triple in the eighth that drove in the deciding tally. Rookie Jack Hamilton picked up the win, with a seven-hitter, although he wild-pitched a run home in the fourth and balked one across in the ninth.

The Pirates scored the deciding run in the eighth when Don Hoak walked, took second on a wild pitch, moved up on an infield out and came across on another wild one by Mets' reliever Ray Daviault. Tom Sturdivant won with relief help from Elroy Face over the last two innings, Sherman Jones took the loss.

Don Landrum's tie-breaking single and Bill White's double gave the Cards their run in the 15th inning to nail the four-hour, 40-minute marathon with the Cubs. Stan Musial of the Cardinals scored his 1,900th run, eclipsing the National League record held by Mel Ott. Lindy McDaniel, with seven innings of three-hit relief, was the winner. Bob Anderson lost.

That's The Hull Of It

Now Leafs Have To Watch Mikita

By BILL MacDOUGALL

TORONTO (CP) — A young Chicago centre, overshadowed in many Black Hawk team efforts, by starry Bobby Hull, is threatening to break a couple of Stanley Cup playoff records.

He is Stan Mikita, a 22-year-old penalty-prone player without whose touch the Hawks might be in a lot of trouble.

Montreal Canadiens found out in the semi-final how troublesome Mikita can be. Of the 15 goals the Hawks scored in outstripping the Canadiens four games to two, Mikita was on 10. Of the three goals and 10 assists.

Now Toronto Maple Leafs, who lead the best-of-seven final against Chicago 3-0, are having the same trouble. The Hawks have scored three goals against Toronto and Mikita has pulled the trigger on two of them and assisted on the other. In Thursday's 4-2 game 3-2 victory, he also scored another that was not allowed.

Mikita has a total of five goals and 11 assists for 16 points. Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings holds the record for most points in a season's playoffs—nine goals and 11 assists for 20 points—set in 1952. Mikita is in the net end of the first eight games, an average of two points.

THREATENS SECOND MARK

Now retired Fleming Mackell, Toronto Maple Leafs, holds the record for most playoff assists in 1958 with 14. That record, set in 1951 by Milt Schmidt of the tempestuous Chicago centre.

After a three - game National Hockey League debut in the 1958-59 season, Mikita joined Hawks full-time in the 1959-60 season. He had eight goals and 18 assists in 1959-60, 19 goals and 34 assists last season and 26 goals and 30 assists this season for a total of 97 points in the individual scoring race.

Mikita's big problem has been his inclination to penalties. In his first full season he had 119 minutes and in his second 100. That slackened a bit of quiet advice from the Chicago management and he went like a blue streak for a while, but again this season fell into the penalty habit with 97 minutes.

The story has been a different one this playoff season. In the eight games so far, he has spent eight minutes in the penalty box. It's playing off handsome dividends.

WORRIES IRELAND

So much so, that Punch Imlach, Leafs' coach, said that he worries if Mikita will be in against the Leafs have to stop. Or, "They'll have to get better job on Hull, who has one goal and one assist in the final.

Imlach Friday ran his regular players through a brief workout while the non-dressing regulars through a practice. The small practice crew was followed by Dave Bentley, one time Leafs centre who gained his playing reputation as a display-doodling antics. He was a member of the last Leafs team to win the Stanley Cup, in 1951.

Imlach figures the Hawks are going to be tougher to beat Sunday night in the third game, the first at Toronto. "They're tough in their home town just as we are," he said.

Left winger Bert Olmstead, out with a cracked shoulder bone since March 31, will be dressed and it is likely right winger Eddie Shack, who saw short service in the first two games of the final, will be benched to make room.

Blow 4-2 Lead

Macs Bow To Waterloo

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Writer

The Waterloo Siskins, outplayed and outscored in the two periods, fired four consecutive goals in the final twenty minutes to win last night to stand the Belleville McFarlands 6-5 and force the issue of their best-of-seven OHA Junior "B" semi-final series.

A crowd of 875 watched the Macs spot the Siskins a 1-0 lead in the games' opening minutes then run home three at their own to go in front 3-1 at the end of the first.

Waterloo cut the lead to 3-2 early in the second but the Macs, using a fast-breaking attack to good advantage, regained their two-goal margin, 4-2, before the period ended.

Then the roof fell in on the Macs with a flurry that got the Siskins moving at 2.47. Mac goalie Ron Bardwell appeared to have the puck secured during a goalmouth scrumable but in the melee he was knocked backed and the puck ended up in the net.

Two minutes later, with the Macs a man short, Bardwell knocked down a rebound at the feet of Fred Siegel-Cresse and poked it home 4-2 at 4-4.

Wayne Hunter scored the next marker at 9.19 and to make matters worse the Siskins' Ken Smith was allowed to be connected. He stole the puck from Mac blueline, walked around one defender and beat Parker with a pretty shot. It was the second Waterloo goal scored while the club was shorthanded as the Macs seemed overanxious while enjoying a man advantage.

The action was reversed three minutes later with the Macs serving a penalty when Ken Smith took a pass alone in front and made it 6-4.

Belleville fired the Siskins' checking twice as hard once they were ahead but at 19:31, with Waterloo prime-donna Terry Oliver in the sin-bin, Moe Bunker jammed home Mawby's corner passout to make it 6-5.

Parker shaked off in favor of a sixth attacker with 16 seconds left in the period but the Siskins almost added another one Ebbier forced to make the save.

The Macs now face the tough task of two games in Kitchener either Monday or Tuesday, and next Friday, before coming back here for the fourth game a week from tonight.

Back in the first, the Macs got off to the wrong foot when Terry Vail scored the first of his two goals on a pretty passing play with Bill Goldsworthy while a team mate served a penalty.

Parker came up with some good saves however and the Macs started to fly. Moe Hunter bagged his first with the teams five aside, catching the Waterloo defence sleeping as he darted in to sink Weston's quick pass.

The cocky Siskins, who argued nearly every call, received a 2-minute bench penalty and seconds later Weston jammed the puck in a corner to put Belleville in front. Then Ric Mallar took Bradley Lee's perfect pass in a two-on-one play to make it 3-1 at 11.15. Four minutes Ebbier both had good close-in opportunities but Parker collected Bob Zupan, who held the puck for the game for two periods, made the stop.

Zupan stood out again in the second, stopping Hunter, McGuire twice, Duvall and Smith as they looked like sure goals. Parker also stole goals from Goldsworthy and Kreutzweiser but was a two-way man the better chances. Two shots rattled off goalposts with Zupan beaten.

Terry Vail had the Waterloo marker at 1.11 and Billy McGuire flipped in a backhander at 14.39 for the 4-3 score.

Waterloo drew the lion's share of the penalties, getting 12 minors and 4 misconduct, to Oliver, returned to the Macs' six minors. Oliver also drew four of his club's minors and looked to be more interested in refereeing the game than playing.

Waterloo:: Zupan, Kreutzweiser, Bender, B. Dietrich, G. Vail, Bardwell, Oliver, Hunter, Clairmont, T. Vail, R. Smith, Goldsworthy, Harrigan, Seifried, Cressman.

Belleville: Parker, Zahns, Reid, Weston, Hunter, Smith, Mawby, Rowland, Ebbier, Lee, Bunker, Kellar, Duvall, Lee, Goodfellow

Referees:: Art Casterion and "Smiley" Gibson, bob of Kingston.

SUDBURY (CP) — Kingston Frontenacs took a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven semi - final series of the Eastern Professional Hockey League by defeating Sudbury Wolves 4-2 Friday night.

The fifth game is in Kingston tonight.

SENTENCE 22

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Twenty-two Doukhobors were sentenced to terms ranging from five to eight years Friday on charges of bombing. 22 were part of more than 150 members of the sect arrested since November in a massive RCMP crackdown on terrorism in the British Columbia Kootenay district.

Tiger Fans 'Homer' Mr Maris

DETROIT (AP) — Roger Maris long has made the patrons of the right field stands in Detroit's Tiger Stadium his home run target and Friday one of them made a target of New York outfielder Maris.

A carefully-aimed pop bottle sent Maris scurrying for cover when he returned to his right field post and a fan threw with the Tigers.

"It's dangerous playing out there," said Maris in a few terse post-game comments.

The bottle, spectators say, popped beside Maris left arm and then careened in the playing area with broken glass. Maris ran into the Yankee, dugout.

"It was a large pop bottle," said manager Ralph Houk. "But what was worse was all the pieces of glass. They were large chunks."

"No, Roger didn't refuse to return to his position. We just wanted to get protection for him before he went back out."

There was a five-minute delay before Maris returned to right field, the umpire finally called him from the dugout and he strolled back to his position.

A chorus of boos greeted Maris, who responded to them, what appeared to be a contemptuous gesture aimed at the right field bleachers.

"I didn't do that," Maris said afterwards.

But several Detroit players said they saw Maris gesture toward the stands.

FREE ON BAIL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Justice Harlan of the U.S. Supreme Court Friday permitted release of Dr. Robert A. Soblen, convicted of spying for the Soviet Union, on $100,000 bail. Harlen specified that Soblen could remain at liberty under bond pending final appellate court action on an appeal to be filed by May 12.

Smokies Defeat Quakers

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Trail Smoke Eaters overpowered Seattle Totems 5-2 Friday night to take a 2-1 lead in their Western Canada Allan Cup final series.

The fourth game of the best-of-seven set will be played at Saskatoon next Tuesday. The series winner will meet either Montreal Olympics or Kapuskasing Huskies for the Allan Cup as Canadian senior hockey crown.

The Trail scoring was handled by Ray Hannah, Ed Chadwick, Add Tambellini, Ross Kowalchuk, and Bruce Gamble. Chuck Scheer, George Genick and Frank Kuzma scored for the quakers.

PRAISES PROGRAM

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's new program of federal welfare grants was praised Friday by A. E. G. Davis, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council. He said the government program announced in the Commons Thursday "seems to completely answer the council's briefs to the cabinet." Under the program $2,500,000 a year will be channelled into the field of general welfare, professional training and research by 1967.

Auto Rally Reaches Final Stage

By FRED CRAFT

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—The 4,000-mile Canadian auto rally wound its final stages through the Canadian Mountains today, with the over-all victory in the grasp of a Studebaker Lark for the second successive year.

Barring mishaps in what would be a tricky last lap, John Jones and Lou Lalonde of Toronto were in a strong position to pick up the winner's purse when the 32 remaining cars drive past the Vancouver finish line at about 4 p.m.

Victory would be sweet for Jones and his pair, who placed second in the inaugural event last year when the Larks also took the manufacturer's team prize.

The factory prize for 1962 is virtually certain to go to the Renaults, The trio of cars entered by the Canadian branch of the French firm, manned by Belgian, German and Canadian drivers, have been running like clockwork and have only 75 demerit points to attest to take the honors.

Third three factory competitors were washed out as teams through loss of a car earlier in the competition. Lack of endurance, navigation and driving mistakes began a week ago in Montreal.

SPLIT A RAD

A Studebaker Lark was eliminated by excessive penalty points between Montreal and Ottawa. The Montreal-based Rootes Motors Hillman Super Minx split a radiator on a rough section of highway between Ste. Marie, Ont.; and a team Volvo was out of the running after spending Thursday night in a muddy backroad ditch near Sault Ste. Marie.

There was more mud Friday in the foothills between Cochrane and Frank, Alta., but it didn't bother the top 12 cars and none was assessed more than a single penalty point.

Jones and Lalonde added a point and now have 27. Jerry Polidis and Charles Dick of Toronto also picked up one in their team Volvo but hold a strong second place with 48.

The biggest race appears to be for fourth place and the two contenders had a faultless drive Friday, Trant Jarman of Rochester, Mich., and Ron Hornby, of Oshawa, Ont., remained at 86 in their Chevy II and an Acadian driver by Martin Marshall and John Wilson of Toronto has 89.

In fifth place is the first of the Renault team cars driven by Grant McLean of Montreal and Bill Leatham of Chomedy, Que., who have accumulated 101 point Friday to bring their total to 118.

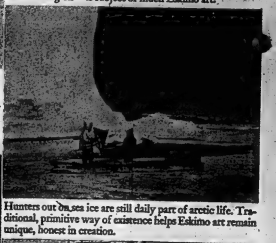
New Canadian Committee Advises Arctic Craftsmen



Eskimo Art Approved by Experts

Age-old method of harpoon hunting — part of everyday northern life and vital for obtaining food, clothing, heating and cooking oil — is subject of much Eskimo art.

Artistic talents of Eskimo women, resulting in top-quality, money-making designs have brought significant change in community life. No longer appraised by old standards of skill in lamp trimming, skin curing, cooking, many gifted women are esteemed for art work. Highest-priced print in this year's show is Big Bear, ($85) by Lucy of Cape Dorset. To make prints from original drawings the designs are carefully transferred to flat-surfaced stones which are used as printing blocks. Other technique calls for cutting stencils from sealskin. Many tools used in graphic work are home-made by Eskimos.

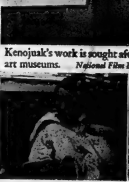
Centuries of living with relentless nature has taught Canada's Eskimos the value of co-operation. One form of share and share alike in today's changing arctic is the West Baffin Eskimo Co-operative, operated by and for Eskimo artists and craftsmen. Headquarters are at Cape Dorset on the south coast of bleak Baffin Island — trading point for over 300 Eskimos. These, wandering groups of Eskimos in from the hunting grounds for a brief period, sell the primitive art they have created. To maintain the high quality of graphic art emanating from the imagination, folklore and way of life of native inhabitants, the Eskimo co-operative requested advice from art critics in Canada's south. Result: a down-to-earth, critical look at Eskimo graphic art by an independent, voluntary group of six experts. Forming the Canadian Eskimo Art Committee (above) are, from left: Alan Jarvis, former director, National Gallery of Canada, M. F. Feheley, Toronto art collector, Dr. E. Turner, director, Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, Paul Arthur, noted typographer and arc critic, and Norman Hallendy, designer and editor. Julien Hébert, industrial designer, is not present. Their task: to examine new graphic art designs, evaluate artistic merit, help keep this aspect of arctic culture fresh and appealing, suggest selling prices and generally advise Eskimo artists and the federal department of Northern Affairs on Eskimo art. Destined for public showing at the annual exhibit of Eskimo Art in April are 83 prints selected by the committee, the first to bear their seal of endorsement, QD, Eskimo syllabics for approved.



Pitseolak, has several prints in 1962 exhibit.

Kiakshuk's art is inspired by mythology.

Lucy, creator of prize print Big Bear.

Prints by Parr appear for first time in 1962.

Advice of Canadian Eskimo Art Committee will ensure that graphics reaching the public in the future, as originals, prints or greeting cards, will be of highest quality.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

When the migrants return in spring looking so bright and tidy we naturally suppose they, like many of us, have donned new suits. However, this is not exactly the case. Actually, the majority of birds have a complete moult only in late summer by early autumn when housekeeping duties are over. To see how necessary this can be look at the broken tail of a parent that has just brought up a family in a small hole. A mother house wren in mid-summer is a good example. The spring change, in most cases, is not nearly as thorough, and is generally accomplished by quite a different method.

This pre-nuptial moult, as it is called, is in fact highly variable. Most birds at this period change just the body plumage, wing and tail feathers being dropped and replaced only if badly worn. Some species, as for example our well known English sparrow, do not really lose a single feather unnecessarily; their brightening up is due to the gradual wearing off of the dull feather tips.

Difference in Appearance

When we think of the difference in appearance of certain birds winter and summer we realize that, quite apart from the necessity of acquiring perfect feathers to take the place of frayed ones, in some way a change of plumage must be made to bring about a change in color. Our rose-breasted grosbeak is a good example. All winter the gorgeous male of summertime is dressed like his mate in a suit of streaked brown. Now he changes back to that striking black and white costume with beautiful rose red on May they look their best, other bird that has passed the winter greatly resembling his wife. In spring migration the buffy feather tips wear off and is gay once more.

No feather can repair itself, but its loss somehow stimulates the growth of a new one in its place, so that at any season of the year a new feather grows let for each species. Ducks, for instance, do their moulting while on migration — which is relatively early. The majority of birds have been given fresh plumage prior to their journey north. This seems necessary in order that flight feathers be absolutely perfect before the long trip. Consequently, when we first meet our migrants in April either in freshly refurbished or absolutely new attractive attire.

Astrological Forecast

For April 15
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Those who work with you apt to have ideas of their own. But those ideas, desires may not be based on actual experience. Be sure having it "your way."

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): The "right touch" gains much. Forcing your way could cause you to lose out completely. Your greatest asset today is one who loves you So show appreciation.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): So easy today to let details slip by, to delay, forget promises. Better draw up sharply and fulfill obligations. Important to gain spiritual strength and self-respect.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): No matter how much you would like path to be smooth, there is work to be done first. Advise friends accordingly, so they will not "trip" along the way. Play hand straight.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): You have a surprise in store for you! Answer or desires last by evening. Application of well-known Leo charm. Otherwise you might be disappointed.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Cycle up. Spiritual enlightenment encouraged. Easy way out no way at all. You only gain by giving your best, and this makes you feel terrific. You'll get what you seek, if you give!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Attend lecture or spiritual service of your choice to make most of this day. What you require is inspirational sermon. Gain all and prepare for week of intense activity.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 22): Constructive criticism useful today. But only those really concerned about your welfare are apt to give it. Although tempted to believe those who flatter, take mature view instead.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Clear vision due today if you permit yourself to think, face truths, about yourself, associates and loved ones. So, be honest.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Favorable lunar aspect to your sign, today, means you gain through words of older, wiser person. Don't be careless or "cocky." Better to wait, study situation, and then double check.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Attempt to balance line between humor and solid, sound advice. One who means much to you requires aid. You have to give it, and also save person's pride. But you can do it!

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You may be tempted to throw caution to winds. But if you are wise you will take conservative road. Best to listen, seek knowledge, read. Don't be impulsive today.

* * *

If today is your birthday . . . you possess combination of fire and conservatism. It is up to you to strive for balance. Good year for making new starts, for greater independence. July highlights.

* * *

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Leo, Virgo, Libra. Day of extremes — those who can walk line "in between" come out on top. Special word to Pisces: You gain strength today by perfecting your friendship . . . meaning you can show loved one you care enough to overlook petty annoyances.

Birthday April 16

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Start week by putting ideas into action. Catch up on correspondence, telephone calls. Stress progress of sales, with emphasis on selling yourself.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): You can be the "charmer" today. Others are won over to your side. Knowing this, exude confidence. Dig for gold, come up with answers . . . odds are in your favor!

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Emphasis on knowledge gained through new experiences, through contacting like-minded people. Many doors open to you today. But first you must knock to get the ball rolling!

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Could be one of most pleasant days, especially if you can be with loved ones. Bring home a surprise. Your thoughtfulness will be greatly appreciated.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Best to concentrate on new projects. Instead of hanging on to "situations" or persons which no longer suit you. Take a chance. Bold, daring move could improve income.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You may feel a "trap" is being set but you have nothing to fear. Your lunar cycle is up and you attract favorable attention. Push ahead, but remember to compliment person who deserve it

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Long-range view necessary. If you demand quick results, you face disappointment. Public relations important. Create image of success, and you will succeed. Greatest asset: patience.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): If you have opportunity to express gratitude for recent favors, do so. Any move, on your part, that leads towards friendship can prove of major importance. But you must take first step.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You are apt to be chided by one close to you for not putting on the "pressure". Today chalk them up to valuable experience.

* * *

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Powerful emotions shine through. Not kind of day for doing things halfway. It is all the way, or nothing at all. So don't get involved in situation you would rather avoid.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Those around you may seem to be moving very fast. Best to maintain your own, individual rhythm. Do not be influenced by what others say they can do, by so-called "big deals" others have over. Maintain dignity, integrity.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Affection wins the day. A solid understanding of loved ones and willingness to show affection even if slighted are your greatest assets. Lend hand, cooperate.

* * *

If today is your birthday . . . you can be difficult to understand in that you're always striving for something better. Much emotional pressure lifted before year is over. Affairs of the heart take up much time. Accept disappointments and chalk them up to valuable experience.

General Tendencies: Aries born apt to be in public eye, along with those born under signs of Virgo and Scorpio. Cycle up for Virgo. Special word of Pisces:

Dear Henry:—We have a daughter Mary Anne, 9 years old. She started to take piano lessons, at the age of 7, but she has not learned much. She likes to draw and does it all the time. But we would like her to keep up with piano. What do you suggest?—MARY ANNE'S MOTHER.

Dear Mother:— Mary Anne hasn't been interested in piano for three years, so she doesn't enjoy it and she won't rate right. Let your Mona Lisa take art lessons and draw. If she is good enough she may even become a female Van Gogh.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—My name is Michael and I am 10 years old. Nearly all the girls in my class like me and I like them. The boys tease me and pick on me because I simply hate to fight. What should I do?—MICHAEL.

Dear Michael:—There is nothing wrong with you being the kind you are as long as you don't go around beating. If anyone teases you about fighting, tell them it is more important to have muscles in the head than in the arms.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—I am a 10-year-old boy. I have a girl friend. I love her very much. But I don't know if she loves me. Some people tell me that she loves me. She always smiles at me in class. How can I know if she loves me?—LOVE STRUBLE.

Dear Love Trouble:—No girl smiles at a boy just to show her front teeth. You know . . . I'd say she likes you. —HENRY.

Dear Henry:—I am a boy of 12. I am quite angry at my mother. She insists I join a certain organization. I do not want to go and I do not like the organization. Do you think I should have to go.—HENPECKED.

Dear Henpecked:—I have to know what kind of organization it is before I can give an answer. If it is decent, I think you should join. If it is Girl Guides, we won't press the matter.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—I am not smart in school. I want to be the queen of our school next year. And I want everyone to like me. And then later on I want to be the most queen in High School. And the next time I want to be the next queen of the band. I want to be a majorette. How can I be this?—WANTING.

Dear Wanting:—Well, at least you are not lacking in ambition. But ambition alone is not going to make you queen. You've got to be good in school. So, queen, from now on make sure you get marks fit for a queen.—HENRY.

Building, Using a Cold Frame

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Do you have a spare storm window? Use it to make a simple cold frame to start flower and vegetable seeds. Measure the sash (wooden window frame) and make a box for the size or use two and make the frame double size. Spare lumber will do for the sides. The back should be 10 to the north and at least eight to twelve inches higher than the front. The ends will be cut on an angle and the top slopes toward the south, trapping the minimum of sun.

This frame can be quickly assembled and taken apart. Use stakes driven into the ground inside and outside of the box to hold the sides up, or you can nail them to two by fours. Pile soil up higher on the north side to keep out drafts and to retain the heat of the sun. Leaving the north and west sides of the walls with foil will trap more heat and reflect more light to encourage the new seedlings.

HOUSE PLANTS TOO

You can start seeds in flats and pots here and start dahlias, cannas and other summer bulbs wood and stake inside. Cut into growth in the cold frame. Pot up cuttings from chrysanthemums and nurse them along in the frame. House plants can be hardened off in the frame too.

Plants should have partial shade, provided for a few days by paper to cut burn. If slightly ire cold have ready a blanket or plastic sheet to keep the heat in. Provide ventilation by propping the top up. As the sun brings up the temperature in May the top may be removed on days and replaced nights until it is warm enough to leave it off altogether a few days before setting plants out in the garden.

It is not too early to start dahlias and cannas into growth now. Soak the tubers in Rapid Grow for an hour then plant in loose soil, peat or sand. An unheated, basement will do if the containers are placed where they can get a fair amount of light.

Dahlias can go into the ground early, then more people realize. The top growth should be covered to protect from frost. Roots must develop before they can support top growth and these take a long time to get started. Fertilized roots will grow as much lower temperature than top growth. Just make sure the soil is not soggy wet or the tubers will rot.

Driver Training in School Curricula Being Opposed By Education Authorities

By DUNC McWHESTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Classes—every long considered naturals at sports—are finding increased opportunity to learn to drive.

Hundreds of Canadian schools in six provinces offer classroom and sometimes behind-the-wheel instruction—a trend that drivers' training be included in high school curricula.

REDUCES ACCIDENTS

Most of the opposition is based on the belief that Canada's already have a tough enough cramming existing academic subjects without adding "frills."

Traffic safety authorities' believe, say extra - curricular driving courses would reduce accidents are climbing. They point to statistics showing road accidents are far fewer among graduates of these courses than among those who get their lessons from family or friends.

British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and, to a limited extent, Manitoba, have schemes under which school students in some centres have the opportunity of taking courses sponsored by government departments, service clubs or motoring organizations.

Driver training programs for students are under study in Alberta, Quebec and the city of Halifax.

Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island are not planning courses. A credit school at St. John's, Nfld., had one but discontinued it because the one instructor could not handle the flood of applicants.

COURSE SUBSIDIZED

The British Columbia department of education has an extra-curricular, 2-semester course of driver training for high school students, now about 600 teen - agers are taking it each year. The program also is conducted at Victoria and several other centres.

Jim Plaskett, manager of the Vancouver Traffic and Safety Council, said a provincial survey in 1960 showed less than three per cent of drivers trained in such courses were involved in accidents, compared to nearly seven per cent of all B.C. drivers.

The Vancouver course, 36 hours spread over six weeks is divided among classroom instruction, practice at a driving range and 10 hours behind the observation of others driving and actual driving. Total cost is nearly $35, of which the student pays $27. The rest is made up by the safety council and the B.C. Automobile Association.

B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner has told the legislature the government believes public schools should not be used for driver training.

Ontario's personal view is that if you are going to invest $3,000 in a car, you can invest $35 in driving lessons," said Mr Bonner.

No program of driver training exists in Alberta schools. However, Highways Minister Gordon Taylor March 12 announced that 40 teachers would take a two-week driver training course this summer, the first to step toward setting up a high school program.

GOVERNMENT HELPS

Saskatchewan has a strongly organized system, with a larger percentage of its high school students taking driving courses than any other province.

The program, now in its third year, is conducted on an extra-curricular, non-credit basis at 73 high schools. Nearly 16 per cent of the 17,000 high school students in Saskatchewan are enrolled this year, almost twice as many as in 1961.

School divisions are paid $30 by the provincial government for each graduate driver. Students pay an entrance fee of $5.

Tom Ireland, program director for with the Saskatchewan Highway Safety Council, said accidents involving drivers of 16 to 18 have been reduced by more than 30 per cent.

He added that most of the big insurance companies in the province give rate reductions of 10 to 20 per cent to graduates of the high school program.

The government also has sponsored a driving instructors' school for the last two summers at Moose Jaw.

KIWANIS RUN PROGRAM

The only courses for Manitoba teen-agers are conducted privately, by service clubs or similar organizations.

The Kiwanis Club, in co-operation with Manitoba Safety Council, has for the last three years had in after-hours courses for students in Norwood St. Boniface schools in the Winnipeg area.

This course, recognized by the American Automobile Association, is offered at a fee of $20, a split between the student and the MSCC. Each year about 90 enrol.

Peter Dygala of the Manitoba highways department motor vehicles branch said he would like to see the MSMA program added to the provincial high school curricula.

B. Scott Bateman, deputy minister of education, is opposed to a compulsory course. He said it would be impossible to introduce such a course without infringing on the time necessary for the teaching of vital academic courses."

Little demand for teen - age driving lessons has come from parents, he added.

STARTED IN 1949

In Ontario the department of transport has been operating a high school driver training program for 13 years. The courses, assisted by grants for classroom instruction from the department of education, are conducted in about 60 schools throughout the province. About 3,000 students are enrolled this year.

Since the program was launched in Kitchener, about 50,000 teen-agers have received instruction in Ontario.

Carl Laybourn, director of safety education in the department of transport, said persons taking the course have about 50 per cent fewer accidents and nearly 90 per cent fewer driving violations than those who have not taken it.

Mr. Laybourn said there is a good deal of opposition to the program "due mainly to a lack of information." The course, entirely extra-curricular, consists of about 30 hours of classroom instruction and behind-the-wheel experience, and is becoming increasingly popular.

OFFER SUMMER PLAN

Other courses, such as in London, Ont., are offered during the summer holidays.

A highway safety education school was formed in the province's department of transportation and communications in 1961. This branch now is studying the possibility of setting up driver training program in the high schools of the province.

Students at the East John, N.B., Vocational School take six weeks of driving theory and 60 hours of behind-the-wheel instruction. Students receiving certificates get a 10-per-cent reduction in car insurance rates. "We are convinced the course is very worth while," said school director W. B. Main.

Although New Brunswick schools have extra-curricular lessons, High schools at Truro and Kentville, N.S., get $10 from the provincial government for every student graduating from driving courses conducted after school hours.

Manitoba school commissioners March 12 agreed in principle with a proposal to introduce driver training to senior high school students as an extra-curricular course. The Nova Scotia Highway Safety Council proposal now is under detailed study.

Chrysler Strike, Heading Into 9th Week, Ends

Workers Asked to Vote On 3-Year Contract

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Three thousand striking production workers were scheduled to vote today on terms of a new three-year contract with Chrysler of Canada.

Chrysler and United Auto Workers union negotiators reached agreement on the contract after a 12-hour bargaining session that ended early today.

Both sides were confident the strikers would endorse the proposals and bring an end to the strike, heading into its ninth week and one of the longest conflicts ever to hit the Canadian automotive industry in peacetime.

The ratification meeting was set for 11 a.m. EST. Local 444 stewards and those in skilled trades were to be briefed on the contract at similar meetings. Terms of the contract were not to be made public until the strikers vote.

CAN RETURN SOON

A Chrysler spokesman said if the contract is ratified "we will probably return to work within 48 hours. Three hundred skilled office workers, laid off last week, would return later.

"We expect to resume production at Chrysler's big passenger car assembly, truck and parts plants as quickly as we can get the same rate that prevailed before the strike began. But that would depend on the sales picture and the number of outstanding orders.

Chrysler was turning out 200 cars and 100 trucks an hour before the strike. On the basis, that the strike lasted 40 working days, 8,000 cars and 5,000 trucks were kept off the market.

Chrysler officials declined to say how much the strike cost the company. But a spokesman figured the financial loss would be "in the millions."

The strike cost the hourly-rated workers an estimated $2,000,000 in loss of wages. No estimate of the salaried employees' loss was available.

STRIKE'S HEAVIEST

The union had not sought a wage increase. The key issue was the guaranteed annual income plan, considered the most complex ever put to a North American industry. It did with a mixed factory in which a man on the line may work on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, attended a Windsor workman Thursday to appear in court on a job as quickly as a man who worked on only one kind of car. Skulle was reported to have felt the present assembly would last "more than a year."

Pompidou brought in nine new ministers, but he retained Debre's key men, including Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, Interior Minister Roger Frey, Defence Minister Pierre Messmer, Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Louise Joxe, minister for Algerian affairs.

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—A bomb exploded at the door of the U.S. Consulate at Puerto La Cruz early last night, killing the janitor of the building and wounding a passerby. No one in the consulate at the time. Damage was slight, however, to broken windows. There was no clue to the identity of the bombers.

LIBERALS USING SUPPLY DEBATES TO RAISE ISSUES

Early Election Talk Not Strong

OTTAWA (CP) — Will pre-election political irascibility of legislative cats be the undoing of the House of Commons in its meeting this week?

The answer may be the clear-cut indication of the government's election intentions before Prime Minister Diefenbaker tells the MPs, his plans for the Easter recess—dissolution of Parliament.

He spoke last week of keeping the Commons at work through Thursday. The opposition wants parliament recessed to start at the end of Wednesday's half-day sitting.

More vital, however, is whether the Commons will resume the work after a 10-day holiday, or whether Parliament will be dissolved and a general election called.

First item of business today was to clean up—if possible—the final supplementary appropriations for fiscal year which ended March 31.

LIBERALS HAVE FEARS

Veteran observers on Parliament Hill could not recall when the year-end votes took so long to get through. The Liberals are using the supply debates to raise issues which they fear they will not have a chance to debate if an immediate general election is called.

Talk of an early general election, however, became less strong over the weekend when it emerged Prime Minister Diefenbaker's 35-minute conference Friday with Opposition Leader Pearson dealt with international and commonwealth affairs, not with the question of any decision on the election date.

Mr. Diefenbaker was asked Friday to make a statement soon for the benefit of MPs from the east and west coasts on the Easter, recess plans. They want to know whether to make one-way or return-trip reservations.

He said he hoped to make a statement early in the week.

Conservative Strategists Meet in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—A top-level strategy meeting of Conservative party election campaigners got an hour-long pep talk from Prime Minister Diefenbaker Sunday.

But apparently the national campaign committee of the Progressive Conservative party found nothing would benefit knowledge that the meeting was being held. Mr. Diefenbaker himself said it was just a regular meeting of the committee.

Official party sources said a noun-s-the-word edict had gone out and surprised when reporters turned up in the lobby of the conference hall at the Chateau Laurier Hotel. The meeting was listed on the bulletin board in the hotel lobby.

The committee of 75—about 60 were present—last met in November, unannounced and unpublicized.

French Cabinet Key Positions Are Unchanged

PARIS (AP)—A new French cabinet under Premier Georges Pompidou took office today with all the key ministers in Michel Debre's government retaining their jobs.

No new parties were represented in Pompidou's cabinet and the Gaullist Union for a New Republic remained dominant with 32 of the 22 posts.

Pompidou, longtime confidant of President de Gaulle, has no political affiliation.

Debre resigned Saturday after three years and three months as premier. He said he had felt free to step down since the basis of a settlement of the Algerian independence problem had been approved by the nation.

MAY NOT AGREE

De Gaulle warmly thanked the outgoing premier for his loyal efforts, and wished him well. There were reports, however, that the two men did not agree on the question of early parliamentary elections.

Debre favored elections in May in view of de Gaulle's popularity because of the ending of the Algerian war. De Gaulle was reported to have felt the present assembly would last more than a year.

Fulton Says B.C. Modifies Columbia Power Position

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justice Minister Fulton says new proposals made by British Columbia in connection with the Columbia River power development seem to represent a "significant modification" of provincial opposition on the export of power.

At the same time, Attorney-General Bonner of B.C. says he believes the federal government may be changing its position on the export of power.

The two government spokesmen commented on Columbia and power developments generally in separate statements and speeches during the weekend.

Mr. Fulton, in a speech at Vernon and in a statement released in Kamloops and Vancouver, said the B.C. government has made interesting proposals that are being checked carefully to see whether they might form a good starting point for a mutually satisfactory Columbia River differences.

As for Ottawa's position, he said, "We will grasp any compromise if it's reasonable and honorable."

Mr. Fulton, chief federal negotiator when Canada was dealing with the United States, in sessions that led to the International Columbia River Treaty, said the B.C. government has held up ratification of the treaty for 18 months.

B.C. had insisted downstream benefit power from the treaty must be paid for in cash rather than power.

The provincial government proposes to sell its Columbia power entitlements south of the U.S. and use the money to pay construction costs of works on the river in Canada. Ottawa wants the benefit power returned as power.

Mr. Bonner, speaking in an interview here while attending a constituency association meeting, said he is hopeful Ottawa will ratify the international treaty soon.

"We are ready to let contracts for the Columbia at about 30 days' notice," Mr. Bonner said. "Our engineering is that far advanced."

He said he believes Ottawa's ability to exert power will be brought into line with natural gas and oil policies which permit export of only quantities to the U.S.

The province's two-river policy of simultaneous development of the northern Peace River and Columbia is in line with its belief the only way to cure unemployment in Western Canada is to pursue a massive power development as a long-range program, Mr. Bonner said.

"There is no reason why Ottawa should not ratify this treaty now," he said.

Prime Minister and Premier W. A. C. Bennett of B.C. has taken the position that the treaty can be not be ratified by Canada until there is agreement between Ottawa and B.C. on financing.

Dairy Farmers Are Backed By 'Butter Barons,' Charge

TORONTO (CP)—Dairy farmers backed by "butter barons" are frustrating the wishes of the Canadian taxpayer, President Robin E. Ross of the Canadian meeting of the Institute of Edible Fats and Oils said here.

"Never in the history of progress were so many taxpayers' dollars spent to benefit so few," he said.

Mr. Merry launched a full-scale attack on the federal government's butter policy and on producers of farms regulating the sale of margarine.

All provinces except Newfoundland and British Columbia ban the artificial coloring of margarine to look like butter, he said. There are only 37,000 dairy farmers in Canada, yet they dictate policy to 18 million consumers.

He criticized the butter subsidy which he said does not get to the root of the problem —the over-production of butter. He said overproduction occurs because "butter barons" and dairy farmers block butter and sell it to the government.

Mr. Merry said farmers should encourage a greater consumption of milk because of its protein value, instead of concentrating on a high butterfat content at the basis of evaluating milk.

He said studies are being made on the possibility of breeding cows for more protein and this "will give a new basis for re-evaluating the basis of payment for milk."

But, despite this expensive research, farmers are "curiously reluctant" to adopt new ideas.

Mr. Merry said oil seed—from which margarine is made—can produce three times as much fat per acre as can a cow.

Three Bodies Are Recovered From Ruins

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Firemen recovered bodies of three persons from the smouldering ruins of 50-year old tenement building at Whitney Pier.

Fire Chief Lou Smith gave the name of one victim as Lucy MacLean, about 50. He reported the bodies were found in different parts of the other two.

Seven families were said to be living in the two - storey, wooden structure on Upper Street. Firemen said the alarm sounded at 5:11 a.m. and when the force arrived about two minutes later flame, were shooting from the windows and roof.

The building was operated by Fred Reid, a blind man who had a store on the ground level. A fire department spokesman said it was not likely there were more than three victims.

INTERPROVINCIAL TRAFFIC TIED UP BY STRIKE

1,800 Members Strike at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Picketers marched at 10 Montreal truck terminals today in a strike by 1,800 members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.).

No violence was reported by police although constables were posted overnight in pairs at each of the idle depots.

The walkout, affecting carriers who do most of their business between Quebec and Ontario, also extended to Quebec City and the Quebec communities of Three Rivers, Sherbrooke, St. Johns and Shawinigan, where the 24-hour walkout brought the smaller branch terminals.

Although the strike went into effect officially Sunday following a one - hour membership meeting of all 1,700 picket lines were set up at the depots of some of the firms as early as Saturday.

The union called the walkout after 18 months of contract negotiations and after rejecting a majority conciliation board report turned in by Judge Jean Boucher, a federally-appointed board.

The union said the board decease spread over three years was recommended in the report. But the union wants 20 cents.

Montreal-based truckers now get $1.60 to $1.66 an hour. Hourly-paid employees in Toronto, Hamilton, Kingston, Highway drivers, in both provinces are paid on a mileage basis.

UNANIMOUS DECISION

John Bertrand, secretary-treasurer of the local, said another central issue is the dispute is job maintenance. He said under the contract with the carriers that expired last Oct. 1, the firms were permitted to use "as much as 15 hands only when a trucker was unavailable. But this provision is not covered by the conciliators' report.

"We had that in the old contract. Why should we lose it?"

Bertrand also said the union is "prepared to stay out indefinitely until our demands are met."

Two lines, Malain Brothers Transport and Reliable Transport, are not affected by the union's demands and were not hit by the strike.

But strikebound are Smith Transport, Kingsway Transport, Provincial Express, Highways (Quebec), Montreal-Ottawa Express, St. Jean - Dupuis Transport, Inter - City Truck Lines, Drummond Transit, McKay Trucking and Canadian Transportation Company.

Carriers picketed at two key points within Montreal were not disrupted. There were no picket lines at railway freight delivery.

But Bertrand said Sunday night the strike would affect hauling here from outside centres.

WON'T TAKE IT

"If a Teamster union member, or anybody, was given a load for delivery here he wouldn't take it because he won't cross the picket lines at the terminals here."

Police spokesman for one of the strike-bound carriers called the strike "illegal" on the basis that the union was prohibited from ordering a walkout during the week but it stayed since the ORAN, Algeria — Security forces and extremist civilians fought a 24-hour street fight in a European suburb of strike-bound Oran today.

Rifle, machine - gun - and tommy-gun fire was heard and official sources reported one member of French security forces was killed and several wounded. Witnesses said ambulances transported civilian casualties from the fighting area.

French security forces had thrown a cordon around the quarter, Gambetta, which is perched on a cliff overlooking the Mediterranean.

French tanks and troops over Gambetta were fired on before the shooting died down at about noon.

Elsewhere, a Secret Army leaflet circulating in Algiers said former premier Georges Bidault of France had joined Secret Army ranks in assuming leadership of the "national council of resistance in metropolitan France." A similar announcement about the underground organization was made in Paris last week.

European terrorists in Algiers killed two Moslems and wounded another today. Two Moslems were killed and the other two were hurt in a grenade attack at Philippeville, eastern Algeria.

"In today's action in Oran a few shots were fired at the home of the new prefecture, municipal headquarters, and at the police station and the centre of Oran after sealing off the area along the waterfront.

Heavy security forces also ringed off a central square which is the usual rallying point for the extremist Secret Army Organization.

A general strike paralyzed the European sector as the Secret Army again displayed its power here after taking over the centre of the city for 36 hours Sunday.

Orders from the right-wing extremist Europeans, workers cut off electricity, gas and public transportation services in a one-day walkout, of this week-end's vote.

The strike followed similar actions by Algiers and the eastern city of Philippeville after ending the death sentence passed on Secret Military Army chief former Gen. Edmond Jouhaud, captured Secret Army chief in June.

A Secret Army Commando unit of about 100 men, all of them wearing army uniforms, occupied the telephone and electricity company here Sunday and six main post office Sunday for 5½ hours.

Roadblocks, as far away from the building as 500 yards, were set up by the extremists, and in effect, the entire centre of the city was in their control hands.

TRUCK DRIVES UP

Before the invasion, an armored truck drove up to the post office and announced to riot police guards there that the post office was being used by more than 100 men.

Under orders from their headquarters, the policemen filed out of the building before the Secret Army arrived.

The only shooting during the take-over was reported when the occupying gunmen si Previous

SEAWAY NOT TO OPEN UNTIL END OF MONTH

Eisenhower Locks Being Repaired

MONTREAL (CP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway began the 1962 season Sunday with the prospect of business on a limited basis while repairs are made to the locks in the Eisenhower Locks near Massena, N.Y.

The repairs are expected to take at least two weeks meaning through traffic on the giant waterway won't be possible until the end of the month.

Two German freighters, the Transpacific and the Saarstein, slipped through the St. Lambert Lock at the entrance to the Seaway to become the first ships into the system this season.

The Transpacific of the Hamburg Poseidon Lines became the first ocean-going vessel to open the waterway. Since 1959 when the Seaway was completed, Canadian lakers have been the first vessels admitted each year.

Both German freighters will anchor in Lake St. Francis to await the completion of repairs to the Eisenhower Locks Seaway officials here said many shippers probably will choose to keep their vessels at anchor rather than pay berthing dues until the seaway's difficulties are resolved.

MAY STAY

Nine ships had been scheduled to pass through St. Lambert Lock today, but officials said some may choose to wait until Monday or Tuesday until the complete system is operating later this month.

Hermillion now squalls throughout the day lowered vis. Philly a the the system, but no difficulties were encountered. The canals were free of ice, although bits of snow and chunks of ice still persisted in the deeper part, of the St. Lawrence. River.

Thousands of Canadian, workmen were busy preparing workers to repair the 80-foot long split in the Eisenhower Lock discovered Thursday when the lock gate began to vibrate. The breach is believed to be 18-inches wide in a sill under the east gate.

Workmen are trying, first, to remove a metal cap bolted to the sill edge. Seaway administrator Joseph McCann said Saturday the sill will be repaired, not replaced.

Seaway ships, carrying $15,000,000 in cargo, had been expected to enter the Seaway in the first two weeks.

Irish Smugglers Having Busy Time With Potatoes

LONDON (AP) — The potato is the hot item these days for Britain's blackers and Irish smugglers, due to a shortage in Britain.

Smugglers got a good haul during the weekend. At Manchester a truck carrying 4½ tons of potatoes was seized. As other two tons was hijacked at Liverpool. Smugglers got away with 45 sacks of 112 pounds each from a warehouse. Police Constable Robert, Dawson, said:

At the Manchester warehouse, manager John Wilson brought in two alsatian dogs to guard the remaining stocks. Guards were stationed on other warehouses and on produce markets in Britain's major cities.

Ireland restricts the export of potatoes and smugglers are busy there. They buy from farmers at £20 a ton, truck the potatoes over lonely back roads into Northern Ireland, then ship them to Britain where they sell for £50 a ton.

Potatoes should be scarce in Britain for the next few weeks. There are only 2,000 tons in the country—not enough to meet the trade for more than a week. The crop due from the Channel Islands next month has suffered from frost, gales and salt spray. No new potatoes are expected before June.

Farmers are planning a protest march against the Potato Marketing Board in London Tuesday. They and housewives condemn the board caused the shortage by restricting the amount grown.

Both Conservative and Labor members of Parliament plan to question the board's activities in the House of Commons.

Still Openings In Hasty Pees' Survival Course

There are still a number of openings available for men between 18 and 50 to join the fourth and final special militia training program conducted by the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at the Belleville Armouries.

The three previous courses earned the reputation of being the best in the Eastern Ontario area and there is every indication that applicants for the final course will receive the finest training to be offered by the local regiment.

Opening next Monday will be the last opportunity for applicants to join this course, which will terminate on May 30th, recruiting officer Capt. Al Pinder said this morning.

Applicants will receive approximately 840 a week basic military training in such subjects as first aid, map reading, traffic control, scout and ambush and survival, a number of which produce attractive side benefits and will be of practical use in everyday life or emergencies as well as in the event of a national emergency. For instance, those who successfully pass the first aid portion of the courses will receive the St. John Ambulance First Aid certificate.

To date, close to 600 residents of Hastings and Prince Edward counties have successfully completed the course and it is hoped that this figure will approach the 800 mark by the time the current course is completed.

81-Year-Old Actress Takes Her Own Life

HOLLYWOOD (CP) — Actress Clara Blandick, 81, carefully staged her final performance.

Then she lay down on a couch in her apartment, covered herself with a blanket, and pulled a plastic clothes bag over her head.

A note on the table next to the couch read:

"I am now about to make the great adventure. I cannot endure this agonizing pain any longer. It is all over my body. Neither can I face the impending blindness. I pray the Lord my soul to take. Amen."

A friend said Miss Blandick had been suffering from arthritis, and that doctors told her she was going blind.

Miss Blandick was once a Broadway actress. Director D. W. Griffith brought her to Hollywood in the late 1920s. Until 16 years ago, she was a character actress in motion pictures. Among her best remembered roles: Judy Garland's Aunt Em in The Wizard of Oz and Aunt Polly in Tom Sawyer.

Cold Annoys Mrs. J. Weller, Observing 102nd Birthday

TRENTON — On Saturday, April 14, Mrs. James Weller of Carrying Place celebrated her 102nd birthday. Mrs. Weller, who ordinarily enjoys the best of health, was slightly indisposed with a cold on Saturday, and her daughter, Myrtle, called the family doctor, Dr. J. W. Farley, of Trenton.

"I don't see why they had to call the doctor," Mrs. Weller complained to a reporter. "I feel fine."

Mrs. Weller is a native of Murray Township and she has lived in the Carrying Place area all her life. She is the mother of seven children, three of whom survive, Everett of Carrying Place and Myrtle and Gladys at home.

Mrs. Weller enjoys good health as a general rule. She even helps around the house and in the summer she enjoys get-

Cancer Fund Drive Meeting Good Success

LYNCH EUROPEANS

A Moslem mob lynched two Europeans near Algiers Sunday in the first act of mass Moslem violence since the March 19 cease-fire.

Enraged youths stopped a car in the Maison Carrée, industrial suburb nine miles southeast of Algiers and dragged out the three men inside. They beat them with rocks and sticks and set the car afire. Two of the Europeans were killed and the third critically injured.

Police said they did not know the immediate provocation for the attack. Elsewhere in Algeria while terrorists killed four Moslems and wounded 25.

Secret Army terrorist driving through Moslem suburbs have machine-gunned Moslem civilians to death nearly every day since the cease fire. At least 250 Moslems have been killed in Algiers alone.

The terrorists are trying to provoke the Moslems into reprisals up when open scale that will block Algeria's advance toward independence.

It will be patterned after two trails in the United States, the Appalachin Trail and the Long Trail, which runs between the Massachusetts border to the Canadian border, following the height of Vermont's Green Mountain Range.

Mr. Goaling said the federation will profit from the experience of those responsible for the U.S. trails.

Camping sites on the Bruce Trail will be situated approximately a day's walk from each other and eventually hostels may be provided in areas of the trail where early experience proves them useful.

Mr. Goaling said the trail will encourage expansion of campsite facilities in provincial parks and "could form part of the national physical fitness program."

Access to trail land over private property will be negotiated with individual owners and hikers will not have to ask permission to use the land. The federation does not intend to buy any property.

REV. W. M. McGUIRE

The Wesleyan Methodist Church, Everett and Henry streets, is open for Holy Week services. The Rev. W. M. McGuire, Lakeland, Florida, has been called to conduct the meetings.

Canadian-born, Mr. McGuire can trace his ancestry to one of the early pioneer families of the Bay of Quinte. Of interest to all will be his life story which will be given next Monday night.

After teaching school for a number of years, Mr. McGuire prepared for the Christian ministry. Today he can look back on more than forty years of Christian service. This time includes 18 years serving as district superintendent and 18 years filling the role of pastor.

The public is invited to hear the Rev. W. M. McGuire in the opening service this Tuesday night.

Research Is Vital

One of the minor budget changes, which may escape general notice, is the granting of a deduction from taxable income amounting to 150 per cent of the amount spent by firms on scientific research.

With corporate income taxes amounting to approximately half of profits, this means that industries will be out of pocket only a quarter of the amount they spend on research.

This is a praiseworthy and an urgently needed incentive to research. Some may feel that if there is any possible criticism it is that Finance Minister Fleming might well have gone the whole hog, allowed taxable income deductions amounting to 200 per cent of research expenditures and thus, in effect, relieved firms of the entire burden of research costs. Such a measure, though, would be open to abuse. On the grounds that research work was not costing the firm anything, some companies might have been tempted to embark on projects from which there was little or no sound reason to expect profitable results. The present plan retains a clear incentive to firms to spend wisely in research departments.

The reason why the encouragement to research is imperative is fairly obvious. Canadian-owned companies are at a disadvantage, compared with Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. firms, in that they have not the same enormous financial resources of their huge U.S. rivals. The Canadian subsidiaries of these U.S. firms can reap the rewards of research financed by their parent companies. With science playing an ever greater role in the manufacture of a multitude of products, unless Canadian companies keep pace in the research field the day could come when only subsidiaries of U.S. companies, or Canadian companies manufacturing under licence or royalty arrangements with foreign firms, would be able to compete in the production of a wide variety of goods.

"White Haven"

South Africa is preparing to welcome white emigrants from Kenya.

Offhand, one might suggest that this policy, extended to embrace white residents in other African states which have just received, or will shortly achieve, their independence, might provide hope for eventual peace in that continent.

This, though, is almost certainly to take much too optimistic a view of the diametrically opposed viewpoints and deep-rooted prejudices which threaten to tear asunder country after country, from the southern tip of the continent beneath the Southern Cross to the northern shores which look across a narrow sea to the white man's home continent of Europe.

Those Kenyans who do emigrate to South Africa will be precisely those least willing to live on terms of equality with people with darker skins. Their coming to South Africa will do nothing to mitigate, and may even result in intensifying, that country's policy of apartheid. If it were possible to devise an exchange of populations, with the Bantu, or Negroes, in South Africa migrating to countries further north where black men had won equality, some good might result. There is, however, no sign of the emergence of any independent land with an economy healthy enough to absorb such black immigrants.

Even if there were, the eventual result could be to create rival nations with a deep hatred of each other.

As temporary relief for white residents who may receive something less than fair treatment from natives newly raised to positions of power and authority, emigration to South Africa may serve some useful purpose. It may well provide welcome relief, too, for black populations struggling for equality, removing some of their bitterest foes. But as a path to permanent solution of the future of Africa it would seem to hold little hope. The best hopes of all, white and black, lie not in division into rival camps, but in learning to live and work with each other, in their present homelands throughout the length and breadth of the vast continent.

If people denied the little black and white god in the corner of the living room for a few weeks they could turn their thoughts to something more positive.—C. W. Matheson, Presbyterian minister of Wolverhampton, England, urging abstension from television for Lent.

So much is pressing in on humans today that no one has time to stand still long enough to evaluate it. They gulp life and taste nothing. They eat life and have no savor.—Singer Geraldine Farrar, 80.

Strictly Personal

Person's Name Goes Only as Deep as Skin

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A reader in Indiana has written to say, "Please do an article on the cards who always must ask: 'What nationality is that?' when hearing a name other than 'Smith,' or some other ordinary American name.

"My name is . . . . . ," he continues, "and I'm awfully annoyed at the provincialism (and it's that to the extreme) of having that question popped at me by people who should know better.

"I was born in this country, fought in World War II and emerged as an Army officer. I'm American, and nothing but.

"Miss is the same name my father had when he came to this country as a wonder-ful youngster at the turn of the century."

There is a certain type of person — and, unfortunately, this type is found among those who does not feel secure with a stranger until he can "place" him, that person has no hereditary aristocracy, and is consumingly jealous of his society, these people are excessively interested in the national origin and extraction of anyone whose name is not bluntly Anglo Saxon.

Millions of immigrants to this country changed their names from Smith to Brown, either for convenience of spelling and pronunciation, or because they wanted to avoid discriminatory attitudes against them.

It is not generally known, for instance, that one of the great folk-heroes of the Revolutionary War, Paul Revere, was of French Huguenot descent. His father had changed the Canadian name from Revoire, "merely on account that the English could not pronounce it easier." (Quoted in World Book Encyclopedia, Volume M-R, page 1).

It has not been easy here for people of Slavic or Latin extraction. If they refused to change their difficult names, they were denied the social clamship and sneered at for their peculiar ways. But World war II they did Anglicize their names and adjust their ways, they were accused of trying to hide their foreign origin and pass for Americans. They were condemned for not changing, and condemned for changing.

Democracy at its best means a man is valued for his own individual qualities, and not what many people uneasy, Psychologically, they need some rigid frame of reference for classifying and giving people: this is the only way they can make them feel superior to whole classes and nationalities. The obsession with national origin is really more "un-American" in its spirit than the "Americanism" it seeks to identify and denigrate.

Today, it is not somewhat pompous phrase, "the American way" means anything, it means accepting and valuing a man as an individuals on the basis of their own virtues and achievements, not on family or racial background or national extraction. The real subversives are those who judge by names, not by deeds.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FIG TREE AND TEMPLE

The Lord's activities within the city of Jerusalem during the week we have come to call Holy Week began with two acts of great significance on Monday.

First of all, Jesus cursed the unfruitful fig tree. It was promptly and apparently in healthy condition, but it bore no fruit. This was symbolic of the church of that day which was pretentious in its ritual but sadly lacking in its ability to change men's lives and lead them into a saving relationship with God.

Our Lord's second activity on Monday was the cleansing of the temple. Religion had become big business in Jerusalem. Inasmuch as pilgrims came from all Judaea and Galilee to worship in the temple and offer sacrifice, stores and commercial

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

Miss Kathryn Gallagher, librarian of Corby Public Library, is in Hamilton attending the annual conference of the Ontario Library Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Vanner were in Montreal on Saturday to attend the wedding of Miss Jean Hart and Flying Officer Frank J. Clark, which took place in Wesley United Church.

Miss Katherine Whalen, Reg. N., of Toronto, is visiting her sister-in-law and with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Whalen.

Mr. Ralph Graham of Toronto University, spent the weekend at his home here.

Volunteer Margaret Lynch of the C.W.A.C. in Kingston, spent the weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Lynch of West Moira Street.

Rev. C. E. Baker is spending a few days at his home on Wellington Street.

Miss Louise Schryver, librarian of Midland Public Library, who spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Schryver, is attending the Ontario Library Association meeting in Hamilton.

Mrs. A. H. Fisher of William Street has returned from Montreal where she spent the Easter vacation with her daughter, Marion, and other friends.

30 YEARS AGO

April 16th, 1933

The Belleville Citadel of the Salvation Army will shortly undergo alterations and repairs which have been much needed for some time.

The Rev. W. L. Wright preached his farewell sermon in St. James' Anglican Church on Sunday evening and a large congregation was in attendance, all denominations uniting to do honor to Mr. Wright. He is leaving to assume the important office of assisting at the Advent Memorial in Hamilton. The evening service in Bridge Street Church was withdrawn in order to permit the congregation of that church to attend the farewell service in St. James' Church and the officials of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in a letter expressed their regret at the departure of Mr. Wright from Tweed.

Dr. Jack Mansell spent the weekend in Guelph.

Mr. and Mrs Harry Fenn and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith spent yesterday in Toronto.

40 YEARS AGO

In a bowling match between the Belleville and Trenton teams the latter team won, the score being 2,042 to 1,975. The following composed the Belleville rinks: Curlers — G. Elliott, Liberty, Yeres and Ellis; Skips — Harrison, Ridley, Dracott and Hadley.

The collections made in this city for the Russian Relief Fund now amounts to $650.20.

Mr. Lorne Thompson, formerly of Herman, has purchased the Ferguson farm at Dedrie, books of all sorts were erected in the vicinity of the temple. In fact, as one approached the temple little could be heard but the lowing of cattle and the harsh cries of hawkers who had something to sell.

This aroused our Lord's anger to fever pitch. The temple was to be a house of prayer for all nations. They had made it not only a noisy place of commerce but, because of certain ill practices which had crept in, it had indeed become as Jesus said "a den of thieves."

The activities of this day teach that God is pleased only with fruitful lives on the part of individuals and a clean, consecrated, and committed church as the symbol of His presence in the world.

Girls Told 'Date Creeps'

Hamilton Spectator

A West Coast psychiatrist has advised some two hundred British Columbia high school girls that they ought to "date creeps because their dates today are likely to be half-creeps anyway."

While passing on this helpful advice he warned them that the "unhealthy romanticism" of television and movies may cause disillusionment for girls when they come down to the normal marriage routines associated with "babies, budgets and bottles".

Dr. William Fowles, a consultant at the Burnaby Medical Centre, warned that "going steady" was too confining, and girls should broaden their experience by going out with less sociable types of boys.

While some of the teenaged slang is a little far out for us, "creep" has a definite and unpleasant connotations. And before we did a little research on the vocabulary we would have protested the good doctor's advice to nice girls about dating creeps. We have come to the conclusion, however, after a little investigation that creeps are not necessarily what they appear.

Most respectable, balding and elderly (that means anybody above the ripe old age of 20) managers must have been creeps when they were young. Some pony-tailed "freakies" think that most drummers and musicians are creeps, many sophomores are little dripping, juniors are cute, and seniors are just dolls!

Only suspect teenage attitudes haven't evolved too much. Aged people like parents have been worrying over the choice of service to their sons and daughters for thousands of years. And today's parents have the same old problem of preparing their doom for generation to succeed them.

The oldest piece of writing in the world is on a scrap of papyrus in the Museum of Antiquity in Istanbul. It says, translated into free English, "Alas the world is growing worse. Children no longer obey their parents and everybody wants to write a book about it."

It is likely that normal teenagers will survive unhealthy romanticism, silly television, and worthless movies in the same way their parents survived the things their grandparents worried about.

Pubs Dislike Smoking Dog

BBC London Letter

Not long ago, a woman spoke in a BBC broadcast about Mrs. Cairn terrier which enjoyed smoking cigarette. Another dog owner has also written to say that A Yorkshireman, John Burns, said in a recent BBC 'Radio Newsreel' commentary that his six-year-old Labrador 'Butch' not only enjoyed a cigar now and then, but a pipe as well. Like many a human, Butch found that a cigarette left a bad taste in the mouth, ing steadied him, Mr. Burns said, and he enjoyed another in the evening. Mr. Burns, the reporter called, the dog was contentedly puffing a pipe.

One drawback about Butch's smoking is that landlords don't seem to have the sitting about when his master takes an evening drink in the pub. It's not that they object to the dog himself, but he will drop the lighted pipe on the carpets on the floor and burn people's legs.

Keep Closure

Kingston Whig-Standard

The prime minister seems to be just sending the session altogether, as does Mr. Pickersgill of the Liberal Opposition.

It would be well to give the matter some careful thought, however. The sixth Parliament has not abolished the closure and there are certainly good arguments for retaining it here.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The thousands or tens of thousands of people in Ontario who are interested in the preservation of some portion of the natural endurance that is so fast vanishing will be glad the compliment were profoundly shocked by the recent slain announcement by two Ministers of the Provincial Government that if mineral wealth is discovered in the boundaries of Provincial Parks, mining interests will of course be permitted to engage in mining operations. The statements were repudiated a few days later.

Nobody knows the true weight of public opinion with regard to situations like this. There are in Ontario a number of organizations devoted to conservation. There are large naturalist societies, numerous smaller organizations of amateur naturalists, sportsmen's associations large and small in almost every thickly populated area. Conservation Council consisting of both professional and amateur components, and an unknown number of non-members of such bodies. The size of which it can only be guessed from the fact that the sale of books on natural history is very large in Canada, over 80,000 copies alone of Roger Tory Peterson's 'Field Guide to the Birds' having been sold.

Obviously what is needed at this crisis in the struggle for preservation of the wilderness is a national organization such as the Canadian Audubon Society, to which all kindred bodies large and small can be affiliated in order to impress governments as well as promoters with the power of public opinion and the affiliation can come soon too soon.

'Endometritis,' Inflammation Of the Uterus Lining

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is endometritis, what causes it, and can it be cured? Is it possible to get pregnant while having that trouble?

It is inflammation of the lining of the uterus. It can result from a miscarriage, from some difficulty in the birth of a child, from the presence of infection, or in fact anything that can inflame a mucous membrane.

It can ordinarily be cured, the treatment varying (according to severity) from simple medication to a "D. & C.," meaning dilation and curretage (or scraping) of the inflamed area. It is possible to become pregnant while having this, but the problem is an interfering element.

Dear Sir: Please settle a question. My family has always taken vitamins at bedtime.

Now a friend of mine says they should be taken in the morning so as to have the benefit in the daytime. I would like to make certain before continuing my practice of bedtime dole-outs. — Mrs. J.S.

This is nonsense, and there are too many serious matters about which we are without making an argument out of mere vitamins should be taken in the morning or at night.

If we eat a reasonably balanced diet, we get the vitamins we need in our food. But if we insist on taking vitamins which, as I've said before, portion out not due to any disease but because we had a bad diet when we were children and I was anemic and run down. I am now 41 years old and a widower. I feel that I have met a gentleman who wants to marry me, but I have the sterilization undone?

change in voice, see a throat specialist to make sure it isn't from some serious cause such as a tumor or even an early cancer.

But if the congestion (and hoarseness) is a temporary result of an ordinary cold or the like, then: 1 — stop smoking; 2 — avoid inhaling irritating fumes if you have any reason to encounter them; 3 — take a steam inhalator, either plain or with aromatic medication added, will speed relief.

Note to Mrs. E.C.: I agree with you and your husband: a baby is not "marred" while the mother is carrying it. And a quarter of a million doctors will say just the same thing. But I don't think you can do anything about a grandmother who happens to have been infected with this false notion half a century or more ago. Just be tactful with grandma — and set your own mind at ease.

Extremists Defended

Ogdensburg Journal

These days, more than ever, we need the word "extremist" bears a bad connotation. While is heard anywhere in defence of these extremists, except from other extremists.

Yet, oddly, such defence is sometimes necessary, even in the place you might least expect it—the college or university.

Years ago a young political scientist at the University of Chicago, Hazlit then under some suspicion for his views, said that extremists on both sides do serve a useful function.

The big battle in Congress over: The very sharpness with which they state their uncompromising positions provides a shock to the massive, compromising middle of centrists forces re-examination of ideas and sometimes results in benefit to the whole society.

Strong words sometimes come from strange sources.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

KNOWING AND ATTEMPTING

I came across a wonderful line one day in my reading and here it is: "Nothing is too small to know, and nothing is too big to attempt."

Most of the failures and disappointed cases in the years speed by could be laid, at all, of their active, productive failure passed, all because they think of the goal when, all during to give of themselves unstintingly to the big things that lead to the top.

It is surprising how many chances speed by us each day for acquiring knowledge I sat an hour one spring morning watching a bird care for its first nest after it had been hatched. I learned that mother nature in a bird was like that in human being. Love, protection, care, and then the training to face the elements and dangers of the wild.

If you will but stand on a street corner for an hour any day you will see as much

Crushing of Steel Industry Bid for Higher Prices Was Personal Triumph for JFK

By ROGER LANE

NEW YORK (AP) — The months ahead of the expiration of the old contract.

Kennedy hailed the agreement as "non-inflationary" in messages of congratulations to both sides.

The link was five days dry on the contract when U.S. Steel startled the country with its price increase announcement.

The president reacted in anger. He called the action of Steel, and other major producers that followed its lead, one of "ruthless disregard" of their public responsibility.

THOUGHT CASE SOUND

From the viewpoint of Leslie Worthington, president of U.S. Steel, and Blough, the industry had a sound case for a price increase. Their reasons were persuasive, to many businessmen at least.

But that the timing could hardly have been worse even Steel's best friends agreed.

Worthington called the rise a "partial catch-up adjustment," seeking to minimize any connection with the new steel contract.

He stressed these main points:

1. Steel prices last were increased Aug. 1, 1962 by $4.50 a ton 3½ years ago.

2. Since then, production costs had risen steeply.

3. U.S. Steel profits, caught in the tightening vise, had been shrinking steadily and hit a nine-year low in 1962.

Worthington said U.S. Steel's decision was reached "reluctantly" in the knowledge that some foreign-made steel items already were underselling big Steel products, and this disadvantage would add at least temporarily to competitive difficulties.

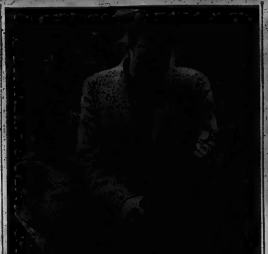
FIRE LOSS HEAVY

CHICAGO (AP) — Two fires injured 12 persons, six of them firemen, and caused more than $500,000 damage Sunday. A northwest side blaze destroyed a garage and 30 cream trucks. Damage was estimated at $440,000. Six firemen were injured. On the south side, flames caused an estimated $100,000 damage to the Tivoli Hotel. Six residents were injured and 30 were carried to safety.

Cathy McDonald Wins Title For Prep Girls

Cathy McDonald earned the local YMCA's prep girls' swimming championship the past weekend with two firsts in the three-event contest. Wins in both the length crawl and the two-length side stroke races gave her 10 points, two more than her nearest competitor, Cathy Fox, who won the back crawl race and placed second in the crawl event.

Also placing in the three events were: Debbie Wherl, Donna Calnan, Mary Margaret Murphy and Roberta Munro.



A competition was also held for non-swimmers in the prep girls group. The straight time floating event was won by Dianne Rife with Donna Boyle and Dianne Boyle placing second and third respectively. The remaining event, the feet-under back kick, was won by Jane Foley, followed by Donna Boyle and Barbara Boyd.

Three Canadian Girls Are Selected as Models For World's Fair Display

By JIM PEACOCK

OTTAWA (CP)—In the eyes of the men, Canada's exhibits in the World's Fair fashion pavilion will be among the most striking on display.

All of the fashions to be shown during the six-month Century 21 Exposition are made in the United States. But three of the models showing them are from Canada — Celeste MacLeod, Storme Bryant and June Wall, all of Vancouver.

They were among the few selected from several thousand applicants to parade the American off-the-rack fashions that will be shown four times daily throughout the April 21-to-Oct. 21 fair.

Georgia Gallert, the only woman member of the Century 21 exhibitionary board and thus in charge of the fashion pavilion operation, said the models will parade medium-priced volume-produced women's apparel from American manufacturers.

"The idea is to illustrate the miracle of American fashion—the mass - production methods that make it possible to be well dressed on a limited budget."

PERFUMED AIR

The models will strut before as many as 800 persons at a time, walking on concrete ramps set over a vast pool filled with perfume.

"Well, it isn't really perfume," said Mrs. Gallert, "but it's a specially mixed solution to fill the pavilion with a delightful fragrance. The pool will be filled with a new fragrance every month."

The first month's fragrance is lanlmale, and if that isn't enough to soften up the old man for a trip downtown to purchase a new wardrobe, Miss Universe in a bathing suit should help.

The men who wonder (and the women who suspect) will get a chance to find out for sure how blondes become that way. There'll be daily hair-coloring demonstrations in addition to the fashion parades.

The American Institute of Decorators will stage an advanced display of home furnishings and interior design.

During the six months, many special events will be staged in the fashion pavilion, including personal appearances of fashion personalities, but the fashions on view will remain th the mass-production class throughout.

"The fashion program is designed to appeal primarily to the women," said Mrs. Gallert, "but we expect a lot of men will attend the shows, too.

"The women will be watching the fashions and the men will probably concentrate on the models."

Neighbors' Aid Plans Euchre, Auction Sale

2ND TSURLOW —The March meeting of the Neighbors' Aid was held at the hall on Wednesday afternoon with over 25 present.

Mrs. B. Forti presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. E. Jeffery. The meeting opened in the usual manner with Mrs. M. Mitchell at the piano.

Mrs. Harry Grills acted as hostess with Mrs. R. Greatrix assisting.

A quilt was near completion during the afternoon; a sale of various articles bought and auctioned off with a fair amount to add to the treasury.

A short business period was held. The letters were read by the secretary, Mrs. M. Dent. A letter was read regarding the "Adopt A Child Fund," and $60 was voted to this. The treasurer, Mrs. A. Mitchell, gave the financial standing to date.

A euchre will be convened by Mrs. Fred Mitchell, Mrs. Douglas Atkins, later in April.

Lunch committee for April will be Mesdames R. T. Boldrick, Corah Howard, Ronald Atkins and E. Grills and the hostesses Mrs. Ronald Atkins and Mrs. Earl Grills.

Mrs. Gerald Stratton conducted the program and read a poem, "Never Mind the Set-Backs." Mrs. Ronald Atkins gave a reading, "Friendly Things"; instrumental, Mrs. M. Mitchell, "Easter Parade"; readings by Mrs. G. Stratton, "The Jolly Life Of A Farmer's Wife"; by Mrs. A. Mitchell, "Let's Have A Tea"; a contest by Mrs. F. Mitchell and Mrs. Ron Atkins, Mrs. E. Grills and Mrs. A. Greatrix recording the gifts.

Mrs. Forti thanked all and the hostesses.

Lunch was served by Mesdames E. Jeffery, J. Chumley, C. Reade, F. Tuppah and a social time spent.

Mrs Douglas Atkins and Mrs. R. T. Boldrick are to arrange the program for the April meeting. Everyone is to bring something to sell, aprons, bulbs and slips.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mrs. A. W. Marner, Queen Street, has returned from a visit to her home in Swift Current, Saskatchewan, where she attended the funeral of her father, Mr. J. S. Sinclair.

Mr George Carlisle, District Deputy Grand Master, District 45, of Stirling, is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Eastminister UCW Enjoy Pot-Luck

Last Monday, the Eastminister U.C.W., assembled in the church at seven o'clock for a delicious pot-luck supper. Over 50 members partook of the repast and were joined later by several other members. Arrangements and serving were done by Unit No. 1 under the leadership of Vivian Britton.

At eight o'clock an impressive Easter worship service was conducted by Jean Beach and Ella Mosfett. At the conclusion, Meta Williams graciously presented the first life membership of the U.C.W. to Helena McInrallth. This was a gift of her mother-in-law and was gratefully accepted.

After a few important announcements, the units assembled with their own separate leaders. The unit leaders are: Unit No. 1, Vivian Britton; No. 2, Phyllis Diamond; No. 3, Ruth Field; No. 4, June Hutchison; No. 5, Marjorie Kerr; No. 6, Hazel Love; No. 7, Roberta Morden; No. 8, Meta Williams.

Each unit conducted business, discussed a chapter of the study book, "Signals for the Sixties," or made plans for their chosen project.

When units disbanded, each member felt that worthwhile work is being done in Christian service.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Sally B. — Should I speak to the girl, her parents or my husband about this?

Donald B. — She's making something out of innocent neighborly behavior.

* * *

Sally B. — We've been married 21 years and have three children. We've lived in our present home for ten years and all was peaceful until a few months ago. Last year's new family next door and since they had a 17-year-old daughter, we relaxed over a handy baby-sitter.

But Glenda's copying Brigitte Bardot or one of those other sexy kitten-type actresses, with her make-up, setup, pout and wriggle. Her baby-sitting is O.K., but that she moves along to flirt with my grown-up males on the scene. She flicks her eyes at my husband and pronto! his arm is around her waist and he's walking her home.

Don says I'm reading things into a plain situation, but I feel I should speak to either Glenda herself or her parents, about the way she conducts herself.

* * *

Donald B. — Hi, all so innocent and Sally's ready to make a case out of a cute little girl trying out her wiles on the old man next door — me. She happens to respect me and confides in me even more than her own father, when it comes to her social problems. She discusses the pro's and con's of her boy friends with me, and she sure has a flock of them.

Glenda looks older than 17 and, since she's also a real looker, attracts admirers in their 20's and even 30's. Naturally it's easier for her to talk over her social problems with a old married man like me than with the other young blades.

Sally would make a fool of herself to put her objections to Glenda's visits over. The kid's only a few years older than my own daughter and she looks at me like a second father.

* * *

The Council: Sally doesn't mind the fact that Glenda likes older men. What gives her the willies is that, of all the older men, Glenda seems to like Sally's husband best. The snuggling and chucking under the chin may be all good fun, but with this neighbor-to-neighbor movement scheduled to run for years, Sally has reason to ask, "Where are we headed?" and "Where's Donald's head?"

We agree with Donald that the friendship and innocent enough thus far. But can it continue to be guaranteed? Does Glenda know what currents she may be locking? Has Donald the strength of character to impress her with dignity for seconds as though he's enjoying the flattery of the situation too much to probe it for hidden dynamite.

There's always a chance that from innocent beginning, like this a chummy relationship can grow out of control. All depends upon one party. Donald or Glenda, keeping feet squarely on the ground and hands tightly on the reins. And that party, we feel, won't be Glenda!

We propose that Sally proceed with her "speaking program," starting with her husband. Instead of walking the girl home and remaining there with her for an undue length of time, why can't he invite Glenda to discuss her affairs with them both? Sally ran offer the mature female's viewpoint. Then they can view Glenda home from their front porch together! Perhaps Sally must help Donald keep his head and bring more poise to his end of the relationship. He must remain a friend of the family, including Glenda, not mainly Glenda.

If Glenda's behavior continues to be very much like a professional, the B.'s should look for a new baby-sitter — one who knows what she's hired for, does it and goes home. And, as a gentle act of neighborliness, both Donald and Sally should talk to Glenda's parents. They might explain the reason for discontinuing with her services — namely, her immature conduct. This, in turn, might lead to more awareness in that family of Glenda's needs, and a concerted effort

Many Attend Sod Turning

MELROSE — An event of interest took place on April 8th when the sod-turning ceremony for the Melrose United Church was conducted.

Mr. Sherrin, local minister, made the opening remarks and John Milligan, member of the session, read a portion of Scripture. John Macfarlane, chairman of the building committee, passed the shovel to Russell Macfarlane, the elder member of the congregation, who turned the sod.

Mr. C. W. Coleman, chairman of the Presbytery, addressed the gathering and pronounced the Benediction.

A large number of the congregation and visitors formerly affiliated with the church, witnessed the ceremony.

The site of the new building which will replace the former landmark, is a few feet to the west and north of the old structure. The debris has been removed and excavating will begin at once.

to set straight her scale of values.

But Donald needn't set himself up as test material for an apprentice femme fatale.

SHOULD MRS. BROWN'S OPERATION BE DELAYED BY MRS. SMITH'S WALLPAPER?

It seemed such a simple request. Mrs. Smith's doctor said she was well enough to go home, but she asked if she could stay in hospital "... just for a couple more days until they finish decorating our bedroom." But her neighbour, Mrs. Brown, needed an essential operation, and no hospital bed was available to her. Mrs. Smith, like some other patients who want to stay in hospital for non-medical reasons, just hadn't stopped to think that someone else might be needing the bed.

In these days when our population is growing rapidly and more patients must be served, everyone's thoughtful co-operation is required to make efficient use of the hospital beds and trained personnel we have already. It is not just a matter of building more hospitals or adding more beds. Not only are they costly to provide and maintain, but hospital beds are of little value unless enough physicians, nurses and other highly qualified technical personnel, are available to provide the essential services.

Here's how YOU can help

1. Don't ask your doctor to admit you to hospital unless he considers it is medically necessary.
2. Let your doctor decide what services you need while you are in hospital.
3. Be prepared to release your bed for another patient when your doctor decides that you are ready to leave the hospital.

What this could mean...

If the average length of each patient's stay in the hospitals of Ontario was reduced by one day, the beds made available would take care of the patient capacity of six 500-bed hospitals, or twelve 250-bed hospitals, or twenty-four 125-bed hospitals.

To build these hospitals would cost at least 50 million dollars, and to maintain services for the 3,000 beds would cost about 21 million dollars EVERY YEAR. Apart from all this cost, think what the shorter average length of stay in hospital would do to help overcome the shortage of nurses and other skilled hospital personnel!

Carrying Place Couple Married Half Century

Residents of Ameliasburg township in Prince Edward County since 1921 when they moved from North Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Vanclief, R.R. 1, Carrying Place, Saturday observed their golden wedding anniversary.

The fifty-years-wed couple were "at home" to friends and members of their family at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Floyd Carter, R.R. 1, Ameliasburg.

They received dozens of cards and congratulatory messages many accompanied by gifts, including handsome matching wristwatches from members of their immediate family.

Mrs. Vanclief, the former Minerva Yeder, was born in Faraday township, North Hastings. Mr. Vanclief was born in Wollaston township, also in North Hastings. Mr. Vanclief is 70 and his bride of fifty years is 72.

TRIP BY BUGGY

The couple journeyed by horse and buggy to Tamworth, about 18 miles from the bride's home, to be married at the Methodist parsonage by the late Rev. Thomas Wallace.

"I remember it well," recalled Mr. Vanclief. "It was a bright sunny day, just like today. The snow was all gone but it was a bit chilly.

After their marriage the couple lived for nine years at Faraday, where Mr. Vanclief was cheesemaker at the Faraday factory.

Since moving to Prince Edward County in 1921 they have carried on a general farming operation, although during the 1930's Mr. Vanclief worked as bridge tender on the Murray Bridge between Belleville and Rossmore.

HOTCH TO HOGS

With his son, Ross, he still operates the farm, although emphasis has been swung from dairying to hog raising. He and his son are now feeding about 500 hogs.

"They don't tie you down as much as milking cows," he says.

The couple are members of nearby Victoria United Church where Mr. Vanclief is Sunday School superintendent and also a church steward.

Included among the many congratulatory cards received by the couple were messages from Prince Minister-Queen Elizabeth, and Clarence Milligan, M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanclief have two sons Clarence, R.R. 1, Ameliasburg, and Ross at home, and two daughters, Mrs. Floyd Carter, R.R. 1, Ameliasburg, and Mrs. Edwin Carnrike of Salem.

There are 11 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

St. Michael's C.W.L. Installs New Officers

The April meeting of the C.W.L. of St. Michael's Church heard the various annual reports read. The slate of officers was put into effect and those elected are as follows:

Spiritual convenor, The Rt. Rev. Monsignor Sullivan; president, Mrs. Joseph Gallagher; past president, Mrs. Herbert Brown; first vice-president, Miss Alice Doyle; second vice-president, Mrs. Leo Dunphy; third vice-president, Mrs. Ray Hasbourke; recording secretary, Mrs. Gerald O'Connor; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Richard Barrett; treasurer, Mrs. Joseph Whelan.

Councillors are as follows: Ward 1, Mrs. Joseph Farrell; Ward 2, Mrs. Leo Demers; Ward 3, Mrs. O'Connor; Murphy; Ward 4, Mrs. K. Donaldson; Ward 5, Mrs. Clarence Reed, and across the bay, Mrs. B. Roots.

The reports given were interesting accounts of the various activities and projects of the C.W.L. Outstanding successes were the strawberry social, the Communion breakfast and the Valentine ball, all of which are to be repeated events.

Outstanding among contributions was the league's purchase of new drapes for St. Michael's auditorium. The professional appearance of the spacious hall is a great satisfaction to the members.

New business was also discussed and which was the big day in May, rummage sale in April and Communion breakfast for league members in May.

Monsignor Sullivan was present and read the consecration to the Blessed Virgin as he installed the members in their new offices.

At the close of the meeting the members sang in unison "Holy God We Praise Thy Name," accompanied by Mrs. B. Burley at the piano.

Christ Church Guild Plans 'Blossom Tea'

Flying needles and clicking scissors were the order of the day when Christ Church Parish Guild met at the home of Mrs. R. Wright last week for their regular monthly meeting. The occasion was a sewing bee and the members were busy making articles to be sold at their forthcoming "blossom tea," in June.

Many of the ladies came armed with a donation of pretty material which was quickly cut into most attractive aprons and other saleable items.

The business portion of the meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. I. R. Slavin, who warmly welcomed the large gathering. Interesting reports were heard from the secretary, treasurer and all convenors The Guild will be catering for a wedding reception in May and also for a Masonic reception. A donation will be forwarded to the Girls' Auxiliary towards the payment for a bus to the Easter festival at Gananoque.

Mrs. Jean Adams will be the overall convenor for the tea with Mrs. Marion Wallbridge as co-convenor. Tickets for this event were distributed among the members.

Afternoon tea was served by Mrs. Wright, her daughter, Mrs. Livingstone, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. J. Wright, and the thanks of the ladies for the happy afternoon were expressed by president Vi Slavin.

Mother's Helper

A CHILD with a screamish tummy will feel more secure if she's prepared for her next operation. A plastic waste basket standing on a towel beside her bed is helpful. And an in-bed cold, a paper bag pinned to the mattress is an excellent vomit-receiver.

Mr., Mrs. Martin Miller Happily Wed 60 Years

Congratulations and best wishes from Her Majesty the Queen and from—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker were among the hundred or so messages and cards received by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Miller, R.R. 4, Stirling (Oak Lake), as they observed their 60th wedding anniversary on Saturday.

Approximately 100 friends and relatives attended the "at home" held during the afternoon and evening at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Keltha Aide.

Natives of Madoc township, the families of Mr. and Mrs. Miller moved to the Hartsmere district in North Hastings while the principals of Saturday's anniversary were still children.

They were married at the home of a friend of the bride's at Belleville. Mrs. Miller is the former Martha Hannah. The bride of 60 years is in her 91st year, while Mr. Miller soon will be 92.

Following their marriage they took up residence in the Lakeview area and later returned to Hartsmere where Mrs. Miller operated a store.

Later they moved to Trenton where Mr. Miller was employed at the Chemical works, then in 1922 again returned to Hartsmere where they remained until 1945. Before moving with their daughter to the Stirling area in 1950 they lived at Demorestville in Prince Edward County.

They are members of Grace Chapel at Stirling.

There are two children: Russell Miller and Mrs. Aide of R.R. 4, Stirling, five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

S.O.C. Suburbanettes of Royal Oak, Mich., were second. The region of the Sweet Adelines, female counterparts of barbershop singers, comprises Ontario, Michigan, northern Ohio and northern Indiana. The Tri-State Misses of Coldwater, Mich., were named top quartet in a competition Friday night.

Cuts Weight From 391 to 165 Pounds

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A California woman who cut her weight from 391 to 165 pounds in 14 months was honored Saturday as champion U.S. reducer.

Mrs. Beatrice McClure, who admits she formerly had to weigh herself on baggage scales, accepted the honor at the national convention of TOPS —Take Off Pounds Sensibly.

She lost the largest weight during 1961 of any of the group's 20,000 members—150 pounds—and has taken off another 15 pounds since Jan. 1 on her diet of 1,100 calories a day.

Here's how her personal statistics dropped: Bust from 53 to 40, waist from 52 to 36, hips from 64 to 50 and dress size from 32 to 20½.

King of the Hill

HORACE ORMSHAW

Leo Labelle emerged on top of the largest field of Belleville and Trenton bowlers yet in the King of the Hill tournament at the Bowl-O-Drome Saturday afternoon with 1358 for five games.

Labelle bowled well in the challenge match with last week's "king", Horace Ormshaw but was no match as Ormshaw had 935 (371) for three games. Labelle had 760 for his three.

Wayne Spencer was the new challenger from the Most Year Average tournament, beating his average by 36 pins per game. In the challenge match he lost out to Jim Elliott.

Metals Drop Opener To Simcoe

Belleville Crawford Meals faded in the second half here Saturday night and dropped a 92-82 decision to Simcoe in the first game of their OABA Intermediate "C" semi-final series.

The return game in the two-game, total - points-to-count series will be played in Simcoe Saturday night at eight o'clock.

The Crawfords pulled into an early lead here Saturday in front by 14 points at one point in the first half, and by a 48-42 score at the half-way mark.

Simcoe, with a smooth ball-handling club, took over the play and made most of their shots count in the second half of the fast, cleanly-played contest.

Brian Stead was the top point man for Simcoe, hooping 23 points. Fred DeVriendt hit for 16, Brian Laird for 15, Noel Mason for 11 and Frank Eldon for ten in a strong team effort.

Once again Teddy Batchelor sparked the Crawfords, leading all scorers in this one with 31 points. Don Smith hooped 17, Bill Green 15 and Bert Faulkner 11.

The Crawfords will thus face a 10-point deficit in the second game in Simcoe. Meanwhile, the Crawfords open the Bay of Quinte league finals against the Trenton Wilsons in Trenton Wednesday night at eight o'clock. The second game of that series is slated for Moira Secondary School one week from tonight.

Simcoe (92): B. Stead 25, F. DeVriendt 16, B. Laird 15, J. Adams 9, N. Mason 11, F. Eldon 10, F. Austin 6, C. Fick.

Belleville Crawfords (82): T. Batchelor 31, D. Smith 17, McNicol, B. Green 15, B. Faulkner 11, M. Carwell 4, E. Naismith 4.

Joyces Win Industrial Puck Title

Joyce Real Estate completed a clean sweep of the Belleville Industrial Hockey League playoffs last night by defeating Booth TV's 6-2 in the third game of their best-of-five finals.

Joyces, who topped the league during schedule play, won five games in a row to capture the Booth Radio - TV Trophy and the league playoff title. They ousted Rollins Construction 3-0 in the semi-finals before blanking the TV's, last year's champs, in the titular series.

The winners got off on the right foot last night, grabbing a 1-0 lead by Bryant's goal after only 25 seconds of play in the first period. Joyces added a second goal while themselves playing a man short four minutes into the period and never looked back. Elliott triggered this one.

Booth's cut the lead to 2-1 but Joyces were in front 4-2 at the end of the first period. The champs added single goals each of the two remaining periods, both times with Booths had a man in the penalty box.

Jackie Elliott sparkshooted the Joyce attack, scoring three goals, including two in the first period, and adding one assist. Jim Sherican fired two goals and aided on two more while Rylie Bryant bagged the other marker. Bert Faulkner, Hugh Reever, Doug Moreau and Bill Vesterfelt each drew one assist for the Doug Bone-coached crew.

Doug Murray and Jackie Gill potted the Booth goals, Murray's coming while Joyces had a man in the penalty box. Don Bishop and Milt Pukanchik had assists.

After a wide-open first period when Referees Don McCurdy and Tim Williams handed out only one penalty, play roughened up considerably. The losers drew nine minor sentences in all while the champs had five minors and a misconduct to Sheridan.

Both goalies, Bob Green of Joyces and Claude Gill of Booth's, came up with a number of fine saves. Carr's work was made more difficult when his mates decided to play it rough after rallying behind, keeping the club shorthanded a good deal of the last two periods.

Team and individual trophies will be presented at the league banquet and dance, scheduled for Saturday, April 28.

Wellington Bantams Win Opener

WELLINGTON (Special) — Wellington's bantam "D" squad took the first game of the best-of-three OMHA bantam "D" finals defeating Flatterville at New Hamburg by a 7-5 score on Saturday.

The next game of the series is slated for the Prince Edward Community Centre, Picton, on Saturday, April 21st, starting eight o'clock.

Tommy Lavender sparked the Wellington youngsters with three goals with Larry Lavender, G. Channell, L. McKenzie and B. Burley getting singles.

K. Hazmer paced the Flatterville attack with three markers, T. McCormick and H. Graham also scoring.

Wellington drew five of the eight minor penalties handed out by the officials.

Ingy Wins Over Snoek

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Former world heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson of Sweden scored a fifth-round knockout over Wim Snoek of The Netherlands Sunday night and took another step forward in his comeback effort to regain the title.

The end of the scheduled 10-rounder came after one minute, 15 seconds of the fifth round when Johansson cut loose with a long left followed by a right hook to Snoek's chin.

Johansson weighed 202 pounds; Snoek 197.

Johansson now has won 24 of his 26 professional matches—16 of them on knockouts. It was the second knockout defeat for 34-year-old Snoek who has fought 63 matches as a professional.

The victory gave the Wings the best-of-seven Ontario championship 4-1. They open the Eastern Canada series in Quebec tonight.

St. Mike's staged a third-period rally that netted two goals and pulled them to within a single marker of knotting the count in the game's dying minutes.

Pit Martin scored the clincher with only 38 seconds left into an open net after St. Mikes' coach Father Ted Flanagan lifted rookie netminder Bill McNabb in favor of a sixth attacker.

In addition to Martin, linemate Lowell MacDonald also notched a pair for the winners. Wayne Rivers got the other.

Rod Selling netted a pair in the third period for the losers and Ray Dupont got the other.

Sneaking drinks is a sign of alcoholism.

90,000 Ontario Residents Are Victims of Alcoholism

MATTHEW B. DYMOND, MD
Health Minister for Ontario
(First of a Four-Part series)

If 90,000 Ontario men and women were found to be sick with one particular disease at one time newspaper headlines would shout "Bout an epidemic. Everyone would be made aware of the problem, we would all learn the signs and symptoms of the disease, and we would take steps to guard ourselves and our families against it.

There are more than 90,000 men and women suffering alcoholism in alcohol in this province today.

One in every six alcoholics in Ontario is a woman.

Most alcoholics are married, have homes and families, and they are trying to carry on their jobs after a fashion.

These men and women are found in every income bracket, in every kind of occupation, in every neighborhood.

There are more of them in our large cities than in the rural parts of the province, and there are more of them clustered in the age group between 35 and 50; but some of them are found in every community and in every age group from late teens to the years of retirement.

NEED ALCOHOL

We call these sick people alcoholics because they have developed a psychological and later a physical need for a chemical known as ethyl alcohol. They can no more get along without alcohol than we can get along without food. (True, some alcoholics can stay away from alcohol for a period of weeks or even months, but eventually they come back to it, and when they do they do so with a vengeance!)

Alcoholics are sick people who desperately need understanding and help. Condemning them, shunning them, or simply telling them to straighten themselves up won't help. It is too complex a condition for that.

What the alcoholic needs is an intelligent, well informed assist in the direction of sobriety and a better organized life. Good intentions and soft-heartedness are not enough. Medical care is often needed too, as well as social and spiritual counselling.

The Government of Ontario has a special agency dedicated to the task of helping alcoholics and of helping other citizens and professional people to help alcoholics more effectively. This is the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation.

The Addiction Research Foundation was set up by the Provincial Government in 1949. It operates a small hospital in midtown Toronto and out-patient clinics in Toronto, London, Ottawa and Hamilton.

The next column in this series will deal at greater length with the Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario and its broad program for coping with this very serious disorder, alcoholism.

Kenny Lane Hands Molina First Defeat

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—Cagey southpaw Kenny Lane, the 30-year-old veteran from Muskegon, Mich., handed slugger Luis Molina a thorough boxing lesson and his first professional defeat Saturday night.

Lane, 138½ pounds, puzzled the 137¼-pound San Jose favorite with his southpaw punching through most of the 10-round fight and withstood a rally to win a unanimous decision.

The loss was the first in 20 fights for Molina, who suffered a cut under his left eye in the fifth round and opened a slash over Lane's left eye in the eighth.

There were no knockdowns. Referee Jack Downey and Judge Elmer Costa both scored the bout 72 while Judge Frank Bottaro had it 5-3. The Associated Press scored it 6-4.

The victory was the 70th for Lane against 11 setbacks and a draw.

Molina's more dramatization by actors. No; the best fascinating aspect of the program was the varied way in which Judas Iscariot depicted Jesus—so many different faces scored at all with the same spiritual quality.

Action in New Orleans, was that rare television commodity, an original comedy, and it turned up on NBC's Show of the Week Sunday night.

This was a promising and faunty little tale of a master con man, the Alabama Wonder, and his attempts to swindle a lonesome and rich Ohio widow out of $70,000.

But about half way through, the plan began to run out of gas. It was almost as if the author was trying to figure out some way—any way—to wind things up.

'Story of the Crucifixion' Moving, Spiritual Story

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Producers of NBC's Project 20 programs have developed a simple, dramatic and marvelously impressive technique for the retelling of a great and familiar story.

In Sunday night's He Is Risen, the story of the Crucifixion, the narration was appropriately in the soaring prose style of the King James version of the Bible. The visual portion consisted of color film of great religious paintings by artists of the Middle Ages and Renaissance.

The cameras, sometimes in closeup of faces, sometimes traveling slowly over a broad canvas, sometimes showing the whole, moved the story inexorably from the return of Lazarus from the grave to the triumph of the resurrection.

Seen through the eyes of masters — Rembrandt, Titian, El Greco, Van Dyck, Rubens, to mention only a few—the Easter story had impact and power be-

Marlon Brando Does Not Think He's Taxed Enough

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Marlon Brando has a timely tip for today: Taxes are unfair.

But Brando's viewpoint is unique: He doesn't think he is taxed enough.

His comments came out in the conversation on The Ugly American set. "The whole tax setup is unfair. It favors the rich guy. Anybody who is well enough off to set up a corporation doesn't have to pay the same taxes that the little guy does.

"Look at me. I don't know how I would be considered—rich, well-to-do or what. I've made a lot of money. I've also lost a lot of money—in investments and to my wife Anna Kashfi.

"The point is that I can keep what I make. That dough I made on Mutiny on the Bounty —I just folded it into a paper airplane and sailed it to the oil fields. It was as simple as that. PRINCIPLE WRONG

"The principle, I suppose, is that the wealthy put their money back into industry and thus add to the general economy. Maybe it works and maybe it doesn't.

"All I know is that the little guy—the people I work with and friends of mine who aren't well off—have a dime it's impossible for them to save anything, and they end up working until they're old and infirm and able to collect social security."

Brando is happily working in The Ugly American, wearing a mustache and clothes made by President Kennedy's tailor. He is the American ambassador to a Southeast Asian nation.

Hawks Hit, Check Leafs To Win 3-0

Wrap It Up In Second

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

CHICAGO (CP) — Some hockey fans might have believed Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs switched uniforms before their third Stanley Cup final game Sunday night. But it was masquerade.

The Hawks, patsies against Leafs in the opening two games in Toronto in this best-of-seven series, reversed the script as they hammered their former foes 3-0 to step back into contention for their second straight title.

The Hawks forechecked the Leafs silly, just as Toronto did to them last Tuesday and Thursday when Leafs won 4-1 and 3-2. And this time the Hawks pounded every wearer of a blue - and - white uniform who dared to close in on goaltender Glenn Hall.

Two goals in a space of three minutes and 38 seconds in the second period scuttled any thoughts Toronto might have had of taking this one and going into Tuesday night's engagement with a 3-0 lead in games. Those counters finished the Leafs and, for good measure, the Hawks scored with 20 seconds of the game remaining and with goaltender Johnny Bower watching from the

OPENS SCORING

Stan Mikita opened the scoring at 4:37 after hitting one rebound pass from Toronto defenceman Allan Stanley.

The second goal—by Ab McDonald at 8:33—came on a Hawks power play as Carl Brewer, another Leaf defenceman, sat out a holding penalty. Bronco Horvath backhanded a 15-footer into the empty net at 19:21 of the third period.

Team captain Pierre Pilote was the Black Hawks' marksman on the second - period goals. He carried the puck into the Toronto end on both and was particularly brilliant on McDonald's goal when he stickhandled to Bower's doorstep. The Toronto goalie was sitting on the ice when Pilote passed to McDonald, who eased the puck into the net.

Toronto never was a serious threat. Leaf snipers had only 19 shots on Hall and many of them were from bad angles.

Coach Punch Imlach of the Leafs came up with the understatement of the night when he told reporters "we were outhustled, outskated and outfought."

He closed the dressing room door to reporters for a few minutes and said later: "I told 'em, 'if you're going to win you don't do it by letting the other guys do all the work.'"

Referee Eddie Powers never allowed the game to get out of control. In the opening minutes tempers bristled when about six players, three from each side, jostled and shoved. Powers and linesmen Matt Pavelich and Neil Armstrong separated them before any damage was done.

Powers handed out 11 penalties, seven to the Leafs, including a 10-minute misconduct to Dick Duff for "passing him after Chicago's final goal.

Duff said he argued that Chicago's Eric Nesterenko, who received an assist on Horvath's goal, had carried the puck in his hand from behind his own blueline almost to the red line.

Duff complained to Powers and said the referee told him he didn't see the infraction.
